But no. They seem to have a one-track mind. They have formed habits after one pattern, and the devil himself can't change them. What tho' this pattern is a shoddy poor thing, the more you try to point out that fact to them, the more they seem to think you are trying to run their lives for them.

Yet we must have some sort of pattern or design for living, else our lives will be more or less like a rag-bag. We don't wear a crazy quilt on the street. We don't use sheets on our tables, but how many seem to get their sense of values all mixed up in their way of life. They want certain things in dress, or in food, or in friends, but they muddle their lives until there is neither pleasure nor profit in it. So, if you have been like that, find another pattern that you can wear and cast the other one out.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

He arrived at the police court to-day by an appointment made a week ago and announced to the magistrate that he was "all set." Magistrate Arnold then sentenced him to the county jail for two weeks, for driving a motor car while intoxicated.

TWINS ARE CHIC IN BLACK

CRISP TOUCH ADDED IN WHITE

By LISBETH.

NOW AS to whether twins should dress alike or not, much controversy rages. When the girls are as much alike as two peas in a pod, it seems that they should, especially if their inclinations tend that way. When, however, they are not identical twins, and have dissimilar tastes, it is probable that they should express their individual preferences and individualities by choosing differently styled clothes.

At any rate, these twins are so similar that their own mother must hardly be able to tell them apart, and they have chosen identically the same dresses — simple black crepe frocks, crisply trimmed with cuffs and collars of white braid — looking very chic and springlike.

Sleeves for these dresses are elbow-length and puffed at the shoulders. The dresses are for street wear and all daytime occasions.

Bags Match Shoes.

The black berets are worn well back on the head—as the younger set is doing this season.

Your smart black dress for autumn wear may very well be made of ribbed material, according to those in a position to foretell. Ribbed fabrics had a running start in evening and daytime wear last winter, and they promise to be right in at the finish next autumn. For tops in style bengalines and grosgrains are being developed. Then there are silk and rayon versions of ribbed woolen weaves to take your fancy. Some of these novelty woolenlike materials have thick uneven yarns that stand up roughly on the material's surface.

Twins and other smart young women are considering the possibilities of the dress and contrasting jacket this season. While the ensemble and matched suit idea has many advocates, the softly contrasting suit is very new and fresh looking.

Twins dress in simple black crepe frocks crisply trimmed with white braid collars and cuffs, and carry accordion box handbags in suede matching open toed and heeled sandals; black off-the-face berets.

SOCIETIES COMBINE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, April 14.—The Norwood branch of the Anglican Young People's Association, which was recently disbanded, have united with St. John's A.Y.P.A., Havelock, for the remainder of the season. Members of the Norwood A.Y.P.A. were present at the regular meeting of the local branch, Monday evening, at which time this arrangement was made. For the next month the Norwood group will attend the Havelock meetings and take charge of the programme on alternate evenings. If this arrangement proves satisfactory it is quite probable that the two groups will continue as a united branch when the meetings commence again next fall. Rev. R. E. Lemon, rector of both parishes has approved of the idea.

At the next regular meeting, on Monday, April 19th, the Havelock members will entertain the Norwood group to a supper, commencing at 7 o'clock. If possible a guest speaker will be secured for the evening.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

PLAINVILLE, April 14—On Friday evening, over eighty men of the Men's Association of Core's Landing, Plainville and Bethesda, motored to Grafton, where they were the guests of the Grafton Club.

The visitors put on the program and after community singing and a hearty welcome given by the home president, Mr. Heenan, the visiting president, Major Carl Drope, took the chair. The Bethesda chorus gave two numbers during the program, "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton" and "My Lady Sleeps." Solos were sung by Glen Cole "The Vagabond," and Glen Hogg, "Fly Birdie, Fly." Charlie Burrison gave a short speech, also George Gray. Duets were rendered by Messrs. Donald Brisbin and Wallace Buttars, with Don. dressed as a girl, and by Rev. H. Mellow and Glen Cole. Comic readings were well given by Messrs. Lyn MacDonald, Albert Sandercock and Cecil Lean.

Rev. F. Payton of St. George's Anglican church, Core's Landing, was the main speaker for the evening with the interesting subject, "The Value of Discipline." The quartette composed of Rev. H. Mellow, Rev. F. Payton, Messrs. Clifford Manley and Glen Cole, contributed two selections, "Sweet and Low" and "Steal Away to Jesus."

A social time was spent after the program when all were treated with a bountiful lunch by the Grafton gentlemen, and a very enjoyable evening was brought to a close.

Presentation Held

Monday evening the long postponed presentation in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John West was held at their new home in Cold Springs. It had been planned to surprise Mr. and Mrs. West before leaving their old home at Plainville, but owing to Mr. West's illness had to be postponed. A large number of friends and old neighbors met at their home and during the evening Archie Bowman read an appropriate address and Mrs. Wilbur Cole and Robert Buttars made the presentation of two comfortable wicker rocking chairs. The recipients very suitably replied and several old neighbors were called on for short speeches. Later in the evening a dainty lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark McKinley and family from near Peterborough, have moved into the community.

THIEVES LOOT STORE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, April 14.—Sometime during the night of Monday, April 12th, thieves broke into the store of Bell and Barlow, general merchants, and took a large quantity of clothing, boots and shoes, cigarettes, etc. They effected an entrance into the cellar by prying off the iron bars on the north-west window, smashing the glass and letting themselves through the opening and then proceeded up the cellar stairs smashing the heavy door at the top and gained the main store. There they rifled show cases, shelves, drawers, etc. Although this store has been robbed several times before, this seems to be the biggest job pulled off yet. Constable Percy Grey of Marmora is investigating.

On Monday evening of this week a large number of friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Brown gathered at their home and presented them with a beautiful Aladin Lamp. Mr. and Mrs. Brown are moving in the near future to the "Orena" Farm" west of Springbrook.

In making the presentation, W. J. Barlow expressed on behalf of all those present the sincere regret at their immediate vicinity. Mr. and Mrs. Brown thanked all in a few well chosen words for the beautiful remembrance, after which dancing was indulged in until a late hour. The music was furnished by Walter Jones, banjo and W. Petherick, violin. A splendid lunch was served by the ladies.

Mrs. Wm. Beatty, of Grafton, returned home on Monday of this week, after visiting friends and relatives in this vicinity for several days.

Mr. Delbert Fleming and family moved to Marmora on Thursday of last week. Mr. Douglas C. Brown, who has purchased Mr. Fleming's farm, will move there in the near future.

BRIDES CROWNED IN LAKE CHURCH

Headwear Intended For Queen Used As Old Custom In Sweden

STOCKHOLM, April 14—(C.P.)—Not orange blossoms but a crown intended for a queen is the wedding head-dress of brides here on the island of Visingso in Lake Vattern, one of Sweden's largest and finest lakes. Now more than 300 years old, the crown was originally made for a daughter of the Brahe family, which built the Castle of Visingsborg and the Brahe church on the island.

The girl, Ebba Brahe, was loved by Gustavus Adolphus and the crown was made for her wedding to him, but for reasons of state he was forced to give her up and marry a princess instead. The crown was placed in Brahe church, where visitors to the island are sometimes lucky enough to see it worn by a bride of the parish.

Many Diets Short In Vitamins

Few People Realize Their Meals Are Undersupplied With Vitamins—Until Ill Health Shows It

But, Eat a Special Supply of These 4 Vitamins REGULARLY and You Can Stop Worrying About Them at Mealtime

Poor digestion, a fallen stomach (see above picture), sluggish intestines and many obscure nervous troubles result from too little Vitamin B in the diet.

A daily intake of Vitamin B—the NERVE VITAMIN—is needed for the healthy, normal functioning of nerves, stomach, intestines and bowels. Add Fleischmann's Yeast to your regular diet to make sure you get enough Vitamin B. It is one of the richest known food sources of this NERVE VITAMIN.

HERMAN BRIX well-known Shot-Put Champion—has the sturdy body and vigorous strength that show he is well supplied with these 4 essential vitamins—A, B, D and G.

MILLIONS OF PEOPLE today suffer from some degree of vitamin deficiency because their meals do not provide enough of these health-building food elements.

Don't risk a shortage of vitamins in your diet.

The addition of just one food—FLEISCHMANN'S fresh YEAST—helps to balance your vitamin supply and adds to your daily quota of 4 important vitamins—A, B, D and G.

No other one food gives you such a rich supply of these 4 combined vitamins.

Just eat 2 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast daily—one cake about ½ hour before meals, or at bedtime. Eat it plain, or dissolved in a little water. Start now to build up your vitamin health this simple way!

TOO LITTLE VITAMIN G Means Poor Growth

ABUNDANT VITAMIN G

Undernourished, thin, poorly developed children often fail to get enough Vitamin G—the GROWTH VITAMIN—in their diet. Rapidly growing boys and girls should have a generous supply of this essential vitamin to help in building up a sturdy, well-developed body and general good health. Fleischmann's Yeast is rich in Vitamin G. Children from 5 to 12 years can be given 1 cake daily.

NOT ENOUGH VITAMIN A

An undersupply of Vitamin A weakens nose and throat linings—lowers your resistance to colds. Shortage of this vitamin can also lead to serious skin and eye disorders. Tests prove large numbers of people do not get enough Vitamin A. Let Fleischmann's Yeast help to increase your supply of this important vitamin.

The Richest Food Source of these combined Vitamins A, B, D and G—

DAMAGE ACTION AGAINST C.N.R. IS DISMISSED

SOUGHT $15,000

Finding negligence on the part of automobile driver, Robert Cowie, responsible for collision with a Canadian National Railway's train at the corner of George and Romaine streets on the evening of February 10, 1936, Mr. Justice J. A. Makins dismissed a $15,000 damage action against the railway in Supreme Court Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cowie and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Muskratie, residents of the Hiawatha Indian reserve, were the plaintiffs.

Details of the violent crash in which the car occupants narrowly escaped death were reviewed in detail as evidence was taken.

Mr. Cowie related he was driving south on George street in an old model light touring car which he had bought for $35. It was snowing and side curtains were up as a protection against the weather. His wife and Mrs. Muskratie were riding in the back seat.

Snowing

He testified it was dark, about 8 o'clock in the evening, and snowing but that he had clear vision in all directions through the windshield and through celluloid windows in the side curtains. He was not aware of the fact the C.N.R. railway crossed the intersection of the two streets, he stated, and drove over the intersection at a moderate speed. He heard a swish and the next thing he realized he was flying through the air, he testified. He said he had heard no train whistle or bell.

The witness said he suffered a broken arm, shock, bruises and cuts. His car was completely demolished, he testified.

Mrs. Cowie and Mrs. Muskratie testified they had heard neither the sound of a train whistle or bell before the crash. Mrs. Muskratie claimed she sustained severe fractures of the pelvis bones and is still suffering to the extent that she is unable to walk freely and is subject to pain. Evidence indicated Mrs. Cowie received lesser injuries.

Complete Wreck

Provincial Constable David Silvester told of an inspection he made at the scene shortly after the accident. He found the car thrown far to one side of the intersection, a complete wreck. It was apparent it had been struck with terrific force, he said.

V. T. Ashmore and Percy Elliston who were close to the scene at the time of the crash estimated the speed of the train, a freight making its entrance to the city, at 35 miles an hour. Dr. F. M. O'Brien testified concerning the injuries sustained by the three, estimating those suffered by Mrs. Muskratie as very serious with the likelihood of a permanent degree of disability. He said she is unable to walk correctly and still suffers pain. He estimated Robert Cowie to have received a 10 per cent disability as the result of his arm injury.

The plaintiffs sought $10,000 damages on behalf of Mrs. Muskratie, $3,000 on behalf of Mrs. Cowie, $1,500 on behalf of Robert Cowie and $500 for William Muskratie by reason of his expenses as a result of the accident.

Defence

Contending in defence that the statutory safety regulations were obeyed by the railway and its employees in connection with the accident and that responsibility lay with the driver of the automobile, the defence called only four witnesses.

Dr. S. R. Mages testified in connection with physical examinations of the plaintiffs involved in the accident. Mrs. Muskratie's injuries were not of such a nature to result in any serious permanent disability, he opined.

Sydney Smith was called to identify and explain a survey of the scene he made and Roy Pitchford identified photographs. Jean Rose stated she was riding in an automobile west on Romaine street near the scene just as the train was approaching. She stated she heard the train whistle at Locke street.

Commenting on the contention of W. J. Arthur Fair, acting for the plaintiffs, that the accident was not the fault of the driver of the motor vehicle, Mr. Justice Makins said: "He passed a sign as plain as the nose on a man's face three hundred feet from the track." He held that Cowie was negligent in not driving his car with greater care, saying he found from the evidence the train whistled as it approached the crossing, he stated the onus in the matter of proving the bell was not ringing was on the plaintiff and that it had not been proved.

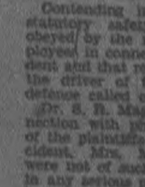
Painful to Move!



YOU can prolong life by taking the advice of a famous physician, which is: "Keep the kidneys in good order, avoid too much meat, salt, alcohol or tea. Drink plenty of pure water and drive the urb acid out of the system by taking a dose or tablespoonful of Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets." It is the discovery of Dr. Pierce of the Invalids Hotel, Buffalo, N.Y., used by all druggists. Read what Mrs. Wm. Blanc of 15 Oxford St., Hamilton, Ont., said: "A few years ago I was to bed for eight weeks and felt that I would never be well. I suffered more unbearable pain. Department Delegate Speaks To Large Millbrook Audience

BEAUTIFYING GARDENS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, April 14—A highly interesting and educational address was the main feature of the program presented in the Town Hall, Monday evening under the auspices of the local Horticultural Society, when John F. Clarke, representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Horticulture, visited the village and conveyed items of particular interest to Horticultural members and all home lovers in a talk entitled, "Continuous bloom in the Garden," and featured by beautifully colored and illustrated slides.

Splendid piano instrumentals played by Wm. Edworthy were enjoyed while the crowd gathered, they being representatives of Peterborough, Cavanville, Otonabee, Millbrook and other centres, who have long anticipated this visit from the noted lecturer, Mr. Clarke.

Trees Top List

In his address the speaker placed "trees" at the head of any list of horticultural materials; those which nature has dotted all over the world of various types and sizes; the oldest living things and the most gigantic; the only natural resource that reproduces itself through its own device. He spoke of their tenacity of life; the sustances obtained therefrom; the fruit, nuts, lumber, paper, dyes, etc.; the manner in which the quantity of trees affects climate, game and commerce.

He urged each and every one to assist in the "tree planting campaign" being inaugurated all over the continent and mentioned the two acorns and the oak seedling being presented to each Horticultural Society in the Ontario Horticultural Association in commemoration of Coronation year. The acorns and seedlings are being forwarded from Windsor Park with a personal message from George VI, and any member who would be interested in obtaining the same may have the seeds on application, and for a small sum which will be used to defray the expenses of packing and postage.

The speaker urged his listeners to be "partners of nature," to recognize the trillium, soon to bloom as "the floral emblem of Ontario," finally proclaimed as such following an undecided period of more than three years.

The beautifully colored and illustrative pictures clearly portrayed trees of gigantic size, forests, wooded glens, winter scenes on wooded slopes, the dainty and hardy wild flowers in their natural abode, and in magnified proportions well cared for lawns with borders and walks of beautifully arranged flower beds and shrubs, the proper method of planting trees and shrubs, the care and protection of plants, etc.

Y.P.U. Presents "Release"

The sacred drama "Release" presented by the Young People's Union of St. Andrew's United church, proved most unusual and strikingly effective. Picturing Barabbas in the dungeon of the castle of Antonia chained to the stocks with the two thieves in similar conditions under sentence of death by crucifixion on that very day, the dialogue between them threw a revealing light on the character of the three men. One cynical and morose, throwing bitter taunts at both his companions, rejoicing over the downfall of the mighty robber chieftain, Barabbas and taking cruel pleasure in reminding the younger man of his being a "pretty babe," too merciful to carry through the projects of the gang and yet standing to suffer the same bitter penalty.

The mother and sister of Barabbas go from prison to prison till they find the long lost son and brother and while the mother goes for water to bathe the swollen and bleeding wrists of the boy, the sister in her gentle trustful way, recalls the days when she was blind and listened to the stories told her by her older brother Barabbas, and how she pictured him as perhaps the "deliverer of Israel." She goes on to tell of the Nazarene who had restored her sight and could forgive sins, till Barabbas and the younger thief begin to think that it would not be so hard to die if one's soul were clean and to have some hope that even yet this wonderful Jesus might be able to save their souls. Just then, the soldiers come and take the two thieves away to be crucified and Barabbas is left alone.

A great hubbub arises in the court yard as the mob of infuriated Jews demand of Pilate the crucifixion of Jesus. While their attention is thus engaged, one of a band of followers of Barabbas gains admission to the dungeon and offers to undo the chains and help Barabbas' escape.

He sees in it a temptation to return to his former mode of life and heroically decides to face his punishment. Just then, to his amazed ears, come the words from the crowd outside, "Not this man, but Barabbas," and soon the soldier comes back to grant him official "Release." He kneels on the cold floor of the cell and then and there dedicates his restored soul and body to the service of the Christ who was then on his way to Golgotha, bearing the cross that was intended for Barabbas. The truth of the prologue from Isaiah 53rd chapter was thus made personal "Surely He hath borne my griefs and carried my sorrows and by His stripes I am healed." This release is yours if you claim it.

This sacred drama will be presented at Bailieboro, Friday evening, April 16, as one of the entries in a competition sponsored by the Peterborough Presbytery of the Young People's Union.

MRS. HANNAH GAILEY.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, April 14.—Mrs. Hannah Gailey, relict of James Gailey, passed peacefully away at her late residence on April 8, in her 96th year.

Mrs. Gailey was born in the Township of Tyendinaga, on February 14, 1843, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rayworth. In 1865 she became the wife of James Gailey, with whom she spent some twenty years on a farm near Napanee. On the death of her husband, fifty years ago, she removed to Belleville with her family of seven daughters, one son having died in infancy. Five of her daughters have also predeceased her during the years, leaving to survive her eldest daughter, Miss Mary at home, and Mrs. (Rev.) S. C. Moore of Toronto. One sister survives her, Mrs. John Bedden of Portsmouth.

Possessed of a deeply religious nature, with a firm faith and trust in Divine guidance, Mrs. Gailey lived a life of exceptional serenity and selfless service to family and friends. She was a member of the Tabernacle United Church.

The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon, April 10, from her late residence.

LECTURE IS GIVEN BY REV. WM. ALLAN

Illustrated Beautifully With Colored Slides Lecture Is Given In St. Paul's

Illustrating with beautifully-colored slides, Rev. William Allan, former minister of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, took a large gathering with him on a pictorial pilgrimage through Ireland, England and Scotland at St. Paul's Church last evening. Tours which Mr. Allan has himself made during the past several seasons provided the theme for the presentation.

From Larne, the starting point in Ireland, the congregation was taken through the Emerald Isle to such spots of history and beauty as Enniskillen, home of the famous Irish regiment, the Enniskillen Dragoons; to the far-famed Killarney lakes; to Blarney Castle to kiss the legendary Blarney stone and to Down Patrick to stand beside the grave of revered St. Patrick. From Larne the tour of England proceeded through Cornwall to Devon and into London; to the famous cathedral at Lincoln and to Cheddar, the home of Cheddar cheese, to Fotheringay where Mary Queen of Scots was beheaded and to the English lakes. Up from the south proceeded the tour through Bonnie Scotland and few of the Scottish places famed in story or song were missed.

Says Unless Gathering.

Hugh Thompson, C.I.O. organizer whom Premier Hepburn refused to meet in negotiations last Saturday, maintained the union had gained strength during the strike.

Recruits, he claimed, came from workers of the Paris Department, which has been in operation for shipments of supplies to dealers and other General Motors warehouses. Plant foremen are now being used in the Paris Department, Thompson said.

General Motors officials yesterday announced that export orders, particularly to England, normally filled by the Canadian plant, would have to be filled from the Detroit plant if the deadlock continues.

The English market, said officials, buys half as many Canadian-made cars produced by the company as all of Canada.

Cabinet To Meet

OTTAWA, April 14 (CP) — The cabinet will meet today for the first time since parliament prorogued. It will assemble under the cloud of a major strike in Oshawa, Ont., with a call in its ears for a federal mediator.

Mayor Alex Hall of Oshawa, scene of an orderly strike of 3,700 employees of General Motors of Canada, disclosed last night he had sent a telegraphic invitation to Labor Minister Rogers, asking his offices as mediator in an effort to resolve differences between workers and the company over wages and recognition of United Automobile Workers of America, a wing of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

How the government would regard federal intervention at this stage was not clear. Labor Minister Rogers indicated intervention of his department was not contemplated while the Ontario Labor Department was making efforts at mediation. It was not known either if Mayor Hall had obtained adherence of both sides of the strike to the idea of federal intervention.

The cabinet, it was believed, would consider these questions today. It was also considered likely some decisions would be reached regarding steps to make effective legislation and policies formulated during the session.

Dry Areas Soaked

Manitoba rains extended to the Saskatchewan border and the dry areas in the southwest received moisture. Near the United States border at Emerson, a steady rain fell and seeding operations are proceeding.

Fair and mild weather was reported from the Western Provinces with some rain. In the Alameda district of southeastern Saskatchewan more than an inch of rain fell over the week-end and seeding was held up. The southwestern part of the province reported soil dry.

Weyburn district, 109 miles south of Regina in the centre of one of the worst drought areas last year, reported conditions greatly improved due to recent rains and snow. Seeding has not started but added moisture made the outlook brighter.

Farmers are on the land with seed drills in many areas north of Regina where the seed bed is good. Moose Jaw farmers will start work on the land within a few days despite reported dearth of sub-soil moisture.

Ploughing began this week in the Saskatoon district and plenty of moisture on the top five inches of soil was reported with dry soil beneath that level. University of Saskatchewan grain experts said there was sufficient moisture for germination.

Field work is underway in the Lethbridge and Taber districts in southern Alberta while dust storms caused concern.

DOUKHOBORS HAVE B.C HEADS WORRIED

Guards Doubled At Public Buildings, Factories, Rail Bridges In Trouble Area

NELSON, B.C., April 14 (CP)— Spokesmen of organization among the West Kootenay Doukhobor communities was indicated today as police took steps to guard against a recurrence and Premier T. D. Pattullo sought solution of the problem as "one of national well-being."

Sergeant T. G. Barber of the Provincial Police said he had received information leading him to believe attempts might be made to blow up railway bridge between Nelson and Midway, 30 miles west, and the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company plant at Trail.

Guards stationed at public buildings and factories were doubled and 25 men were posted at railway bridges and at the Trail smelter. Eleven community halls and schools have been destroyed or damaged since the trouble broke out April 4.

Mr. Pattullo summoned Peter P. Verigin, former president of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood and spiritual head of the 5,000 Named Doukhobors to Victoria to discuss the Doukhobor problem.

Mr. Pattullo announced he would ask Dominion Government co-operation in reaching a permanent solution of the problem of Doukhobor residence in British Columbia. Nine deaths and enormous property damage have resulted from troubles in the district since 1922.

The last outbreak occurred in 1932 and was stopped when more than 500 members of the Sons of Freedom sect were sentenced to three years imprisonment for arson parading. The total population of Doukhobors in the province is 13,000.

COULD NOT LIFT ARMS ABOVE HEAD

Owing to Painful Rheumatism

This woman suffered from rheumatism in her back, arms and legs. For two months, she endured this painful condition, then, like many another sufferer, she decided to try Kruschen Salts. Read her letter:—

"About fifteen months ago I got rheumatism in my arms, back and legs. The pains in my arms and legs after getting warm in bed were almost unbearable. I was like that for two months, and could not reach above my head. I read so much about Kruschen Salts that I thought I would try them. I am so glad to say that for more than a year I have not had the slightest return of my rheumatism."—(Mrs.) H. E.

The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are frequently due to deposits of uric acid in the muscles and joints. Kruschen Salts assist in stimulating the internal organs to healthy, regular activity, and help them to get rid of this excess uric acid.

Children's Aid To Probe Duties Of Superintendent

More Daily Investigations Are Sought By Some Members

INTERCHANGE IDEAS

A committee was named at the regular meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Children's Aid Society Tuesday afternoon, to investigate the duties of Superintendent John Edgar, following a discussion as to the desirability of more prevention work being carried on in the city and district. This action was precipitated by Ald. Walter Stocker who seized upon the fact that the superintendent had reported that there were at present nineteen children in the Shelter to emphasize that Mr. Edgar had not been sufficiently energetic in dealing with conditions in the homes so that it would not be necessary to house so many children in the Shelter.

The discussion arose after the superintendent had presented his monthly report.

When Ald. Stocker was informed that nineteen was the number at present being taken care of in the local institution he declared that was practically double the number a year ago and he argued that this condition illustrated the need of more preventive work. There should be more contacts in the homes, Ald. Stocker contended.

President Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, who was in the chair, remarked that if there was to be more done in the way of home visiting additional help would be required.

Wants More Investigation

Ald. Stocker, however, returned to the charge by remarking that there was not enough office work to keep the superintendent occupied very long each day and that there should be more investigations made and a report given of each day's activities.

"Doesn't our superintendent do any prevention work?" asked C. A. Salmonsen. "What takes up all his time?"

Mr. Edgar proceeded to give the details of a case in the county he had dealt with last month, but Mr. Salmonsen remarked that they were not so much interested in the one particular case as they were in getting the story of the month's activities.

"How many new cases has Mr. Edgar had this month?" he asked.

"Not very many," replied Rev. Dr. Barr. "The figures show one new case and two others re-opened."

It was explained that the regulations called for wards to be visited twice each year and there had been no visits during the month.

Ald. Stocker remarked that the woman inspector who had been assigned for duty here under the Mothers' Allowance Act had made on an average of 100 contacts a month.

Suggests Committee

H. B. Cowan, remarking that from time to time similar complaints were heard in regard to the work of the superintendent, felt that in justice to that official himself the matter should be looked into by a committee and accordingly he moved that a committee composed of President Dr. Barr, Mrs. Oke, Reeve James Gifford and C. A. Salmonsen be appointed to investigate Mr. Edgar's work and report to the annual meeting.

The motion was carried, Rev. Dr. Barr pointing out that it was difficult to get the whole picture in a discussion of this nature. There was not, he said, the amount of co-operation from other organizations that was desirable. For example he pointed out that the information obtained by the inspector for the Mothers' Allowances would be of invaluable assistance to the Society and yet it was not available.

When the meeting opened it was revealed that only three of the members had paid their fees and the remainder of those in attendance promptly made their contributions. However, R. H. Parsons pointed out that even with this enlistment the organization was still short of the thirty directors called for in the new constitution. Accordingly it was decided, on motion of Ald. Waller Stocker and Mrs. Lawrence, that a letter should be sent to Board members not present to notify them that fees must be paid and that failure to pay them would be regarded as an indication the member did not desire to remain in the organization.

The Monthly Report

In presenting his monthly report Superintendent Edgar showed that altogether there were 73 children under the supervision of the Society at the end of March, with nineteen in the shelter. The financial statement showed the Society with $693.14 to the good at the end of March as contrasted with the position a year ago when there was an overdraft of $677 and a $500 note.

Among the communications was an invitation to attend a conference of the Children's Aid Societies of Ontario in Toronto on Tuesday, April 27, the hope being expressed that each society would send along its superintendent or agent and a member of its board of management.

Ald. Walter Stocker was inclined at first to regard the proposition lightly in moving that it be received. He doubted whether anything very constructive ever came out of such conferences.

Mr. Edgar replied that after the first conference he had attended he had prepared a lengthy report for presentation to the Society and he recalled that it has been Mr Stocker who had moved that it be taken as read.

President Dr. Barr and H. B. Cowan both expressed the opinion that the interchange of ideas and the discussion that took place were usually helpful and Ald. Stocker accordingly moved that Superintendent Edgar and Mrs. Welch represent the Society at Toronto.

The following accounts for the month of March, 1937, were ordered paid:

RESPONSIBILITY IS DIVIDED IN DAMAGE ACTION

Damages To Extent Of $1,000 Allowed In The Munro Case

$10,000 CASE SETTLED

Responsibility was found divided such that the plaintiffs were awarded 40 per cent. and the defendant 60 per cent. of total damages of $1,000 by Mr. Justice Making after trial of an action by Gordon H. Munro and Theresa Munro against John Douglas in Supreme Court to-day. The action concerned a collision between an automobile in which Mrs. Munro was a passenger and a truck owned by Mr. Douglas at the corner of Reid and McDonnel streets on February 14, 1936.

V. J. McElderry, K.C., acted for the plaintiffs and J. W. Pickup, K. C., of Toronto, for the defendants. Evidence indicated the car in which the plaintiff was riding, approached the intersection proceeding west on McDonnel Street. It failed to stop, but slowed to the extent it was necessary to change gears before proceeding over the intersection. The car was just past the centre of the street when it was struck by the Douglas truck, proceeding south on Reid.

Thomas Dickson, driver of the truck, stated he was proceeding at a speed of 25 miles an hour when the accident occurred. He testified he took note of some boys standing by the road near the intersection, but said he failed to see the car in which the plaintiff was riding until within a few feet of it. It was then too late to avoid a crash and the front of the truck struck the right rear end of the car. The car was thrown to the south-west corner and against a pole, evidence indicated.

Mrs. Munro claimed she suffered a fracture of a shoulder blade and other injuries with effects which have continued to the present. Plaintiffs sought $2,500 on behalf of Mrs. Munro and $2,500 on behalf of Mr. Munro for expenses said to have been caused him. In defence, a claim that Mr. Douglas was not the responsible owner of the truck by reason of an arrangement with Thomas Dickson, Sr., was stressed by Mr. Pickup.

Mr. Justice Makins found that Mr. Douglas was owner of the truck "as far as this action is concerned."

Indicating his view of the case, he said: "It strikes me that both parties are about equally to blame. Each should have seen the other, but they shot suddenly into each other's vision." Following the hearing of argument by Mr. Pickup, he revised his opinion to assess a greater portion of responsibility for the accident to the car in which the plaintiff was riding.

In accordance with the judgment, the plaintiffs were awarded $400, and costs, on the County Court scale, and the defendant $600.

Case Settlement.

A settlement of the action of Laura Deftuahie of Lakefield against Ralph Kilborn of Lakefield for $10,000 in connection with the death of Thomas Deftuahie when he was struck by Mr. Kilborn's car on the Lakefield Road was reported to the Court. The amount of settlement was $4,000, it was stated.

A decree nisi was granted Clarence Roland Hall after hearing an undefended action for divorce against Beatrice Lillian Hall. The case of J. E. Lavoie of Bracebridge against A. K. Aziz of Brampton was transferred to Toronto. The suit of James Logan against the Township of Asphodel for damages in connection with an automobile accident was adjourned to the next court.

HOUSES IN DEMAND.

"There is great demand for the right kind of houses here at the present time," said J. T. O'Connell, real estate man, to The Examiner to-day." Business in rentals is considerably brisker and there is a scarcity of houses." Mr. O'Connell added that the rent relief situation was still a serious problem.

TICKETS GOING WELL.

Tickets are selling fast for the complimentary luncheon which the Peterborough Horticultural Society will tender Ald. Walter Stocker next week. The feeling that Mr. Stocker's work of city beautification has earned him this recognition is making it easy to interest citizens in the affair, those in charge report.

FREAK EGG.

A freak egg laid by one of his Leghorn pullets was brought into The Examiner office by L. Minicola, Crawford's Grove. Of abnormally large size the egg has a soft outer skin, which contains a normal hard-shelled egg. About five freak eggs of a similar kind have been laid within the past week or more, presumably by the same hen.

NO EXTENSION YET.

The trapping season, Fish and Game Overseer Lyons told The Examiner to-day is, according to the regulations, finishes at midnight Thursday night and up to noon to-day he had not been informed by the Department of any change. "Sometimes when an extension has been granted we have not been informed until the very last day, and this may be the case this time," Mr. Lyons said.

UNABLE TO COME.

M. A. Sorseliel, Deputy Minister of Public Welfare, was to have been guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Children's Aid Society, but at Tuesday's meeting a letter was read from him expressing regret that another engagement made it impossible for him to attend. P. W. Heise, Provincial Officer of the Children's Aid branch will be invited to substitute for the deputy-minister.

Strike Notes

Seventh Day Adventists are holding their Canadian Union Conference in Oshawa, delegates coming from all sections of the Dominion. Hotels, rooming houses and all such places are filled. Speakers see in the present disturbed relations between capital and labor signs of the return of the Lord.

President of the Oshawa Branch of the Canadian Legion gave notice of the cancellation of the annual Vimy dinner which had been arranged for the Legion Hall.

Number of cars from Toronto are reported to have arrived and discharged passengers who sought to pick quarrels with the men on the picket line. Union police have been instructed to keep them on the move.

When foremen and bosses went through the picket line they were subjected to a barrage of boos and jeers and the word "scab" was frequently heard.

News reel man from Toronto take the pictures of strike scenes came away from home without a handkerchief. Not able to get to a store, he tore the tail from his shirt and made use of that.

Not Directly Affecting Local Plant Orders From G.M. To Cease Production

"Fortunately all our eggs are not in one basket," said Robert Abbott, head of the Canadian Baybestos Company when asked by The Examiner this morning as to the effect upon the activities of the local plant of the order issued by General Motors to firms supplying it with parts and supplies to cease production.

"The General Motors situation will not affect us at all for some little time" Mr. Abbott added. "Our general jobbing business and the other outlets we have for our products will keep our plant going. Happily we are not in the position that our whole production was being absorbed by General Motors."

Dominion Woollens and Worsted may possibly be indirectly affected to some degree so far as the Bener-Worth plant is concerned, the Oshawa situation insofar as the firm supplies yarns to run the upholstery trade dealing General Motors.

"We ourselves have not been the upholstery goods for some time," Dwight G. H. Melton, manager of the company, told The Examiner. "Formerly cloth for the automobile trade was made at the Auburn plant but in recent years that business has been dropped."

SOCIAL CREDIT ACT GIVEN 3RD READING IN ALBERTA HOUSE

Legislature All Set For Adjournment—Bill Has Stormy Passage

MEET AGAIN JUNE 7

By George Finlay
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON, April 14 — (CP) — Adoption of the Social Credit Act, major legislation of the Aberhart government, prepared the way for adjournment of the Alberta legislature today.

Adopted last night after a stormy passage as measures Social Credit members criticized the wide powers a House board to select a commission for administration of a Social Credit program, the act will be given royal assent by Lieut.-Gov. J. C. Bowen today.

The legislature will adjourn until June 7, giving the Aberhart government the opportunity of putting its new economic order into effect. By that time it is expected the commission of experts will have been appointed and the way cleared for operation of Social Credit machinery.

Left Over

Debt legislation was not proceeded with, the Reduction of Debts Act and the Debt Adjustment Act standing over until the June session. Until then, the government will extend the 60-day moratorium proclaimed in February. The extension is provided for in a Bill approved in the legislature last night. It will be proclaimed by the lieutenant-governor-in-council.

Under the new Social Credit Act a Social Credit Commission, composed of experts to be selected by the board of House members, of which G. L. MacLachlan (S.C., Coronation) will be chairman, will have full charge of administration. The board, however, will assist in formulating Social Credit plans.

Insurgents, led by Dr. H. K. Brown (S.C., Pembina) and R. E. Ansley (S.C. Leduc) attacked appointment of a permanent board. Insurgents had sought, it was declared, only a temporary board until a commission could be appointed. Other features of the act were allowed to pass without change. The measure was drafted by a committee of 10 House members.

"It gives powers to the board the committee never intended it to have," said Dr. Brown.

No Interference

Provincial Treasurer Solon Low denied there had been any interference from the cabinet in drafting the bill and declared:

"I want to see an earnest attempt to implement Social Credit. If we cannot do it I want to tell the people the jig is up."

An attempt was made by Mrs. Edith Rogers (SC., Ponoka), lone woman Insurgent, to have powers of the board transferred to the executive council. A motion she introduced for this purpose was defeated 30-13, four Liberals and one Conservative supporting seven Insurgents.

Commission members will be appointed for a 10-year term, their salaries to be fixed by the board and approved by the lieutenant-governor-in-council.

Deremo Gives Written Consent For Destruction Of Twelve Dogs

Defendant Fails To Appear When Case Is Called By Magistrate

CONSTABLE SENT OUT

When his name was called in magistrate's court this (Wednesday) morning John Deremo, 56-year-old Douro Township peddler had failed to appear on an adjourned charge of permitting dogs to run at large contrary to provisions of a township by-law.

Explaining the absence of the defendant, Dr. T. W. H. Young declared that Deremo had an attack of influenza and in view of his advanced age had thought it advisable to absent himself from court.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., commented, "Deremo is not here. He is not represented by counsel, while Dr. Young comes here without affidavit and states that defendant has an attack of influenza."

While His Worship was unwilling to take the risk of bringing the defendant to court, if his condition was such that his health might be endangered, he stated, "I have the feeling that Deremo is trifling with this court. A week ago he was charged with permitting dogs to run at large and at that time he gave an undertaking to destroy the dogs, in which case the prosecution was willing to withdraw the charge."

After consulting with Dr. Young and with E. A. Peck, K.C., who appeared for the prosecution, His Worship adjourned the proceedings for half an hour while a police constable was dispatched to bring Deremo to court.

When he did appear Deremo had engaged the services of W. J. A. Fair as counsel. He entered a plea of not guilty to the charge and intimated he was ready to go on with his trial.

At the suggestion of the Bench, the two counsel together with aged defendant, and the police officer went into a huddle and arrived at a solution to the matter.

Deremo gave written consent for about a dozen of the dogs to be destroyed, and obtained permission to keep "one or two male dogs" on his property.

The charge resulted from complaints by farmers in the district that Deremo's dogs had been allowed to run loose and worry sheep and hens.

CATHOLIC CHURCH 4 HOMES BURNED

Fire Razes Part Of Block In Victoria Harbor—All Buildings Frame

VICTORIA HARBOR, April 14.—Buildings covering half a block of the main street of this village were razed last night by a fire which started in the home of Hector St. Amant, from an unknown cause, and spread rapidly in both directions. St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church and four houses, all frame structures, were reduced to a heap of embers, and the home of Mrs. Irene Swales was destroyed. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Victoria Harbor has no water mains, and volunteer firefighters were practically helpless as they sought to prevent the spread of the flames by organizing a bucket brigade. Emergency calls were put in to the Midland and Coldwater Fire Brigades, and 2,30 feet of hose had to be laid to the bay, from which the Midland truck supplied a stream of water by which the spread of the flames was checked.

When the fire was at its height the heat was so intense it was impossible to stand on the street directly opposite, and men busily splashed water over the fronts of the houses to prevent a further spread of the fire across the street.

Sparks were carried by a westerly wind beyond the limits of the village and a number of smaller fires were started as the brands fell on the roofs of houses, some of them blocks distant. A light sprinkle of rain fell, which, although far from sufficient to check the fire, dampened the roofs of nearby houses and prevented possible serious outbreaks in distant parts of the community.

I.T.U. PRESIDENT SCORES HEPBURN

Charges Statements On The Oshawa Strike Insult To Workers Of United States

INDIANAPOLIS, April 14 (AP)—Charles P. Howard, president of the International Typographical Union said last night statements credited to Mitchell Hepburn, Premier of Ontario, in connection with the Oshawa General Motors strike are "an insult to wage workers of the United States."

Howard made his statement in a telegram sent to Premier Hepburn.

He charged the statements credited to Hepburn in press reports also constitute "An indictment of the policy of Governor Murphy of Michigan and the national administration in handling industrial conflicts involving hundreds of thousands."

"Laws protecting the rights of workers to organize for collective bargaining and choose representatives without influence of employees or politicians have been sustained by the highest court," Howard's telegram read.

In reference to statements credited to Premier Hepburn in reports sent to United States newspapers to the effect of John Lewis or other C.I.O. officials would be promptly jailed if they committed an overt act in Ontario, Howard's telegram said:

"Your threat to imprison American citizens who render assistance to Canadian wage earners in their effort to secure recognition and justice from American corporations is a gratuitous insult when it is recognized thousands of your citizens have been forced to come to the United States to secure employment under conditions which gave them a decent standard of living."

Almost daily we read about someone being injured or badly shaken up because of an accident.

It is almost impossible to get a bad jar or twist without causing a strain to the spinal column.

This may produce a slight rearrangement of spinal joints or tightness of spinal ligaments and muscles which will result in nerve constriction.

stiffness, backache, stomach trouble or headache may develop.

CARDS' HITTING HAS BEEN WEAK TRAINING CAMP

But Frankie Frisch Claims They Have a Chance To Win Pennant

PLENTY OF LIFE

Frankie Will Again Start At Second For Nineteenth Year

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., April 14 —Manager Frankie Frisch had a sore thumb. Not only that, but the Cardinals were not hitting this spring. Besides that very afternoon Johnny Mize, first baseman upon whom the team depends for some home runs this year, had been found guilty of swinging at the old No. 3 pitch (the slow one).

The game had just ended, and the Cardinals had made a lot of mistakes (besides not hitting). Mr. Frisch knows, of course, that it is human to err, but when the boys throw away some chances that thinking might have saved, they are going to hear from Mr. Frisch. So when I came across him in the clubhouse, he was bubbling with things to say. Yes, of course he'd talk about the ball club.

Not So Easy?

"Yeah," said the old Fordham Flash, "we have a chance. But it's not going to be easy. I read a piece the other day that the Gas House Gang would win this year easy. I never was lucky enough to play on a team that won a permanent easy. I hope these fellows don't get the idea they're to win everything without hustling.

"When a team isn't hustling, you see some such game as you saw out there just now. It looked more like beanbag to me.

"You could spot some of the men loafing this afternoon. And you saw who was hustling, didn't you? Before we go along much farther, you'll see all the Cardinals hustling. Those who have loafing to do can do it down on the farm."

Frisch rubbed his taped thumb, which was slightly swollen. He had played second himself that day. Frankie will be 40 years old when September comes. For a second baseman that's—well, that's seasoned. But that afternoon, the Flash had been his old kittenish self, starting a couple of sparkling double plays at second, soaking a fast one for three bases.

"I figure I'll be able to start the season at second," he said. "Never felt better than I do this spring. You know how it is—I don't figure to go all season. My legs won't hold up. Stu Martin did a great job at second when I had to quit last year, but Stu is weak after an appendicitis attack. He'll be ready again, I figure, if I had to fold up. I'm not trying to fool myself. This will be my nineteenth year as a player. But I guess I can start.

"We've got to get some more hitting, some power hitting. I'm not so much worried about pitching, with Warneke, Dizzy and Paul Dean. Jim Winford and one of the new boys for starters. Ryba and Andrews look fine. Catching is all right, too. Mickey Owen is turning out to be a capable kid. Only 20 years old, but has a good head for the job. He and Ogrodowski will handle that okay.

"We need heavier hitting (he said something like that before), but our reserves are better this year. Look at the infield—Mize, Pepper Martin, Durocher, Stu Martin, Don Gutteridge, Jim Brown and myself—isn't that enough infield for any ball club? Don Gutteridge (a chattel from the Columbus chain store), has looked erratic this spring at third, but he'll come out of that, I hope. We're going to start him, anyway, I guess, and shift Pep (Martin) to the outfield. Gutteridge probably will lead off. Plenty fast.

Hustlers Galore

"I'm giving Don Padgett and Stan Bordagaray all possible chances to win an outfield job. I'm not worried about Maxwick or Martin. They'll hustle and they'll hit. Maybe this Padgett (a recruit from Columbus) or Bordagaray (obtained from Brooklyn in a trade) will give us some better hitting."

Frisch rubbed his thumb again, lifted the tape from it and looked around the steaming room. Pepper Martin emerged from a shower.

"We have got some real hustlers on this club," said Frisch, "and you're looking at one now. Have you heard Pepper's orchestra and glee club? Bill McKee (recruit pitcher from Columbus) plays fiddle. So I guess we'll have to make Bill a starting pitcher. Bill looks great this spring. He's one of the hardest working boys on the club. Fine spirit. That band of Pepper's is a lot of fun. Besides, it keeps the players closer together. The gang has a lot of life and if we get some hitting, I mean some power hitting—"

"Going for the slow pitch this year, huh?" said the leader of the Gas House Gang. (Mize had popped up a weak fly when he cut with all his might at a slow one that afternoon). "Better wait for the good ones, Johnny. If you learn how to hit that kind, let me know how you do it, will you?"

With that, Frisch ducked into a shower.

CAN EVEN IT UP THINK BEAVERS

All In Fine Condition While Sudbury Crippled With Injuries

CALGARY, April 14 (C.P.).—North Battleford Beavers, growing tougher as their Allan Cup hockey series with Sudbury Tigers progresses, are confident they can even the game count at 2-all in the fourth contest to-night.

Their 7-3 victory on Monday in overtime after tying the score in seconds before the third period ended injected much confidence into the Beavers. Manager Jack Abbott said last night. He believes his fast Saskatchewan team can come back after losing the first two games.

Abbott said his players are in good condition. Sudbury Athletes, on the other hand, are troubled with injuries.

Rudolph (Bingo) Kampman, regular defenceman, received a gash in his right foot in the first game and has not been in the line-up since. He is not expected to play to-night.

Baltimore Orioles Expected To Set Fast Pace This Year

To Manage Petes

FRED COLLINS

Named manager of the Petes' senior ball team for 1937, this veteran baseball coach from Western Canada—who has been living in Peterborough the past year—has already begun indoor training sessions for prospective players in the "Y" gym. His appointment as manager was a popular one and instituted by the players themselves.

Felt To Be One Of Strongest In Field In Some Years

NO CHAMPIONSHIP CLAIMS

By RANDALL CASSELL

WINTER GARDEN, Fla., April 14 (AP)—Winter book favorites in the International Baseball League, Baltimore Orioles hope to make the experts look good by stepping out this summer and setting a fast, winning pace for the rest of the clubs in President Frank J. Shaughnessy's circuit.

Neither John Mahlon Ogden, general manager, nor Guy Sturdy, manager, are making any pennant claims but it is no secret both feel this year's Baltimore team is one of the strongest on the field in several years. Ogden set about making some sound trades to strengthen the club for 1937 during the winter season.

Two Real Winners

Heading the pitching staff are two real winners from last year. Harry Malmiak and Harold (Hal) Vandenberg. Malmiak won 18 games, 14 with the Orioles while Vandenberg had a 9-and-4 record with the Birds after being bought from Syracuse in mid-season.

Jim Bivin, who won eight out of 16, remains from last season along with Bill Ohrman who was out most of the summer. Winter deals brought Leon Chagnon in from Montreal, Gordon (Dusty) Rhodes won from the Athletics and Leon Pettit from Albany.

Both were Orioles in 1936, Gray hitting .237 for the Flock after coming from Johnstown (Middle Atlantic League) where he hit .327. Savino hit .277 last year but has done better in the past and is ready for a big season.

The infield is entirely set with the return by New York Giants of Les Powers for first base. Les covered the position for the Birds last summer after being sought from the Newark club.

To Play Second

Roy Schalk, costing the Birds around $8,000, was bought from Newark during the winter to play second base. Schalk will team up nicely with Bill (Red) Hoffner, lithe shortstop. Smoky Joe Martin is back for third base duty. He hit .307 last year. For utility duty there are Hal King, bought from Montreal, and Lyle Judy the base-stealing star of 1935 when he pilfered 107 Springfield of the Western Association.

In the outfield the Orioles have great offensive strength there in George (Poosh) Puccinelli, brought from Athletics; Ab Wright and Woodley Abernathy, holdover stars from 1936, and Ed Remorenko, big Russia youth, drafted from Trenton.

Digging Up the Legal Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

THE MEN'S City Softball League goes into its next session at eight o'clock next Tuesday evening in the Duffus' Board Room. It's an open meeting to elect officers, take entries and make plans for the season. A big turnout is hoped for. The last meeting resulted in a committee being formed to outline a slate of officers for the '37 season and there should be no hitch Tuesday in getting the circuit organized again. Although there are a few rumors floating around, we don't know what teams will be in this summer. At least four are necessary and six would be better. Swarts Clothiers, who went into O.A.S.A. playdowns last season, are out this year and the players scattered to the four winds. Games will likely be at Central once again.

LOCAL "Y" grapplers are getting into shape for their matches with the boys from the Ottawa Y.M.C.A. who come here this Saturday eve. The locals have been coached by H. R. Cowan, Sr., former Canadian welterweight amateur champion. So far, the Peterborough crew have had no outside competition while the visitors have wrestled in public before. They are: Ottawa entries with their weights: Bud Budree 130; Dave Baker 145; Cec. Holmes (instructor) 150; Stan Kinrosd, 157; Harry Appleton, 160; and Wendell Day, 170. Local grapplers are: Bill Hogan, 135; Steve Csumrik, 142; Jim Thorburn, 142; Fred Williams, 150; Bill Taylor, 160; and Ross Fulkinghorn, 165.

LOOKS LIKE Trenton Fliers will enter an O.A.L.A. intermediate Central Ontario grouping. Squad Leader Lawrence wrote Secretary Charlie Carson of the Petes the other day saying the Airmen were interested and asking to be notified of the next group meeting. He suggested a loop of Trenton, Peterborough, Belleville, Oshawa and Kingston. The locals aren't so keen about the latter, and Belleville may or may not enter. However, a fourth team can be dug up somewhere—provided Oshawa comes in as expected—and a nifty circuit formed. The Airport has nine good lacrossers on hand so far, we understand.

DOWN IN the InterCounty Baseball League they're thinking of having floodlights for games. The idea is to sell shares to obtain a lighting plant and then rent it around to the various clubs six nights a week, the portable plant probably paying for itself in a season. It is an idea and might mean an increase in attendance, though personally we never could get excited about baseball under the lights. Just a diehard maybe, and anyway no one ask for our opinion. But there it is, regardless. Probably the floodlight plan in the western loop will flop eventually.

WITH MINOR baseball pretty much on the ropes up in this neck of the woods, it's very refreshing to hear of one centre where it flourishes. At the O.B.A.A. convention in Oshawa recently, one delegate tried to put over an amendment to keep clubs from stealing junior ballsters from another. It was defeated, largely on the eloquent speech of "Peck" Ward of Niagara Falls. Ward said: "We in the Falls lose somb to other towns every year but we are not kicking. Service clubs in Niagara Falls sponsor teams and do it right. We had two dozen minor teams last year and won two Ontario titles. We will have as many clubs this year and maybe two more champions. What I say is let other towns steal our minor players—we can produce them faster than they can take them!" He got a big round of applause.

* * * * * * *

MORE THAN a dozen ballsters began indoor training last eve at the "Y" with Jim McClenaghan, aided by Nels Stanger, putting 'em through their paces. Manager Fred Collins and a number of the senior officers looked on. The boys had setting-up exercises, some basketball, medicine ball and a bit of track work, with rubdowns later. They'll continue tonight and on Friday. Some of the players expected out had to work, fellows like Starr and Vic Brown. Others on hand included: Jakaiby, Johnston, Long, Calladine, Ellis, Burton, L. Hollingsworth, Whatley, Kitchen, Connelly, Bartlett, Mowry and Whitehill. Maybe a few others, too. A couple of weeks of this sort of exercising and the players should be in fine shape for their outdoor training season.

Remember When—

Winnipeg Monarchs were crowned junior hockey champions of Canada and holders of the Memorial Cup two years ago to-night when they defeated Sudbury Wolves 4-1 at Winnipeg. The Winnipeggers, Western Canada finalists again this year, won the first game of the series 7-6, but bowed to the Wolves 7-2 in the second game.

Patrick Praises Detroit Wings And Playing Of Barry In Particular

DETROIT, April 14. — Coach Lester Patrick had nothing but praise for the Wings and Barry in particular after last night's game.

"It was a beautiful goal and a beautiful play," he said, "and was scored from an almost impossible position. Too bad for us."

Turning to Davie Kerr, the Silver Fox grabbed his hand and said: "Think nothing of it, kid. You were marvelous."

"What the hell—it's only a game, boys," veteran Frankie Boucher said with a big smile. "There's another game coming. They battered us the first two periods and outplayed us tonight."

The coach's son who made good—husky Lynn Patrick—lolled about in his underwear and sang a song which went something like "When You're Rounding Days Are Over." Then he slapped Neil Colville playfully on the lower part of his bare back.

"Hurry up and get dressed, rookie," he said, "and let's get some sleep. Thursday comes soon and we're going to take 'em sure."

Ski Notes

By Andy Rutter.

Well, fellow-members, non-members and all those interested in skiing, get ready for the great annual banquet. The date has been set for Wednesday, April 21, in the banquet hall of the Y.M.C.A., and dinner will be served at 6.15 sharp. The entertainment during the evening will consist of moving pictures of local skiers in action, and I understand that some splendid shots have been filmed. After a little musical entertainment, business of the annual meeting will be called and dispensed with as soon as possible. The highlight of the evening's entertainment should be the showing of some really remarkable films taken at the German Olympics, others in Switzerland and Banff. These will be shown by Sam Cliffe of the Toronto Ski Club, and it is hoped H.T.C. will be able to bring a group of skiers from the Ontario Ski Zone Council down with him. Remember, whether you are a skier, member or not, you are welcome, and every effort will be made to see that you have a good time.

EARL ROBERTSON RECEIVES PRAISES OF JACK ADAMS

DETROIT, April 14. — (CP) — Flushed with excitement, hat, tie and other raiment awry, pudgy Jack Adams pulled Goalie Earl Robertson from his dressing-room seat, yelled: "Robbie, you've wonderful, you're going to stay in there for the next game," and hugged him with gorilla-like arms.

The minor league, rushed in the breach when the Wings' regular netminder, Normie Smith, was forced out with an arm injury during the N.H.L. championship series with Montreal Canadiens, said nothing. He gulped a few times, however, and a big smile broke over his pimpled features. It was the first shutout in eight games — or since the playoffs began—against New York's galloping Rangers.

"Nice going. I'm mighty proud of you," Adams shrieked at his warriors. "What a hockey club. With three all-stars out with injuries we beat those high-flying Rangers 1 to 0. The next win is Thursday, boys."

Barry Is Quiet.

Dark-haired Marty Barry, who shot home the winning goal from an almost impossible angle in the third period, didn't say a word. He didn't get a chance in the face of yelled congratulations, back-slaps and handshakes from teammates and well-wishers.

He smiled at Robertson and posed for pictures with his arm around Robbie's neck. Then he posed with Syd Howe and Johnny Sorrell, who assisted him on the scoop. Other teammates crowded around in various stages of undress. Everything was rosy.

Owner James Norris Sr., was so excited he choked over his usual piece of orange.

"You outplayed them all the way," he said and invaded the orange bowl again.

Little Larry Aurie hobbled up on his crutches to Robertson and shook his hand. They locked at each other for several seconds and then: "I can't think, Larry," handsome Earl said. "They could take me out and shoot me now. I'd die happy."

Harvard Gives Club Eight-Oared Shell Revival Of Sculling In Maritimes Seen

DARTMOUTH, N.S., April 14 (C P)—Presentation of an eight-oared shell to the North Star Aquatic Club of this Halifax Harbor town by Harvard University is being hailed by followers of shell racing as a "sporting gesture unparalleled in Maritime athletic history."

Halifax saw its first eight-oared shell racing in the summer of 1935 when several races were held as part of the Deep Sea Rodeo and Summer Carnival program. Buffalo Westsides, Manhatian University and the Lachine Club of Montreal sent crews and Halifax also entered.

The fans liked it. It was, in their opinion, superior to the four-oared races they had seen for years and for which the Halifax and Dartmouth crews had won a reputation. They wanted more of it.

But the city and town aquatic clubs, their regattas suffering from attendances depleted by the depression and the automobile which made week-end out-of-town trips easy, were not immediately able to purchase eight-oared shells and to provide quarters for them.

Jubilee Club was the first to buy one. For a year it lay in the shell house, unused in competition because there was no other club with a similar shell. The North Stars decided to buy one and opened negotiations for the purchase of a Harvard boat.

But when the Harvard athletic head, William J. "Bill" Bingham, learned of the interest aroused in the younger oarsmen, and of the effort being made to sponsor eight-oared shell racing, he presented the Dartmouth club with its first eight-man boat.

And now eight-oared shell racing seems assured for Halifax regattas this summer.

BASKETBALL SEMIS OPEN ON FRIDAY

B.C. Thunderbirds Meet Union Jacks And McGill Grads The Windsor Fords

TORONTO, April 14 (C.P.).—Semi-finals for Canada's senior basketball championship will open on Friday at Vancouver and Windsor. The two rounds will pit University of British Columbia Thunderbirds against Raymond Union Jacks and McGill University Grads of Montreal against Windsor Fords. Present champions are Fords, who represented the Dominion at the 1936 Olympic Games.

Raymond's Alberta winners joined the select quartette last night by defeating Winnipeg St. Andrew's Manitoba titlists, 48-17, taking their total-points round 101-50. St. Andrew's had beaten Regina Ocounts and McGill had eliminated St. John in previous interprovincial play.

A long jaunt awaits the Windsor-McGill survivor, for Dominion finals are to be played at Vancouver. Citizens of Fords, who would be the favorites in any event, were enhanced to-day with tidings five members of the Grad team, including football stars Obe Owen and Johnny Ferraro, were suffering injuries. All five are expected to play at Windsor, however.

The semi-final rounds will be on two-game total-points basis.

DETROIT WINGS TIE UP SERIES WITH RANGERS

Marty Barry Picks Corner Of Net In Last Period For Only Goal Of Game

TWO VICTORIES EACH

By Allan Nicholson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

DETROIT, April 14.—(CP)—Because 31-year-old Marty Barry, chosen centre on the Canadian Press all-star National Hockey league team this season found the corner of the net on a shot from almost impossible angle, five 1936-37 Stanley Cup holders will not be known until Thursday night. That means the series goes the five-game limit and it's just as close as that.

Barry, Detroit Red Wings' veteran, shot the counter past agile Davy Kerr in the New York Rangers' nets at 12:43 of the third period to win the game 1-0 and tie the series at two victories apiece. Circles pronounced the hard-hitting struggle the best tilt of the series to date.

A jammed arena of 12,515 paid customers poured fourth thunderous applause when Barry flashed the red light. They deafened the rink with shrieks and yells and held the game up five minutes by throwing papers, peanuts, programs and other missiles on the ice. It was a scene of berserk humanity seldom seen even in this rabid hockey city.

Syd Howe, alternating at centre and defence in the absence of rearguard Eddie Goodfellow through an injured left knee, and six-foot Johnny Sorrell were credited with assists on the play.

Barry Scores.

Howe started a rush from the Detroit defence zone and passed to Sorrell, who appeared to momentarily fumble the pass. Barry picked the puck up and raced down the ice, crossed over into deep left wing and let fly. The puck never stopped until it hit the far corner of the twine.

Howe, taking on the task of replacing Goodfellow, All-Star right defenceman, and performing on the forward line as well, played approximately 45 minutes of the struggle and gave one of the greatest displays ever seen here.

Not a big fellow, as defencemen go, the rugged, 25 year old Ottawa lad, took a beating from husky Ranger forwards while playing the rear guard, especially in the first period, but he always came back for more.

The gong ending the game was a spark that touched off another dynamite charge of cheers and applause for the Wings, especially Barry, Howe and Goalkeeper Earl Robertson.

Because of the sensational game He'll play because a deliriously shooting Rangers scoreless for the first time since the N.H.L. play-offs began—a total of eight games—Robertson will play Thursday whether Pudgy Norman Smith's ailing arm is better or not.

Adams Promises Him.

"You're wonderful," King John told the Bencrough, dask, lad who played for Pittsburgh, Detroit farm team, this season and took his place in the Wing's nets after Smith injured his arm in an N. H. L. championship game with Canadiens in Montreal. "You're going to stay in there."

Good-natured Ching Johnson, the smiling oldster who plans to retire after Thursday's game, received the only penalty of the match. It came with seconds to go in the second period after he tripped Mud Bruneteau, and extended into the third frame.

Manager Lester Patrick of the Gothamites, praised Detroit on the win. He felt the present Stanley Cup holders outplayed his charges slightly and that Barry's counter was made on a beautiful play and a beautiful shot."

Easy Now To Tell Doped Race Horses

WASHINGTON, April 14—(AP)—H. J. Wolmer, consulting chemist to the United States Treasury, said yesterday that methods for detecting the presence of narcotics in race horses have been made 100 times more effective in the last two years.

Commissioner Harry J. Anslinger of the Narcotics Bureau added that experts now can determine through a saliva test the presence of narcotics weighing as little as one-millionth the weight of a five-cent piece.

MEMORIAL CUP OUTCOME A TOSS

150 Minutes' Overtime Been Played In Last Two Redmen-Monarch Clashes

TORONTO, April 14.—(CP)—You can toss a coin, draw straws, spin the bottle or take any other means of deciding on which club will win the Dinnie Memorial Cup hockey game here to-night and likely be wrong in any event. Copper Cliff Redmen and Winnipeg Monarchs both look like good bets.

The teams have each won once and to-night's fixture may be the turning point of the five-game series. But more than one expert figures that regardless of to-night's result, the series will go full five games before the Dominion junior championship is decided.

In two overtime contests the clubs have played 150 minutes and have each scored nine goals. The Northern Ontario Miners won the first game 4-3 after one extra session, and Monarchs came back to win the second fixture 6-5 after two overtime periods.

Both teams brim with confidence. Redmen's line-up will probably be unchanged, but Monarchs hope to introduce two new wingmen on their second string, Jack Aichison and Paul Rheault, out of the first two games due to injuries.

13,000 LONDONERS TO SEE BAER SHOW

$100,000 Gate Expected For Match With "Accidental" British Champion

By Gayle Talbot
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, April 14.—(AP).—Some 13,000 Englishmen are expected to shell out around $100,000 to-morrow to see their new idol from North America, Max Baer, perform 12 rounds or less against Tommy Farr, the "accidental" British champion.

The former world heavyweight boxing champion, whose invasion of Great Britain seems certain to carry him a long way on the comeback road he is trying to travel, is practically the whole attraction for this crowd. Farr is rated by this country's best-known experts only as a good second-rater.

This unexciting Welshman, little known before he recently won the British title from Ben Foord in one of the sourest fights ever seen in London, is cast as the official "stooge" for the theatrical Max. Baer's personality and "clowning" already have made him a favorite with English fans although they haven't seen him fight.

Baer is a 3 to 1 favorite and has announced he has a goodly sum to back himself at that price. He's due to get $22,500, tax exempt, for to-morrow's bout and if he wins, as expected, he'll continue in the big money for some time. A victory will win him another rich match with the German, Walter Neusel, next month.

Beyond that there's no telling what will happen, but already there's been talk of bringing over Joe Louis to provide a climax show for the crowds that will invade London for the Coronation festivities. There's no doubt to-morrow's fight will be the biggest in years from a financial standpoint. Three hundred spectators will be occupying seats that cost $50 each, a price unsurpassed in England since the Carpentier-Beckett fight shortly after the war.

BARRIE TROUNCES VOCATIONALS 11-6 IN WILD BATTLE

Second Period Sees Six Goals Scored In Six Minutes, With Near Riot

FINALS DEADLOCKED

MIDLAND, Ont., April 14.—The Thundering Herd from Barrie stampeded Northern Vocational's hopes of sweeping the O.H.A. Junior "B" championship series in straight games when they rode rough shod over the crack Toronto collegians here last night to win 11-5.

Giving a sensational display throughout, the Colts frisked through three rousing periods capped by a boisterous second session, which had everything possible in a hockey game and they were much the better team on the smaller ice surface.

Goldup's Absence Felt.

Loss of elongated Hank Goldup handicapped the Toronto Collegians in the last two periods, but even without a struggle, You could sense it was a hopeless battle after the first three minutes of that riotous second period, but that didn't discourage the Toronto kids. It was a game fight in a losing cause. Finlay was acrobatic in the net, and he pulled off some stops that had the fans blinking. He never had a chance on the shots that did beat him. Herb Carnegie, dusky centre, and Johnny Taylor bore the brunt of the offensive with Goldup gone, and they were ably assisted by young Billy Mann, Williams and Nicholson. Carnegie and Mann counted twice, with Williams and Goldup completing the total.

Barrie — Goal, Going; defence, Dyte and Jones; centre, Bowen; wings, Scott and Long; subs., Walker, Brock, Leigh, Livingstone, and Palmer.

Referee—Beef MacKay and Tec Rillman.

First Period.

HEPBURN BREAKS WITH OTTAWA ON ASSISTANCE

Run Affair Alone Asks Mounties Go Calls Provincials

Scores "Vacillating" Federal Policy On Tense Situation In Oshawa

CALL FOR AID REFUSED

Has Definite Reports Of Communistic Plots For Widespread Disturbances

TORONTO, April 15 (C.P.). — Premier Mitchell Hepburn to-day made a definite break with the Dominion authorities concerning the maintenance of law and order in Ontario, during the present strike situation.

Because of what he called the "vacillating policy" of the Federal Government in the tense situation at Oshawa, he said, the Provincial Government will from now on assume full responsibility for the maintenance of law and order in the province.

"We'll know where we stand when we handle the situation ourselves," he declared.

Wants Mounties Moved.

The Premier said within 24 hours he would "advise Justice Minister Ernest Lapointe at Ottawa to withdraw all Dominion Police from this locality." The Premier stated at the same time another 200 extra Provincial Police would be mobilized to be added to the 200 obtained earlier in the week.

He declared police reports indicated possibility of disturbances in various parts of the province if any outbreak occurred in Oshawa. Mr. Hepburn explained disturbances in other parts of Ontario, according to police reports, would be staged so as to divide the number of Provincial Police available for an Oshawa disturbance.

Also on hand were "definite reports by the police on Communist activities at Oshawa," said the Premier. He could not disclose these "for obvious reasons."

In describing the situation existing between his Government and the Ottawa authorities, Mr. Hepburn said he asked Ottawa for additional help yesterday in a telephone conversation with Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice.

Two Wires, One a Refusal.

The Premier said he then received the following wire from Mr. Lapointe: "Have consulted with colleagues. They advise discussing the matter at council meeting to-morrow before taking further steps. In case of trouble breaking out all possible help will be sent.'

"Therefore, I was surprised and disappointed when I received a second telegram from Mr. Lapointe to-day saying it was impossible to place further police at our disposal," the Premier continued.

The Premier added:

"This Government is going to assume full responsibility for the maintenance of law and order in Ontario from now on. I have authorized Col. Fraser Hunter (Lib-

HEPBURN MEETS GENERAL MOTORS

Two-Hour Conference Fails To Advance Anything Towards Settlement

TORONTO, April 15 (C.P.). — A two-hour conference between Premier Mitchell Hepburn and Harry J. Carmichael, general manager of General Motors of Canada, to-day failed to produce any advance towards a settlement of the Oshawa strike of 3,700 automobile workers.

"We stand ready to resume negotiations at any time between the plant and its employees," the Premier said in a press conference.

Hon. Harry Nixon, Provincial Secretary, and Hon. Paul Leduc, Acting Attorney-General and Mines Minister, were present.

Attitude Not Changed.

In reply to a direct question as to General Motors' attitude, the Premier said: "General Motors will not negotiate with the C.I.O. They took that position long before I entered the picture, and they have not changed their mind."

During the morning, while Mr. Carmichael was still in the Premier's

Feels Well Rested After 6 Months Abed

Watertown, Wis., April 15 (AP) SURE enough, spring is here—Arthur E. (Turkey) Geike, who spends his winters in bed, crawled out of the blankets today. Gentle south winds have been blowing several days, but to many of Watertown's citizens Geike's emergence from hibernation was the final assurance winter had departed. He's up now for the summer and will give no thought to his winter habitation until next October, he said.

"I feel pretty well rested," he declared.

5,000 WALK OUT AS DRESSMAKERS FIGHT SWEATSHOP

Montreal Women To Get Support From Branches in Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver

WANT UNION RECOGNIZED

MONTREAL, April 15 (CP) — Thousands of workers in Montreal's giant dressmaking industry—almost exclusively women and girls—trooped out of their shops today in a strike aimed at union recognition and abolition of asserted "sweatshop" conditions.

Cheering and waving strike banners, the dressmakers at an immediate mass meeting prepared to picket between 75 and 100 shops that refused to recognize their bargaining organization, the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union of America.

An estimated 5,000 or 6,000 workers deserted their jobs, according to Bernard Shane, Montreal manager of the I.L.G.W.U., but there was no definite figure.

Sympathizers in Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver were to join them today, union officials asserted. Plans for these three cities called for walkouts and picketing at branches or salesrooms of the firms.

The strike here was peaceful, as the exhortation of leaders, as the women and girls nominally checked into their places of work and then poured out again, no disturbances were noted by reinforcements of foot and cycle police posted about the east end garment centre. No arrests were made.

There was no attempt to halt non-strikers from going to work, signs blazoning "strike" or its French equivalent "greve," were walked up and down before all women's garment houses except the cotton dress division.

Hope of the leaders was the garment workers, along with 500 striking cutters, would leave the industry unable to work. There was no immediate indication from the manufacturers as to whether enough of the industry's 8,000 stayed at their needles to make operations possible.

Backed By 50,000.

Speaking in French, Raoul Trepanier, president of the Montreal Trades and Labor Council, declared the strike had the endorsation of the Trades and Labor Council's 50,000 members. "The employers," he cried, "will change their ideas before long."

Frequently as he drove home a point, the girls left off munching apples or chewing their lunches to cheer lustily or wave placards designating their shops. In the balcony running around the room's

Mackenzie Denies Promising Hepburn Federal Troop Aid

Ontario Premier Disputes It, Says Minister Offered Entire Resources Unsolicited

HAS TWO WITNESSES

OTTAWA, April 15 (CP).—The Federal Government has not agreed to send troops to Oshawa and Premier Hepburn of Ontario never requested troops, it was announced here today by Defence Minister Mackenzie.

The Minister was commenting on Premier Hepburn's announcement in Toronto last night he had been advised by Mr. Mackenzie he could have all the assistance he needed to deal with the Oshawa strike situation.

"All we have to do is ask for assistance and it will be granted," Mr. Hepburn said, adding: "Police and all other resources are at our disposal."

In a statement today, Mr. Mackenzie said: "No such request (for troops) was received or granted. My conversation with Premier Hepburn at luncheon was purely personal. No matter of public policy was discussed. That is a matter for the Government as a whole, and the Government announced its policy here yesterday. I made no representations on behalf of the Government or any department of the Government, neither did I have any communication with my colleagues while absent from the city, with respect to this or any other matter."

Hepburn Says Aid Offered.

TORONTO, April 15 (CP).—Commenting on a statement made at Ottawa today by Hon. Ian Mackenzie that the Federal Government has not agreed to send troops to Oshawa, scene of the General Motors strike, Premier Hepburn said today:

"In the presence of Bethune Smith and George McCullagh, Mr. Mackenzie said that the entire resources of the Department would be placed at my disposal at my request at any time. He made this offer unsolicited. I did not ask him for any assistance. It is not necessary for him to deny it."

Ruled "Dead" Twice He Still Pays Taxes

Simcoe, Ont., April 15—(CP) HENRY Howard informed Assessor John Rutherford today he was still living. A mix-up in names caused Howard to be removed from the assessor's roll when a man also named Howard died.

"No, I am not dead," explained Howard. "This is the second time they have had me dead and it was not right either time."

So Howard will continue paying taxes.

GUELPH'S RELIEF GANG QUITS JOB

Thirty Men Strike Refusing To Accept Vouchers Instead Of Cash

GUELPH, Ont., April 15 (CP). — Thirty men employed in the first relief work carried on in Guelph in many months went on strike today after one day's operation demanding wages cash instead of vouchers. City officials told the strikers no cash would be paid, and that all men who refused to work would automatically go off relief.

Their wives and families will still receive vouchers sufficient for themselves alone. Thirty men received cards to go to work yesterday in accordance with a plan adopted at a recent City Council meeting.

When they discovered that they would be paid in vouchers and not in cash they refused today to return to the job.

Queen Mary Guest Premier Baldwin

LONDON, April 15—(CP Cable)—Queen Mary was a luncheon guest of Prime Minister and Mrs. Stanley Baldwin at 10 Downing Street today.

A large crowd gathered outside the Prime Minister's residence when a red carpet was laid from the front door to the curb, indicating distinguished persons were about to arrive. Her Majesty was cheered as she entered the house.

Other guests included Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, and Mrs. Norman; the Earl of Bessborough, former Governor General of Canada; Earl Stanhope, first commissioner of works; and Sir Philip Sassoon.

LONGSHOREMEN QUIT THEIR JOBS HAMILTON DOCK

Demand Increase From 42 And 45 Cents To 50 And 55 Per Hour

QUIT LOADING SHIP

HAMILTON, Ont., April 15 (CP) —On the day of the opening of navigation, 235 longshoremen went on strike today demanding an increase in hourly rates.

Last year the men struck against a previous rate of 40 cents per hour and negotiations brought a 42 cent rate for day work and 45 cents for Sundays, holidays and nights. The agreement covering these rates of pay came to a close at the end of the 1936 shipping season.

This year the men ask 50 cents per hour for days, and 55 for holidays, Sundays and nights. Since no contract has been signed with the companies for the 1937 season, the strike is technically a hold-out, as the men are not yet employed.

A committee has been negotiating with the Canada Steamship Lines since the beginning of the year, and the company has offered 44 cents per hour for day work and 47 for nights, Sundays and holidays. At a recent meeting in Toronto, the majority of the union men voted this down.

Two gangs of longshoremen today went to the C.S.L. terminal here preparatory to loading the Stairmount which should clear from Hamilton April 20. The men left the job within a few minutes.

TO SEND SECOND V.C.

Australian Government Considering Sending Second V.C. Holder To London.

CAMBERRA, April 15 (CP Cable) —The Australian Government today was considering sending another Anzac holder of the Victoria Cross to the Coronation to take the place of Gunner Arthur Sullivan, V.C., killed in a traffic accident in London.

The proposed new member of the Australian Coronation contingent would travel by air to reach London in time for the ceremonies.

CALF BIGGER THAN COW

Cow's Short Legs Give Her Appearance of Dachshund

KANSAS CITY, April 15.—(CP).— The cow was a freak. Her short legs gave her the appearance of an overgrown Dachshund.

Elrod and William Shelleda, stockyard employees, bought her as an attraction. She gave birth to a calf a couple of heads taller than herself.

"We had to sell the calf," explained Elrod, "because it couldn't nurse the mother without lying down."

Misguided Shot Pops Cop In Neck And 57 Catapults Are Rounded Up

Windsor, April 15—(CP)

CONSTABLE Henry Bird was pinged on the back of his neck with a piece of steel fired from a catapult the other day and his ire was aroused. He submitted a two-page report today to police headquarters and a cardboard box containing 57 catapults and about 300 slubs similar to that which struck him.

After being "shot" with the pellet, Constable Bird searched several lads, aged between five and 14 years, and confiscated eight sling shots and dozens of slugs. Next he visited public schools and after teachers commanded toady students to surrender their arms, several score catapults and missiles were impounded.

The weapons were affairs of spring wire and rubber. They bore the stamp of a foreign country and were obtainable in three stores here. The wholesaler promised to collect all weapons not sold and ship them back to the Toronto Distributing Company.

The slugs were traced to a factory where they had been carted out as scrap metal.

"These things can be classed as offensive weapons under the Criminal Code," Inspector W. H. Neale said. "Anyone found with them in their possession, or selling them, may be prosecuted."

Dartmoor Mutiny Plot Is Nipped

Officials Learn That Convicts Planned Outbreak For Coronation Day

RESENT NO AMNESTY

Stern Measures Reported Taken To Restore Order, Keep Details Quiet

LONDON, April 15 (AP) — The Exchange Telegraph Agency reported to-day officials of Dartmoor, England's largest prison, located on the bleak southwestern Moors, had uncovered a plot to stage a mutiny on Coronation Day.

Despite an official veil of secrecy the agency reported it learned stern measures had been taken to suppress any outbreak at the lonely prison which houses hundreds of prisoners serving long terms.

The prisoners were believed to have selected May 12, the day King George VI will be crowned, for a bold dash for freedom because they were angered by the fact no amnesties will be granted or sentences reduced in celebration of the event.

The agency said it was believed the prisoners may have planned on reduced vigilance on the part of their guards on the national holiday.

Demonstrations similar to those preceding the famous Dartmoor mutiny five years ago were said to have occurred with prisoners flinging plates and soup bowls in the faces of officers.

Rifle Practice Tested Out

Stern disciplinary action was reported to have been taken by prison officials, and, although officers on duty at Dartmoor do not carry firearms, the governor was said to have recently introduced rifle practice with the guards aiming at a dummy figure representing an escaping convict.

Officers at Dartmoor in the past have always been armed only with truncheons.

The men were said to have been angered because they learned Italy had reduced penal sentences in celebration of the birth of an heir to the throne but England refused to take a similar step for the Coronation.

This decision not to grant amnesties at the Coronation was announced in the House of Commons by Sir John Simon, Home Secretary, some time ago, but news of it was said to have just leaked into the prison.

Guards were said to have been warned by authorities not to discuss what had happened inside the prison even with their families.

Dartmoor has a reputation of being the most hated of prisons among criminals who call it "The Granite Jug."

The great piles of forbidding buildings are set in a desolate area which makes any effort at escape a forlorn hope only to be taken by the most desperate convicts.

The reports of trouble were the first since the fire and mutiny of 1932 which resulted in a full official investigation of conditions at the prison.

DEATH PENALTY

Lawyer Would Give Death For Wife Beating.

EDMONTON, April 15 (CP). — Death penalty for wife-beaters was advocated by H. A. Mackie, K.C., acting for a woman accused of bigamy in Criminal Court yesterday. He charged the woman's first husband mistreated her. Both husbands are seeking legal voiding of their marriages.

Succeeds Roebuck

Hon. Paul Leduc (ABOVE), minister of mines for Ontario, will take over temporarily the duties of attorney - general, formerly handled by Hon. Arthur Roebuck, who, along with Hon. David Croll, minister of labor, was ousted from the Ontario cabinet by Premier Mitchell Hepburn for failing to support the premier's policy of opposition to the C.I.O.-led auto strike at Oshawa, Ont. No permanent appointment was made.

PERTH WORKMEN HALT SHOE PLANT ON UNION DEMAND

110 Quit Pending Result Of Call For Closed Shop And Recognition

NO C.I.O. CONNECTION

PERTH, Ont., April 14 (CP).—Representatives of 110 Perth Shoe Company workers were expected today to lay before the company management demands for a "closed shop" and a written working agreement and recognition of the Canadian Shoe Workers' Union and allied crafts.

The men stopped work yesterday, creating the first situation of its kind in the history of this town 60 miles from Ottawa. No actual strike vote was taken, said Joseph Carrier of Toronto, union organizer. It was a "stoppage" of work pending an agreement.

Carrier said the company was being asked merely to recognize a branch of his union and to give workers a signed agreement instead of present verbal understandings respecting working conditions.

"Our demands will be presented and we hope for a peaceable and amicable settlement of the whole affair," said Carrier, who denied his organization was connected with the committee for industrial organization, the American Federation of Labor or any other organization.

After the men walked out yesterday afternoon three hours before quitting time, more than 60 women workers continued at the machines.

A spokesman for the men said "if the worst comes to the worst we will actually strike on Friday morning. The women are solidly behind us and are only carrying on during our 'stoppage'."

Hope To End C.I.O. Strike For Oshawa

Union Threatens Strike If U.S. Plants Take Over Canadian Exports

QUIET AT OSHAWA

Heavy Rain Keeps Pickets In Tents—120 Work In Parts Office

DETROIT, April 15.—(AP)—Officers of the United Automobile Workers Union and General Motors officials arranged to confer here today in an attempt to settle the strike in the G. M. plant at Oshawa, Ont.

Wyndham Mortimer and Ed Hall, vice presidents of the U.A.W.A., planned to meet C. E. Wilson, vice president of the corporation, and other General Motors officials.

Hall said a strike Monday in General Motors plants in the United States "is likely" if the corporation's domestic plants attempt to handle any of the export business normally done by the Oshawa factories.

Rain Halts Picketing.

OSHAWA, Ont., April 15.—(CP)—Men and women pickets were on duty before General Motors plant today despite the heavy rain but they tried to keep warm and dry by building under overhead bridges connecting plant buildings and in tents placed near picket points.

The men pickets remarked the girls would not be excused from picket duty. "A little rain won't hurt them," they said.

Girls and men sat inside tents, fires burning in improvised stoves at the entrances. They smoked and had refreshments of coffee and sandwiches supplied by strikers in scout cars. There was no walking back and forth in the rain except for a period at the parts and service building when 100 men and about 20 women entered for work.

HANOVER STRIKE SCENE UNCHANGED

Furniture And Milling Factories Remain Closed—Deal On At Chesley

HANOVER, Ont., April 15—(CP) —The milling and furniture strikes here were unchanged today with both plants closed. Pickets patrolled the Speiss Furniture Company where 40 employees are on strike and no attempts were made to operate the plant. The William Knechtel Milling Company has remained closed since Saturday when 15 employees struck.

No indication was available today when J. J. Speiss, owner of the furniture company, would return from the Southern United States where he is vacationing. Negotiations cannot be undertaken until his return.

At Chesley, 10 miles from here in the Owen Sound district, heads of the Chesley Manufacturing Company and a committee of strikers are scheduled to meet today. Success of the negotiations hinge on the company's stand with regard to taking back three men discharged for alleged incompetence which precipitated the strike.

Military Dictator Urged For Spain

LONDON, April 15—(CP Havas)— A military dictatorship headed by General Jose Miaja, commander of government forces in the Madrid zone, with the collaboration of several of General Francisco Franco's officers, has been proposed as one way of bringing the civil war in Spain to an end, the diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Herald reported today.

Groups of neutral but influential Spanish politicians outside Spain are behind the plan and are reported to be in communication with Franco and Miaja, the Herald said.

"Discreet soundings are already being made among army leaders on both sides," the Herald said.

No Hangover For This Tester In Gallon Any Brand Of Grog

Latest Gadget Able To Trace Whisky's Family Tree, Report On Chemical Grandparents

DO ANYTHING BUT SING

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)— The United States government has developed a liquor tester that can get everything out of a gallon of grog except, perhaps "Sweet Adeline."

This guzzling gadget, is not of flesh and blood, but of steel and rubber. It is the Bureau of Internal Revenue's latest way of learning what you do to a still drink—and what it does to you.

Designed to determine just what whisky is the tester among other things can:

1. Take on a terrific load and be ready for a hard day's work the next morning.

2. Distill a beverage 120 times, which is like going to 2 cocktail parties in a single afternoon.

3. Stop in the middle of a gallon and give a correct account of its feelings.

4. Imbibe without pauseress.

Officials predict the apparatus will be the best thing in 25 years to run down the family tree of a bottle of whisky and report on its chemical grandparents.

Dog Killer Stirs Farmers In Ops

LINDSAY, Ont., April 15 (CP) — Police today investigated depredations of a dog-killer in Ops Township, east of here, after complaints several farmers have lost their dogs and later found them dead by various means.

Yesterday two farmers reported they found their thoroughbred dogs hanging by their necks from a tree with their feet just touching the ground. One of the animals was still alive but is dying when found. Several dogs in the district have been poisoned, police said.

Dutch Rebuke Their Princess For Desecrating The Sabbath

Travelling, Visiting Places Of Amusement On Sunday Pains Both Press, Church

ON HER HONEYMOON

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands, April 15 (AP)—Church and secular newspapers today censured Crown Princess Juliana and Prince Bernhard, just returned from their honeymoon, for "desecrating the Sabbath."

One of the newspapers was the Rotterdammer, a strong supporter of Premier Hendrikus Colijn, which commented reprovingly on reports the royal newly-weds travelled and visited places of amusement on Sundays.

"The Christian portion of our people learned with pain and sadness from reports about the princely honeymoon of repeated desecrations and failure to observe the Sabbath," the paper said.

It said the love of Juliana's future subjects "would suffer, if in our midst," she and her husband "should continue to treat the Sunday commands with as little regard as newspaper stories indicate they do now."

BERKELEY, Calif., April 15. — (CP).—It was a honey of a sit-down while it lasted. The demonstrators picked Guy Abbott's back yard.

Premier Plans Future Strategy In Fight Against Lewis Invasion

ASSUMES DOUBLE DUTY

Oshawa Strike In Second Week Awaits U.A.W.A. Move In States

TORONTO April 15.— (CP). — Premier Hepburn planned future strategy to-day in his fight to keep the forces of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization from gaining a strong position in Ontario. He went ahead with the assurance that the Federal government will not intervene in the Oshawa General Motors strike and would grant him any desired assistance.

After demanding and receiving the resignation of two of his ministers, Premier Hepburn indicated to the Dominion government that Federal intervention would be unwelcome. He had the immediate assurance of Prime Minister Mackenzie King that the Dominion Department of Labor had no wish to interfere.

Last night Mr. Hepburn conferred with Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Dominion Minister of Defence in Toronto for three hours. Afterwards he said "police and all other resources are at our disposal."

Mr. Hepburn's determination to fight what he called the "inroads of the Lewis" organization and Communism in general," and not to negotiate settlement of the Oshawa dispute with C.I.O. representatives led to his demand for the resignation of Labor Minister David Croll and Attorney General Arthur Roebuck. He said both were out of sympathy with his policies.

Takes Croll's Duties.

To-day the Prime Minister assumes Mr. Croll's duties as Minister of Public Welfare, Labor and Municipal Affairs. Hon. Paul Leduc, Minister of Mines, takes over Mr. Roebuck's portfolio.

The demand for the Ministers' resignations yesterday climaxed the Premier's drive to bring all the forces of his Government to the support of his drive against what he has called "foreign labor profiteers." At one time he said he would "raise an army if necessary" to keep order in Oshawa. He charged disturbances were threatened by Communists.

Both Mr. Croll and Mr. Roebuck denied any connection with Communism in their letters of resignation. The former Labor Minister charged that the Premier "quarrelled with the right of the workers to join the union of their choice."

FIREBUG WORKING IN SMITH'S FALLS SETS NEW BLAZE

Tension Grows As Garage Is Discovered Afire With Tar Paper Lead To Car

FIFTH IN THREE WEEKS

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., April 15 (CP).—Tension grew today among north-end residents of this town as police redoubled their efforts to capture a suspected madman blamed for firing five buildings and attempting to wreck three trains.

A small fire, described by police as undoubtedly incendiary, broke out last night in a garage owned by C. W. Blair and attached to his two-storey frame dwelling. Mrs. Blair arrived home in time to detect the fire, blazing in a pile of chips against one wall of the garage. She gave an alarm and threw a pail of water over the flames.

Officers said they found a burned match in the building and a strip of tar paper running from the chips to a point beneath an automobile owned by J. J. Johnston and stored in the garage. The cap of the gasoline tank had been removed, they said.

Last night's fire was the second in two nights and the fifth in a little more than three weeks attributed to an incendiarist or unexplained.

Tuesday night Robert Woods, suburban farmer, suffered $5,000 loss in destruction of two large barns and three smaller buildings on his property. It was the second fire on his property since Saturday. Sunday night his garage and automobile were destroyed.

Police Chief John Lees said he was "convinced a firebug is loose in the town." Canadian Pacific Railway police here to hunt the person responsible for an attempt to wreck a C.P.R. freight train Saturday night, offered all possible help in tracking the saboteur.

The Royal Road To The Coronation

The King Enjoyed the Wembley Exhibition In Spirited Fashion

IN 1926 the then Duke of York took over one of the biggest national jobs of his career from his brother, the Prince of Wales—that of the presidency of the Wembley exhibition.

From this distance perhaps it does not strike the reader as a particularly burdensome task, despite the undoubted need for executive ability which it demanded, but in 1926, and the succeeding year, when the present king heads the gigantic enterprise, Wembley was the showcase of empire. Its success or failure would be reflected throughout the business and industrial life of the country, while its attractions were expected to draw many thousands of visitors to London.

Perhaps the king's close contact with this huge industrial and amusement centre is not well known, for though he took a distinctly active part in its success, no one person, not even the royal president, could overshadow the vastness of Wembley itself. His ability and success in the executive task is just one more indication of his thorough training in the every-day life of the nation.

Wembley was big business and accepting the presidential appointment, Albert was lifting again some of the burden that was piling on the shoulders of his father, the king, and his brother the Prince of Wales. It brought him more before the public than ever, but while the serious side of his job was never shirked, to-day's Wembley pictures indicate that the lighter side of the great exhibition also received his attention. To anyone thoroughly convinced that their king is completely wrapped up in the serious aspects of life, the pictures may come as a revelation. In fact George VI is a very human man, and, shooting the "slide" or touring the amusement centre, or reviewing the huge Boy Scout jamboree that chose Wembley as its stamping ground during his presidency, he entered into the spirit of the thing as much as the lowliest of his subjects.

Ottawa Stays Shy Of Strike Until Called

King States Hepburn Has Clearly Intimated He Wants No Interference Now

PLANS DROUGHT SURVEY

OTTAWA, April 15 (CP) — The government today continued preparations for its official representation at the Coronation and Imperial Conference, having decided to stay out of the Oshawa strike situation for the moment, at least, and to launch an aerial survey of drought-land on the prairies.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said last night at the end of the first cabinet meeting since parliament prorogued that Premier Hepburn of Ontario, apparently under the impression the Labor Department intended to intervene "made it perfectly clear to us" that he did not want Ottawa's intervention in the General Motors strike.

Mr. King said the Dominion Government had no intention of intervening unless there was reason to hope its intervention would be valuable. It would be of no help to the situation to intervene against the Ontario administration's wishes, he added.

"It has always been the policy of the government to offer its good offices in cases of this kind," the prime minister explained, "but only when it is indicated our good offices may be of assistance.

Rogers Offered Services

"Ontario has its own labor department and conciliation machinery and has been carrying on negotiations. Mr. Rogers (Labor Minister Rogers) has offered the good offices of his department but the Ontario government has taken the stand they do not desire any interference."

Streets Are Thronged As Procession Winds Its Way To Cemetery

HUNDREDS PASS BIER

LINDSAY, Ont., April 15—Fifteen years ago Lindsay's wide main street was lined with row upon row of citizens from far and wide, gathered to pay their last sad respects to the town's most prominent and famous native citizen, the later Sir Sam Hughes, Canada's war time Minister of Militia.

On Wednesday afternoon thousands of people thronged the armouries and lined the streets as honor and respect was paid to Sir Sam's son, the late Garnet Hughes, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., whose sudden death shocked the entire district.

The bier, draped with a single Union Jack, and at the head the military hat and other regalia of office, was flanked on either side by a massive spread of floral tributes. Hundreds filed by in orderly manner, including men in all ranks of life, particularly veterans of the Great War, some of whom were with the late Garnet Hughes in the first Canadian Division in France. Prominent military men and statesmen of the country viewed the remains for the last time.

The funeral procession was over a mile in length and was led by the firing squad of the Toronto Scottish Regiment, officers of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, the Royal Canadian Regiment, the Scottish Regiment, officers and N.C.O.'s of the [illegible] Regiment of Victoria and Haliburton Regiment, of which [illegible] was an officer; officers of the 43th Field Battery, the Lindsay Citizens' Band, the Pipers Band of the Toronto Regiment.

At either side of the gun carriage (the same one which conveyed the remains of Sir Sam Hughes to Riverside Cemetery), were the eight pallbearers: Major-General Robert Rennie, Brigadier-General D. C. Draper, Brigadier-General John

OUST SIT-DOWNERS AND JAIL FIFTEEN

Police Use Tear-Gas, Strikers Hurl Lead Weights—Score Are Injured

DETROIT, April 15 (A.P.)—One hundred and twenty sit-down strikers ejected from a lock factory were released under bond early to-day, but 15 union officers and sympathizers were held in jail for investigation.

Those kept in jail did not engage in the clash between strikers and police and deputies yesterday afternoon at the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company's plant, but were seized after the strikers were placed in patrol wagons and scout cars.

A score were hurt in the 30-minute encounter, in which the officers used tear gas and strikers loosed lead weights from windows and the building roof.

Police Commissioner Heinrich A. Piekert said three shots were fired from within the factory. The injuries of one patrolman and two other men required hospital treatment.

Most of the strikers were women. They had been in the plant since the United Automobile Workers of America called the strike on March 9, and disregarded an injunction ordering them to leave on Monday.

MISSIONARY WORK SUBJECT OF TALK

Rev. G. F. Kelly Speaks On The 'Why Of Missions' At Lakefield Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, April 15 — "The Why" of Missions," was the subject of a lively discussion led by Rev. G. F. Kelly at the Young People's Society of Lakefield United Church, held here Monday evening, April 12, the subject was chosen in conjunction with the young people's missionary project which is entitled "the Who, When and Where of Missions."

There were thirty members present on Monday evening. Clifford Hunt, president, presided over the meeting which was called to order after the usual hour of persuasion. After the business period and the singing of a hymn, Miss Muriel Mallock led the scripture lesson. Miss Mary Strickland read the passage, Mrs. Casey Ladbury led in prayer.

Rev. G. F. Kelly took charge of the program, at this juncture, and led the meeting in a highly interesting discussion on "the Why" of missions. He said in part:

1. The sending of missions is a command of Christ. (2.) People for the heathen Christianity brings to them (3.) Christians desire to share with the world what they have. (4.) Christians desire to share with those who need God so much for him, he could not do so much for him, he could not do so much for him, he could not do

Mr. Croll Writes a Letter

The finest statement which has yet come out of the strike at Oshawa and the break in the Liberal cabinet at Toronto is the letter of resignation which Hon. David Croll, Minister of Labor and Welfare, wrote to Premier Hepburn. It can be regarded only as a classic. It was written under what may well be termed a period of extreme provocation, and yet there was no bitterness written into it. Mr. Croll had returned to Toronto on Saturday, had notified the Premier he was at his disposal any time his services were required, and that was right and proper considering that Mr. Croll was Minister of Labor and a labor dispute of major size was being dealt with. The Premier, it appears, had made no response to the notice given to him by Mr. Croll, and the first communication was a letter asking for his resignation as a member of the cabinet.

We doubt if many men could write such a letter as Hon. David Croll sent to Premier Hepburn. In it there was clear analysis and a taking apart of the policy being followed by Premier Hepburn. There was not an offensive word in it, and the method was such as might have been followed by a father trying to show a son where he had gone wrong. It was fearless but not boastful nor yet vindictive. The text adhered absolutely to the matter under discussion as though Mr. Croll desired above all else to show Mr. Hepburn what he considered was the defect in his judgment and the error of his way.

When the Labor minister turned to the presentation of the course he had followed in all his dealings with similar situations he was clearly and politely explanatory but never apologetic. He stated with no evidence or desire for evasion exactly the hope which had led him on and the manner in which he had sought to bring the utmost of conciliation to the task he had in hand.

From beginning to end there was not a word in the letter of Hon. David Croll which should not have been written. He will be able to read the letter again in future if he so desires and there will be no occasion to feel that it ought to have been worded differently. It was an occasion when a man had opportunity to show the spirit and the greatness which was in him and he did it.

Far too many people under similar circumstances would have sought occasion for the insertion of a barbed phrase here and there; there would have been brought into the letter some occasion to make use of a phrase indicative of a temper which had been deeply stirred and a resentment which successfully pressed for utterance.

Mr. Croll, if he has now no opportunity to participate in negotiations for the ending of the trouble at Oshawa, has at least brought to the situation the bearing and the utterance of a gentleman. We regard his letter as a document worthy of preservation and as a fitting example of how a man should deal with a difficult situation without leaving wounds which time would not heal.

Who Is Going To Pay?

The settlement of a strike in the U.S. steel industry meant that wage increases would amount to $200,000,000 a year, and this amount is to find its way into the pockets of some 550,000 workers. There has been much written about the increased purchasing power which that large amount of money will bring to the workers. It seems to be taken for granted it will come out of the profits of the steel companies, or perhaps shareholders will have to do with decreased dividends to make up the amount, but we doubt if many people stop to consider just where this $200,000,000 is going to come from.

That amount cannot very well come from the profits of the steel mills because last year the profits were around $150,000,000, so it is necessary to look farther and try and see where the money is going to have its origin.

Those who have to purchase steel have been aware that prices have been advancing. Within recent months they have increased from $4 to as much as $8 per ton in some lines, and nearly all of these increases have been made since the higher wage scale came into effect.

The truth seems to be that the firms which purchase steel are going to pay the added wage of the steel workers. Firms which buy steel for the purpose of using it as raw material in the process of manufacture will in turn have to pass these increases on to those who purchase their goods. For instance if the higher priced steel goes into agricultural implements then eventually the farmer will have to pay his share. The process may be long drawn-out, but in the end the consumer will pay. It will increase the cost of living, and the steel workers will have to do their own purchasing under that increased cost system.

Keeping It Quiet

Two youths from Toronto, described as large for their age, which was 16 years in each case, were arrested at Mattawa and taken to North Bay, the charge against them being stealing a car. When they appeared in court the magistrate decided to remand them until he could get in touch with their parents.

It was then that one of the youths spoke up and said: "I'd rather be sent to jail than have them know."

There is little more said in the report apart from describing the place from which the car was stolen and the method by which the theft was discovered and the car found.

But there is something to be said for the young fellow who dreaded the idea of the folk at home getting word that he had been placed under arrest. We have no doubt but that he was speaking the truth when he said he would rather be sent to jail. Perhaps he had sense enough to realize the blow which would fall on the home when the word reached there.

If this youth had done something worthy we do not expect he would have objected if word did reach his parents, but he was keenly alive to the hope of trying to keep them from hearing he had been arrested. It may be he was doing exactly what a number of adults do who prefer to be known by their good works rather than by their dark chapters.

Selling Used Cars

Now and then we notice in the advertising columns of Toronto papers a used car offered for sale which "has been driven by a retired minister." That is supposed to create the impression that the car has been carefully used, kindly treated and given consideration which other less fortunate cars have never received.

We cannot at the moment recall having seen a used car advertised for sale saying it had been carefully driven by the editor of a newspaper, or by the keeper of the corner store, or by the village clerk or the postmaster. It is only the minister or the retired minister whose driving of a car seems to be used as a guarantee of its state of preservation.

Some place in 11 Kings it is recorded that Jehu went driving one day. He used a chariot, but in this day he would use a car and follow the same manner. Of course he was not a minister or a retired minister, but at the direction of the prophet Elisha he was divinely anointed king over Israel, and it is told of him that "he driveth furiously."

But that advertising appeal continues to make its occasional appearance. "This car has been driven by a retired minister." We have known many ministers, active and retired, and they always seemed to drive cars just about the same as other folk, but if a used car sells more quickly because it has been stated it has been driven by a retired minister then commercialism will have its way and the custom will continue to live—and possibly make sales.

In Search of Peace

There is so much of trouble in the news just now that one is moved to look and see if things are going on an even keel in any particular place. The trouble despatches, it will be noted, generally bear upon them a date line from a city. So we were looking particularly at date lines from other places, lesser places according to numerical strength. By way of contrast it was pleasant reading. It made one feel that all was well.

In Bancroft we find there was a meeting of the Reading Club, and there was music, poetry and contests, and in such an atmosphere there would be peace and good feeling; there would be no picket line through which one would have to pass to gain admission. At Springville friends gathered in the Sunday School room of the United Church to pay tribute to Mr. and Mrs. George Douglas and family who are leaving the community. There were presentations made and at the close of the proceedings a lunch was served. That also must have been a perfectly normal and altogether delightful event.

From Fenella comes word of a meeting of the Women's Institute, and thanks was extended because a gift of flowers had been sent to a patient in a hospital. That is a kindly thing. There was also an exhibition of chocolate cake and prizes were awarded for the best samples. Splendid was that. In North Smith there were several social events recorded by our corraspondents. One family is moving away and good friends gathered and played crokinole and then presented the departing folk with a sum of money and wished them well. Certainly the hand of Mussolini was not felt there. From Ennismore we learn the syrup season is not what it should be, and trappers are complaining that the muskrat season is likely to come and go with little profit, and that too is a normal condition where the residents are given to doing a bit of proper complaining in print.

From Lakefield we learn that three couples celebrated their wedding anniversaries at the same time, and toward the end of the story we noticed again that fine word "refreshments." Our Bonarlaw correspondent tells of a gathering to welcome a bride to the community and along with the welcome went a china cabinet. From Roseneath comes word that a shower of gifts and a dance were tendered to a young couple, and from Fairmount we learn that the Women's Mission Circle have made plans for the annual pancake social and maple syrup goes with the pancakes.

In all we found it pleasant reading. There were no broken labor relations in the whole review; there was no mention of a new war; there was not a threat made of what would happen unless some particular line of action were taken. So if there is turmoil in the cities there is great semblance of peace and kindness and wholesome activity in the smaller centres in the rural communities. There is something soothing in the several references made to refreshments being served, and in a place where pancakes are served with fresh maple syrup living conditions at their best and in their highest form make themselves abudantly apparent. So for the moment we feel at ease after looking over what the folk round about us are doing. We will again turn to the troubled situation in the larger centres—but with a sigh. Th folk who live there and who put in much of their waking hours shouting at each other seem to be missing life at its best.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Summer is not so far off. They are already talking about Blossom week in the Niagara peninsula.

Messrs. Croll and Roebuck are not like ball players. It only takes one strike to put them out.

Mr. Roebuck will probably be wondering today how anyone can expect the Ontario Hydro to stagger along without his long speeches to guide it.

It is a rather surprising development that the first victims of the C.I.O. in Ontario should be two members of the provincial cabinet.

We would like to be as young as the heading writer on the Toronto paper who referred to a man of 38 as a middle-aged man.

W. H. Moore, M.P. for Ontario, has been offered the post of chairman of the new Labor and Industries Board. The fitness of the appointment will be generally recognized.

Chief Draper has requested motorists to make reports to the police of all traffic offenders they notice. Surely Toronto's chief constable knows that that is a full-time job.

The playing of the Winnipeg and Copper Cliff junior hockey teams is evidence that Canada is in a position to keep on supplying players to represent American cities in the annual battle for the world's professional title.

The Ottawa government almost gave Mr. Bennett a vote of thanks for his co-operation in expediting the business of the house. But then Mr. Bennett is also looking forward to the trip to the Coronation.

Attempts to organize the C.I.O. in the lead and zinc districts of the United States seem to be badly hampered by the amount of lead that is being tossed about by the gunmen of the rival labor organizations.

The aunt of the former King Alfonso of Spain, is claiming the throne for her nephew. She seems to ignore the probability that by the time the civil war is over there may not be enough of Spain left to stand the throne on.

It is complained that the president of the United Automobile Workers used an airplane to come to Canada. Under the circumstances, however, they could scarcely expect him to travel in a General Motors car.

The skeleton of a stegodon, estimated to be at least a million years old, is being re-built in China. As this prehistoric animal was at least twenty-four feet long and twelve feet high it must be admitted that wild life in the old days was just that.

ONE THING WRONG

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Cousin Ezra's rather keen on buying things he's never seen, he likes to buy afar; he smelt a bargain yesterday, and quickly sent his cash away, for he had bought a car.

¶ The thing came in quite late last night, the man assured him it was right, but then it bothered him; he had another car along, likewise a rope well spun and strong, for he had towed it in.

¶ Then Ezra got some gas and oil, and then he started in to toil, he wanted it to shine; my cousin worked till half-past ten, and he was moved to saying then, the thing looked pretty fine.

¶ He started in today at six, there were a lot of things to fix, and Ezra hired a man; this man knows engines inside out, but then he wrinkled up his snout, and called the thing a can.

¶ He pulled off pieces here and there, and laid them out with expert care, and Ezra watched him too; he paid the man so much an hour, and he was looking rather sour, and hoping he'd get through.

¶ By night my cousin learned a lot, he told of things the man had taught, beats all the things he'll know; but one thing bothers Ezra now, and it puts wrinkles in his brow—for he can't make it go.

Mr. Bennett Has His Final Shot

Parliamentary Reporte, April 10.

Mr. DUNNING: He did not say that.

Mr. BENNETT: He said the other evening he never had been a free trader. I thought he would say that, and I wanted to see what he had said in the Saskatchewan legislature. I find that he advocated placing upon the free list all foodstuffs.

Mr. DUNNING: Yes.

Mr. BENNETT: He demanded:

the reduction of the customs duty on goods imported from Great Britain—

Mr. DUNNING: Exactly.

Mr. BENNETT:

—to one-half of the rates charged under the general tariff.

Mr. DUNNING: Yes.

Mr. BENNETT: He demanded:

and that further gradual uniform reductions be made to the remaining tariff on British imports that will ensure complete free trade between Britain and Canada.

Mr. DUNNING: Does that make me a free trader?

Mr. BENNETT: I should think it did. He demanded:

To placing upon the free list of all agricultural implements, farm and household machinery, vehicles, fertilizers, coal, lumber, cement, gasoline, illuminating fuel and lubricating oils and all raw materials and machinery used in their manufacture.

That would seem to indicate that there was not much to protect after he achieved free trade in all these items. The only protection to be afforded would be to that idea which it was necessary to disseminate in the east in order that the west might realize that its noble champions of free trade were fighting the battle for them while in the remote and effete east they were leaving it open to say: "We are not free traders outright; we are only free traders, you know, in respect of all the items I have mentioned, but we reserve to ourselves the right of protection to those commodities not named." Perhaps the minister would be good enough at some time to indicate just what would be left, so far as the western consumer is concerned, after you had free trade in all these items.

Then I cannot help thinking of my hon. friend the Minister of Mines and Resources (Mr. Crerar). I recall the days of his noble past when, under the banner of progress he marched upon Ottawa and attacked the citadel with fifty-eight gallant supporters called Progressives.

Mr. CRERAR: Sixty-five.

Mr. DUNNING: Sixty-five. Get it right.

Mr. BENNETT: Excuse me for underestimating them. It only shows that his desire to achieve free trade was stronger than I thought.

Mr. CRERAR: I was sure that my right hon. friend desired to be accurate.

Mr. BENNETT: I do not want to minimize the confidence placed in him by so vast a number of the people's representatives in western Canada. But when he advanced on the citadel and attacked the dragon of protection in its lair, we realized that for some strange reason he seemed to have forgotten the past; its memories rolled away like the great burden of which John Bunyan wrote rolled from the back of the pilgrim who was endeavouring to achieve his goal. That great burden rolled away and the hon. gentleman became a vigorous free-trader to the extent of one hundred per cent of the invoice cost being paid by the consumer to get his goods into his house. What a magnificent type of free trade we have! I am sure that those who recall the splendid consistency manifested in those addresses will regard events with some degree of satisfaction, and perhaps in moments of leisure, when they are quiet and calm, will reflect that after all there is something in the words of a great British statesman that "an organized Liberal government is an organized hypocrisy."

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. ILSLEY: It was said about a Conservative government.

Mr. BENNETT: Oh, certainly, and a great deal worse than that was said about a Conservative government, and no one said it better than my friend the Minister of National Revenue (Mr. Ilsley). No one said it more vigorously than he; and no one in power practises more than he does the things he denounced when in opposition.

So I congratulate the government at the end of the session upon having maintained in office the principles that they opposed when they sat on this side of the house. It is a striking exhibition of how regard for the interests of the country can overcome pre-election statements, and I congratulate the country that we have on the treasury benches men of such flexibility and adaptability that they are able to accept the great principles of protection which have saved this country in the past and will continue to preserve it in the future. It is desirable, no doubt, that this measure of reasonable protection should be afforded the industrial life of this country, notwithstanding that, in days long since past, my hon. friend the Minister of Mines and Resources said he could not see anything in it at all. It is not necessary to see it now; he feels it; and the Minister of Finance does better than that—he spells it.

MIDDLE-AGED WORKERS.

(New York Times)

Myron C. Taylor said in his annual report that the average age for all employes of the United States Steel Corporation is 40 years. It is to be hoped that this will not be seized upon to mean that there is little chance in the steel industry for men "over 40." It obviously cannot mean that if 40 years is the average. Actually Mr. Taylor said there are more employes between 35 and 40 than there are between 20 and 25. There would be about the same number of men between 30 and 40 as there are between 20 and 30.

It is interesting to reflect that if business had been really as hostile to workers over 40 as used to be said, we should have no unemployment problem now, though there would be a big pension problem for the middle-aged.

✓ Will You Live To Be 100? ✓

(From the Montreal Star.)

Health statistics, now almost universally kept and widely exchanged, are agreed upon the extension of what is called the "expectation of life" in most countries. With more careful conservation of health and better organization of health services it is expected that some day the expectation of life at birth may extend to seventy years, according to the Health League of Canada. The latest estimate available (1931) places the average expectation of life at birth in this country at fifty-nine and one-third years for men and sixty-one and one-half years for women. As these figures change only quite slowly, it will be some years before the seventy-year average is reached.

This Canadian record compares quite well with that of other countries, as the following figures show. It must be noted, however, that these are not all for the same years:

	Years.
New Zealand (1931)	66¼
Holland (1921-30)	nearly 63
Sweden (1926-30)	62
Denmark (1926-30)	nearly 62
Australia (1920-22)	61
United States (1933)	61
Germany (1924-26)	57
Italy (1930-32)	55
Japan (1921-25)	42

While we are thus becoming literally an older nation, this does not mean that, individually, our chances of living to be one hundred are much greater than they ever were. Our fathers, once they had got past the dangerous years, had as good a chance of long life as we have. What we are doing, however, to a far greater degree than they did is surviving those same dangerous years of babyhood, childhood and early youth. In the sixteenth century, for instance, in Geneva, where records were kept even then, the expectation of life at birth was only twenty-one years.

We have no figures at hand to show the vast improvement in the infantile mortality rate in England, but the rise in the expectation of life in that country has been from forty-one years in the period 1838-54 to fifty-nine in 1928. It is altogether likely that there were as many centenarians in proportion to population in the earlier years as there are today; the difference comes from the number of babies and children who now reach maturity, in comparison with an age far less well educated in matters of public health.

Coming nearer home, in Toronto in 1900, 880 babies died before they were one year old. Had they been born in 1934, about 600 of them would have been saved, thanks to the greater and more intelligent care we should have known now to give them. In this Province the same thing—unfortunately to not quite so striking a degree— is also true. With regard to the treatment of disease an equally marked improvement is shown in the neighbouring Province. In 1885 typhoid fever caused 462 deaths; in 1935, 36. Diphtheria's death toll in 1885 was 1,006; in 1935 it was reduced to 33 for the whole Province, a wonderful record. Tuberculosis has been cut to less than half in the same period, from 2,313 to 1,066. And there is this further and very impressive fact to consider, that these striking reductions in mortality took place during a period when the population of Ontario doubled.

These are remarkable records. They show what can be done by general and intelligent co-operation by the public in health measures. We can do equally well in this Province and throughout Canada in the same way.

Slaughtering Roadside Trees.

(From the Farmers' Advocate.)

No plea of necessity or economy can secure acquittal for those guilty of the unpardonable destruction of roadside trees in the Province of Ontario. Many of these grand old landmarks were planted during the time of the Mowat regime, half a century ago, when a bonus was given to encourage property owners to plant trees. During the last quarter century provincial governments have stupidly granted powers to line construction companies to destroy the trees at will, and municipal councils have sanctioned the same needless slaughter.

Even during the past five years many roadside trees have been cut with local council consent, and investigation will show that the need to remove trees often coincides with the local patrolman's need for fuel. It is time municipal councils awakened to the enormity of the crime and called a complete halt to the wanton destruction.

Not more than a month ago the local manager of a big telephone company publicly announced the policy of purchasing all roadside trees along the company's lines and leaving the wood for the adjacent property owner's use. Could anything be more shortsighted or suicidal as a policy for a telephone company or big utility corporation? Some of the States in the neighboring Republic are spending good money to plant roadside trees in order to attract tourists. One State alone already has 400 miles of water pipes laid to carry water to the newly planted seedlings. The tourist trade is now one of Canada's major industries, and it is unthinkable that a corporation which continually profits from the tourist trade should be so shortsighted and thoughtless as to destroy one of Ontario's chief attractions.

There is evidence of a change of heart somewhere within the Hydro Electric Power Commission, but up and down the highways of this Province there are terrible examples of the butchery perpetrated by this publicly-owned utility.

It is hard to understand why public opinion has remained so long submissive to this outrage, and why the people of the countryside have not demanded repeal of the legislation that permits big corporations to butcher, at their own pleasure, the beautiful roadside trees and replace them with hideous poles and wires.

Mounties' Barracks Now a Garage.

(From the Lethbridge Herald.)

Decision of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police to abandon the old barracks built 52 years ago for "K" division, while it will be received with regret by the people of Lethbridge, will mark the change in policing methods from the day of "Scarlet Riders" to the new day of automobile and airplane transportation.

There was a time within the memory of many of us when the bugle call to stable duty at the barracks was a familiar sound and meant that the old West was still functioning. The Royal North West Mounted Police was really mounted in those days. They had to be to carry out their work, patrolling the country dealing with cattle rustlers and horse thieves, helping new settlers with their problems, patrolling the international border and the dozen and one other duties which fell to the lot of the Mounties as this part of South Alberta was being opened up. Lethbridge, of course, was never so important a division headquarters as the old original post at Macleod, but it was a busy place in the last days of the 19th century and the beginning of the present one.

And now "The Barracks," as we all know them, are to be relegated into the limbo of the past. In place there will arise subdivision headquarters here which will be more in keeping with the modern force. Instead of stables for 100 horses there will be an eight-car garage. Headquarters will be a block of offices with probably sleeping quarters for any emergency force which may be necessary at any time. These two buildings with quarters for officers will take the place of the old "K" division.

The question arises as to what will be done with the old Barracks site consisting of four city blocks in the very heart of the city. Two proposals are before the City Council. One is that the city should build the new headquarters at a cost of some $100,000 and trade them to the police for the Barracks square. The other is that the police will trade the Barracks site to a private party in return for suitable buildings for the headquarters staff.

IS FEDERAL TASK

(Brandon Sun)

However much the Federal Government may squirm in avoidance of it, the problem of relief must finally become their charge. The municipalities cannot longer bear the burden and those of social services passed on to them by the Dominion and the Provinces.

300,000 MURDERS.

(Detroit News)

Although dimly aware of the facts before, because of its mathematical definiteness, we find something sharply arresting in the statement of a Department of Justice official that 300,000 persons now living in this country will some day be murdered.

This means that in spite of all the education, the moral and religious training, the attempts to improve those social conditions which may incite to violence, and the likelihood of punishment for murderous acts, one out of every 400 of us is almost certain to be shot, stabbed, poisoned, choked, or black-jacked, and that approximately another one of each 400 is destined to be the instrument of our unexpected and unpleasant demise.

Besides provoking a shudder at the thought of our own danger when walking home in the dark, these figures should inspire some very sober thought. Just what stage of growth and evolution have human beings reached? Evidently it is a discouragingly low one.

MUST OBEY LAW.

(Ottawa Journal)

Many things might be said about the labor disputes in Canada at this time.

One is that the most important of these disputes come to us from across the international boundary and affect directly great industries that, in management and finance, are subsidiaries of greater business concerns in the United States. If American labor unions that have dealt with the parent industries in their own country seek to organize the workers in the Canadian subsidiaries, it is not to be wondered at. If they proceed in this work on lines they have followed in the United States, the people of Canada may be a bit surprised but would hardly be justified in taking offence at once. Canadians have had the benefit of American capital in financing their industries, and may well make allowance on that account.

But this is an allowance in courtesy only, and courtesy is not to be abused. Canadian law, and also Canadian public opinion and sentiment are to be respected in Canada by visitors as well as by our own people.

The county families accepted invitations to a great function held in the Town Hall, but the wife and daughters of Major Greene were refused admission because they had forgotten to bring their invitation card.

Mrs. Greene said to the man at the door: "You don't understand, my good man. We do not need a ticket. We're the Greenes."

"It doesn't matter, madam," replied the doorkeeper. "Even if you're the groceries, you don't pass me without a ticket."

100 GIRL STRIKERS POO AS FOREMEN ENTER G.M. PLANT

Pickets Carry Union Jacks To Show U.A.W.A. Is Not Communistic

ROGERS SUITS COMPANY

OSHAWA, Ont., April 15—(CP)—A picket line of 100 girl strikers carrying Union Jacks booed about 140 foremen and other employees who went to work at the Parts and Service department of General Motors of Canada, Limited, as the strike affecting 3,700 employees entered its eighth day.

The girls carried the flags to show the employees' union, the United Automobile workers of America, was not Communistic and to show they had no dealings with Communism, union stewards said.

There were no men in the picket line. About 30 employees entered the building at seven o'clock and 100 entered the plant an hour later.

As the men entered the plant the picketing women sang "We'll never let the union fall, for we love it the best of all," and "Hail, hail, the gang's all here."

Hugh Thompson, union organizer here, said at a press conference early to-day he had been advised by telephone from Detroit by Ed Hall, vice-president of the international union, that General Motors was agreeable to the Federal Department of Labor intervening in the strike.

"In an interview with C. E. Wilson vice-president here of General Motors Corporation, the company said it was agreeable to dealing with United Automobile Workers if Hon. Norman Rogers, Federal Minister of Labor, acted as mediator," Hall told him over the telephone, Thompson said.

According to Thompson, the Detroit union executive also declared: "If General Motors of Canada say they will ship cars to England from the United States, there is no alternative but to consider the United States workers as strike-breakers and we would have to sit down."

Four-Power Spanish Blockade Will Cost $5,000,000 A Year

Plan Finally Goes In Force Monday After Months Of Preparations

SKELETON STAFF READY

LONDON, April 15—(CP-Havas)—The Spanish control plan will go into effect Monday at midnight, the Non-Intervention sub-committee decided to-day.

The sub-committee also agreed to turn over to a special committee of experts consideration of the question of withdrawal of volunteers from Spain.

The Non - Intervention scheme calls for naval patrols of the Spanish coasts and establishment of agents on Spain's frontiers to prevent foreign arms and volunteers from reaching either side in the civil conflict.

The plan was originally due to be applied on February 20 for the volunteer ban and March 6 for naval patrols control. Successive postponements were caused by friction and difficulties within the committee over various practical details.

The long-awaited establishment of a land-and-sea patrol of Spain culminated months of effort by the big powers to put into force their plan to localize the Spanish war as far as possible and safeguard the rest of Europe against possible repercussions.

The advisory board noticed the sub-committee a skeleton staff sufficient to enforce the blockade of Spain ashore and at sea was ready at various control ports and frontier posts.

A new phase in international relations will begin when the warships contributed by Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy take up their positions as a combined fleet girdling Spain.

The estimated total cost for both the land and sea patrols has been set at $5,000,000 a year.

Air Her Speedway Amy Finds In Fine

Croydon, Surrey, April 15

AMY Johnson Mollison was fined £1 ($4.90) in police court here today for exceeding the 30-mile speed limit on the London road.

Mrs. Mollison was allegedly going 40 miles an hour in heavy traffic. "There is no answer to this charge," her solicitor said. "The lady has won the admiration of the whole world for her wonderful intrepid flights and it is possible that being accustomed to 150 and 200 miles an hour she would not notice the difference between 30 and 40."

The flier, at present in New York, sent a cablegram expressing her "extreme regret at the unintentional offence."

ALL RAILROADERS ARE ON THE MOVE TO HIGHER WAGES

By April 1 Next 130,000 Will Have Arrived at Pre-Depression Scale

2 P.C. JUMP NEXT PAY

MONTREAL, April 15 (C.P.).—All the ranks of Canadian railway labor were on the march to-day toward higher pay, the goal in a long wage fight signled.

By April 1 of next year, 130,033 workers of the two major rail systems will have arrived at pre-depression wage scales. Depression pay cuts of 10 per cent are to be wiped out progressively in the interval.

Last of the army to be admitted to the higher pay parade was drawn in yesterday when the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees signed agreements for restoration of the slashes to the C.B.R.E.'s 13,000 members. The contracts were essentially the same as those effected into two weeks ago with 11,000 employees of the C.N.R. and the Canadian Pacific.

The latest upward revision, a joint statement from the National road and the C.B.R.E. said last night was "in accordance with the spirit" of the Smiley Conciliation Board's report. The Board, after probing the C.B.R.E.'s claims to better wages, had recommended earlier in the week that the cuts be eliminated by next April 1.

Raises in Force Now.

The C.B.R.E.'s raises are in effect now. When pay envelopes for the fortnight that began on April 1 are received, the men will find in them a two per cent. raise. After that, their pay will be boosted on this basis: One per cent. on June 1, one per cent. on August 1, one per cent. on October 1, three per cent. on December 1, one per cent. on February 1 and the final one per cent. on next April 1.

Included under this arrangement are clerks and similar workers on a wage basis, express employees, sleeping and dining car staffs in road service, wharf employees in Halifax, and men on the New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island ferry.

The C.N.R., like the C.P.R., has extended the raises to non-unionized workers who did not take part in the negotiations leading to the raises.

WILL USE LINERS AS GRAND STANDS

Coronation Naval Review At Spithead Will Take Place May 20-21

LONDON, [illegible] (C.P.).—The Coronation Naval Review at Spithead May 20-21 will be witnessed by tens of thousands of spectators from hundreds of vessels. Thirty-three maritime powers have been asked to take part in the review and each is expected to send a warship.

Passenger liners have been chartered to moor along the Solent to witness the movements, the merchant navy and fishing fleets will be represented and small private craft, as numerous as they will be varied, will scurry to and fro for vantage points.

Liners to serve as "grand stands" will include the Aquitania, Strathmore, Oranto, Orontes, Ranchi, Cameronia, Lancastria, Arandora Star, Vandyck, City of Simla and Nevasa. It is understood 35 ships will be so employed under fixed moorage while a great number of channel steamers and ferries will be pressed into service. The Admiralty has issued traffic regulations warning that ships must be stopped during the period immediately prior to the review.

The King's invitation to the merchant navy and fishing fleets to send representatives to the review will bring all classes of ships from luxury liners to coastal tramps and trawlers. The yacht clubs have also been awarded berths, both for sail-boats and steam.

RANKS OF WEALTHY GROW IN BRITAIN

Surtax Assessments Indicate Millionaire Class Increased By 49

LONDON, [illegible] (CP)—After steadily declining for some years there were 49 more millionaires in Great Britain and Ireland last year and 2,030 more persons with annual incomes exceeding $10,000, while the aggregate income of all such persons increased by $65,275,000.

The full figures, which are based on surtax assessments, made at Sept. 30 last on 1934-35 incomes, are included in the report of the commissioners of inland revenue for the year ended March 31 last. The number assessed was 85,449, with an income of $2,121,607,220.

Those with annual incomes exceeding $150,000 or the millionaire class, number 834, compared with 775 the previous year. There were 60 persons last year with incomes ranging from $375,000 to $500,000, and 69 with incomes exceeding $500,000.

In the previous year the numbers were 50 and 64 respectively.

Biggest round of applause went to Shane, though, as he applied the label "illegitimate children" to the two new French-Canadian unions that have just signed agreements with the employers. Denouncing the young unions as "frauds," the manager declared they actually provided for a lower scale of wages than the Quebec Minimum Wage Act allows.

Minimum prices in the agreement run between $8 and $14 a week. The I.L.G.W.U. demand a $12.50-$30 minimum scale, with general 20 per cent. wage increase, a 44-hour work week, and time and a half for overtime.

"I expect to advise Mr. Lapointe in another day to withdraw all Dominion police from this locality."

Only For Dire Necessity.

A detachment of Royal Canadian Mounted Police were brought here at the Ontario Government's request, he said, but from the officer in command he learned they would not take part in any disturbance unless Provincial officers were unable to cope with the situation.

"In other words," they would not go into action until the Provincial police get their heads broken," said the Premier. "Under these circumstances they're no use to us, and I'm going to ask Mr. Lapointe to withdraw them."

He charged the Dominion Government with a "vacillating policy" and maintained: "One day we have Mr. Lapointe promising all possible help; the next day, no help. We have Mackenzie saying one thing one day, and another the next."

"Never at any time have we thought of calling on the militia," said Mr Hepburn.

Famous Cow Gets Owner Fined $10

Windsor, Ont., April 15—(CP)—MRS. Mary Nowicki of suburban Riverside, owner of "Jessie," the famous cow, was fined $10 and costs in county police court today on a charge of assaulting her neighbor, Mrs. Jessie McMillan.

The charge followed a general row between the two families Sunday on a vacant lot between the two homes. The uprising, it was said, was just one of a series of unpleasant disturbances in the neighborhood during the last two years—all blamed on Jessie. Magistrate W. A. Smith said there was nothing in the conduct of Mrs. McMillan to warrant Mrs. Nowicki attacking her with a club.

MILLER DEFENCE BEGINS HIS PLEA

Offers No Witnesses After Crown Produces Fifteen In Shooting Case

PEMBROKE, Ont., April 15 (CP).—T. M. J. Galligan, defence counsel, today will give his address to the jury hearing the trial of John Miller, 22-year-old Eganville, Ont., youth, charged with murdering his brother-in-law, Gregory Tracey.

He will be followed by C. L. Snider, special Crown counsel, and Mr. Justice Ainslie W. Greene of the Ontario Supreme Court.

The defence offered no witnesses last night after the Crown had concluded its case calling some 15 witnesses since the trial opened Tuesday. Court was adjourned five hours yesterday when Miller collapsed in the prisoner's dock.

Unable To Identify Gun.

Angus Lacey, manager of Lacey's Eganville store, where Tracey was alleged to have been shot last January 21, yesterday could not identify positively a gun produced in court as the one which disappeared from the store following the shooting. He swore, however, a similar 20-gauge shotgun was missing from his establishment.

A letter Miller was alleged to have written to his wife, after Tracey was shot, was read into evidence. It said: "Dear Anna and Jackie: I did this because I love both of you. Honey don't tell Jackie about me. If you can, come and see me and talk to me. Maybe I can get the kits I have been asking for for two days."

So that he may attend the Boy Scout World Jamboree in Holland this year, Scoutmaster M. Whittle of Queensland has saved 12,000 pennies in two years, and these will pay his fare for the 12,000-mile journey.

New Army Chief

Chief of the Salvation Army in Canada, Commissioner John McMillan has been appointed chief of staff for the organization, a position second only to that of General Evangeline Booth. Commissioner McMillan succeeds Henry W. Mapp whose health has broken down.

office, Major-General V. A. S. Williams, Provincial Police Commissioner, and James S. Allen, Crown Attorney of Essex County, were admitted to office. While the Premier later said Mr. Allen's visit dealt only with routine matters, it was reported that the Premier had desired to know the state of law and order in Windsor, where General Motors also have a plant idle.

Administered Oath.

After noon Lieutenant-Governor Herbert Bruce administered the oath of office to Premier Hepburn, who is taking over the duties of David A. Croll, resigned Labor and Welfare Minister, and to Hon. Paul Leduc, assuming the Attorney-General's work following the resignation of Arthur W. Roebuck.

Mr. Roebuck and Mr. Croll were busy cleaning up their work after stepping down from their Cabinet posts on Premier Hepburn's demand because they failed to agree on the Government's strike policy. Mr. Roebuck was at work in the Attorney-General's office from which he resigned, while Mr. Croll completed tasks connected with his former Departments of Labor, Welfare and Municipal Affairs.

YOUTH STEPS OUT OPERA-CONSCIOUS

Johnson's Policy Praised As Culture Yet Profitable To 'Met'

NEW YORK, April 14 (CP).—Looking back on his management of the Metropolitan Opera as it closed its 34th year of activity, Edward Johnson, one-time choir boy of Guelph, Ont., and now possibly world-renowned tenor, said the most cheering aspect of the latest season was "the reawakening interest in opera on the part of a wide public."

"No one who kept an eye and an ear on the Metropolitan during the season just ended can doubt the fact of that renascent and spreading interest....One had only to walk through the corridors or sit in the auditorium of the Metropolitan, especially on one of the notable occasions of the season—a 'Siegfried' or a 'Tristan' with Flagstad and Melchior, or a revival of 'Norma' or a performance of 'Coq d'Or'—to become aware of something new in the attitude of the audience, a keener responsiveness, a quickened zest, a deeper concentration.

"And many of these listeners were young people....A few years ago the young people of this vicinity saw anything but opera-conscious. Opera by appeared to think was old hat. Opera performances were presumably dull and perfunctory. There was better entertainment elsewhere.

"What was it that brought about the change? Probably, in the first place, the fact that Mr. Johnson, finding himself in possession of the two foremost dramatic singers of the contemporary lyric stage, proceeded to make the most of his opportunity by specializing in the metropolitan's repertoire....Probably Mr. Johnson was as much astonished as any one to find that his policy was delightfully profitable, and that the eight performances which the Metropolitan gave this season of 'Tristan and Isolde' took in at the box office, it is reported, about $120,000.....

"Mr. Johnson and his associates have accomplished amazing things in these recent years of doubt and adversity."

HAVELOCK, April 15.—The members of Norwood United Church Young People's League were the guests of the Havelock Y.P.L. on Monday night, a social evening of games an dentertainment being enjoyed.

Refreshments were then served to conclude a very pleasant evening.

ESCAPED DEATH FOR DESERTION

Member Of Spanish Rebels' Brigade Had Short But Lively Service

NEW YORK, April 13 (CP)—Still wearing the uniform of the Irish Brigade of the Spanish Insurgents, Hugh A. McDaniel arrived here on the British ship Cosby from Gibraltar and gave reporters a first-hand account of the civil war conditions.

Formerly a racing car mechanic in London, McDaniel has an urge for aviation. Hearing that General Franco's army was seeking recruits, he sought out the Insurgent agent and signed up on condition that he be employed in the air service. On arrival in Spain he was handed a black shirt and black service cap with red tassel and found himself a private in the Irish Brigade.

This "double-cross" combined with the bad food—"mule soup and burro stew"—eventually led him to attempt an escape with a companion. Travelling at night by the stars, they struck off for the Portuguese border. Recaptured within a few miles of their goal, they were sentenced to be shot as deserters.

Either because they were British subjects or through the intercession of an English Roman Catholic priest, they were pardoned by the Burgos authorities and sent to Gibraltar where McDaniel signed on as fireman in the Cosby.

McDaniel told of seeing Spanish officers helping to quell a mutiny in the Irish Brigade; of watching government prisoners die shouting "Viva Rojo" (long live the red); and of German ammunition, smuggled ashore in fish crates at a point where one of Columbus' ships, now a sightseer's showboat, lies fast to the shore. He also told of a deserting British blue jacket, machine-gunner for the Insurgents, turning his gun on them when they ran before Madrid. Al Caserés, McDaniel watched continual processions of government prisoners being led out to dig their own graves before being shot. "If you got up at five or six in the morning, you could see 50 shot any day," he said.

HANDBELL RINGERS PLAY IN MARMORA

First Visit In Ten Years Brings Out Enthusiastic Music-Loving Crowd

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, April 14.—After an interval of ten years, the Eckhardt Swiss Handbell Ringers returned to the Town Hall on Wednesday evening in course of their 47th tour and evidence that their last performance was not forgotten in the years was seen in the large attendance present.

The aggregation was commenced in 1900 by Timothy Eckhardt, when it was of the travelling horse-wagon type. Originally it played chiefly for church events, but with the popularity accorded it, it extended its scope. The brothers Gordon and Bernard Eckhardt, sons of the promoter, remain of the original group and are ably supported in their delightful varied program by Norman Thomas, singer of cowboy and Scotch songs; Albert Bested, female impersonator, and Nickolof, Russian dancer.

The playing of old airs on handbells, organ pipes, musical glasses and brass instruments was well received by the large audience and much hilarity was provoked by the humorous numbers in which music was extracted from articles not considered to be musically inclined.

After the program, the hall was cleared for round and square dancing.

The president, Mrs. C. Emberson, presided for the meeting. It was decided to buy some new equipment for the cupboards. Plans were also made for a special Coronation program to be held at the meeting on Tuesday, May 4th. Mrs. Chester Fisher gave a pleasing piano solo, and Miss Betty Perrin gave a reading. The Study Book was taken by Mrs. Harold Monorief and Mrs. Edgar Wood.

RAILS AND ROADS IN BITTER FIGHT

Competition Between Trains And Trucks In England Reaches Climax

LONDON, April 15.—(CP)—The vexing problem of road versus rail transport is not exclusive to Canada. The competition in England has reached the stage where it is referred to as "war."

The private lorry has become a "fleet" of lorries and the railways find their resort to his means of haulage has not been any too successful against what they term the "cut-throat" campaigns of the trucking companies. Small operators not obliged to carry everything but able to pick their loads with a view to profits are said to be "demoralizing" the whole set-up.

The Evening Standard made a recent survey of the situation and reported, in part, that the existence of thousands of little men in the road transport industry presents the Transport Advisory Council with problems difficult of solution.

The Council is composed of 29 representatives of local authorities and every type of transport interest. It hopes to frame a scheme for co-ordinating the rail and road transport in the public interest.

While the trunk railways of the country number four and work in close co-operation, there are more than 450,000 goods vehicles on the roads with so many owners that the average number of vehicles to each license is but two. There are 100,000 more goods vehicles on the road than seven years ago; 42,000 more than three years ago. The railways' own road fleets total 10,000 vehicles.

The Standard declares "the effect of recent legislation has been to add to the cost of running road vehicles, and this factor has led many of the smaller concerns to make frantic efforts to increase their loads. Hence more and more cutting of rates, and a general worsening of the situation, which has evoked from Sir Josiah Stamp, chairman of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway, the declaration that a solution of the general question of road and rail in freight traffic is becoming more and more imperative in the national interest."

The highway trucks undercut the railways' freight rates about 50 per cent. in some cases.

The railways contend public interest requires the reduction of the number of licenses granted to hauliers. They also call for equality of State treatment for both methods of transport. The road interests reply that railway stockholders cannot hold back the development of a rival transport, and that the present railway rate classification will have to be revised, whatever else happens.

Girl's Writing Just A Jumble Only Untangled With Mirror

Left-Hand Work Unreadable To Anyone But Herself—Doctors Blame Eyes

RIGHT HAND NORMAL

MARTINSBURG, W.Va., April 15 (AP) — Thirteen-year-old Minnie Wirts went along with her left-hand writing today—unconcerned that her teachers need a mirror to read it.

Their call Minnie another "mirror girl."

Otherwise it is undecipherable to everyone but Minnie. She reads it with asterity.

For years the naturally left-handed child had been requested by her instructors to rewrite her lessons, using her right hand. They believed were done with her left hand was just illegible.

By chance Miss Virginia Chrisman, one of the instructors, discovered the writing was legible if read with a mirror.

What Minnie writes with her right hand is called normal penmanship.

Doctors said that Minnie's eyes are responsible; that a corrective operation would be necessary to make her left-hand writing normal.

Minnie doesn't worry. She is ambidextrous and if the teachers insist, she will use her right hand.

33,000 More Troops For Frontier Taming

NEW DELHI, April 15 (CP-Havas)—Indian authorities decided today to send 33,000 additional troops to the northwest frontier region of Waziristan to pacify rebel tribesmen who under the Fakir of Ipi have maintained a state of rebellion in the region for several months.

The decision was made as a result of an ambush laid by the natives last week, in which seven British officers, two non-commissioned officers and 20 native soldiers were killed. Five officers, one non-commissioned officer, two Indian officers and 37 native soldiers were wounded.

Large bands of armed natives, carrying on marauding expeditions against the British and tribes friendly to them, have been active throughout the Bannu region.

Backs Strike

John Noble, president of the Toronto Trades and Labor Council, is shown above as he addressed a mass meeting of striking General Motors' employees, at Oshawa, Ont., and assailed Premier M. F. Hepburn of Ontario for his stand against U. S. intervention. He told the strikers that the Toronto Trades and Labor Council was supporting the strike. Following Noble's statement, members of the council executive declared the question had not arisen at any executive meeting and therefore it was incorrect to state its members were supporting Mr. Noble's view.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis Terrion, who were early settlers in the northern part of Marmora Township. He was in turn a river driver and teamster and was well thought of by his fellow employees for his friendly manner.

EMMETT ALLEN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOURO, April 15.—A promising young life was cut short on Saturday afternoon, when Emmett Allen, one of Douro's most popular and respected young men, died after a short illness of pneumonia. Deceased was the youngest son of Mrs. Margaret Allen and the late Edmund Allen, and had almost reached the age of 26. Besides his mother he is survived by one sister, Mabel, and two brothers, Norman and Huberl. Deceased had been a member of St. Joseph's choir, of the Douro softball team and of the Holy Name Society, each of which associations sent spiritual bouquets. Being musically gifted he had been on many occasions a helper in local orchestras and also assisted a Warsaw orchestra at times.

The funeral took place on Monday morning at nine o'clock, requiem mass being sung by Rev. E. Welsh who also preached the funeral sermon, using the text, "Whether we live or whether we die, we are in the Lord,"—Paul, Romans 14-8. In feeling terms Fr. Welsh made a brief reference to the deceased, referring to him as a Christian gentleman who had endeavoured to serve God to the best of his ability. Pallbearers were Leonard O'Toole, Peterborough; Francis Towns, Joseph Hayes, Leo Meber, Clement O'Brien and Robert Leahy. Most of his young associates were deeply affected. Some seventy members of the Holy Name Society paraded in a body, making an impressive picture.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral or visited the home were: Mr. and Mrs. Edward O'Toole, son Leonard, Joseph, Kenneth and Gerard, and daughter, Rita; Mrs. R. Shelton, Mrs. Martin Kyne, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Kylie, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Allen and daughters, Blanche, Bernadine, Jean, Rose and Barbara; Mr. and Mrs. William O'Toole, daughters, Lillian and Florence and son, Gerald; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene O'Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hickey and daughter, Helen; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Brien, Mr. Emmett Guerin, Mr. and Mrs. T. Raymond and son, William; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Grisdale, Mr. and Mrs. Bart Allen, Messrs. Clare McGilley and A. Ralph, Miss Jean Clancy, Thomas Hanrahan and daughter, Marjorie, and Mrs. Redmond McAuliffe, all of Peterborough; Miss Margaret Sullivan, Lakefield; Mr. John Allen, Lakefield; Mr. and Mrs. John Torpey, daughters, Rita and Irene, Mr. and Mrs. William Devlin and daughter, Loretta, of Otonabee; Mr. and Mrs. O. McIlvena, Mrs. Thompson, Hector and Elias Thompson, and Messrs. Ivan Clements, Paul Payne and Wilbert Wright, all of Warsaw.

MACKENZIE WILL LEND EVERY AID

would comply with the ultimatum of Oshawa's Mayor Alexander Hall and call out workers in General Motors' American plant.

Still solid behind their local of the U.A.W.A., affiliated with John Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, 2,000 strikers crowded into a mass meeting last night and passed resolutions condemning Premier Mitchell Hepburn for his stand in the strike and regretting the enforced resignations of David Croll and Arthur Roebuck from the Ontario Cabinet.

Last night's mass meeting lost no time in condemning Premier Hepburn for his "announced policy of opposition to the legal right of labor to choose its own union organization."

The strikers demanded the Premier withdraw "from any participation in this dispute because of his avowed bias," and went on record as "refusing to conduct any negotiations so long as Premier Hepburn is a party to them."

Threat to Trade Unionism

In their strongly worded resolution, the striking unionists charged Premier Hepburn "has threatened to smash trade unionism and raise an army to suppress the growth of unionism"; his "dictatorship would deprive all workers of their last resort, the right to strike"; the premier's "massing of police forces is entirely unnecessary."

It added a charge that the premier took the dispute "out of the able hands of his Minister of Labor, Hon. David Croll, who was successfully conducting negotiations, and immediately substituted compulsion for arbitration."

Mayor Hall struck a note of optimism when he addressed the strikers. He said the strike may be settled "in four or five days" and declared the sole point involved is whether General Motors will recognize the U.A.W.A.

The mayor described the strikers' conduct as "the wonder of the world" and told them "there is no manifestation of Communism in Oshawa and no reason for an increased police force."

Charles H. Millard, president of the Oshawa local, declared the strikers have been forgotten and "governments are fighting among themselves."

The strikers, led to their meeting hall by a band, booed when Hugh Thompson, C.I.O. organizer, mentioned Premier Hepburn's name.

"I think you shouldn't feel that way just because he disagrees with you," said Thompson, and the crowd booed again when the organizer said he thought the premier should come to Oshawa and meet them.

Other speakers were Professor Eric Havelock of the University of Toronto, who condemned the "damned hypocrisy" of Premier Hepburn's attitude, and Dr. Salem Bland, Hamilton United Church clergyman, who said he didn't know anything about the C.I.O. but liked it "for the enemies it has made."

OTTAWA STAYS

The prime minister announced the government had decided to postpone appointment of the royal commission to investigate economic relations between the provinces and the Dominion until after the Coronation. This led to belief Mr. Mackenzie King while he is in England will seek the services of a prominent British economist to act as chairman of the commission and will probably appoint two Canadians to complete the three-man body.

It was learned two airplanes will be engaged this summer in surveying photographically two areas in Saskatchewan with the object of obtaining complete information about soil and moisture conditions for use in a plan to move farmers from poorer lands to better.

The surveys will be undertaken in an area of about 11,000 square miles south and south-west of Moose Jaw and in another along the Frenchman River in the south-west corner of the province.

Codrington Separate School Granted $5,000 For 3 Pupils

Public Schools In Ontario First Consideration Orangemen Told

MEET IN OTTAWA

OTTAWA, April 14.—(CP)—Delegates to two Eastern Ontario Orange organizations will end two-day conventions here tonight after a long discussion of the Ontario Separate School issue and being told Premier Hepburn's Ontario government would fall on the question at the next provincial election.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Ontario East, Orange Young Britons, last night elected R. Laurence Lille of Ottawa their Grand Master for the next year and completed their slate of officers.

Earlier the Loyal Orange Grand Lodge, Province of Ontario East, heard Grand Master R. F. Reid of Peterborough predict defeat at the next election of Premier Hepburn and his Ontario Government. Mr. Reid said the defeat would come on the Separate School tax question.

First Consideration.

Lieut.-Col. T. A. Kidd, Conservative member of the Legislature for Kingston and a former Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of British America, told delegates public schools in Ontario were the first consideration of the people.

Referring to the Separate Schools tax, he said that in the Village of Codrington, eight miles north of Brighton, average attendance at the public school had been 15 for the last five years while "across the road a separate school had an average attendance of only three. The Separate School received over $5,000 in grants from the Province during the past five years while the public school received only $5,000."

C. O. Frost, former mayor of Lindsay, made a plea to delegates of all three organizations for tolerance and goodwill between Protestants and Roman Catholics. He said the school issue was not one of "Roman Catholics versus Protestants."

He said: "Orangemen, believing in religious liberty, while not agreeing with Roman Catholic doctrines, should be prepared to grant that Roman Catholics may exercise their religious freedom by worshipping God in accordance with the dictates of their consciences."

Principle Violated

He declared, however, the principle under which Separate Schools were established in Ontario in 1863, on a voluntary and optional basis was violated in the 1936 assessment act of the Ontario Legislature as an important part of the corporate wealth of the province was compelled to divert a considerable share of its municipal taxes to support of Separate Schools, regardless of the religious beliefs of shareholders.

"This act which violated a fundamental principle has now been repealed," he said, "with the definite assurance of the prime minister that Separate School supporters will receive equity and justice. Public School supporters will await with interest a more definite definition of the term 'equity and justice'."

Mr. Reid, speaking of repeal of the Separate School tax measure by the Ontario Legislature, declared: "There is no denying the fact that the decision of the voters in East Hastings (by-election) provided the result that means defeat at the next provincial election for Mr. Hepburn's party."

He said a promise by the Premier that "the Roman Catholic Separate schools will be looked after by his government" and announcement by an official of the Separate schools branch of the Ontario Educational Association "that a new law is being drawn up that will guarantee to separate schools a greater share of corporation taxes" would be discussed at a session later in the day.

Mr. Reid saw little comfort in changes in the Coronation oath of His Majesty King George VI whereby the words "By the Grace of God" and "Defender of the Faith have been deleted."

Small Concession.

This, he said, only serves to prove that certain people have been busy and secured another small concession, not much it is true, but nevertheless, to lend encouragement to ask for more at the next Coronation."

He drew attention to "the reported statement, which was later denied by Major Gladstone Murray, general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, whereby he was said to have stated 'there are two parent languages in Canada' and that 'the Corporation is pledged to make Canada bilingual'."

French Language.

"I would like," he said, "again to call your attention to the fact that the French language is only official in the Parliament of Canada and the Legislature and Courts of the Province of Quebec, according to the British North America Act.

"But we have bilingual currency not only in Quebec but across the Dominion and I am told that all correspondence going from the Dominion Parliament or any of its branches to Quebec province cannot do so much as have a word of English printed on the letter head or it will be returned.

"I ask you how can a home remain exist under these conditions? It is all very well when no protest is made by the English-speaking people. But, just as soon as word of protest is uttered, then we are accused of 'raising the race or religious cry.'"

Going To France

Fred L. Roy, who leaves April 30th to attend the Coronation Ceremonies in England has been appointed delegate by the Peterborough Rotary Club to the International Convention of Rotary in Nice, France, in June.

GOODWILL TOUR LIMITED TO 150

Persons Joining Motorcade Must Send In Applications

Applications from persons who are intending to go on the goodwill motor tour to a number of towns and cities in Pennsylvania and Ohio, have been received by the Kawartha Lakes and Haliburton Tourist Association under whose auspices the motorcade is being organized.

According to R. W. Young, a representative of the Association applications have so far been received from Haliburton, Bobcaygeon, Lindsay and Fenelon Falls.

The motorcade, it is planned is to consist of 150 automobiles, and applications will be limited to around 600 people from the district. Leaving here on May 21 the motorcade will cross the line at Fort Erie for a four-day tour for the purpose of advertising the tourist advantages which the Kawarthas and Haliburton Highlands have to offer.

Persons wishing to join the motorcade are invited to send their applications to Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, stating whether or not they have a car and indicating the number of persons in their party. Early application is advisable.

Mr. Young stated he has received word from Erie that the Chamber of Commerce of that city is to tender a reception to visitors from this district included in the motorcade, while the Canadian-American Association of Cleveland is organizing a shopping expedition for the women members of the party.

A. Wander Company Given Certificate

Further recognition of safety and accident prevention work in Peterborough industrial plants was given when A. Wander Limited received a certificate of merit on Wednesday from the head office of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations.

Awards are made after a careful check of Workmen's Compensation records to assure that they are correctly made. A continuous educational campaign is waged in accident prevention, which has proved to be of great value to both

Request To Resign Comes As Surprise To Roebuck

Sought Audience With Premier Hepburn But Was Refused One

OPPOSED TO RACKETS

"Hon Mitchell F. Hepburn,
"Prime Minister,
"Parliament Buildings,
"Toronto, Ontario.

"My dear Prime Minister: Your letter asking my resignation as a member of the present Administration is received with some surprise, as one would naturally expect that such action would be preceded by some personal discussion in which the differences to which you refer could at least be defined. Yesterday afternoon and all last evening I endeavored to meet you, and this morning I called at your office before I knew of your letter or your intention, but you refused to see me.

"Not being able to see you, I must nevertheless accept the decision which is your constitutional right. You may accordingly consider this my resignation and I will execute the formal documents, if any, so soon as they are prepared.

"You say that I am not in accord with the policy of the Government in fighting the inroads of the Lewis organization and communism in general. I cannot pass such a statement, for it implies that I am a supporter of communism. This you know is not true. I am a Liberal and all that implies. Equally the reference to the inroads of the Lewis organization is open to many popular misinterpretations which would be equally untrue.

Attended Conference.

"Now what has taken place? I left town for a short rest after an arduous session, and knew nothing of the Oshawa developments until Thursday evening of last week. I hurried home and attended you in a conference in your office on Friday afternoon.

"By that time you had called for a detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and had installed them in barracks in Toronto, and you had assembled the Provincial Police also in Toronto. No disorder had taken place in the strike area. The newspapers had published what purported to be a statement by you that the Government was 100 per cent. behind the company, and that the Government would resist the extension of the so-called Lewis organization within Ontario if it required the raising of an army to do so.

"You may remember that I raised no objection to the maintenance of law and order in Oshawa, or elsewhere. I have been maintaining law and order as Attorney-General for the past three years, and effectively. I did question the wisdom of massing force prior to the absolute necessity arising. Let it be well understood that we are not in disagreement on the necessity of maintaining law and order in this country.

Opposed To Rackets.

"You spoke of racketeers. Let it be equally clear that we are not divided on that question either. I am as much opposed to rackets as any one in your Cabinet, though I do not see how the question has as yet arisen in connection with the Oshawa strike.

"What I did say was that, for a Government to take either side in an industrial dispute was wrong; that our duty was impartially to enforce the law, and I maintained that the unions of this country have an undoubted legal right to organize in such form as in their wisdom they see fit, and should have an equal freedom with employers in choosing their affiliations and representatives. Their right to collective bargaining is beyond question.

"Our discussion of these important matters was quiet and friendly and I thought we parted good friends. You continued your personal control of the matter as it affected both the police and the Labor Department, and I went about my other work. I have not received any communication from you from that time till now, and I have studiously avoided an interference with your conduct of the proceedings, and have made no public comment.

Where They Diverge.

"To sum up, there is no disagreement as to maintenance of law and order. If there is a settled divergence of opinion, it is as to the delay of unnecessary or provocative force, the maintenance of impartiality by the State in industrial disputes, and the right of labor to such forms of organization as it may choose, and its freedom to speak through such channels of representation as it may name, and its right to collective bargaining.

"I thank you for your kind personal references, and assure you that this relief from responsibility is received with equanimity.

"Yours faithfully,
"A. W. Roebuck."

PRISONER WANTS JUSTICE, CHANCE TO FIGHT IT OUT

Drunken Driver Given Fifteen Days By Magistrate Langley

TAP MAN IS FINED

When he was remanded until Tuesday next on bail of $200 after pleading not guilty to a charge of creating a public disturbance Earl Lowes, 512 Wolfe street, told the magistrate, "I don't want bail. I want justice and to fight it out."

"You fought it out yesterday," the Chief Constable remarked amid a gusto of laughter from the public benches. The defendant who bore signs of a recent battle appeared in the dock with sticking plaster over his left eye and left upper lip.

As he was being taken below he reiterated, "I don't want bail. You won't get any money out of me."

Leo Dennis was sentenced to 15 days imprisonment when he pleaded guilty to being drunk in charge of a commercial motor vehicle. Defendant said he was under the influence of liquor but was not drunk. Police declared attention had been attracted to the vehicle because it was being driven without lights and was "wobbling." His brother W. J. Dennis was fined $10 and $3 costs with the option of 10-days in the county gaol after pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication.

Tap Man Fined

Wilfred Curtain, described as a tap man at Montreal House entered a plea of guilty to a charge of serving liquor to Harry Baker on April 3 last while under the influence of drink.

The Chief Constable told the court that on the day in question Inspector James Reid visited the premises and found three customers in a drunken condition. He drew attention of the tap man to the condition of the trio and warned him to put them out. Returning later, police allege, the three men were still on the premises.

Curtain pleaded that he only served the one man named in the charge. "I am the tap man and I just happened to come from behind the bar to serve Baker. I did not serve any drinks after being warned by the police."

He was fined $10 and $3 costs.

Hotelman Charged

Otto Dalgleish, manager of the Grand Hotel who was represented by T. J. Carley, K.C., did not plead to an alleged breach of the Liquor Control Act, but obtained an adjournment until April 22. The charge against Dalgleish alleges, that on April 3, he "Unlawfully did keep or consume liquor in a part of a hotel, other than a private guest room, contrary to Section 91 (1) (a) of the L.C.A."

A transient who said he was John Carr of Glasgow pleaded guilty to a vagrancy charge. After being allowed to go without sentence on undertaking to leave the city immediately he remarked with a decided Scottish accent, "I'll nae come back."

Three Transients Arrested In Anson Station Round-up

FARMERS ASSIST POLICE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, April 15.—Surrounded by police and a posse of farmers, three transients were taken into custody near Anson station early on Wednesday, charged with the breaking, entering and theft from the general store and post office operated by William Bell and J. W. Barlow at Bonarlaw, early Tuesday morning. Upon their arrival at the Belleville police station, Wednesday morning this morning the men gave their names as Fred LaBlance, 22, Campbellstown, N.B., Victor MacFarlane, 20, of Halifax, N.S., and Harold Draper, 40, of Copper Cliff, Ont., and all admitted they were transients and in no way denied that they had robbed the general store at Bonarlaw. Most of the stolen goods from Bell and Barlow's store was found on the arrested trio.

Late Tuesday night J. W. Barlow, one of the partners of the general store learned that three suspicious men had been seen in the vicinity of Springbrook Station. Early on Tuesday morning the general store at Bonarlaw had been robbed of some $70.00 worth of merchandise and clothing, together with Mr. Barlow's .22 calibre rifle and a quantity of ammunition. A posse was immediately organized and although no attempt to apprehend the suspected trio was made, their presence was kept under surveillance until the police were notified. Provincial Police and R.C.M.P. were notified and rushed to the vicinity of Anson station, where it was reported that the suspects were hiding. The police force was divided and they surrounded the suspects hideout, and converged on the trio who surrendered without a struggle.

Money Found On Trio.

Upon being arrested the clothing upon the trio was easily identified, and the $4.00 taken from the post office cash box was recovered. Following the identification of the stolen merchandise, and a brief questioning, the three men were taken to Belleville where they were lodged in the county goal, pending hearing.

COURT DISMISSES ACTION OF BEAVIS

Supreme Court Sessions Are Concluded By Mr. Justice Makins

A suit by E. Beavis to have set aside a conveyance by James Henry Hess of Hastings to his wife, Wealthy Blanche Hess, was dismissed without costs by Mr. Justice Makins after trial in Supreme Court here today.

The plaintiff, represented by A. L. Elliott, complained of obtaining a judgment for $459.51 against Mr. Hess and being unable to obtain execution of the judgment. On January 12, 1931, Mr. Hess conveyed to his wife the house and property which he was to receive in accordance with the will of his first wife, for natural love and affection and the sum of $1, it was contended. The plaintiff claimed the conveyance was made for the purpose of defeating and defrauding creditors.

Evidence to support the defence contention that the conveyance was made for the consideration of a sum in the neighborhood of $1300 was adduced by W. P. Hurcks, K.C. acting for Mr. Hess, and J. F. Strickland, K.C. acting for Mrs. Hess. It was claimed the house was exchanged in return for a payment of $600 and other small subsequent payments.

Having reference to the fact the deed of conveyance indicated, the consideration as natural love and affection and the sum of $1 through what the defendants contended was a solicitor's mistake, Mr. Justice Makins said he found it necessary to hold it was not in fact a voluntary conveyance.

A decree nisi was granted Margaret P. Norton of this city in an action against Arthur Philip Norton for divorce. She was represented by E. Hartley Dewart of Toronto.

Settlement of the action of Rhea May Hughes against Thomas Griffin Hughes for alimony, scheduled for trial today, was reported settled by counsel. The amount of settlement was not disclosed.

A touch of ceremony was accorded the sittings when Hon. C. N. Gordon, P.C., K.C., was administered the oath of allegiance to King George VI as a member of the King's Privy Council for Canada. Justice Makins officiated.

HUMANE SOCIETY RESCUES ANIMALS

Hundreds Are Picked Up On City Streets In Injured Condition

It will probably be a surprise to most people to learn that hundreds of animals, injured by motor traffic or hurt in some other way were removed from the streets of Peterborough last year. That however is the statement of the Peterborough Humane Society officials of which explain that the animals not too seriously injured are treated and cared for while those so badly injured as to have no chance for recovery are humanely put out of their misery. The society is also continuously on the alert removing tubercular reis which are a menace to the health of the community and in many other ways are working not only in the interest of dumb animals but of the public as well.

These are facts that should be remembered on Saturday when the annual Violet Day campaign will be carried on in the city's streets giving the citizens a chance to assist financially in this very fine humanitarian work.

ALL-CANADIAN TRADE UNIONS

Government Should Assist In Building Up Strong Canadian Organization

BREAK FROM U.S.A.

"One effective way of getting away from the American interference into Canadian labor matters" said Thomas A. Deforge, local contractor to The Examiner today "would be for the Canadian government to assist financially in the building up of a strong all Canadian trade union organization".

Mr. Deforge who is himself a member of the Bricklayers' Union, an international organization, points out that all the Canadian trade unions are members of the American Federation of Labor. The members pay on an average of $1 a month in fees to their unions and Mr. Deforge estimates that in this way the sum of some two and a half million dollars a year is sent out of the country that could be kept at home were Canadian labor organized on a Canadian basis.

His idea is that if the Federal government assisted by providing Canadian labor with a suitable building for headquarters purposes and possibly a loan for organization, this despatching of Canadian dollars across the line and the domination of Canadian workers by American officials could be avoided.

The Canadian trades unions could have a working agreement with American unions if they so desired but under the Deforge scheme they would run their own show.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

A man can know nothing of mankind without knowing something of himself. Self-knowledge is the property of that man whose passions have their full play, but who ponders over their results.—Dunsel. Dear Friends:

Sometimes we do a thing and wonder why in the world we ever did it. We knew it was wrong, we knew that afterwards we would be mad at ourselves for doing it, and ashamed to face God because of it, but on we so and do this thing, and why are we like that?

Why is it that we cannot stay more on the spiritual plane, but must let the things of the body or the world or the appetite persuade us into doing what we shouldn't do? Someone has said, "The spirit is willing but the flesh is weak," and we prove it in ourselves every now and then, so what are we going to do about it.

I give you no excuses, for I know of none, unless it be that none of us are perfect, all are human with human failings, and what seems alright to one, seems like large sin to another, and what used to be great sins are now commonplaces so that sometimes we do not know where we are at.

But—and it is a large but—we do know truly when we are lowering ourselves, and it is ourselves that sit in judgment on us, and cause us to cringe within ourselves and say, "never again," yet afterwards away we go and do it again.

Yet none but our Saviour was ever perfect on earth. We all fall now and then, we all feel as if what we have done has caused a sort of spiritual death within us, but just as we celebrate the resurrection on Easter morn, so can we celebrate the resurrection of our spirit when we try to refrain from these sins. We get tired of the everlasting again of simply living, so we kick over the traces in a sort of revolt against things in general. It is a sort of mental blowing off steam when we get too highly charged with all the little irritations, and get tired of the rarefied air of being good.

We say to ourselves, "here I am day after day doing my duty, and who takes any notice," forgetting that the performance of it is satisfaction enough. We feel a lack within ourselves, a "fed-up" feeling that life is stale and without savour, so we start to put some savour into it, as we think, and suffer in consequence.

Sometimes we can say it was worth it all, but in the main we simply have a sick feeling at ourselves at being so foolish. We don't all kick things over in the same way, but over they go anyway, and then we wake up to the fact that we have slipped after promising ourselves we wouldn't.

Yet, if because of these things we turn our faces away from God, then we are doing a bad thing indeed. Let us confess ourselves in the wrong, ask help and strength to keep on the straight road, and maybe find that we do stay on it far longer than we have done before. He knows we are human. He knows and already has our weaknesses, and He is ready to help, but we must give Him the chance by coming to Him.

Every day we have a resurrection, because every day we do something we shouldn't do, and that bad thing we are worrying so much about is only a little worse than what we have been doing. So, when we have faith and courage to go for forgiveness about the small things, let us try to get over our failures in ourselves, and get right with our Father again about the big things.

Fletcher says this:

"Hell gives us art to reach the depths of sin;
But leaves us wretched fools, when we are in."

And Father von Logun says: "Manlike it is to fall into sin, Fiend-like it is to dwell therein; Christ-like it is for sin to grieve, God-like is it all sin to leave."

So, let us raise ourselves once more with the help of God, and go on trying, for only that way does sanity lie.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Beauty, Social Ease Superseding Family, Church, Kitchen For Women

WASHINGTON, April 15 (AP)—The American Society of Newspaper Editors heard today that beauty, social ease and style have superseded children, church and kitchen in women's interests.

Alice Hughes, New York columnist, said in an address prepared for the editors' 15th annual convention that the new trinity constitutes glamor.

"Just as men seek adventure, so women covet glamor," she said. "It is not merely a synonym for romance. It is a romance with a big dose of wish fulfillment.

"Now mind you, I am not denying there is interest in the scientific diapering of babies and the proper way of preparing meat and potatoes. But I am saying these are the idiom of yesterday."

SPLENDID REPORT READ TO SOCIETY

St. James' W. M. S. Hears Account Of Treasury Department At Meeting

With Mrs. P. B. Elliott, the president presiding, a splendid meeting of St. James' W.M.S. was held in the Sunday School auditorium yesterday afternoon. A devotional service opened the program with the hymn "Jesus Savior" and silent prayer was offered for our missionaries after which the president led in vocal prayer.

In a brief business session several matters of importance were dealt with and settled. The minutes of previous meetings were read and approved and an exceptionally good report was presented by the treasurer. In keeping with this was the pithy little talk on Stewardship by Miss M. Kidd, the enthusiastic secretary of Little Stewardlets. She said among many good things, that "giving rounds out the character, broadens our outlook and makes us more loving and kind," and claimed is no hindrance to giving, but riches are much more likely to be." She urged the women to be awake to the many privileges that Christian Stewardship affords them.

Other Reports Heard

Reports from other departments included that of the supply secretary, Mrs. A. Cripps, who read a letter of grateful appreciation from a recipients of one of St. James' bales in Saskatchewan which proves that the labor given to supply work is not in vain.

Mrs. Cripps had on view a beautifully made quilt, the gift of Mrs. William Bolitt, who donated the complete quilt, all of which was her own work.

Reports were also given by Miss Depeil, Strangers Secretary, and Mrs. R. Evans for the mite boxes. From the Temperance Department came a searching and thoughtful talk by Mrs. E. L. Woodley, the assistant secretary who gave a picture of both the discouraging and encouraging phases of the work.

The youth movement, she said has taken on definite shape and is heartily supported by the Ontario Federation. An unusual feature regarding pledge signing was that boys sign more readily than girls. The rapidly increasing consumption of alcohol threatening health and efficiency are distinct danger signs that should alarm every citizen.

Taking as the program theme "Jesus and the Joy of Service," Mrs. J. McAdams the group leader in charge used as her call to worship, the first chapter of St. Mark's gospel verses one to sixteen inclusive. Prayer for our new missionaries was offered by Mrs. Woodley, and "Into a Tent", the beautiful missionary hymn was sung in duet to Mesdames A. Rosborough and B. Pilkington, with Mrs. L. V. Wood accompanying.

"Love One Another" was the title of the scripture reading by Mrs. Noodin, and "In the footsteps of Jesus" was read as a devotional study by Mrs. George H. Rowe.

With Mrs. W. K. Sloane directing the study book "Men and Women of Far Horizons" was ably presented in dramatized form bringing a more direct appeal to the audience.

The aim was to give an insight into the motives and ideals of missionaries and into the difficulties and joys of their work. This little drama gave interesting information regarding the candidates by our board and the qualifications and preparation required that they may co-operate in recruiting new missionaries. Those taking part and making the day's study a success were Mrs. W. K. Sloane, as leader, with Mesdames McAdams, English, Baldry, O. Rowe, H. Peterford, A. Davis, S. Rowe and W. H. Scrimler.

This very impressive service was concluded with singing and directed prayer by the president.

Champions of two wrestlers lined up in a Natrobi South Afric street after a close match and held a free-for-all in which sticks, stones and knives were freely used, one man being killed and many injured.

SENSIBLE HEELS ATTRACT WRITER

Fancy Shoes Much In Limelight But Comfort Best Of All

VANCOUVER April 15—(CP)—Grace Lockhart, the writer who never forgets her childhood days in Tara, Ont., has a story in The Providence about sports shoes. It will find sympathetic echo in middle-aged women's hearts—or mothers who wish to keep up with their daughters, even if they are a few lans behind.

"I watched the salesman as he walked the length of the store, pulled out a box that had been decorated to match the wall, and took out a shoe. Carrying it as he would some sort of a sacred chalice, he came back and balanced it before me.

"'What is it?' I finally asked. 'Something in a little spectator sports,' 'What kind of sports?' I wanted to ask. Instead I just stared at it. He brought it down closer. Finally relinquished it altogether. I took it. Silently we looked at the little model.

"It looked to me like something Sir Francis Drake might have worn. Light brown with a lot of little slits fastened together with bows. The artisan who made it evidently slit it down at random and then tied it up again."

She tries it on and the effect is so overpowering: "'Bring me something with a sensible heel, in a dark leather, with an arch support,' I said.

"And while I waited, I once more remembered Geroimy's store. Just two kinds of shoes you could buy, either for everyday or church. And no nonsense in between."

George Woolles, formerly gardener at the Gads Hill, England, estate of Charles Dickens, has celebrated his 80th birthday.

WEDDINGS

TUCKER—DAVIS

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, April 14th at the Presbyterian Church manse, Keene of Mrs. Lily E. Davis, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Russell and the late George Russell of Locust Farm, Douro, to William Herbert Tucker, son of Mrs. Eleanor Tucker and the late Zachariah Tucker of Cherry Grove Farm, Anstruther.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Alfred J. Preston, B.A., B.Th., in the presence of the immediate friends.

The bride was becomingly attired in a charming floor length powder blue taffeta faille styled on Coronation lines with tiny button trimming extending down the front, full shirred sleeves tailored from the elbow down, with matching lace mittens, and a square neckline with corsage of sweet peas. She wore a pendant and ear rings to match which was the gift of the groom, and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses, sweet peas and maiden hair fern, tied with tulle ribbon.

NAZIS STRIKE OUT AT U.S. CHURCHES

Tirade Follows Showing Of Film To Raise $400,000 For German Refugees

BERLIN, April 15 (AP)—Nazidom, hitting out at any direct or implied criticism from abroad, struck at United States churches today for allowing "vicious machinations under the cloak of religious observances."

The inspired Nazi press loosed tirades against the showing in the Riverside Memorial Church in New York of an anti-Nazi film seeking to raise $400,000 for the relief of Christian German refugees.

The outbursts, in phrasing that showed their common origin, carried such headings as "anti-German lying film!" and "Jewish emigrants stirring up hatred before the altar!"

The official German news agency, Deutsches Nachrichtenburo, said, in discussing the film which has Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the Riverside Church, for its chief figure:

"This film reveals with terrible clearness the unchristian methods with which a new anti-German drive is to be launched in the American churches by a small unamerican clique whose aim is to misuse American religious sentiments for nefarious ends."

The Kreuzzeitung, which retains some of its traditional religious standing, professed "painful indignation," and added:

"We can not believe the people of the United States do not realize whither these vicious machinations under the cloak of religious observances must tend."

At the same time the press played up the lynching of two negroes at Duck Hill, Miss., sparing their readers none of the details of the torture.

NAVIGATION OPENS UPON GREAT LAKES

Region Hums With Activity With Prospects Of Best Year In History

TORONTO, April 15 (C.P.). — Navigation officially opened on the Great Lakes to-day. From many ports along the ice-rimmed shores of Lake Ontario, Erie, Huron, Michigan and Superior put out the craft that plough the inland seas from April to November. Prospects were the 1937 season would be the busiest on record.

The lakes region hummed with activity. Huge stocks of iron ore awaited shipment down the lakes to the steel mills where a shortage of raw material appeared imminent. Elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur made ready to disgorge their stored grain. At lower lakes points, package freight was piled in readiness for carriage to the lakehead.

One of the earliest openings on record, the new season gets under way at noon when seasonal low-rate insurance goes into effect. Ice packs at several points impeded vessel movements, but were not expected to seriously delay sailing schedules. The full lake fleets were expected to be on the move within a week.

Operating under special insurance schedules, many ships have been plying Lake Ontario and Lake Erie for several days. Today, 28 vessels were tied up in the St. Mary's river at Sault Ste. Marie awaiting the opening up of a channel through tightly packed ice to enable them to pass into Lake Superior.

On the other side of the barrier were the steamers Peter White, Frontenac, Captain Secord and Algoseen, caught in an ice field. The vessels forced their way into Lake Superior Tuesday only to become encircled by the huge field. The Peter White and the Frontenac were swept back 12 miles from Grand Marais, Nona was in danger and all were expected to get clear today, assisted by tugs.

A minor mishap marred the opening. At Peche Island, at the entrance to the Detroit River, tugs were trying to pull the coal-laden freighter Joseph S. Morrow from the muddy bottom where she went aground Tuesday night. It was the first trip the 450-foot vessel had made in seven years, bound from Toledo to upper lake ports. What damage resulted was unknown.

Labor troubles that closed the 1936 season appeared to have been settled. From Port Edward came word longshoremen who struck last fall were ready to load the S.S. Hamonic. It was understood wage increases had been granted by vessel owners.

Canada Will Fight Own Future Battles

TORONTO, April 15 (CP)—The Globe and Mail in a dispatch from Brampton today quotes Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence, as saying: "Canada will fight its own battles in future in traditional British manner instead of depending on the Monroe doctrine for its protection."

"Canada proposes to place her faith in her own strength and that of the empire," he told the Lorne Scots Regiment at a reception in Brampton Armories last night.

Mr. Mackenzie, the dispatch said, predicted that in the future Canada would have a larger and more efficient land and sea force. It would be completely mechanized within the next three years. He said Canada has "the best personnel of any land force in the entire world."

PILE SUFFERERS

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know the real cause of piles is on the inside?

Do you know they can be doctored from the inside?

Do you know you must get at and remove the cause of Piles, to get rid of them?

The real cause of piles is poor circulation—a congestion of blood in the veins of the lower bowel. This makes the veins flabby, full of impure congested blood and weakens the rectal membranes.

So if you would have relief from piles you should use an internal medicine like HEM-ROID, a prescription written by Dr. J. S. Leonhardt. HEM-ROID banishes piles by relieving the cause. It stimulates circulation, eases the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and helps to heal and restore the sore, sensitive parts.

HEM-ROID is so successful in even the most stubborn cases that McDermid & Jury and Reed's Drug Store or any other good druggist is authorized to make good our promise to you that if you are not completely satisfied with the results from one bottle, you may have your money back.

V.O.N. RE-ELECTS SEN. G. P. GRAHAM

Pension Minister Power And Sir Francis Floud Address Convention

OTTAWA, April 15.—(CP)—Annual meeting of the board of governors of the Victorian Order of Nurses continued today with round-table discussions scheduled on public nursing subjects.

Yesterday's session saw Senator George P. Graham of Brockville re-elected president for the 12th successive term as delegates received reports from officers and heard addresses by Pension Minister Power and Sir Francis Floud, high commissioner here for the United Kingdom.

The pensions minister declared that without organizations such as the V.O.N. the Department of Pensions and National Health would not be able to carry out its work.

All health information discovered and assembled by departmental officials, he said, must be brought to the people's attention, a mission in which the V.O.N. did its work.

Sir Francis told the delegates the V.O.N. provided the personal touch of sympathy and kindness in social service nursing. "Social obligations," he said, "do not end when we pay our taxes. There should be personal and voluntary contributions to try to help along our fellow men and women who lack some of the things of life we are fortunate enough to possess."

Hamnet Hill of Ottawa declared the population already is too big and the industrial world cannot adapt itself to it.

Mrs. Oliva Dionne, he declared, would not be popular if others made a practice of emulating her example in becoming the mother of quintuplets.

ORGANIZED LABOR BEHIND HEPBURN

President Of Canadian Federation Of Labor Would Ban Foreign Organizers

TORONTO, April 15.—Complete agreement with Premier Hepburn's stand on the Oshawa strike situation was expressed yesterday in a statement released by President Zenon David following a meeting of the Canadian Federation of Labor.

The statement also called for a tightening of the immigration laws to prevent the entry of labor organizers from the United States. The statement, in part, follows:

"In the opinion of the board, the backwardness of organization among Canadian workers is due in large measure to the interference of foreign-controlled union officials. After half a century of missionary work by these people, the proportion of unionists in the population of Canada is smaller than in any other English-speaking country, with the sole exception of the United States itself. This destructive influence has retarded the development of unionism, and the lack of means of collective bargaining is undoubtedly the cause of the interruption of industry which occurs when United States unions make such sporadic organizing efforts on this side of the boundary as the one which has attracted attention latterly at Oshawa.

"In addition to the privilege accorded United States unions in the Immigration Act, other legislative and administrative preferences bolster up their position in Canada, and the workers who desire to organize in free national unions are often discriminated against by employers. It is to be hoped that the latest incursion of foreign agitators will serve to direct public attention to the danger to Canadian industry resulting from this short-sighted policy, and that it will lead to the adoption of measures to safeguard the workers' right to belong to the organizations of their choice."

Oil fields in the mandated territory of New Guinea, now under Australian control, are to be developed on a large scale.

JERSEY GIANTS ARE OF MIXED QUALITY PITCHERS WEAK

New Entry In International League Has Hustling Ball Club

LOOKING OVER TEAM

By FRANK DUNHAM

GULFPORT, Miss. April 15—(AP)—The rapidly approaching International League pennant race finds its new entry, the Jersey Giants, an enigma. On its roster are players who might be an asset to any major league club. But, at the same time it includes some who do not belong in "AA" company.

On what steps, if any, are taken to strengthen its pitching staff, depends the success or failure of the Jerseys.

Travis (Stonewall) Jackson, into whose hands has fallen the task of welding the most important link in the New York Giants "chain system," is a man of few words.

"I am not predicting where we will finish in the pennant race," he says. "All I can tell you is we'll have a hustling ball team out there—fighting all the time."

Have Ten Pitchers

There are 10 hurlers with the club; of these Ben Cantwell, purchased from Boston Bees; Tomas de la Cruz, last year with Albany, and Johnny Meketi, a rookie of great promise, appear to be the only ones qualified to hold International League batsmen.

The rest are pitchers with minor or major league experience whose records last year showed them to be on the decline.

Turning to the other departments of Jackson's aggregation, an entirely different picture is presented. With the former Giant third-baseman playing in his natural position at short; Jose Gomes, fastest second baseman in the league; Roy Anton at first, and Charley Wilson covering third base, the Jerseys will have one of the league's best infields.

Hal Lee, bought from the Bees; Ernie Sulik, last season with the Phillies; Smead Jolley, International League batting king, and Jimmy Asbell in utility capacity, form an outfield combination of power and class.

Jackson has a standout catching staff in Eddie Madjeski, former major leaguer and Jack Redmond, who was with Albany last season.

China will send its parcel post to Western Europe through Soviet territories instead of by sea as heretofore.

SPORTS DAY by DAY

Dishing Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

IN LINE with the decision of a number of newspapers The Examiner announces a new policy regarding the use of commercial names in sport. It will take effect with the commencement of summer athletics. This policy is to refrain from free publicity for commercial firms sponsoring sports strictly for the free advertising gained. The feeling is that a company or merchant sponsoring a team—if he is sincerely interested in sports—will be willing to use a name for his team other than the commercial monicker. For instance, Jones' Tailors could call their squad the Rovers, Monarchs, Tigers or something similar—if they are in it for sports' sake. Otherwise, they are only in it for free publicity. This does not apply to manufacturing firms where teams are drawn from the factories simply to promote sports.

WHEN A team is sponsored bearing a certain trade name the idea is to secure publicity, said publicity and advertising coming when the papers constantly refer to that particular name on the sports pages. But a newspaper, like any other business, must make a living and that living comes from selling its space for legitimate advertising purposes. And this paper doesn't intend to have its columns exploited by those in the sports field for the purpose of the publicity which can be secured from such a venture. This rule has been in effect in a number of Ontario newspapers for some time and no hardship on legitimate sports has been reported. We will gladly give space for notices on practises, meetings, etc., and reports of games, and the rest. But we're ready to combat concerns capitalizing on athletics for free advertising. Legitimate sponsors of sports, no doubt, will see our point and agree with it.

TWO GIRLS' basketball games will be played tomorrow eve in the Y.W. gym. The final senior playoff between Westclox and C.G.E. will scart at eight oclk, each team having won one game and the title hinging on this tilt. A junior exhibition contest between Westclox and St. John's will be run off at nine o'clock. Admission is a dime, and the games should be plenty fast and exciting. Immediately after the senior struggle, a meeting will be held with officers and team representatives asked to attend, the purpose being to decide on the annual banquet.

* * * * * *

JUST A couple of corrections: The Inter-County Loop is having a bit of trouble lining up enough senior ball teams and some of the scribes in that section seem to think the C.O.B.L. is in a similar fix. The St. Kitts' writer says: "The C.O.B.L. isn't feeling so good with only Peterborough, Oshawa and Kingston in, and Belleville very definitely out." Nuts; what about Napanee, and maybe Trenton Fliers, too? Brantford chap writes: "Oshawa has so many baseball imports that some cities east of the Motor City are looking askance and want the GM-men to be sent into Toronto. They'd better get Mitch Hepburn's permission first." More nuts to you, sir; if they ever settle that strike in Oshawa, we certainly want a crack at last year's champs. And all the C.I.O. unions in the world can't force 'em to do a walk-out again on the C.O.B.L.!

SMILIN' JAWN Adams, coach of Detroit Red Wings, played hockey in a dozen centres in Canada as a player. He was here in '17 with the 247th Battalion team that went to the intermediate semi-finals. Adams was a good right-winger and a deadly shot. Others on that army squad were Bob Armstrong, the two Flanagans, Banty Evans, Grover Halpin, Harry Thornton and Mucker Legros. They lost to Hamilton, with Snap Parker playing for the latter team.

COBOURG HAS applied for entry into the local Girls' Softball League for this summer. The meeting will be held at eight in Duffus' on Monday night and invitations to attend have been sent Cobourg, Lindsay, Bailleboro, Omemee, Keene, C.G.E. and Westclox. It is hoped to just about clean everything up at this meeting, electing officers, taking entries and adopting definite plans for the season. Oshawa gals will likely try to get into a Toronto circuit and the Motor City writer thinks Cobourg—and maybe Lindsay, too—might fit into the league down this way okay. The loop will be affiliated again with the Provincial Women's Softball Union, which meets in Toronto on Sunday.

* * * * * *

THE OSHAWA scribe says: "If the Cobourg-Port Hpe girls combined again as they did last year, they can field a team which would hold its own in the Peterborough league and might possibly win the loop title—though we doubt it. The Cobourg team played a lot of exhibition games with Keene and C.G.E., usually winning, but they'd find the Liftlock City girls play a sterner brand of ball in league competition. For successive years now, the Oshawa girls have eliminated both the Cobourg-Port Hope team and the Peterborough winners, so it would look as if that is the league where the Cobourg and Port Hope gals should be playing." The only possible hitch we can see is the matter of travelling.

* * * * * *

THE PLAYOFF pucksters are still hard at it. Winnipeg won over Copper Cliff before 13,000 fans last p.m. and need but one more to cop the Memorial Cup. Barrie and Norvees had a dispute over where their next junior "B" final would be held and the canny Bill Hewitt upped and ordered 'em to make it another home-and-home serial! Ho, hum, and won't the extra coin come in handy? North Battleford evened up the Allan Cup finals last night with a 3-2 win over Sudbury but the latter are protesting because the referee wouldn't allow 'em to pull their goalie and use an extra forward in the last minute or so of play. This same matter came up here in Senior City Puck Loop finals when Referee Payne refused to let Westclox pull their goalie. We felt he was wrong at the time and the Sudbury protest will either bear him out or show that he made a mistake.

STYLE That Belongs

Another Tip Top creation—and London, right now, is endorsing the same style idea. It's a combination of unusual smartness and lounge comfort. The suit shown here is a two-button single-breasted model. A slightly longer coat, trousers full cut, tapering at knees and cuffs. Fullness through the chest gives a soft draped effect. A suit with true British spirit—stands plenty of wear but always presents a good front to the world.

GIRLS AUTOGRAPH GEHRIG'S NIGHTIE

Yank Player's Wife Surprised At Movie Stars' Names On Intimate Garment

HOLLYWOOD, April 15.—A story about a nightshirt — one of those long white flannel ones that button around the neck—explains why Mrs. Lou Gehrig, wife of the first baseman of the New York Yankees, intends to accompany him on any more trips to Hollywood.

When Lou came to California for screen tests and later signed a contract to make a picture after the baseball season, his wife stayed in their home in New Rochelle.

The big first baseman obligingly went to all the receptions, flairs, races, studios and conferences, but balked when Hollywood girls were brought in for publicity pictures. With any one but pretty girls, he said. No glamor stuff for him, with Mrs. Gehrig 3,000 miles away.

After scribbling his name on a contract Gehrig hoped an eastbound train for home but in his haste to make a perfect getaway, neglected to pack one nightshirt.

Christy Walsh, the sports promoter and writer, got possession of the stray nightshirt. Hurrying from studio to studio, he visited Joan Crawford, Jean Harlow, Mae West, Jeanette MacDonald and other stars. At the end of the day, he had twenty-five feminine autographs up and down the nightshirt.

What happened behind the doors of the Gehrig home when Gehrig walked in to greet the wife may never be known.

The next phase of the nightshirt drama was a public announcement by Mrs. Gehrig that she would accompany Gehrig on future trips. And perhaps Gehrig will count his nightshirts before checking out of a hotel in the future.

NORFOLK, Va.—If Charlie Ruffing doesn't sign, the New York Yankees may have his successor as a pinch-hitter in another pitcher. Big Walter Brown hammered a triple, double and single in his last start and has hit well in other exhibitions.

COLUMBIA, S.C.—The New York Giants now have joined Cleveland's Bob Feller 19 innings; have made eight hits, scored five runs, and received 11 passes. Young Robert has hung up 22 strikeouts.

STRONG EXECUTIVE FOR TENNIS CLUB

Howie Macdonald President Of Peterborough Tennis Club For Coming Season

The Peterborough Tennis Club held its annual meeting and election, when the new president, Wednesday evening at the Y.M.C.A. The retiring president, Jack Kirkwood, presided until after the election of, when the new president, Howard Macdonald, took over the meeting. Ben Swarts, the 1936 treasurer, in his report showed that the club had had its most successful season financially last year. The following were the officers elected:

President—Howard Macdonald.
Superintendent—Harry Marsh.
Treasurer—Max Cotton.
Secretary—Bill McPherson.
Chairman of Games Committee—Howard Hammell.
Chairman of Ways and Means Committee—Don Ross.

Conducted by the new president the meeting then discussed plans for the 1937 season. It was decided to arrange outside matches with clubs of a higher calibre. The club hopes to arrange home and home exhibition tournaments with Oshawa, Kingston and the C.N.R. Club of Toronto. The new executive are immediately starting an energetic membership campaign with the membership rates the same as last year. The meeting was well attended and great enthusiasm was expressed for the success of the 1937 season.

PAUPERS BETTER OFF.

PLYMOUTH, England (CP). — Some 6,500 sub-postmasters are paid less than $5 a week, said the chairman of the National Federation of Sub-Postmasters' Conference, suggesting paupers were better off.

Five young scientists of Cambridge, England, will spend six months on Titicaca, the great lake 12,500 feet up in the Andes of South America, to make a close study of the waters and the animal and plant life they contain.

Critically Hurt

TRIS SPEAKER

One of baseball's all-time greats, Tris Speaker, is in a critical condition after falling from the second storey of his home. Speaker sustained a fractured skull but the Cleveland Indians' physician, Dr. Edward Castle, says he has "better than an even chance to live." Speaker is considered, by many, as the greatest centrefielder in the history of baseball.

TIGERS DEFEATED BY BEAVERS 3-2 3RD PERIOD RALLY

Battleford Slam In Three In Final Canto To Tie Series Up

RUBBER GAME FRIDAY

CALGARY, April 15 (CP).—North Battleford Beavers unleashed a great third-period rally last night to edge out Sudbury Tigers 3-2 in the fourth game of the Allan Cup hockey final and deadlock the series at two victories apiece.

The rubber game is scheduled for Friday night instead of tonight, D. O. McDonald, convenor of the series, decided.

Duplicating the rally that saw them break from the shadows of elimination in the third game, the Beaver brigade overcame a one-goal lead with three markers in the third period before Tigers retaliated with a lone counter.

A circus goal from the stick of Don Grosso midway in the first session seemed to have decided the game until Clarence Shillington, speedy North Battleford right-winger, ended the jinx that pursued him all during the series. His first goal against Sudbury came at 6:54 in the final period while Frank Levigne, diminutive Sudbury defenceman, rested in the penalty box.

North Battleford — Goal, Davis; defence, Myles and McIntyre; centre, Duchak; wings, Shillington and Burke; subs, O'Keefe, C. Allen, S. Allen, Benwell.

Penalties—None.

Second Period.

Third Period.

Shanghai Sportsmen Plan $300,000 Arena

SHANGHAI, April 15 (CP-Reuter's).—In order to popularize ice hockey and introduce it to Shanghai on a large scale, a group of Chinese and foreign sportsmen have formed a company for the purpose of constructing an "Olympia."

The building, which will be three-storeys high, is estimated to cost about $300,000. In addition to ice hockey the promoters intend to stage other sporting events, including billiards.

JOHNSON ADVICE OFFERED FELLER

Never Mind Spot Pitching Just Ram The Fast One In, Says Ace Of Fireballers

GERMANTOWN, Md., April 15.—(AP).— Walter Johnson, perhaps the greatest speed ball pitcher of all time, suggested to-day that Rookie Bob Feller forget about spot pitching and "just ram that fast one past the batter."

Farmer Walter, who now cultivates 300 acres of rolling land, stopped his chores to-day to give advice to the young Cleveland sensation who may be the fireball king of a new baseball era.

"A strong boy like Feller, with speed to spare and a good curve, doesn't have to worry much about a hitter's likes or dislikes," Walter began.

"Spot pitching, aiming a throw at knees or shoulders, is not a natural effort and it strains a hurler's arm."

The average pitcher, Johnson explained, has to consider a batter's weaknesses and pitch to spots.

"But Feller, from what I hear—I've never seen him—is not average. He's the kind that comes once in a generation. He's got fire to burn the ball by the batter.

"He'll have more success and his arm will last longer if he doesn't try to hit a certain spot," he said. "When he loses steam, he can turn to spot shots."

TONIGHT DECIDES THE STANLEY CUP

Rangers And Wings Tied At Two Games Each—Must Play To Finish

DETROIT, April 15.—(CP)— The see-saw whirl of the final Stanley Cup series ends its fluctuating before a sell-out crowd in the Olympia tonight as Detroit Red Wings, defending the cup and the world hockey championship, tangle with New York Rangers in the deciding game of their best three-of-five series.

Tied at two games each, the teams must battle to a finish, this time, even if it's necessary to play overtime until the factory whistles of the Motor City blow the start of a new work day.

Definite word that Ebbie Goodfellow had recovered from a lame leg and would be back on the Detroit defence boosted the hopes of Red Wing fans. There were those about town who favored the champions 6 to 5 to trim the Rangers.

The return of Goodfellow, who missed the last game which Detroit won 1-0 on Marty Barry's goal, will permit Syd Howe to return to the forward line.

The rival managers, Lester Patrick of the Rangers and Jack Adams of Wings were careful in their pre-game statements. Patrick said "anything can happen now." Adams, heretofore somewhat loquacious and optimistic, said, "There's going to be a hockey game."

Patrick, however, received with satisfaction the news Goodfellow would be back. "With several of their stars on the sidelines owing to injuries the Wings played over their heads in an effort to make good and they play, or at least the inspiration behind it, was a great factor in Wings' defeating us," said the Ranger manager.

Frank Boucher, veteran Ranger pivot, was optimistic over the New Yorkers' chances saying, "I can't get it out of my head that we are to take these fellows eventually. I have a hunch we are here to win the final game."

Sande's Dog Gives Trouble

Pat, an Irish setter belonging to Earl Sande, who is at Churchill Downs training Seeneshifter and Fencing, the 1937 Derby nominees of Howard Maxwell, for the Kentucky Derby, was indifferent to the camera and Sande, who won the Kentucky classic on Zev, Flying Ebony and Gallant Fox, had to hold him still for this picture.

SUDBURY'S COACH PROTESTING GAME ON GOALIE RULING

Objects To Referee Barring Him Lifting Net-Minder And Using Six Forwards

IN HEWITT'S HANDS

CALGARY, April 15.—(CP). — Coach Red Stuart of Sudbury Tigers, announced early to-day he would protest last night's hockey game with North Battleford because of a referee's ruling prohibiting him from taking his goalie from the ice and using six forwards.

North Battleford won the game 3-2 to even the best-of-five Allan Cup series at two games each. They meet again to-morrow.

D. F. McDonald of Calgary, President of the Alberta Hockey Association and official in charge of the series, announced two new men would officiate in the fifth game. McDonald refused to comment on the protested ruling but said there had been no complaints from either team about the refereeing.

McDonald said his reason for changing officials was that it is customary to make a change in a crucial series after three or four games.

He did not name the new officials, but in Winnipeg, Lorne London, prominent referee there, said he had been asked to officiate in the fifth game and would leave today.

Ruled Goalie Must Stay.

Stuart said his protest to the chairman of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association rules committee, W. A. Hewitt, of Toronto, would be based on a decision of Referee Earl Overand of Okotoks, Alta., that the goalie must remain on the ice during the game.

Stuart attempted to take Goalie Charlie Teno out of the game and send in six forwards in the closing seconds with Beavers leading 3-2. Overand refused to continue with the game until Teno was sent back into the nets, Stuart said.

Overand could not be reached for comment after the game, but the other official, Bert Hedges of Toronto, said Overand had made the decision that C.A.H.A. rules forbid taking a goalkeeper from the ice and substituting a forward.

"Overand was the senior official and his decision was final," Hedges said. He would not comment further.

McDonald said he knew nothing officially about the Sudbury protest. Any decision of the protest would have to come from Hewitt, he said.

Soccer Heads To Test Two Referee Idea

LONDON, April 15 (CP). — The hockey idea of two officials at each game is spreading to soccer football. A proposal to use two men for British games has been approved by the Football Association and will be presented to the international board in June for ratification.

The Football League wants two referees used in next season's practice games, and later in three selected league matches as an experiment. C. E. Sutcliffe, president of the League, believes the plan would strengthen control of the game.

NEW YORK, April 15 (AP) — Here are a couple of hot tips from Texas...First, Sammy Baugh, Texas Christian sharpshooter, will be rifling passes for the Washington Redskins in the National Football League next fall ... Second, L. D. (Tiger) Meyer, who scored all 16 Texas Christian points against Marquette in the Cotton Bowl game, is ticketed for the Chicago Cubs when he graduates in June.

Clara Mortensen, the gal grappler (or is it grapplerette) is chaperoned around the country by her popper and mommer, . . "She's yoost a little girl" says pop of Clara—who tips the beam at 140 and stands five feet, six . . Joe Dimaggio can scarcely speak above a whisper because of those misbehaving tonsils he'll have snagged tomorrow . . . Pedro Montanez and Lou Burston, his manager, are feuding in a mild way because Pedro insists on opening a bar in Harlem . . . Lou votes against it . . . Pete Herman, the old bantamweight champion, has joined the army of those advising Tony Canzoneri to quit. Pete, now blind, runs a hot spot in New Orleans . . .

Approximately $3,000,000 worth of baseball talent will be quartered in one hotel here for four days beginning April 18 when 115 big leaguers land in New York . . . The hotel will play host to the Giants, Yankees, and Cleveland Indians . . . Outfield candidates at Syracuse include Thaddeus Symanski, of Buffalo, whose last name is the same as the Polish monikey of Al Simmons.

Action At Plate

The baseball season opened with a bang on the Pacific coast as the San Francisco Seals downed the Mission Reds 7 to 6 before 16,000 fans. This bit of action from the game shows Brooks Holder, Seal centrefielder, scoring in the eighth inning with the Reds' catcher, Joe Sprinz, helpless to prevent the tally.

MONARCHS LICK COPPER CLIFF 2-1 TO JUMP IN LEAD

Westerners' Boring Tactics And Dazzling Speed Keep Miners Worried

12,705 FANS OUT

TORONTO, April 15 (CP)—Another West club from Manitoba's hockey-famed capital is marching steadfastly along the road to the Memorial Cup. Monarchs have high hopes of becoming the fourth Winnipeg club to take the Dominion junior title and hoist the royal purple in victory for the second time in three years.

The young Westerners took an edge on their thrilling series with Copper Cliff Redmen here last night when they licked the Miners 2-1. Monarchs were never behind and their performance was much improved on their first two appearances when they split spoils with Redmen, losing the first 4-3 and winning the second game 6-5.

Fourth game of the best-of-five series will be played here Saturday afternoon and should Monarchs win, it will give the West an edge in junior hockey honors, each section having won the Memorial Cup nine times. If the Nickel Belters even the round, a fifth game will be necessary.

But Redmen were not discouraged by last night's results and hope to take the cup to the Nickel belt for the first time since Sudbury Cub Wolves won it in 1932. Coach Maxie Silverman was at the helm of Wolves then and he figures his Redmen are far from elimination.

Martel Opens It.

Lucien Martel put Monarchs in front with but two seconds play remaining in the first period on a play with Pete Langelle at Redmen's goal mouth. Alf Webster kept Copper Cliff in the fight with the neatest goal of the night on an individual effort in the second, but Monarchs tallied the winner before the session closed.

The deciding goal exemplified Monarchs' chance-taking style of attack. They continually bored deep into Copper Cliff territory, relying on their passing speed to get back. Alf Pike started the all-important play and also finished it by scoring. Dick Kowcinak rushed in after Pike's pass, obtained the puck behind Redmen's net and relayed it to his centreman's waiting stick.

A crowd of 12,705, largest of the series, roared its approval as Monarchs staved off a terrific attack by Redmen in the dying minutes. Both clubs played more cautiously than in the first two contests and although the game was less exciting it produced smarter hockey.

Main worry in the camp of the victors was whether or not their ace defenceman, Remi Vandaele, will be available for Saturday's fixture. After playing a big part in Monarchs' victory by his stellar body-checking, he was felled by a Copper Cliff rearguard late in the game and suffered a severely twisted back and chest injuries.

Shewchuk Injured

Only casualty in Redmen's ranks was big Jack Shewchuk who was taken to hospital after the game. He suffered a forehead wound when Pike accidentally struck him with his stick in the second period, and four stitches were necessary to close the gash. Pike was batting at a loose puck as Shewchuk sprawled on the ice.

Shewchuk returned to the game in the third period, appearing like an Indian chieftain, his head swathed in a wide bandage. The hurt did not seem to affect his play and he did some of his best checking and puck-carrying in the closing chapter. Take off once for a forward, Shewchuk was soon back in the fray when Silverman noticed his team lacked spirit.

DOZEN CANADIANS ENTER MARATHON

Dave Komonen Of Sudbury 1934 Hero Will Also Go To Boston

BOSTON, April 15 (CP)—One of the fastest delegations ever to represent Canada in the long distance classic will carry the Maple Leaf's challenge in the Boston Marathon next Monday, led by Dave Komonen of Sudbury, hero of the 1934 run.

Tom Kanaly, race manager, announced Komonen's entry today along with the names of a dozen other Canadian hopefuls. Of them all, however, Komonen has the greatest marathon record. He finished in two hours, 32 minutes, 53 4-5 seconds to win in 1934 after being second in 1933 and seventh in 1931.

Komonen will run under the colors of the Frood Mine Athletic Club of Sudbury. Representing the same club will be Bill Nera and Aulis Jaakola.

Other Canadians entered include Harold Webster of Hamilton, Ont., Jimmy Patterson of the Maroons Athletic Club of Hamilton; Robert Tilson from the same club; Walter Hornby of the Olympic Club of Hamilton who came in seventh in 1933, and William Whorwood, Hamilton.

THE MOUTHPIECE

By Edgar Wallace and Robert Curtis

(Copyright—Released By Central Press Association)

READ THIS FIRST:

Charles Stuckey, of a London law firm, reluctantly has agreed to a scheme to defraud the daughter of one of his few respectable clients, Jacqueline Smith, of an inheritance of $1,500,000 from an American Uncle. In keeping with the plan, Colonel Alec Lutman, who has a hold over Stuckey, and Jim Asson, an ex-convict, are stopping at the same hotel in Cobenall with Mrs. Smith and her daughter. Jim hopes to marry the girl, having her assign her property to him, before Stuckey informs her of her inheritance. In dire financial straits, Mrs. Smith already is impressed with Jim, posing as a wealthy Englishman, as an admirable "catch" for her daughter. Lutman, in the role of Jim's master, subtlely threatens Jacqueline with a check he cashed for her mother returned marked "insufficient funds."

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

JACQUEINE suddenly got up from her chair, strode into the hotel, knocked at the door of her mother's bedroom, and went in. Mrs. Smith with her eyes closed and a wisp of handkerchief grasped in her hand was lying on the bed.

"Mother!"

The older woman opened her eyes and closed them again.

"What is it, Jacqueline?" she said in a weary voice. "I don't want to be disturbed just now."

"I've been talking to Colonel Lutman."

"Yes, dear. So have I. At least he has been talking to me. I'm feeling dreadfully upset. I had no idea Colonel Lutman had such a hasty temper. He shouted."

"He has told me about the check."

Mrs. Smith opened her eyes.

"Well?"

"Mother, what on earth made you do a thing like that? It's awful. It's fraud—cheating—you must have known there was no money there."

"Yes, dear, of course I did."

"Yet you wrote a check and asked Colonel Lutman to cash it?"

"No, dear; I didn't ask him. He offered. I suppose I let slip that I was a little short of money, and he said he'd be pleased to cash a check for me, and I did it. But I never dreamed the bank wouldn't give him the money for it. I've often overdrawn on my account before."

"But for $700, mother—as much as two quarters' allowance from Uncle Alan!"

"Well, the bank would have got it back, Jacqueline, in due course, and I really had to have it. I'm sure I don't know where all the money goes. It's no use getting cross with me, Jacqueline. Colonel Lutman wasn't at all nice about it, and I really can't stand any more. Look on the dressing table, dear, will you? I believe there's a bottle of aspirin."

Jacqueline did not move.

"I suppose you realize, mother," she said, "that if Colonel Lutman had gone to the police...."

"Oh, yes, I realize that. Colonel Lutman told me. I was an unscrupulous woman, he said, and he could put me in prison if he chose to. It's the first time anybody has called me an unscrupulous woman, and I'm terribly hurt about it, dear, and if you start bullying me, too...."

"Did you give the money back to Colonel Lutman?"

Mrs. Smith gazed at her in surprise.

"Give it back, Jacqueline? Of course I didn't give it back. The Colonel asked for it, but I said I'd spent it already and he couldn't have it."

"I see," said Jacqueline. "And where is it, mother?"

"I'm not going to tell you, Jacqueline. I know what's in your mind. You want to take it and give it to Colonel Lutman."

"Mother, we must—at least as much as you've got left."

"I'm not going to do it, Jacqueline," said her mother firmly. "And I'm not going to let you do it. I—I can't. It's all I've got, and I don't know what I'm going to live on. I'm not going to give it up. If it's fraud and cheating and all that sort of thing—then I'll be a fraud and a cheat."

"Mother! I wonder you're not ashamed!"

"That's it—now you turn against me, Jacqueline. Ashamed! Perhaps I am ashamed. Perhaps—all these years, lying and pretending and using nasty little subterfuges—perhaps I've always been ashamed. You've never thought of that, have you? You've thought I was hard, unprincipled, that as long as I could have nice food and pretty clothes I didn't care what petty little meannesses I used to get them. But I didn't mind your thinking that as long as I could somehow keep going and give you everything you needed."

"Mother—please!"

Mrs. Smith dabbed her eyes with her wisp of handkerchief.

"You've thought I was just a deceitful, conceited, selfish woman," she went on, "who didn't realize the cheap, contemptible sort of life I was leading. But I've always realized and I've always hated it just as much as you have, and now you're turning against me!" Suddenly she buried her face in the pillow, sobbing.

Jacqueline went to her and laid a hand on her shoulder.

"Mother!"

"No—leave me alone, Jacqueline. You don't understand—you've never understood. I've kept struggling on, trying to do my best for you, and you've despised me."

"Mother, I haven't despised you. And I have realized. I've often thought how wonderful you were."

"So you may have done, Jacqueline," sobbed her mother, "but you've never done anything to help me. I've tried so hard to fix everything for you so that you shouldn't have to live the sort of life I've lived, and you've never backed me up. There was that charming young fellow in Paris with more money than he knew what to do with. He was dreadfully in love with you, and everything would have been splendid if you'd married him, but you ruined it. And I've always been ashamed of the same cheap sort of life, pinching and scraping and telling lies and—Oh, it's all so hopeless, Jacqueline. I feel I can't go on any longer. I just want to lie here and cry."

The girl was silent, frowning thoughtfully; and then her frown vanished and her eyes seemed to soften, her hand went out and touched her mother's shoulder again.

"Mother, listen."

"Just leave me alone, Jacqueline."

"There's no need to be unhappy, mother. There's no need to cry. I suppose I've been a selfish little beast, but I won't have to struggle and tell lies and pinch and scrape any more, either. Are you listening?"

Her mother nodded.

"That's all done with—forever, mother, because I'm going to marry Jim Asson."

Mrs. Smith suddenly sat up.

"Jacqueline! My dear—do you really mean it?"

"I do. Does that make you happy?"

Mrs. Smith caught her hand, drew her close and kissed her cheek.

"Bless you, dear!" she said. "I'm sure you'll be terribly happy."

"I'm going to tell Jim now."

Her mother nodded.

"Do, dear," she smiled. "And then I'll talk to Colonel Lutman about the business side. You can safely leave that to me."

"I'm sure I can, mother."

"It must all be done legally," said Mrs. Smith. "I shall write to Mr. Stuckey at once. Run along, dear, and find Jim."

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TREE HOUSE

Once again Uncle Wiggily was afloat on the flood, riding away in his washtub boat. It was raining hard.

"It's lucky I thought to grab up the old umbrella I found down cellar," said the rabbit gentleman to himself as he hoisted it over his head. "Only for that I'd be getting more wet than I am. And goodness knows I'm wet enough," he said, laughing.

On and on he floated on the stream of high water that was running out of his bungalow cellar, through an open window and down toward the same brook where, a little while before, Mr. Longears had been riding with the two frog ivs.

"But this is much more of an adventure ride," said Uncle Wiggily as he swirled around and around in his washtub boat. "At least I think I am going to have an adventure," he told himself.

All Alone.

There was no one else to whom he could tell it for he was all alone. He had gone down cellar to see what caused the strange noise Nurse Jane heard. There Uncle Wiggily fell in the high water that filled his cellar. He got in the tub to paddle over to open a window so the water might run out and he was carried out with it.

Finding he was swirling around all the while because he had no oars or paddles for his washtub boat, Uncle Wiggily thought of something to do to stop this.

"I'll use my umbrella for a sail," he decided. "I'm out in the open now and the wind is blowing. It will blow straight instead of turning me like a merry-go-round, which makes me dizzy."

Uncle Wiggily tipped the open umbrella until it stuck out in front of him instead of being over his head like a tent. Of course as soon as he did that the rain beat down on his head, his ears and his pink, twinkling nose.

"But that cannot be helped," said the rabbit. "If you cannot have your cake and eat your cake, you cannot use an umbrella to keep the rain off and, at the same time, make a sail of it. The sail will be better for it will take me along faster and straighter."

He was now in the brook which, because of the high flood water, was more like a river. Along and along he sailed in his washtub boat with the umbrella sail. The rain came down harder than ever.

Ear Bender

"But there is no use letting it run into both my ears and fill them up as if they were pitchers," said the rabbit. "I'll stop that."

So he bent his ears down, one on each side of his head. The water that was already in them ran out, making a little puddle on the floor of the washtub. But as there was already a rain puddle there another one didn't matter. So he emptied his ears.

All of a sudden, as the washtub boat was sailing along, Uncle Wiggily noticed he was heading straight for a large tree.

"Oh, my goodness," he cried; "I must steer away from the tree!" But he couldn't. He had no rudder on his funny little ship. Right for the tree the high, swirling water of the brook and the wind on the umbrella sail carried the rabbit gentleman.

In another moment the washtub became wedged fast in the tree branches and there Uncle Wiggily was caught.

"Ha! Ha!" he laughed. "Now my washtub boat has turned into a tree house. It's like a little house in a tree. Hurray! What will happen next?

You shall hear in the next story after this which will be about Uncle Wiggily's sweet rain. But I do hope the salt shaker doesn't sprinkle powdered sugar on the spinach and pretend it's rice pudding.

THE MOUTHPIECE

By Edgar Wallace and Robert Curtis

READ THIS FIRST:

Charles Stuckey, of a London law firm, reluctantly has agreed to a scheme to defraud the daughter of one of his few respectable clients, Jacqueline Smith, of an inheritance of $1,500,000 from an American Uncle. In keeping with the plan, Colonel Alec Lutman, who has a hold over Stuckey, and Jim Ason, an ex-convict, are stopping at the same hotel in Cobensill with Mrs. Smith and her daughter. Jim hopes to marry the girl, having her assign her property to him, before Stuckey informs her of her inheritance. In dire financial straits, Mrs. Smith already is impressed with Jim, posing as a wealthy Englishman, as an admirable "catch" for her daughter. Lutman, in the role of Jim's trustee, subtlely threatens Jacqueline with a check he cashed for her mother returned marked "insufficient funds."

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 12

JACQUELINE suddenly got up from her chair, strode into the hotel, knocked at the door of her mother's bedroom, and went in. Mrs. Smith with her eyes closed and a wisp of handkerchief grasped in her hand was lying on the bed.

"Mother!"

The older woman opened her eyes and closed them again.

"What is it, Jacqueline?" she said in a weary voice. "I don't want to be disturbed just now."

"I've been talking to Colonel Lutman."

"Yes, dear. So have I. At least, he has been talking to me. I'm feeling dreadfully upset. I had no idea Colonel Lutman had such a nasty temper. He shouted."

"He has told me about the check."

Mrs. Smith opened her eyes.

"Well?"

"Mother, what on earth made you do a thing like that? It's awful. It's fraud—cheating—you must have known there was no money there."

"Yes, dear, of course I did."

"Yet you wrote a check and asked Colonel Lutman to cash it?"

"No, dear; I didn't ask him. He offered. I suppose I let slip that I was a little short of money, and he said he'd be pleased to cash a check for me, and I did it. But I never dreamed the bank wouldn't give him the money for it. I've often overdrawn on my account before."

"But for $750, mother—as much as two quarters' allowance from Uncle Alan!"

"Well, the bank would have got it back, Jacqueline, in due course, and I really had to have it. I'm sure I don't know where all the money goes. It's no use getting cross with me, Jacqueline. Colonel Lutman wasn't at all nice about it, and I really can't stand any more. Look on the dressing table, dear, will you? I believe there's a bottle of aspirin."

Jacqueline did not move.

"I suppose you realise, mother," she said, "that if Colonel Lutman had gone to the police...."

"Oh, yes, I realise that. Colonel Lutman told me. I was an unscrupulous woman, he said, and he could put me in prison if he chose to. It's the first time anybody has called me an unscrupulous woman, and I'm terribly hurt about it, dear, and if you start bullying me, too...."

"Did you give the money back to Colonel Lutman?"

Mrs. Smith gazed at her in surprise.

"Give it back, Jacqueline? Of course I didn't give it back. The Colonel asked for it, but I said I'd spent it already and he couldn't have it."

"I see," said Jacqueline. "And where is it, mother?"

"I'm not going to tell you, Jacqueline. I know what's in your mind. You want to take it and give it to Colonel Lutman."

"Mother, we must—at least as much as you've got left."

"I'm not going to do it, Jacqueline," said her mother firmly. "And I'm not going to let you do it. I—I can't. It's all I've got, and I don't really care what anybody thinks of me—I'm not going to give it up. If it's fraud and cheating and all that sort of thing—then I'll be a fraud and a cheat."

"Mother! I wonder you're not ashamed!"

"That's it—now you turn against me, Jacqueline. Ashamed! Perhaps I am ashamed. Perhaps—all these years, lying and pretending and using nasty little subterfuges—perhaps I've always been ashamed. You've never thought of that, have you? You've thought I was hard, unprincipled, that as long as I could have nice food and pretty clothes I didn't care what petty little meannesses I used to get them. But I didn't mind your thinking that as long as I could somehow keep going and give you everything you needed."

"Mother—please!"

Mrs. Smith dabbed her eyes with her wisp of handkerchief.

"You've thought I was just a deceitful, conceited, selfish woman," she went on, "who didn't realise the cheap, contemptible sort of life I was leading. But I've always realized and I've always hated it just as much as you have, and now you're turning against me!" Suddenly she buried her face in the pillow, sobbing.

Jacqueline went to her and laid a hand on her shoulder.

"Mother!"

"No—leave me alone, Jacqueline. You don't understand—you've never understood. I've kept struggling on, trying to do my best for you, and you've despised me."

"Mother, I haven't despised you. And I have realised. I've often thought how wonderful you were."

"So you may have done, Jacqueline," sobbed her mother, "but you've never done anything to help me. I've tried so hard to fix every thing for you so that you shouldn't have to live the sort of life I've lived, and you've never backed me up. There was that charming young fellow in Paris with more money than he knew what to do with. He was dreadfully in love with you, and everything would have been splendid if you'd married him, but you ruined everything—just because he hadn't a great deal of chin."

"But mother, I really didn't love him!"

"You didn't try to, Jacqueline. You hardly knew the man. He was perfectly charming if only you'd looked a little farther than the chin. And it was the same in Rome, and the same in Vienna, and the same everywhere else. If their china were all right, you always found something else wrong with them. I'm sure I don't know what you do want as a husband. You can't marry a Greek god. People in our station of life can't expect to do that sort of thing. And if you did, you wouldn't be happy. You'd have to keep him under lock and key. And now—now—Oh, go away, Jacqueline, and leave me. I'm terribly unhappy."

"And now what, mother?"

"And now there's Jim Ason," sobbed Mrs. Smith. "He's terribly rich and very good-looking, and if only you'd marry him—but of course you won't. You'd probably find he's got a hammer toe or something, and we shall just go on living the same cheap sort of life, pinching and scraping and telling lies and—Oh, it's all so hopeless, Jacqueline. I feel I can't go on any longer. I just want to lie here and cry."

The girl was silent, frowning thoughtfully; and then her frown vanished and her eyes seemed to soften, her hand went out and touched her mother's shoulder again.

"Mother, listen."

"Just leave me alone, Jacqueline."

"There's no need to be unhappy, mother. There's no need to cry. I suppose I've been a selfish little beast, but I won't have to struggle and tell lies and pinch and scrape any more, either. Are you listening?"

Her mother nodded.

"That's all done with—forever, mother, because I'm going to marry Jim Ason."

Mrs. Smith suddenly sat up.

"Jacqueline! My dear—do you really mean it?"

"I do. Does that make you happy?"

Mrs. Smith caught her hand, drew her close and kissed her cheek.

"Bless you, dear!" she said. "I'm sure you'll be terribly happy."

"I'm going to tell Jim now."

Her mother nodded.

"Do, dear," she smiled. "And then I'll talk to Colonel Lutman about the business side. You can safely leave that to me."

"I'm sure I can, mother."

"It must all be done legally," said Mrs. Smith. "I shall write to Mr. Stuckey at once. Run along, dear, and find Jim."

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TREE HOUSE

Once again Uncle Wiggily was afloat on the flood, riding away in his washtub boat. It was raining hard.

"It's lucky I thought to grab up the old umbrella I found down cellar," said the rabbit gentleman to himself as he hoisted it over his head. "Only for that I'd be getting more wet than I am. And goodness knows I'm wet enough," he said, laughing.

On and on he floated on the stream of high water that was running out of his bungalow cellar, through an open window and down toward the same brook where, a little while before, Mr. Longears had been riding with the two frog boys.

"But this is much more of an adventure ride," said Uncle Wiggily as he swirled around and around in his washtub boat. "At least I think I am going to have an adventure," he told himself.

All Alone.

There was no one else in sight so he could tell it for he was all alone. He had gone down cellar to see what caused the strange noise Nurse Jane heard. 'Bringing Up Father' Subject Of Address To Warsaw Society

Doctor Munro Gives Talk On How Children Should Behave Towards Parents

CLIFFORDS HONORED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, April 15—The attendance at United Church Y.P.S. on Monday evening was below the average. Miss Esther Menzies presided. Miss Dorothy Payne supplied for the secretary, and Mrs. Wilkinson for the pianist.

After opening devotions and business, Lenore McIlvena sang "Jesus wants me to be a Sunbeam," Mrs. McIlvena, piano selection; Milo and Jean Payne sang "In the Garden," with Mrs. Payne at the piano.

The feature of the evening was an address by Dr. Munro, and he had decided on a little talk on "Bringing up Father." The Doctor noted there has been a great deal about bringing up children but he thought it was time something was said about "Bringing up Father." Some of the Doctor's points were: He did not like to hear father called "the old man," or it said: "Oh, father and I do not pull together." What is your attitude towards father? Study your father and think about him. Do not assume you know all about him, nor make it your business to keep away from him. Make him your chum. Be patient, maybe he knows best, maybe not. Study to understand the situation and remember it takes two to make a good job of understanding.

It is difficult for father to realize you are not a baby yet. Sympathize with him, he is growing old. Some day we will find ourselves growing old, and realize being a father is no joke. Father has to get out and provide, a big difference from just coming to the table. When he speaks listen. He is giving you opportunities he did not have. Say things to please him, there is no one whose good opinion a father values as much as his own son. Be as affectionate as possible. He may not know as much as you do, but some day you will be older, and will not know as much as you do now. Well-bred people never try to show how much they know.

Clifford Honored

On Monday evening, about one hundred and twenty-five friends and neighbours faced the bad roads and gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clifford on the Second Line of Dummer, to bid them farewell and wish them joy ere they left for their new home near Springville. One family had to take a long route to reach the home, but were in time to enjoy the evening which was spent in dancing and card-playing.

At mid-night refreshments were served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Clifford and family were seated and an address read.

As a slight token of the esteem in which the family are held by Warsaw friends they were presented with a drop-back-day-bed and lace table cloth. Mrs. Ruby Payne, Hazel Clifford and Eva Clifford signed the address.

In a few well-chosen words, Mr. Clifford thanked their friends for the good feeling and for the gifts. Mr. O. B. McIlvena led the crowd in singing, "For they are Jolly Good Fellows."

Personals

Donald Sharpe, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sharpe, in splitting wood cut his foot very badly on Thursday last when the axe slipped. An artery was cut. Dr. Munro was called and dressed the foot, putting in ten stitches. The doctor saw it on Friday and will again on Sunday.

Gordon Sharpe, Donald's elder brother, has so far recovered with his broken leg, he and his wife have gone to Peterborough to stay with Mrs. Sharpe's mother.

Miss Lois Clysdale and Miss Florence Bolton went to Peterborough, Monday, April 12, to attend classes in project work.

Rev. Mr. Brain held a service in the Anglican Church on Sunday, but it was not well attended as there was some misunderstanding about the date. It is settled for a time at least that they will hold a service at 3 p.m. on the second and fourth Sundays of each month.

MILLBRIDGE

The staff of the Katherine Lead Mines entertained the young folks at the Orange Hall on Friday evening. Square and round dancing were enjoyed, after which a delicious lunch was served. Messrs. Hunter and Wilson supplied the music.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lavender spent Sunday at Holloway at the home of Mr. B. O. Lost.

Mr. Rob. Armstrong is visiting friends at Thoroid.

Mr. and Mrs. John Davidson were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. W. Tompkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lavender, and Mr. M. Horan, jr., spent Tuesday in Toronto.

Woman Professor Keeps 10,000 Spiders

Seattle, April 15—(AP)—MRS. Harriet Exline Lloyd has 10,000 spiders.

Mrs. Lloyd, doctor of philosophy at the University of Washington, spent nine years assembling her collection, which includes 400 species. She has 75 black widows.

"When I was working for my bachelor's decree at Reed College in Portland," explained Mrs. Lloyd, 37, "one of my professors decided it would be an amusing hobby for me to play around with. They've been amusing me ever since."

She has been awarded a scholarship to continue spider study at Yale next year.

Mr. Ford Will Change His Mind

Informed that Henry Ford had gone on record with the statement that he would never recognize the United Automobile Workers "or any other union," John L. Lewis, C.I.O. leader, was telling a gathering of 25,000 auto workers at the Detroit fair grounds that "Mr. Ford will change his mind" when this picture was snapped. Lewis addressed the meeting to make a full report of his agreement with Walter P. Chrysler.

EMPLOYEES FREE TO JOIN ANYTHING SAYS HENRY FORD

Considers It Foolish To Enroll In Labor Unions—Lose Their Freedom

UNWORRIED BY NEW ACT

DETROIT, April 15—(A.P.)—Henry Ford made clear to-day employees of the Ford Motor Company are "free to join anything they want to" but that he considers it "foolish" for them to enroll in labor unions.

The head of a vast industrial empire, in an interview yesterday, indicated he was not concerned about the decision of the United States Supreme Court upholding the Wagner National Labor Relations Act. The "useful" provisions of the act, Ford said, long "have been policies of the Ford Motor Company."

He declined to say what he would do if a union presented formal demands to him.

"Ask me that when the demands are made," he remarked.

Ford, back from a vacation at his Georgia plantation, appeared not the least perturbed by the furore created by his recent statement his company never would recognize the United Automobile Workers of America or any other union.

Loss Liberty for Nothing

He did not repeat that statement in his interview, but reiterated his advice to workers not to join any union.

"That's foolish," he said. "They will lose their liberty and not get anything out of it."

A few hours before the interview, the U.A.W.A. announced it would start an intensive organization drive among Ford employees. Homer Martin, union president, said that "strikes to force Henry Ford to recognize the union won't be necessary" in view of the Wagner Act ruling.

The Automotive Daily News estimated the reopening of the strike-bound Chrysler and Hudson plants would increase this week's production of cars and trucks to 120,000, barely under the highest week this year.

OSHAWA STRIKE VERGE OF COLLAPSE--NO DEAL

Martin To Advise Men Work Monday Wait Negotiations

Hepburn's Peace Conference Fails As Unionists Refuse To Attend

DECISION AT 8 P.M.

C. I. O. President Switches Tactics After U.S. Unions Shy Off Mayor's Ultimatum

OSHAWA, Ont., April 16 (CP)—Union officials, conferring here on the General Motors strike situation, will advise the 3,700 strikers to return to work Monday pending arrival at an agreement with the company, it was learned on good authority.

Officials of Oshawa local union met with Homer Martin, International president of the United Automobile Workers of America, and Hugh Thompson, union organizer, who arrived here today.

Proposals understood to have been made by Martin, will be placed before a mass meeting of strikers immediately for their approval, it was learned. If approval comes from the workers they'll be back on their jobs Monday and efforts to reach an agreement with the firm head will continue.

The Union Demands

Union officials, it was learned on good authority, will place the following requests before the company after the men return:

1—Any agreement to be with all plants involving General Motors in Canada, Oshawa, Windsor (where 500 men were forced out by the Oshawa shut-down), and McKinnon Industries Ltd., General Motors subsidiary at St. Catharines.

2—Recognition of the local union No. 222, U.A.W.A. by the company here.

3—Seniority rights to be granted the workers.

4—The company to accept establishment of a grievance committee.

As far as could be learned there was no reference to wage demands.

BILBAO DEFENDERS TO MOVE CHILDREN

Twelve Hundred Will Go To Russia And Six To France—Lines Tightened

ST. JEAN DE LUZ, France, April 16 (A.P.)—Two high-ranking Spanish government commanders began reorganization of besieged Bilbao's defenses to-day in a fresh attempt to halt insurgent advances on the Basque capital.

General Martinez Cabrera, commander of the Basque Nationalist army, and Brig.-General Martinez Monje, government officer from Madrid, toured the war front south and east of Bilbao.

With the prospect of renewed government resistance to the insurgent assault, Basque authorities prepared to evacuate 1,500 children from Bilbao. Twelve hundred, they said, would be sent to Russia, while an additional 300 would be escorted over the border into France.

Canada's Exports Over Billion, '37

OTTAWA, April 16—(CP)—Exports of Canadian goods in the fiscal year ended March 31 shot over the billion dollar mark, said a report to-day by the National Revenue Department. Domestic exports were $1,081,121,806, an increase of $212,151,469 above $868,970,337 in the previous fiscal year.

Imports reached a total of $671,882,667, an advance of $109,185,572 over $562,703,089 in the previous 12 months.

Canada's total trade soared to $1,753,050,567, an increase of $321,317,061 from $1,411,733,506 in the fiscal year, 1935-36.

HEPBURN FLINGS CHARGE OF DEBT AT MAYOR HALL

Says He Owed Treasury $259 Before His Dismissal As Crown Attorney

ORDERS RECOVERY

"Downright Falsehood" Replies Oshawan--"Only Decency Prevents Thrashing Premier"

TORONTO, April 16 (CP) — Premier Mitchell Hepburn today ordered Col. W. W. Denison, inspector of legal offices, to press a claim by the province against Mayor Alex C. Hall of Oshawa, former Crown Attorney, for $319.

The premier said that when Mayor Hall was dismissed as Crown Attorney of Ontario County in October, 1934, $259.28 in legal fees was due the province, and that under an arrangement to pay $10 a month Hall had paid $40.

The premier last night alleged that Mayor Hall's "hostile attitude toward the government in the present difficult General Motors strike situation was due to his dismissal and to his general antipathy to the Liberal party."

Mr. Hepburn said earnings of the Crown Attorney's office fell during the Hall incumbency, that complaints were received regarding inefficiency of administration, and that after attempts to recover the $259.28 it was "decided to forget the debt rather than make claims upon the bonding company." Now however he was instructing the Attorney General's Department to collect with accrued interest.

WHAT MAYOR HALL SAYS

OSHAWA, Ont., April 16 (CP) — Only the law of assault prevents Mayor Alex Hall from giving Premier Mitchell Hepburn "the worst threshing any man ever received," the 135-pound mayor declared today as he said he would like to teach the Ontario premier "the first rudiments of decency."

The mayor, who was a member of the Oshawa lacrosse team, Dominion

Strike-Breakers Invade 2 Docks

TORONTO, April 16 — (C.P.) — Strike-breakers invaded Toronto and Hamilton docks to-day for jobs as stevedores loading ships ready for the 1937 navigation season. Pickets patrolling the waterfront paid no attention to them, and the single police officer on duty reported no incidents.

Picketing began yesterday in what Strike Chairman H. F. Mead termed "emergency measures" after Canada Steamship Lines engaged 25 men to load the steamer Fernie. The striking dock-workers ask increase in wages, better working conditions and stricter regulations regarding hiring longshoremen when ships are expected.

England To Sell War Trophies Help Bolster Her Arms Chest

King George Starts Campaign, Orders German Field Pieces At Castle Removed

CITIES FALL IN LINE

LONDON, April 16—(AP)—Led by the King, a movement was sweeping England today to scrap the proud trophies won by British armies on the field of battle to help finance Britain's $7,500,000,000 program for new armaments.

His Majesty started the campaign with an order to remove two German field pieces from the east terrace of Windsor Castle. It was considered such war relics were not in keeping with the beauty of the terrace and its famous sunken gardens.

Other hard won trophies will be offered for sale as an "anti" scrap iron to help finance the rearmament program.

The town clerk of Ryde in Kent offered the town's one rusty old tank and German field gun to the highest bidder with the disparaging comment: "They are just junk anyway."

The watering place of Bath decided the 13 battered guns which stand in its public park must go.

Folkestone caught at the opportunity to get rid of a large tank which the city fathers had long considered dangerous to the children who play around it.

Michigan Hunts Double Murderer

HOWELL, Mich., April 16—(AP)—Search for the slayer of a prosperous, elderly Michigan farmer and his 22-year-old sister extended into five states today and a murder warrant was issued for a missing farmhand.

Blake police said they were seeking Ray Larson, 23, employed on the farm since March 13.

Mayor Hall Sees Detroit Decision 'Back-Out' By C.I.O.

CABINET MAPPING CUT ITS PROGRAM IMPERIAL PARLEY

Freed For Moment Of Responsibility In Oshawa By Ontario Stand

AIRLINE ADVANCES

OTTAWA, April 16 (CP). — The Cabinet meets today to map plans for the forthcoming Imperial Conference, freed for the moment, at least, of any direct responsibility on the nation's major labor front, Oshawa's General Motors strike.

Ministers will discuss policies the Government may adopt at London when the Empire's statesmen, among them Prime Minister Mackenzie King and some of his Ministers, talk on such subjects as foreign affairs, defence, constitutional questions and Empire migration.

Orders for withdrawal of Royal Canadian Mounted Police from Ontario's strike area—issued at the request of Premier Hepburn, who asked earlier that the Redcoats be sent —freed the administration from any direct connection with the situation at Oshawa where 3,700 employees of the American-owned automobile plant whose workers demand pay increases and recognition of an international union.

Meanwhile cheerful news came from the Midwest agricultural front with announcement by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics that the nation's wheat bins were emptier than they had been this time of year since 1923, an assurance there would be no recurrence for a while of the surplus that plagued farmers at the time the Government took office a year and a half ago.

Airline Advancing

Signs that engines of the trans-Canada Airline were being warmed came yesterday with disclosure that Transport Minister Howe would go to Montreal to-day for conference with heads of the Canadian National Railways, administrative body for the coast-to-coast airmail service that may start flying early next fall.

North's Mine Gangs Back Oshawa Strike

Timmins, Ont., April 16—(CP) OFFICIALS of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers union in Northern Ontario, affiliated with John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, will meet here Sunday to discuss their stand in connection with the Oshawa General Motors strike.

Wellington Armstrong, president of local 241 here, said today the union members in the north were "right behind" the Oshawa strikers.

ROWE COMMENDS STRIKERS' SENSE

Regrets There Is More Political Conflict Than Between Men And Employers

TORONTO, April 16 (CP).—Following is a statement on the Oshawa strike situation made today by Hon. Earl Rowe, Ontario Conservative leader:

It is regrettable that there appears to be more conflicting views among politicians at Toronto and Ottawa, than between the workers and the employers themselves. As leader of the Liberal-Conservative Party, of course, I will insist always upon the maintenance of law and order. This is traditional with me and with my party.

There is always danger when politics is impulsively introduced that the occasion is used to political advantage and the rights of parties to the dispute are obscured and often neglected.

The citizens of Oshawa, who are directly effected, are to be commended for their common-sense, in not being stampeded, when those charged with greater responsibility have used less judgment.

Charlie Chaplin At 48th Milestone

HOLLYWOOD, April 16—(A.P.)—Charlie Chaplin, the silent man who favors the silent movie wound up that sort of a year to-day—his 48th birthday.

Since his return from a long trip to the Orient with his fiancee, Paulette Goddard, and her mother, the movie comedian has been a recluse.

Based on the story, "Regency," by Novelist D. L. Murray, it will star the tawny-haired Miss Goddard but Chaplin will not appear in it. He is writing the screen story and will direct and produce it.

"Later," he said, "I'm planning to produce another comedy of my own."

REBELS CUT DOWN LIKE RICE STALKS IN BINDER BLADES

Arkansas Flier Tells Of Machine-Gunning Fleeing Italian Troops

TERRIBLE SPECTACLE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 16.—(AP)—An Arkansas aviator, fighting for the Spanish government forces, wrote in a letter to a friend here a graphic version of the Guadalajara battle near Madrid last month.

The flier, F. G. Tinker of Dewitt, said in his letter to Deane Allan, Little Rock newspaperman, that men fell in the battle "like rice before the binders." He wrote losses among Italians fighting with the insurgents were heavy.

"Time after time I saw bombs land right in the middle of groups of men or trucks," Tinker wrote.

"Within an hour after the start of the battle," he continued, the insurgents were "so completely demoralized that it was almost terrific to behold.

"Rifles and ammunition belts were abandoned to facilitate running. That misery loves company was proved by the way the fleeing wretches tended to group together as they ran, which was very bad judgment because at any sign of a group down would come a fighting plane with all machine guns in action.

Mopping Up From the Air.

"We are cruising around about 1,000 metres up in the air after dropping our bombs and had nothing to do except watch the progress of the battle and break up the above-mentioned groups.

"We spot a group, manoeuvre into position, a little down-wind if possible and we peer through the telescopic sight.... At about 500 metres we open up with one or two guns to see how the tracers are going and if all is well, we cut loose with all four at once.

"By now, we can see the running men plainly, and they are beginning to become aware of our presence—we see dead white faces swivel around and sight us. Consternation turns the faces even whiter and stark terror draws the lips back from the teeth. They vainly attempt to reverse directions and then encircle us, but it is too late. Already they are falling like rice before the binders."

Toronto, April 16—(CP)

THE 400 special Provincial Police just recruited and now under training for use in case of emergency at Oshawa, will be permanently retained as a reserve force, Premier Mitchell Hepburn announced today.

"Ontario will not depend on the Dominion Government in the future for emergency assistance in maintaining law and order," the Premier said.

When the 400 enlisted this week have been given a complete training they will be free to return to their regular work but will be paid a small retainer and be kept as reserves, he said, subject to call at any time.

British Ship Defies Doom Rebel Mines

Skipper Reported Running Blockade To Take Bilbao 1,000 Tons of Potatoes

2 OTHERS ESCAPE HARBOR

Believe Franco's Bottling Of Basque Port Highly Exaggerated

LONDON, April 15 (C.P.-Havas) —Another Labor assault on the Government's Spanish policy in the House of Commons appeared likely to-day as reports from the Franco-Spanish coastal zone indicated the British freighter Mary Llewellyn, carrying food supplies to the Basques, was attempting to run the "blockade" of allegedly mine-infested Biscayan waters.

Labor's decision to return to the attack was reached at a party meeting last night. It was inspired by fresh official assurances from the Basque Government access to Bilbao Harbor was still free, despite reports of mines and the presence of insurgent vessels in nearby waters.

With 1,000 tons of potatoes aboard the Mary Llewellyn, its skipper, Captain L. J. Jones, was reported heading for Santander, west of Bilbao. His course would lie directly across the blockade zone.

Labor received additional ammunition for its stand in official Basque despatches announcing one Danish and two British vessels had sailed out of Bilbao Harbor yesterday without damage or incident.

Two Others Set Out.

The captains of two other British merchantmen—the Seven Seas Spray and the Hampeterley—waiting at St. Jean de Luz to take food to the Basques also believed the extent of the "blockade" exaggerated. It was reported to the Labor Leader Clement Atlee was commissioned by his party to reopen the question of the Government's policy on protection for British merchantmen. On the Cabinet's present stand—advising vessels not to head for Basque ports, in order to avoid incidents—the Government won a vote of confidence on strict party lines on Wednesday.

Meanwhile, ambitious schemes went forward here for eventual negotiation of an armistice to permit withdrawal of foreign "volunteers" from Spain.

The technical committee of the Non-Intervention Committee was expected to-day to consider prospects for retiring foreign combatants five miles fighting area. It was even thought possible direct mediation would result.

Perth Shoe Firm Bars Closed Shop

PERTH, Ont., April 16 (CP).—The Perth Shoe Company, facing its first labor difficulties, was closed tight today as 170 of its union employees were on strike. When further negotiations towards a settlement of the two-day dispute would be carried out was not indicated.

The employees, both men and women, went on strike yesterday following collapse of a conference between representatives of the newly-formed local branch of the Canadian Shoe Workers' Union and allied crafts and company officials. Full recognition of the union "and a signed agreement for a closed shop," were asked. Company officials announced they were willing to recognise the union but refused the "closed shop" demand.

Hepburn Wise-Cracks At Hall's Expense

Toronto, April 16—(CP)

PREMIER Mitchell Hepburn today added a couple of succinct sentences to the wealth of verbal fire-crackers provided on the fringes of the Oshawa strike.

Of Oshawa Mayor Alex Hall's statement he would like to give the Premier a thrashing for saying Hall owes the Province money, Mr. Hepburn said:

The Premier weighs 187, Mayor Hall about 135.

Mr. Hepburn also had a word for conflicting statements on arrangements between the Ontario and Dominion Governments for police protection. It was:

"There are too damned many lies going around."

WHEAT PLUNGES ANOTHER 5 CENTS FOR 10 IN 2 DAYS

Both Winnipeg And Chicago Drop Limit With Rotterdam Off 9, Liverpool 7

FASTEST SLIDE IN YEARS

Blame Southern Hemisphere Offerings For Bringing Liquidation Of Speculative Holdings

CHICAGO, April 16. — (AP). — World prices of wheat took the worst tumble in recent years today.

Wheat at Chicago at times broke five cents, the maximum limit allowed in one day, while Liverpool and Rotterdam values were off as much as 7⅞ and 9⅝ cents respectively. Buenos Aires wheat quotations plunged almost five cents on top of yesterday's break of equal proportions. At Winnipeg, wheat also tumbled the five cent limit, a drop of 10 cents in two days.

Veteran traders here said it has been several years since wheat has lost value so quickly on such world-wide proportions.

They attributed the heavy selling here as well as in other world markets partly to the general decline in commodity markets and to some revision in traders' deals as to wheat demand following the slowing up of export takings by European countries.

Cables flowing into the grain pits indicated urgent offerings of Southern Hemisphere wheat had brought general liquidation of speculative holdings throughout the world.

When wheat for May delivery in Chicago plunged to $1.30 at to-day's opening it showed a loss of almost eight cents in two days and was 14 cents below the eight-year peak which was established at $1.45⅛ scarcely more than a week ago.

Guilt Admitted In Foxboro Case

BELLEVILLE, Ont., April 16 (C.P.). — Allen Sibe, 23, of Walbridge, elected summary trial on two charges of "attempted robbery" and "conspiracy to rob" and pleaded guilty before Magistrate E. J. Butler in Police Court to-day. John Osterhout, 22, of Stockdale, waived the service of a lawyer before entering a plea, and on the advice of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., the two were remanded in custody for one week without bail. They were arrested by Provincial and Mounted Police when they allegedly attempted to rob Charles Manahan, 32-year-old recluse at his home on "Mudcat Lane," one mile east of Foxboro, on last Monday night.

Thinks Men Backing Ideal That Is Weak

Unwise To Lose Further Wages —Issue Squarely Up To People Of Canada

MARTIN COMING BACK

Mayor States Day Of Independent Union Here—Time For Canadian Move

OSHAWA, Ont., April 16.—(CP)—Striking General Motors workers today—ninth day since 3,700 quit the big automobile plant—made no pretence in their expectation that a settlement to the lineup would come before next week.

They talked over the situation on the streets and in the picket line with these new developments before them:

1—Resumption of negotiations in Toronto, at the invitation of Premier Hepburn, between the local union's representatives and executives of the company.

2—Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, was expected here early after addressing a group of workers in Windsor last night an expressing confidence the strike would be settled before Monday.

What relation, if any, there was between the two developments was a matter of speculation among the rank and file of strikers. They had Premier Hepburn's word there would be no representative of the Committee for Industrial Organization at the new peace conference. They also had an official statement from Detroit, following last night's meeting between union heads and officials of the parent company, that the problem should be settled between the Canadian company and a committee representing the unions involved.

Millard to Attend Parley

C. H. Millard, president of the Oshawa local of U.A.W.A., was expected to meet his shop stewards to-day and then go to Toronto for the conference. Hugh Thompson, C.I.O. organizer, whom Premier Hepburn previously refused to meet, was reported last night as having gone to Windsor to meet Martin.

Mayor Alex Hall, who sent an ultimatum to Martin demanding the C.I.O. show its support for Oshawa workers by calling out General Motors workers in Detroit, saw in the Detroit Joint statement a "backing up" by the C.I.O. He said he considered it unwise for the men "to lose further wages fighting for an ideal which didn't stand up under the test."

In a formal statement earlier, the mayor said the issue "is squarely up to the people of Canada."

"Workmen have a perfect right to choose their own union," his statement added. "The day of the independent union is here. I am hoping that from this situation will be born a great Canadian union."

Speaking to newspaper men, the mayor said he could place no other interpretation on the Detroit announcement other than "the executive of the U.A.W. has withdrawn from participation in the strike at Oshawa."

Stubbs' Censure Motion Defeated

WINNIPEG, April 16—(CP)—Motion of L. St. G. Stubbs (Ind., Winnipeg) censuring the Manitoba government for imposing a tax of five cents a bottle on imported beer was rejected last night by the Legislature.

By vote of 44 to 4 the House adopted an amendment of John Queen (C.C.F., Winnipeg) criticizing the precluesf provinces imposing the practice of provinces imposing trade and urging the government to continue its efforts with other governments to abolish trade barriers.

In the debate Attorney-General W. J. Major stated the task was impossible of accomplishment.

Italy Offers Loans Up To $150 For Each Couple Getting Wed

Must Pay It Back In Year If No Children Born—Each Birth Reduces It

TAXES LOWERED TO HELP

ROME, April 16 (AP)—The Italian Cabinet today decreed sweeping measures to promote an increase in the Italian birth-rate, including the authorization of marriage loans of $50 to $150 to induce couples to wed.

To be eligible for the loan, each member of an engaged pair must be under 29 years of age. Repayment must begin within a year after marriage if no children have been born.

The Cabinet decree provided also for converting the loan into a gift proportionate to the number of children born to the state-sponsored families through deduction by 10 per cent. after the registration of each birth.

An annual State contribution of $25,000 was ordered for the maintenance of a Fascist union of the families which will be familiar to the union of ex-servicemen, and will assist its members to find employment and solve their personal problems.

A variety of tax laws were passed, without mention of the amounts involved, to induce marriages and procreation of large families. In each case exemptions were allowed to heads of families in direct ratio to the number of their children.

Separate School Board Expresses Appreciation Of Croll.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 16 (CP)—Unanimous appreciation of the counsel and assistance rendered by David Croll, during his term as Minister of Labor and Welfare in the Ontario Government, was expressed last night by members of the Separate School Board in approving a resolution by Trustee Lawrence Desisl to convey the board's feelings to Mr. Croll.

The ROYAL ROAD to the CORONATION

The christening of Princess Elizabeth in Buckingham Palace on August 6, 1926 was witnessed by this group. Seated: Lady Elphinstone; Queen Mary, the then Duchess of York, holding her infant daughter; the Countess of Strathmore and the Princess Royal. Standing: the Duke of Connaught; the late King George V, the then Duke of York, and the Earl of Strathmore.

"BRITAIN'S SWEETHEART" was born April 21st, 1926, and if anything more was needed to endear the Duke and Duchess of York to the people of the empire, it was the birth of their first daughter. We shall see more of this charming little princess, now heir presumptive to the throne, later on, but it is fitting that before passing on to the more varied activities of her royal father and mother, the birth and babyhood that has meant so much to them and to the empire should be mentioned.

Today we record the scene at the princess' christening. In an ivory lace robe in which three king's a queen and an empress had been christened, she was named Elizabeth Alexandra Mary, after her mother, her grandmother and her great grandmother. Water brought from the River Jordan in the Holy Land was used to trace the sign of the cross upon her forehead, fittingly enough by the Archbishop of York, episcopal head of the diocese which gave to the king his peerage.

In Buckingham Palace that day gathered the proud parents, and with them, as this picture records, their own parents and the grandparents of the little fluffy-haired baby. King George and Queen Mary are here as proud as the Duke and Duchess themselves, along with the Earl and Countess of Strathmore and close family friends. Into the heart of the then monarch, George V., this infant princess stole, and many a happy hour they were destined to spend together as the little lady grew.

England and Scotland particularly greeted her with unbounded enthusiasm and her every movement was recorded and avidly read by her adoring populace.

Older today, and already begining to appreciate the position she must one day fill, Princess Elizabeth is still the "Sweetheart of the Empire", and on May 12 she too will have a prominent part in the procession that hails the crowning of her royal parents.

Millard Denies "Sell Out" — Says U.S. Agreement With G.M. Must Be Kept

TORONTO, April 16—(CP)—Early settlement of the nine-day Oshawa General Motors strike seemed possible today as Premier Mitchel Hepburn prepared to preside at a peace conference in his office.

He expected representatives of General Motors of Canada and the Oshawa local of the United Automobile Workers of America to gather around a conference table for a discussion he hoped would put 3,700 workers back in the Oshawa plant.

The Premier issued invitations to the peace parley last night after a three-hour conference with H. J. Carmichael, general manager of the motor car company. He invited Mr. Carmichael, J. B. Highfield, plant manager in Oshawa, C. H. Millard, president of the Oshawa union, and J. L. Cohen, union counsel.

Recognition of the union is the principle issue involved. Whether Mr. Hepburn will have new proposals to put before the workers' representatives in this regard he did not say. General Motors has indicated its willingness to draw up an agreement with a committee of local union members but not with the union itself.

Mr. Hepburn has supported this contention. He has refused to deal with Hugh Thompson, organizer for John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization. He does not consider Millard a representative of the C.I.O.

Thompson Goes To Windsor.

Mr. Thompson was reported last night to have started for Windsor, Ont., and Mr. Millard added he would have to obtain the permission of union stewards in Oshawa before he could attend. The Oshawa local already has asked the Premier to step out of negotiations.

It is possible the union leaders will be given the first official intimation of the concessions the company is willing to make the workers. Premier Hepburn announced early this week General Motors is willing to raise wages and improve working conditions.

The union representatives would attend the conference with the knowledge that Homer Martin, their international president, agreed with General Motors executives in Detroit yesterday that the Canadian

URGE CASA LOMA HOME FOR QUINTS

Alderman Sees City Making Enough In 20 Years To Pay Off Canada's National Debt

TORONTO, April 16.—The Civic Property Committee debated the advisability yesterday of attempting to get the Dionne quintuplets to live in the $1,700,000 Casa Loma for eight months in the year.

Should such a scheme prove feasible, it was argued, space in the rest of the empty castle could easily be rented by the city to restaurants, shops and film companies. It was felt that no difficulty would be encountered in renting these quarters because of the hundreds of thousands of tourists who would be drawn to the spot from all corners of the globe.

Hollywood Would Pay

Hollywood film corporations, it was also believed, would be more than anxious to film the romantic castle and would pay enormous sums for the right to erect sets and offices within its interior. It was contended yesterday, in fact, that the entire project would prove to be "the greatest tourist attraction in Canada."

Alderman Percy Quinn, who made the original suggestion at yesterday's meeting was appointed as a committee of one to hold a conference with Property Commissioner Graham Bland and go into the entire matter. The two civic officials, it was further decided, should then interview the guardians of the quintuplets and report back their findings to the Property committee.

Advertising Value

More than 1,000,000 persons had already gone to Callander to get a glimpse of the quints, Alderman Quinn informed the meeting, and this enormous crowd could in future be brought to Toronto under his scheme. He believed as well, that it would prove to be the biggest advertisement for this city that could possibly be obtained.

The alderman even suggested that a nominal charge of 50 cents on week-days and one dollar during the week-ends and holidays could be made before any one was allowed to step inside the Casa Loma grounds. The quints would only have to live in the castle for eight months of each year, he said, and would be free to return to Callander for the other four months.

The city, under this scheme, could make enough money in twenty years," he argued, "to pay off the entire national debt of Canada."

Automobiles And Dance Halls declared Pitfalls For Youth

Unmarried Parents' Act Should Be Strengthened, Judge Tells Society

IN LINDSAY ADDRESS

LINDSAY, April 16. — "Children of this generation are permitted too much latitude. They have too free an access to cars and dance halls, which undoubtedly results in many cases under the Unmarried Parents Act. Dance halls in particular should be under police supervision," declared Judge J. A. McGibbon, in an address at the annual meeting of the Victoria and Haliburton Children's Aid Society here on Wednesday night.

His Honor pointed out that children's aid societies were necessary because some part of the social organization had broken down. He congratulated the officers of the society on closing the Shelter and placing the wards in foster homes.

"Breaks occur in the home, generally as a fault of the parents. During the past few years the children have been running their parents instead of the parents running their children. We must devise some means of bringing back the home spirit of knitting and cementing the bond between parents and children. If this could be done the work of the Children's Aid Society would fall by the way," he said.

Home Environment

The speaker stressed the importance of proper home environment, and declared that every parent should be a companion to his child. Dealing with the Unmarried Parents' Act, Judge McGibbon said that it should be strengthened.

"The number of cases which are heard under this Act is alarming and the free use which young people have of cars and dance halls has a great deal to do with it," he said.

"All the institutions in the province are overcrowded with crippled, blind, deaf, dumb, backward and unfortunate children. Medical examination of couples before marriage, and sterilization of the mentally unfit, are the starting points if we are to lessen this number," His Honor concluded.

The secretary's report, presented by Allan Blewett, showed that of 270 children under the care of the society, only five were in the Lindsay Shelter, the others being in foster homes.

QUEER CORONATION EVENTS RECALLED

Crowning Of King William Saw Nervous Norman Soldiers Fire Everything In Sight

LONDON, April 16 (CP)—A Coronation at which everyone but the King, the Archbishop and the Abbot of Westminster fled was recalled in a speech by L. E. Tanner, keeper of documents, at Westminster Abbey.

"Just as King William the Conqueror was being crowned, the Norman soldiery all around mistook the guttural acclamations of the crowd for a revolution," he said. "They immediately set fire to everything they could find. In a short time the Abbey was empty with the exception of the King, trembling for the first time, the Archbishop and the Abbot of Westminster."

At the Coronation of William IV, said Tanner, Queen Adelaide was asked to take a walk because none of the heralds knew which was her rightful chair.

At the Coronation of George III the rattle of knives and forks as the congregation ate their lunch made the sermon inaudible.

An interruption disturbed the dignified atmosphere as George I was crowned. Coronation "banns" were called by the Archbishop whereupon Lady Dorchester shouted: "Does the old fool think anyone will say no when there are so many drawn swords about?"

REV. HAROLD NEALE SPEAKS TO CIRCLE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 16.—The Mission Circles of St. John's United Church held their meeting in the ladies' parlor of the church on Thursday evening with the president, Mrs. J. D. Mills in charge. Following the opening hymn and prayer the president conducted the business portion of the meeting during which the assistant secretary, Mrs. Carl Johnson, read the minutes of the previous meeting. Mrs. Percy Morgan arranged the program for the evening which she opened by reading the scripture following which Mrs. H. B. Neale led in prayer. Misses Doris Mason and Velma Runnells gave interesting missionary stories dealing with the work being done by the society in China and in the Sahara Desert regions. Following this Roy Young favored with a guitar solo accompanied on the piano by his sister, Helen, and Miss Mary Murphy gave a humorous reading. An address by the Rev. Harold B. Neale which dealt particularly with the medical work being accomplished by missions in all countries both at home and abroad brought the program to a close. Lunch was served by a committee consisting of Mr. P. A. Morgan, Mrs. R. Abernethy, and Mrs. C. Veney.

Best pleaded guilty to the charges. He was alleged to have gone into a hotel intoxicated, refused to pay for a meal and damaged the room.

Seven days in the county jail were imposed on Samuel Kirkey, R.R. 1, Harold, when he was charged with operating a car while intoxicated.

"Marks on the road showed that he went for 192 feet on the wrong side of the road, careened back to the right side and finally overturned in a ditch," H. T. O. Sam Irvine, Belleville, stated. "He fell asleep at the wheel and a passing motorist helped him out." Kirkey was uninjured. The crown asked for leniency, pointing out that he had 13 children.

SEVENTEEN CREEKS GET 37,100 TROUT

Northumberland Streams Re-stocked Through Efforts Of B. K. Williams

Seventeen streams in Northumberland county are being re-stocked with trout as the result of the efforts of B. K. Williams of Warkworth who has nearly completed the work. The creeks among which 37,100 yearling trout have been distributed are Spring, Robin's, Chidley's, O'Grady's, Baltimore, Pegman's, Black's, Piper's, Quinn's, Duncan's, Valliau's, Burnley, Taylor's, DeLong's, Dartford, Sandy Flat and Cole's Creeks. An application for stocking Dawson Creek was cancelled as a large portion of the stream is ranied and posters are up announcing no fishing for 1937.

The Department of Game and Fisheries have adopted the policy of placing only yearling trout in streams so that they will not be food for older fish. The fish trout being distributed in Northumberland County have all been supplied from the Codrington rearing station and are of excellent quality.

Thanks to Mr. Williams' efforts there promises to be splendid trouting fishing in Northumberland County.

Mother's, Daughters' Ages Total 264

Cairo, April 16—(CP)—THE world's oldest living couple, a mother and her daughter, have been "discovered" in a village of lower Egypt during the Egyptian census being carried out. The mother, Hitaiya El-Sayed, is 137 years old and her daughter, Moucharrafa Hachem, is 107. Even though they are wizened and their skin looks like old parchment, the census official would not believe the ages claimed by the women until the mother began to talk about Napoleon's campaign in Egypt.

There Is Just One Asset

The Town of Weston is in default on principal and interest of $10,000 debentures held in Woodstock's sinking fund. Can't we garnishee its tax roll or seize the town hall, or something?—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

We realize of course the Woodstock paper is not seriously suggesting that a raid be made on Weston, but what would happen were Woodstock to decide to take action and try to realize on its bonds?

There would be a sewage disposal plant there, but of what use would that be even if it could be seized? Then there would be roads and sidewalks, all paved, but it would hardly be worth the effort involved to try and take them up and place them in Woodstock. If Woodstock were to seize the town hall it might possibly have a better building than it now possesses, but not having seen the Weston building recently that too is a matter of conjecture. But a town hall in Weston would be of no use to Woodstock.

The truth seems to be that about all any municipality possesses in the way of a convertible asset is the ability of its taxpayers to keep on handing over money. If that asset had not been partially destroyed in Weston then Woodstock would not today be worried at all about the principal or interest in its Weston bond, nor would the Oxford county editor be wondering how one should go about it in order to seize a town hall.

If 125 People Came!

The Examiner correspondent at Warsaw tells of a gathering which was held on the 2nd Line of Dummer, the occasion being a gathering of friends and neighbors to say farewell to a family which is leaving to live near Springville. We learn that the roads were not in good condition. One family had to take what is described as the long way around to get there.

There was the presentation of gifts, some dancing and a good time generally, as well as refreshments, but the part which seemed most interesting was that in all 125 people were present.

To folk who live in houses and apartments in cities that is just about big enough to be called amazing. It is more than enlightening. There are scores of homes in all cities where half a dozen or ten people would make the place crowded. There are of course the larger homes where people can gather with greater numerical strength, but to the average city dweller the suggestion of 125 good people gathering to spend the evening and do a bit of dancing and presenting and eating is something of a revelation. It must be that in the rural districts people come to know each other better and the moving away of a family is a matter of considerable community concern and interest.

When the Legislature Meets

The resignation of two members of the Hepburn cabinet does not call for a by-election. Hon. D. A. Croll is member for Windsor-Walkerville, and he will continue to retain that seat. Hon. A. W. Roebuck sits for Bellwoods riding in Toronto and will likely continue to do so. The Premier has already named another occupant for the post of Attorney-General, and Mr. Hepburn will himself administer the Department of Labor and Welfare.

For the present there will be no particular issue for the Premier to face as far as the Legislature is concerned. It is not now in session, and will not be for some months. But when it does again convene things may not be so pleasant. There will be two former members of Mr. Hepburn's cabinet sitting as private members, and it will be necessary for the Liberal membership of the Legislature to be more or less reconciled to the change which was hurriedly brought about by the demand of the Premier. It may be some of the members will not be in agreement with the changes which have been made. The strike in Oshawa will be settled long before the Legislature meets, but the by-products of the strike, particularly as they have affected the personnel of the cabinet, will remain.

It is worth noting that the Conservative members of the Legislature are not making statements at the moment regarding the line of action which Premier Hepburn has taken in dealing with the situation at Oshawa. Certainly it is not the time when political advantage could be or should be sought, and it may be Conservative opinion is behind the Premier.

There was a certain degree of precedent created about the time of the furniture strike in Stratford which was being conducted by the Workers' Unity League, an organization which sought to organize by industries rather than by the several crafts or trades represented in those industries. The claim was made then that the Workers' Unity League was a communist organization acting under directions from Moscow.

A booklet was at that time prepared and given wide circulation over the name of Hon. W. H. Price, K.C., Attorney-General for Ontario, and across the front page in red lettering the title was "Agents of Revolution—A History of the Workers' Unity League, Setting Forth Its Origin and Aims." By issuing the booklet at that time then the Conservative government of the day plainly identified itself with opposition to the form of industrial unionism then being attempted. It is just about the same stand which Premier Hepburn is taking today and for that reason the Conservatives, even if they so desired, would not be in a free position to openly criticize the Premier.

Another Difference

It seems to take only a few hours to start a new battle in connection with the strike at Oshawa. There has been more fighting elsewhere than has yet developed at the strike centre. On that front there has been none, but in the political arena there has been much, but fortunately it is all by word of mouth and the casualty list is not heavy.

It appears Premier Hepburn desires to have the full backing of all police and mounted men he may require from Ottawa in dealing with any situation which may arise in Ontario. The Premier says he has reports which he holds are confidential showing there may be several outbreaks in the province in order to weaken the supply of men which could be sent to Oshawa.

On April 8 Mr. Hepburn wired Minister of Justice Hon. Ernest Lapointe urging that a detachment be sent to Toronto to be held in waiting there. The reply sent by Mr. Lapointe as recorded in Hansard of April 9 was:

> "Seventy men unmounted will leave at three o'clock for Toronto. Thirty-three all ranks mounted will leave at six o'clock for Toronto. All to be placed at your disposal with understanding that all expenses as usual will be paid by province."

That was the situation up until Wednesday, the 14th, when Premier Hepburn again called Ottawa asking for reinforcements. About the same time Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of Defence, had been in Toronto and had lunched with Mr. Hepburn and two other gentlemen. Following the luncheon Premier Hepburn made the announcement that the federal authorities were willing to send him all the assistance needed. Mr. Mackenzie says no such promise was made, and further evidence of the attitude of Ottawa came in a telegram from the Minister of Justice saying it was impossible to place further police at his disposal.

Premier Hepburn does not think much of Ottawa. He has said so and calls the attitude of the capital vascillating, and he is now asking Ottawa to take its police and horsemen back home again, and no doubt that will be done. Mr. Hepburn is not pleased with the instructions given to the Mounted forces that they were to participate only in an extremity. The Premier interprets that as meaning that they would wait "until the provincial police got their heads broken" before they went into action. The Mounted Police are well trained and thoroughly disciplined, nor are they amateurs, and it is probably a fact they would not take action unless it were necessary, an attitude which in all cases is rather commendable.

The exchange between Toronto and Ottawa may make rather good reading, but in it we see little or nothing which has direct bearing on the serious business of bringing the settlement of the strike any closer.

Putting on the Pressure

Nervous breakdown, unknown fifty years ago, is becoming a common thing today. Premier Baldwin spoke on that text when he addressed a dinner gathering sponsored by the Federation of British Industries. At one place he said: "I see a danger ahead that our people may become mechanized, mechanized not only in body but mechanized in mind. I dread the mass mind. I dread the loss of our independent, individualistic character that has made this nation what it is."

And yet the very thing which Premier Baldwin fears is taking place. There is mass action, mass production, mass selling. In Canada we sell our wheat that way, the sales of our bacon are regulated by the sales in the British market, the price of our wheat is governed by the mass sales of Argentine and of other exporting nations. The day in which the individual ran his own business is being largely forced out of the picture.

Wellington Jeffers, financial editor of the Globe and Mail, discussed an almost similar thing, following an interview with a departmental advisor in the Government at Washington. The point was whether business would not be ruined by the amount of regulation which the government was bringing to bear upon it. The answer was "Business has to be regulated because business cannot regulate itself under present world conditions and especially with so many countries operating on policies of self-sufficient nationalism."

The Washington man said he had been candidly informed by the manager of one of the largest industrial concerns in United States that the amount of pressure which was being placed on business executives today was more than could be sustained. Each year there was an objective set for the business which had to be secured, and each year the mark was placed 10 per cent. higher than in the previous year. He explained that meant more than a 10 per cent. increase because each year the total is larger by 10 per cent. In order to secure that business it was necessary to buy farther ahead, to expand here and there, to risk over-production, and put the pressure on all over the organization.

Admittedly such policy makes competition keener and it makes it more bitter. It actually forces men to transagress the laws of decency and fairness. Machinery can stand it but the human element cannot.

In answer to a question as to why this industrial manager went ahead on a basis which he knew was too hard, the reply was simply this:

> "Because I would lose my job if I did not. My fellow directors would think I was losing my grip if my sales did not increase."

That continued pressure is reflected in the increasing demand for younger men in business, in industry and in sales forces. They have strength and vitality and can stand the pace—for a while. The problem comes when they are worn out or burned out, and that is the point which Premier Baldwin was discussing. The machinery can be renewed but the men cannot.

NOTE AND COMMENT

At least his worst enemy would not think of accusing Premier Hepburn of running away from any fights.

Judging from his utterances Premier Hepburn has no use for King's horses or King's men.

British labor leaders are apparently of the opinion that in her attitude toward the Bilbao blockade Britannia has waived the rules.

If it be true, as Dean Inge says, that character is determined by the use made of leisure hours, a great many folk in recent years have had ample time to do some character building.

California observatory man predicts the summer will be hot and women's clothes should be as light as possible. He will probably be right on the second count in any event.

It has cost Montreal $24,323 to settle with folk who were injured by falling on slippery sidewalks during the winter. In sporting parlance the breaks have been against the city.

A Toronto man sustained a fracture of his shoulder in a wrestling bout. He must have been an amateur; the professionals know how to fall without hurting themselves.

If missionary societies have any surplus of representatives to send forth there should be a fertile field for their efforts in Duck Hill, Miss., where they torture negroes with white-hot blow torches before murdering them.

Quebec Conservatives have purchased the $25,000 residence of Lady Price to be used as a club. There was a time not so long ago when the party in the province could not have purchased a portable hut.

The British Columbia man who drove his pick into a box of dynamite and lived to tell about it had a narrow escape but many unskillful motorists who drive at 60 miles an hour come just as close to death without even realizing it.

In the Toronto Star we read "There is no Communist party in Canada of the least consequence." But let's see—didn't Tim Buck, the Communist candidate, poll a vote in Toronto which was almost large enough to elect him?

Some people are spoken of as light-fingered but that does not seem to be the appropriate term to describe the man who stole the twenty-two foot smokestack at Port Colborne or the Montreal youth who made off with an ambulance.

SHE LEARNED

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Alfalfa's feet are really large, each looks just like a fair-sized barge, they are not small and neat; Alfalfa used to worry some, and wonder on what might be done to curb her growing feet.

¶ Alfalfa has a goodly frame, she is not built demure and tame, she's not a broken weed; she needs big feet on which to stand, for she bears heavy on the land, for she is large indeed.

¶ And for a while she suffered much, I thought at times she'd need a crutch, she hummed her hymn of hate; I marvelled at the shoes she wore, she'd poke her foot into a four, when she should take an eight.

¶ Alfalfa's feet were bound with corns, and each one had a set of horns, nor did she ever smile; she could not dance or have her fling, nor frolic in the days of spring, she paid the price for style.

¶ Alfalfa canned her pride one day, she flung her little shoes away, repented of mistakes; no more she said she'd take a four, but went right boldly to the store, and there she asked for eights.

¶ She cares not if her feet are great, she glories in her number eight, she walks with measured tread; nor does she limp along the street, and suffer from her calloused feet—likewise her corns have fled.

British Labor More Advanced

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Not wishing to sail under any false colors, may I state that I am a minister of the Gospel from choice and conviction but previous to entering upon my present calling was a railway worker and a member in good standing of an all-inclusive railway workers' union. My experiences at that time led me to interest myself in trade-unionism, which interest I have never lost since.

The present timely discussions on this subject lead one to think that the majority of publicists understand little of the psychology of trade-unionists, very little of the history of trade-unionism, or that the dice is deliberately loaded against the workers.

The United States and Canada are forty years behind Great Britain in this matter of the organization of Labor and capitalism's relation thereto. What we are now passing through Great Britain passed through fifty or more years ago. Industrial peace will grow with the growing strength of organized Labor, and when Labor is sufficiently organized to be respected, and has shaken off its slave mentality, industrial peace will have arrived. Last summer I talked to men on the sea and in Britain and asked if they belonged to a trade union and was informed that their employers would not consider engaging them if they did not. A lot of our trouble results from the fact that we have not progressed with the times and our minds are cluttered up with mental furniture that is outmoded and out-dated. For instance, we accept without question immense aggregations of international capital, in many cases managed by highly paid foreign managers or efficiency experts who are expected to get profits for foreign investors, and then pull our hair and heap abuse and misrepresentation upon organized Labor because in self defence it seeks also to organize internationally.

Our praise and flowers for the A.F.L. in so far as it represents the old idea of craft unionism are very appropriate because, in so far as being effective under modern conditions is concerned, it is as good as dead. The crafts under present day industrialism are being rendered obsolete and therefor there is no effective way for workers to organize except by industries. To say that hundreds of thousands of workers are organizing solely at the dictates of two or three "highly paid agitators" is not good enough; it is too great a strain upon our credulity, and those who so shout are either playing the old game or they sadly misunderstand present trends.

Now to be more specific and more brief.

From Premier Hepburn, in characteristic style, we hear about foreign dictators, big salaries out of pay-envelopes, interference, etc., etc. In comparison is not O.M.G. an international organization? Are not some of the men in the higher positions United States citizens? Compare their salaries with the salaries of the Union organizers. I claim there is nothing wrong about this except the odious implications.

Then all this talk about law and order and special police and R.C.M.P., and all the weight of the government, etc. I know many people who have worked and still work in Oshawa. They are as respectable, as law abiding, as religious, as in most of our communities. Treated fairly and decently they themselves will strive to keep everything orderly. Nothing worse could be done than to begin to threaten, then to shove about and then to crack someone on the head and then to make arrests as is usually the procedure in such cases. If there is sincerity in all this then why has something not been done about that disgraceful affair at Barnia?

Much more might be said, Mr. Editor, but my chief concern is with the peculiar mentality that looks upon labor somewhat as many look upon a dog. As long as he is docile and obedient he is called a good fellow and patted on the back, but is smothered with abuse when he asserts his desire for freedom of action. Our present infatuation for profits, profits, profits, means nothing more or less than a percentage of our people must labor as wage-earners, or producers in other ways, to keep many others in idleness. The scandalous revelations brought out by various commissions of late show iniquity from the other angle. Who is waxing indignant about this? Three things in the Bible are mentioned whose cry is going up to heaven. They are, murder, immorality, and the oppression of the laborer in his wages. In the name of God, our common humanity, and for a brighter future, we must "study to shew ourselves approved unto God," not to maintain the status quo but to change things so that justice will be done to all. I hope also that we will not apply epithets to sincere men whatever they are or wherever they come from.

To God, none are foreigners. For us the question should be, "Is it right and Christian?"

Yours truly,
E. M. COOK.

Fraserville, April 15.

A WASTE OF MONEY.

(Chatham News)

In the United States every voter is said to receive eight tons of mail from the government. In Canada every newspaper receives tons of mail from the government—reports of commissions, and other government printing, some of it on the finest of paper, which goes immediately to the waste basket. Apart from the cost of sending it, there are the printing and bookbinding bills which must amount to a tidy sum during a year's time.

Using the Potato Eye.

(From the Ottawa Journal.)

THE airplane, the potato and the rapid opening of Canada's Northland may unite as a triumvirate of new business.

Everyone who has had to do with a farm or garden knows that now, or now-about is the time when the seed potatoes are cut in right-sized pieces, with the proper number of "eyes" for planting. That is all right for the home gardener or even for the farmer who has grown his own seed potatoes for the season's planting.

But imagine a far-northern mine, say a gold mine, whose working force is rapidly increasing. At the mine or near it is a new town, and around the town is a fringe of new gardens and farms. One of the most-needed supplies for such a community is potatoes. Transport is by airplane. This machine is a lady—it prefers not to put on weight. Potatoes are heavy, and the freight charges are high.

The seed store faced this problem of transport years ago, and solved it at least to meet a relatively small demand. But the rapid development of the North may greatly increase this business.

What is really wanted for planting is not the potato, but the "eye." By proper means, this can be separated from the tuber without serious injury to its reproductive quality. Prepared for shipment, it weighs only half an ounce and can be supplied in the ordinary way for a cent or two—depending on the variety—freight prepaid. As the mining community is usually "flush" the settler on his new farm may find this new seed ideally suitable for his potato growing.

Experiments have proven that, even in a generally unfavorable season seed of this form produces tubers at the average rate of one pound for each "eye" planted, and under more favorable conditions the crop will run from 300 to 400 bushels to the acre—the average yield for all Canada in 1935 was about 130 bushels to the acre.

This use of the potato "eye" may turn out to be a true invention, a combination for new purposes of devices already known; like the railway, for instance, which combined the coach, the metal rail and the Watt engine in proper relation to gridiron every continent.

More Power For the Sheriff.

(From the Brockville Recorder and Times.)

THE Sheriff used to be an official whose duties were clothed with considerable authority. He had petty responsibilities to discharge, but had also very important ones. He represented the majesty of the law and when he appeared in public in his official garb of office he often looked the part and struck terror into the hearts of malefactors and evil-doers.

Of recent years the Sheriff has not been such an important official. He has had many of his duties taken away from him, and in some sections so little has been thought of him that his office has been merged with others and, indeed, it has been frequently contended that he should be abolished altogether, as a rather meaningless official whose existence is no longer a real necessity.

But the Ontario Legislature has come to the Sheriff's rescue and has begun to invest him with new responsibilities. Under legislation which becomes effective May 24, it is provided that the care of the county jails, their offices, their yards and apartments shall be placed within the sole jurisdiction of the Sheriff. Moreover, the Sheriff, having been placed in charge of the jail, is also to possess sole jurisdiction in regard to the appointments of the jailer, the jail surgeon and other officers of the county jail except that the appointment or dismissal of the jailer has to be approved by order-in-council.

It is further provided that if a county or a city neglects to or refuses to pay the salaries of jailers and jail officers or to keep the jail in repair or make alterations or additions, or if it refuses to pay expenses incurred by a provincial police officer, the Auditor of Criminal Justice Accounts may pay these expenses and deduct the amount from any moneys payable by the province to such county or city. The salary of the jailer or jail officers is to be fixed by the county council and the county or city is to pay the salaries so fixed.

On and after May 24, therefore the Sheriff will be the "boss" of the jail. It will be within his "sole jurisdiction" and he will have almost everything to say about how it is administered. This is giving the Sheriff additional duties and returning to him some of the authority that he formerly exercised.

Mothers Defend the Stork.

(From the St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

THE mothers of Roslyn, N.Y., are up in arms because teachers in the elementary school there have been discounting the stork theory. The case for the long-billed bird, which is especially chummy with medical men, was succinctly stated by Mrs. Thomas Gilmore, whose three-year-old daughter is among those receiving enlightenment regarding the advent of babies. So far as three-year-old children are concerned, Mrs. Gilmore told Dr. J. E. Morrison, commissioner in charge of all elementary schools in the state, storks bring babies. No one could recall ever having seen a stork in Roslyn, but nevertheless storks bring babies. They not only bring human babies; they bring animal babies, including rats, or rather "ratettes."

Rats are vital in this controversy because Mrs. Gilmore deposed that a cage of rats was kept in one of the classes attended by her daughter. By observing these rats, Mrs. Gilmore said, her daughter soon found out how animals are born and thus lost faith in the old-established theory that storks bring babies and drop them down chimneys, fleshly diapered. Mrs. Gilmore withdrew her daughter from the school, observing that it was hardly cricket of the teachers to destroy the faith of children in the stork before they taught them how to read and write.

Dr. Morrison, in order no doubt that he may have an opportunity to recover his poise and perspective, has asked time in which to make a thorough survey of subversive propaganda against storks. Mrs. Gilmore and the pro-stork people said that was all right and that they would say nothing more about it until the State Board of Education filed its report. If the board knows mothers, it will probably agree with Mrs. Gilmore that so far as three-year-olds are concerned storks do bring little brothers and sisters.

After all, it does seem a little premature to kill off the stork in the minds of three-year-old children, especially if a case of prolific rats is used as an object lesson. A right start along educational lines does not require this, even in this modern age. The stork, like Santa Claus, is an innocent subterfuge which passes away with the passing of the years without having harmed the youthful minds that believed in the age-old fallacy.

ADDED DANGER.

(Montreal Star)

IT is not surprising that some Ontario newspapers are showing more than a little uneasiness over the action of the Legislature in stepping up the speed limit on the highways to fifty miles an hour (and through) settled areas to thirty. They are thankful that the original plan, to abolish the speed limit altogether, was abandoned in favour of maintaining a maximum legal speed; but are wondering whether the greater latitude this offers will not mean added danger.

That, it seems to us, is what must be feared in any change in existing speed limits, until such time as drivers are far more disposed to obey the law than many of them are at present. It may be argued that existing speed limits on highways are very largely unobserved now and that a law which is not respected is better off the statute books. But, after all, what we are trying to do is to minimize the risk as much as possible. Granted that many motorists who are supposed to keep down to thirty-five miles an hour on the highways now run as fifty and keep about that speed. Knowing they are going above the legal rate but taking a chance, would not a legal limit of fifty probably see these same people going their sixty and seventy with just so much more danger of an accident which, at such speeds, would be almost certain to be fatal?

STRANGE TRADES.

(Kitchener Recorder)

PROBABLY Uncle Sam takes the cake when it comes to providing the greatest variety of trades. According to the United States Census Bureau, there are approximately 30,000 occupations by which the people of the neighboring republic earn a livelihood.

Among the strangest of these "trades" are those listed on census rolls by various mills and factory owners. For example, there are no reference to lovers on a park bench, but are workers who clean out holes in coal mines for dynamite charges. "Hockey" work is knitting mills, finishing necks on sweaters. "Toothknockers" are not employed by dentists, but in meat packing houses. "Knockers-down" have a particular job in glass factories. Another class of glass factory workers is known as "snipe men."

To The Editor

THE JEWS A NATION?

Editor Examiner.

Sir: The late Herr Dibelius, Professor of English in the University of Berlin, Germany, wrote the book "England," published since the war.

His compatriot, Evangelist Otto Klink, who in Peterboro', on Sunday, preached on the Jew, had evidently never heard of the profundity of information of the learned Professor.

We live in a world of confusion, but it is the duty and responsibility of each of us, to do our bit towards bringing order out of chaos.

I venture to point out inconsistencies in Rev. Klink's sermon, which I feel sure he will analyse and appreciate in the spirit of truth and order, for it is a comforting faith that truth and order must finally prevail, as against self and the false systems of to-day; causing such tribulations.

How could the Jews be the people of God? They who rejected Christ and still do, and said, "His blood be on us and on our children," as it has been through this age.

Though extreme nationalists and isolationalists since the first century, they never have been, and never can be, a nation, except through re-union with "the whole House of Israel," for the Jews are mainly but one of the twelve tribes of God's people, Israel. They did not understand One who said: "My Kingdom is not of this world" (i.e. spiritual) and "I am among you as one who serves." Neither do some nations and people today understand, some of them declared to be Christian.

Christ said: "The Kingdom of God shall be taken from you, (Jews) and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." The Jews are a people, remarkable in that they are scattered in every land and yet retain their identity,—are not lost. Neither is that nation and people (not church, ecclesia) to whom Christ said the Kingdom of God would be given. It must be "bringing forth the fruits thereof," quite humanly of course, but as the dominant ideal, and be a stabilizing force in the earth. Dibelius, Victor Hugo and others who were not of the Celto-Saxon and kindred peoples, pointed to where this people could be found. It must have dominant spiritual qualifications and the spiritual will see them.

champions in 1930, would like to show the premier "what it is to fight," because of Mr. Hepburn's statement that Hall owes the province $239.25 from his 1933-34 term as Crown Attorney.

Mayor Hall termed the claim a "downright falsehood," said it was made on a misinterpretation of the statutes and that when he asked the government to take action to recover two years ago, the claim was dropped. The money involved had to do with work Hall did, not with accounts, he said. "I have never in my life handled one cent of the province's money," Hall said. "I have never received one cent from the province for my services without my accounts first being audited by the County Board of Audit and subsequently by the Attorney General's Department."

The mayor added: "It is as certain as it is evident that this report follows immediately on word from Detroit indicating the action taken by myself may contribute to a settlement of this Oshawa strike where the prime minister has so ridiculously failed."

Promising he would restrain himself from commenting further until the strike is settled the mayor said "After that he (the premier) will find out what it is to fight. I regret the existence of a law which makes it impossible for me to give Hepburn the worst threshing any man ever received in an effort to teach him the first rudiments of decency."

MARTIN TO URGE WORK ON MONDAY

Canadian firm, Martin telephoned C. E. Wilson, vice-president of General Motors Corporation, at Detroit. He asked Mr. Wilson to arrange the conference with Mr. Carmichael as soon as possible.

Mass meeting of strikers will be held at eight o'clock tonight when Martin will speak to the men.

Hepburn Parley Fails.

TORONTO, April 16.—(CP) — The conference, called by Premier Mitchell Hepburn in an effort to end the General Motors strike at Oshawa, had not taken place up to noon to-day.

The attitude of union officials in Oshawa regarding the meeting scheduled for 11 a.m. was not definitely known, although strike leaders in Oshawa indicated they would continue to ignore the invitation from the Premier.

Mr. Hepburn asked General Motors executives yesterday to join with Oshawa local union representatives in conference he hoped would send 3,700 automotive strikers, out since April 8, back to work.

Thompson, Martin Return.

OSHAWA, April 16.—(CP)—Hugh Thompson, United Automobile Workers' organizer here to advise 3,700 General Motors strikers, to-day said: "I think Hepburn (Premier Hepburn of Ontario) will not be taking part in any negotiations between the union and the company."

Thompson returned to Oshawa where the strike has been underway since April 8 with Homer Martin, International Union President, who addressed a Windsor General Motors meeting last night. More than 3,000 strikers paraded to the railway station to greet them.

Martin, slight 33-year-old former Baptist minister also had statements to make regarding Premier Hepburn's opposition to international union leaders appearing in the strike picture.

"Hepburn is not in this province, is he?" he remarked in a Kansas drawl. "I thought he was outside Canada. I noticed in the papers that Hitler and Mussolini were having a conference. I thought Dictator Hepburn would be taking part."

Considers 2 Companies One.

When asked if he would meet Harry Carmichael, vice-president and general manager of General Motors of Canada, the union leader said: "I will first call Wilson, and as a result of that look for a settlement of the strike. General Motors in United States and General Motors in Canada are one company. I have always so considered them, and I know they are."

The dapper young Baptist clergyman, head of nearly 400,000 unionized motor workers, hesitated when questioned concerning the Detroit announcement settlement would be up to Canadian company officials and the local union.

"It is true we conferred yesterday in Detroit in the matter of a settlement of the strike and I am here as a result of that conference," he said.

Mum on Detroit Stand.

Strike settlement "depends on a number of things," he continued. He admitted he was not prepared to answer questions regarding the Detroit announcement at the moment.

"Is there a possibility of the men being back at work by Monday?"

"There is a possibility, yes, when their rights are granted them," replied Martin.

He was silent on union recognition demands of the strikers and refused to comment regarding wage increases asked.

"We are seeking a settlement of the controversy," he added. "As to what we are demanding is a matter of negotiation."

Mayor Alex Hall's "ultimatum" that the union call a sympathetic United States strike if settlement was not reached here this week brought brief comment from Mr. Martin.

Hall Not Union Spokesman

"The mayor is not an expert in labor relations," he declared. "I don't think he pretends to be. He is well intentioned perhaps, but he doesn't speak for the international union."

When it was remarked the mayor claimed to speak for Oshawa citizens which would ostracize strikers, Martin said: "He is perhaps speaking as to his ideas concerning Oshawa citizens."

Strikers talked over the situation on the streets and in the picket line, making no pretence to their expectation for settlement before next week. They awaited eagerly outcome of Premier Mitchell Hepburn's peace conference in Toronto to-day.

London Paper Says War Talk Overstressed In United States

LONDON, April 16 (CP). — The United States press is steadily building up the belief in that country that war is coming in Europe, the Daily Express said in an editorial.

"That is to say, it is giving undue weight to some of the more exciting happenings on the Continent," the article continued. "Here we are getting used to the thunder and begin to doubt if the lightning will hurt anybody.

"Unfortunately the Americans feel that if trouble should come we'll be in it. On that account they are not anxious to draw much closer to us.

"Now if we could persuade America that Britain is never going to war unless she is attacked—and nobody is likely to try that on—then we should immensely strengthen the friendship that exists between us. And an Anglo-American entente would increase beyond measure the chance that war will be ruled out everywhere."

SEAMEN'S STRIKE SETTLED IN TIME

Agreement Comes Before Walkout Ties Up 17 Ships, Including 2 Liners

NEW YORK, April 16 (AP). — A strike of seamen and wireless operators which threatened to tie up 17 ships, two of them transatlantic liners, was settled early today at a conference attended by the regional director of the National Labor Relations Board.

Two vessels already lay idle at adjoining piers in New York harbor when an agreement to terminate the short-lived walkout was announced by Mrs. Elinore M. Herrick, the board's New York representative. The liners were the President Roosevelt and The California.

The immediate issue in the strike, called Wednesday, and involved only ships of the International Mercantile Marine Corporation, was the supremacy of one faction of seamen over another.

Injected into the situation yesterday was a corollary strike of radio operators, coincident with receipt of a charter by the American Radio Telegraphists' Association from the Lewis committee for industrial organization.

The agreement included a provision for conferences looking toward an election to determine proper bargaining agencies among I.M.M. employees.

DISCOVERY TAKES BAD TASTE, ODOR FROM FOOD, DRINK

"Magnet" Employs Same Kind Of Carbon As Used In War-Time Gas Masks

EXTREMELY WIDE USE

CHAPEL HILL, N.C., April 16 (AP)—The gas masks of wartime have resulted in discovery of a magnet that extracts bad tastes and flavors and unwanted odors from food and drink.

The taste magnet, described to the American Chemical Society today by John W. Hassler of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, Tyrone, Pa., uses the same kind of carbon as gas masks.

The carbon is "activated," that is, it is given an unusual power of attraction. This is done by pulverizing the black material into particles so fine the carbon is virtually all surface. In that condition it acquires electrical forces common to the carbon atoms that form one of the basic substances of all the living world.

Use of the taste magnet is limited to food which can be temporarily reduced to a liquid or a gas during treatment. It is also limited to the tastes and odors due to impurities.

"For example," said Hassler, "it is not possible to make quinine less bitter by treatment with activated carbon, because bitterness is a physio-chemical property of quinine. However, if a liquid happens to contain quinine then activated carbon will remove the bitter taste by actually absorbing the quinine and removing it from the solution."

He said the carbon magnet takes unwanted flavors out of sorghum, cane and corn syrups, pineapple juice, vinegar, and various drugs. It is particularly good for cleaning up alcoholic liquors, wines, glycerine and water.

It has worked well on lard and sugar. In the case of gelatin the carbon removes virtually all traces of animal origin.

Well-Known Toronto Artist Delivers Address On Painting

Owen P. Staples And Annual Travelling Exhibition Of Paintings

OVALTINE SPONSOR

"The personality of the artist will unconsciously translate his subject into his own individual language.... There are four qualities that make a good picture; first, balance (or rhythm or one-ness); second, repose; third, vitality; fourth, infinity. And only the greatest pictures have the last quality, which is a spiritual quality that is difficult to define. There is also an elusive quality of light and a decorative quality to make the picture a thing of beauty...

"Making a picture is not just representing Nature, because it is an individual thing, and our eyes are all different..."

Owen P. Staples of Toronto, speaking on Thursday evening to a large audience in the green room and library of the Y.W.C.A., at a meeting held under auspices of the Women's Art Association in connection with the display here this week of the 9th Travelling Exhibition of pictures painted by members of the Ontario Society of Artists, held the entertained and pleased attention of his listeners with his very friendly way, his delightful personality and his thorough mastery of his subject.

Mr. Staples is one of the best-known of the painters and etchers of the Dominion. Born in England, coming to Canada as a small child, he has studied at the Rochester Art College (under Horatio Walker and others), at the Art Students' League in New York city, at the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts, and also under G. A. Reid of Toronto. He spoke on the subject nearest his heart—painting—and he allied with it, by likening pictures to various musical forms, the next dearest subject—music—for Mr. Staples is one of the senior and best-loved members of the Mendelssohn Choir which recently gave a triumphant performance in the city.

Mr. Staples, in his opening remarks, spoke of the pleasure experienced by the Choir members at their fine local reception. He was introduced in a happy little speech by Charles Saunders, acting for Charles Shaw, manager of the A. Wander Company, Limited, which annually and generously sponsors this worthwhile exhibition of fine paintings. Mr. Shaw was unable to be present, owing to another meeting which he was obliged to attend.

Acting for the president of the Art Association, Mrs. F. E. Hooper, the chair for the evening was taken by Mrs. P. M. Somerville.

Primitive Art

"There can be no ideal canon of beauty in these days," declared Mr. Staples. "For mere beauty often lacks the sort of character that you find in a picture like Whistler's 'Mother', for instance."

The outgrowth of a primitive note in modern art, he asserted, was owing to the desire of younger painters to excel over the older artists. They felt sometimes that they could not live up to the standard of perfection created by their seniors, so strove in other ways to form a new ideal of their own, just as musicians, despairing of reaching the heights of a composer like Beethoven, would turn to other forms of music and inject a crude rhythmic quality of primitive type.

Of the very latest form of art, termed surrealism, he said that its supporters called it the "art of the pre-conscious, "whatever that may mean."

"Some of these very modern pieces, you know, are intended to be trampled on rather than looked at. They are painted by sensation-seekers, who prepare a lot of brushes and then, when the radio lets out a wild scream, dab color o na canvas, as an expression of their own reaction. Or they attempt to convey to canvas some wild dream. They deny the vision of the eye in any normal perception."

Speaking of the school of post-impressionists: Cesan, Gauguin, Van Gogh and Matisse, the speaker related an experience of his own, when, in a spirit of fun, he emulated Van Gogh's liking for weird 'fiesta' pictures and painted quickly his wife lying on a sofa, to be astounded later by congratulations received after its display.

Describing various methods used in the composition of a picture, he listed the pyramidal tree formation in a landscape; the spiral or flame-like treatment; the horizontal lines which suggest repose and the dignified vertical lines, with impressions of movement in diagonal lines; the circular, rectangular and radii effects gained from use of differing lines in a painting.

He also said that photography is an art, as well as gardening or good dressmaking, when the maker holds the idea of beauty in his mind.

And he closed his address by a brief review in turn of the artist and his work, in relation to the pictures on view, displaying a great kindliness in his treatment of brother artists, and a keen appreciation of their talents. Mr. Staples displayed also quite firmly his dislike of what he calls the realistic trend, using several pictures as an illustration of the fact that a painting of this type does not have to be displayed 'as is'. He turned several upside-down to point out that they went quite as well in that position, with his benevolent face and twinkling glasses, crowned by snowy hair, peeping effectively over the top.

Few 'Moderns'

The pictures themselves are splendid examples of the skill of the painters who evolved these charming pieces. As the exhibitions come and go, from year to year, it is interesting to note how the modernistic pictures lessen in number. The first exhibition of this type, some years ago, contained many crude specimens. This 9th exhibit has only a few comparatively innocuous examples.

The pictures that catch the eye as one enters the green room are the three which hang on the line on the north (centre) wall. They are all in the somewhat quiet 'earth' colors that have a vogue now, for this display shows no violent colorings whatsoever.

One is by a native son, Harold McCrae, born in Peterborough, painted the glowing "Evening" scene, with its rosy undertones in sky and foliage, even the backs of its homeward-going cattle. Mr. Staples' own large picture (done entirely with a palette knife, according to him), "occupies the central place. It is called "Beech Wood, Belfountain", and the softness of mellow sunshine filters down through beech tree leaves and over quiet sheep that browse beneath them. The third picture is an exquisite and 'holding' painting, all in cool greyish greens (a 'symphony', as Mr. Staples expressed it), where "Spring in the Caledon Hills" comes in with a light and misty step, spreading her greyish mantle over rolling hills marked off in fields.

Distant Scenes

One of those interesting paintings that capture the attention on a second, rather than first glance, is George Kulmala's "North Country", with its foreground trees and pinkish rocks and distant hills. The impression of distance is more marked, possibly, in this than in any other picture, for far horizons are excluded from the majority of the paintings. By contrast, one example of close-up painting is in the figure which seems about to step out of the canvas, the woman in Panton's "Sunlight and Saffron."

Andre Lapine, for all his Canadian residence of long standing, harks back to a racial heritage in "Burning Weeds." There is a hint of that fanciful Russian dreaming in this compelling picture that is ruled by imagination.

Mild-mannered and sharply-defined brindle cows, allied with smoky green grass and soft skies, give an impression of rural peace of Palmer's "Ontario Pasture, Rice Lake", and there is plenty of atmospheric distinction to a notable bit placed behind a door, in Minnie Kallmeyer's "Peggy's Cove, N.S."

The women who paint the flowers on view go in for somewhat insipid and shadowy treatment of beautiful blossoms, in the main, but Dorothy Stevens makes up for it in her unlikeable, but very natural, delineation of a mass of raw vegetables, in a piece with the poetical name of "Autumn Fantasy." And, too, there is a bold and brilliant treatment of flowers in Mary E. Wrinch's painting, "Colour Scheme."

Something quite different in its symbolic treatment is in the neutral-tinted picture called "Art is Long", with a painter's old shoes and abandoned smock companioned by a grinning skull. And another small piece that 'gives you to think' is the brooding black and white "Indian Church", with its stark, effective limning of a half-ruined building. This is one of Charles Comfort's unforgettable pieces.

And just as a trio to wind up with, there are three memorable pictures. One is that bizarre and beautiful thing of Frank Carmichael's, "Scrub and Maple", with its combination of reality and fantastic coloring, in the splash of Autumn-tinted maple and scrub, silhouetted sharply against a dreamy blue that makes sky and earth and hills, in the background. It is a poetic painting.

Then there is the haze-filled loveliness of "Sands of Marta", where a quiet form reclines at ease, contemplating pink sands and a rippling stretch of blue water. Painted by Kenneth Forbes.

Sir Wyley Grier, limning with his sure and masterly hands the perfection of that fine portrait of a master-painter of other years, the late James Smith, must have liked well that 'lovely old man', as Mr. Staples described him. What an impression one gains of silent strength of genial character, from the broad brow, the wise old eyes, the fine old hands.

The paintings, with two small exceptions, are in oils. The exceptions are landscape water-colors.

Jilted Lover Spoils His Rival's Wedding

Winnipeg, April 16—(CP)

A PANACE Perfienuk started off with his bride-to-be to get married yesterday. Tonight he was still a bachelor and in hospital, suffering head wounds he said were inflicted by Daniel Marchuk, a suitor rejected by Perfenuk's fiancee.

Afanace told police Marchuk, wielding a hammer, had intercepted the couple on route to a church. He said he had been struck on the head and slashed across the face. After the alleged assault, Perfenuk staggered to a police station, swore out a complaint against Marchuk charging assault occasioning bodily harm, and then was taken to hospital. Police are looking for Marchuk.

WEDDINGS

MULDREW—POST

A pretty wedding was solemnized quietly at three o'clock in the afternoon of Wednesday at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Manse, when Blanche Marie Post second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marquis Post of Asphodel, was united in marriage to Orville James Muldrew, eldest son of Mrs. Muldrew and the late James Muldrew of Hope township. The Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr officiated.

The young people were unattended. The bride was becomingly gowned in a tailored dress of navy blue crepe with hat, shoes gloves and purse to match and corsage bouquet of pink rosebuds.

After the ceremony, a wedding supper was served to the immediate relatives at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Smith of Kenneth avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Muldrew, who will live on the bridegroom's farm in Hope township, received many lovely gifts from their friends.

ARMSTRONG—McCONKEY.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BRIDGENORTH, April 13. — A quiet wedding was solemnized at the manse on Wednesday at one o'clock, when Bertrace Horriott, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert McConkey of Smith, became the bride of Joseph Robert Armstrong, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ford Armstrong, also of Smith. Rev. C. O. Miller performed the ceremony. Attendants were Miss Edna McConkey, sister of the bride, and Donald Sage, cousin of the groom.

The bride was becomingly attired in triple sheer Coronation blue crepe with matching accessories. The bridesmaid was attired in Maize crepe with matching accessories.

After a short honeymoon they will reside in North Smith. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold wrist watch, to the bridesmaid a brilliant bracelet, and to the groomsman a leather bill-fold.

AMBITOUS HENS

MOOSE JAW—(CP).—Moose Jaw hens are out for the egg-laying crown following reports of a mammoth egg laid by a Lindsay, Ont., biddy. Ronald Bayne's Leghorn produced one 8¼inches around the middle and 5½ around the end. E. J. Randall's White Wyandotte followed with a 7 by 5-inch egg.

At the Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL

"SILENT BARRIERS."

A man's picture—one of those elemental affairs where men are depicted in their mental and physical struggle with the fierce and implacable forces of Nature. And the fact that this is historically true—that men did rage and sweat and strive against the strength of massive mountains—makes the production all the more interesting.

It is the record of the manner in which the C.P.R. was born, at least that transcontinental stretch of it which scaled the Rockies and found an outlet to the ocean for the products of field and orchard, across a Dominion.

The women are negligible factors and probably just dragged in for that touch of romantic interest which picture-makers deem essential for success. If they were deleted, the picture would probably just be that much stronger. There is a good and a bad woman, the dark and sharp-looking Mary Moody, and the blonde persons whose name is appropriately Lou.

The role seems made for Richard Arlen. He is known simply as Mickey, and makes one of a strong trio that dominates the production, with the Canadian-born J. Farrel Macdonald as Major Rogers, in charge of the laying of steel, and the one-eyed Roy Emerton, who has the prominent role of Dan Moody, hard-driving foreman of the construction gang. He is usually a smoothie in the villainous line-up. It isn't often you find him in the horny-handed section).

The scenery is magnificent in this picture, and there are some strong scenes, notably the explosion of the dynamite - laying and the scenes where the lone scouting party searches for a long-lost trail over the mountains. It is a strong and 'holding' production that brings from a forgotten past some of its epic-making heroes. And Sir John A. Macdonald is here for a brief glimpse, with his high stiff collar and pleasant Scotch twist to his tongue.

This reviewer sometimes wonders why there must be music with every production. There could hardly have been an orchestral accompaniment to the ring of pick and mallet in those old days. This music seems to cloud the story with dramatic artificiality.—C.L.M.

Home and School Association News

KING GEORGE SCHOOL.

P. E. Johnston, of the staff of the Vocational School, was guest speaker at the meeting of the King George Home and School Association, with the president, Mrs. M. Swanston, in the chair.

Mr. Johnston, asserting that "The things you like best you learn best," and that "Specialization is the only type of education for to-day," explained fully the course of the Vocational school in the Industrial Arts department. He asked the parents to watch and determine the type of work the child is best fitted for, even, as parents, they might themselves prefer some other avocation for their child.

F. E. Kerr continued his talks on the European situation; Mrs. E. Wand read the monthly Health paper, dealing with burns, scalds and general First Aid; Mrs. D. Miller and Mrs. C. English reported on their attendance at the Easter-week Home and School Federation meeting in Toronto, and it was decided to hold a Coronation tea shortly. The banner for the month went to Miss Bonnyeastle's room.

The musical program included two guitar selections by Billy Garnor, and a recitation by Miss Queenie Hope.

Women Of Bolivia Subject Of Address

Miss Mary Haddow gave an instructive talk on "Women of Bolivia" at the meeting of the W.M.S. of George Street United Church, with the president, Mrs. W. H. Motion, in the chair. The program was in the form of a Thanksoffering service and was in charge of the executive committee. Devotional services were taken by Mesdames Brenton, Ajrress, W. McMillan, while Mrs. F. W. Cope gave an interesting outline of the origin of Hymn 108, "The Day of Resurrection", stating that it was written by John of Damascus and translated from the Greek by John Neale. The hymn was then sung by Mrs. Scott Wildman, with Mrs. Purdy at the piano. Mrs. A. I. Brown gave a reading: "The Dream of the Layman", and Mrs. Mendell Bryand, guest soloist, contributed several songs, accompanied by Mrs. Lewis.

A new squad of police motorcyclists is to be used to give air raid warnings in Spain.

Accidental Death Verdict Returned In Madoc Inquest

$500 QUEENSBORO FIRE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, April 16.—A verdict of death from a fractured skull caused by falling timber in the shaft of the Canada Talc Mines was returned by a Coroner's Jury presided over by Dr. S. Eagleson, probing the death of Sidney Allport on Wednesday night. Ormonde Butler of Belleville, appeared for the Crown in the absence of County Crown Attorney B. C. Donban.

Allport was an employee of the Canada Talc Mines, a few miles from Madoc, and was riding down the new shaft of the mine in the bucket alone when the accident occurred, evidence given by the employees of the mine disclosed. Loose timber, falling down the shaft was blamed for his death. The men had not been forbidden to ride down the shaft, the employees told the jury. As Allport was alone in the bucket, no one actually saw the accident. It occurred last March 26th.

OBITUARY

MRS. WILLIAM HILL.
(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 16.—The funeral of the late Mrs. William Hill was held from her family residence on Albert Street, Hastings, on Tuesday afternoon, and was very largely attended by friends from the surrounding community and village. Her pastor, Rev. D. K. Perrie, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, conducted the service, assisted by a close neighbor and friend, the Rev. T. W. Newell of Trinity United Church. Two beautiful hymns, "Abide With Me" and "Oh Saviour, let me walk with Thee," and passages of Scripture full of consolation and hope were read by Rev. Perrie.

Deceased, who was widely known, was formerly Ellen Elphick, and was born near Colborne in 1864, and was married to her now sorrowing husband 56 years ago.

In her passing, the village of Hastings has lost a good citizen, a woman of fine character, endowed with a pleasant and friendly personality, and a Christian spirit, whose foremost solicitude was for the goodwill and well-being of others, especially the needy. A life-member of St. Andrew's W.M.S. since 1923, and president of the society for over 10 years, and as teacher of the Sunday School infant class, she was faithful to the last. Her death has brought deep feelings of regret to all who knew her, and pleasant memories of her will be remembered by all who enjoyed her friendship. Her love and self-sacrifice made her especially dear to her very bereaved husband, her two daughters, Mrs. E. Limegrover (Gertrude) of Pittsburgh, and Beryl at home, and five sons: George and Bruce of Pittsburgh, Walter of Chicago, Thomas of Detroit, and Lynn at home; also two brothers, William Elphick of Campbellford and George Elphick of Minneapolis, and nine grandchildren. The pall-bearers were her five sons and her son-in-law, E. Limegrover of Pittsburgh.

SUCCESSFUL SALE AT CAMPBELLFORD

Entertaining Program Given At St. Andrew's Church Social Event

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 16.—Members of all denominations were welcomed in a brief address by the Rev. B. Simpson Black at a tea and bake sale held under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Wednesday afternoon. Marking an occasion unique in the history of St. Andrew's Church here over 100 ladies gathered in the manse parlors where they were received by Mr. Black who was assisted by Mrs. J. W. Cairns. A delightful program was arranged by the vice-president, Mrs. Fred Adamson in the absence of the president, Mrs. J. Goven.

C.I.O. REFUSES STRIKE IN U.S.

strike must be settled in Canada. They agreed no United States strike would be called as long as General Motors did not attempt to send cars into Canada.

The Oshawa workers do not consider Martin's action a "sell-out." Mr. Millard said last night it may appear to the public that his union was not getting the support of the International but that was not true. He declared it must be remembered General Motors workers in the United States have an agreement and must keep it.

The conference was scheduled for a room a short distance from the Parliament buildings basement where Col. Fraser Hunter, Toronto Liberal M.L.A., was recruiting 200 more men in a special police force at Premier Hepburn's order.

Training 200 Recruits.

Colonel Hunter, formerly of the British Indian Army, has been training 200 recruits in his special police force this week at the Premier's request, and the force was ordered doubled when Mr. Hepburn asked the Dominion Government to recall a Royal Canadian Mounted Police detachment sent here from Ottawa.

The recall request followed refusal of the Federal Government to grant Mr. Hepburn's call for additional Mounties.

Ottawa replied yesterday that it was not advisable to withdraw "a large number of the members of the force from their present location."

The refusal brought a charge from the Ontario Premier that the Ottawa Government had adopted a "vacillating" attitude, promising aid one day and refusing it the next.

Mr. Hepburn believes he is justified in forming the special force, which is made up mostly of war veterans and university undergraduates. He told newspapermen he had "definite reports" of Communist activity at Oshawa and police reports of plans for disturbances at various points throughout the province in case of an outbreak at Oshawa. The Oshawa force numbers 27 policemen.

Civil servants in the departments formerly controlled by David Croll and Arthur W. Roebuck wondered to-day whether there would be further dismissals following the resignations of the ministers. Joseph Sedgwick, K.C., a senior solicitor in the Attorney-General's Department, was dismissed yesterday, and it was indicated there may be some dismissals in the Welfare Department.

Local evening newspapers have reported rumors of a possible early general election in Ontario. Premier Hepburn declines to say whether he will seek a mandate from the people on his course of action in the strike. The Evening Telegram quoted the Premier as saying "exactly" when asked whether his "nothing to say" meant he was not denying he might call an election.

CABINET MAPPING OUT ITS PROGRAM IMPERIAL PARLEY

The nation's railway company is authorized by statute to acquire all the $5,000,000 capital of the airline which may be divided into $100 shares, 49 per cent. of which may be sold to aviation companies. The road will keep the real, giving it majority control.

This capital will cover, among other things, Canada's 24½ share in the projected trans-Atlantic joint airway company to be launched by this country, the United Kingdom and the Irish Free State. Canada's investment will be $1,250,000.

It was estimated $1,750,000 will be required to inaugurate the trans-Canada service and $2,000,000 more will be held for developments. Mr. Howe estimated postal revenues from the line will pay its operation within three years, covering cost of daily flights from coast to coast, both east and west. Until 1940 the Dominion will pay any deficits.

Mr. Mackenzie King said yesterday no announcement on the Imperial Conference policy was likely until the eve of the delegation's sailing. It was prophesied in some circles, however, that the Dominion might indicate some willingness to open part way at least, the door that has restricted flow of immigrants to this country during the years since the depression set in.

Those inclined to view defence discussions with nervousness recalled reassuringly the Prime Minister's words near the end of the parliamentary session, that in his view it was unlikely the Dominion ever again would send a fighting force to Europe and doubtful if the United Kingdom, itself, ever again would take such a course in a Continental conflict.

Pageantry Of The Far East Depicted In Religious Play

St. James' Sunday School Presents 'The Gate Beautiful' To Large Audience

CAPABLE CAST

All the pageantry of Eastern romance, the drama of the first Passion Week and the beauty of the resurrection were unfolded in the presentation of "The Gate Beautiful," presented by the Sunday School of St. James' United Church, and held in the auditorium Thursday night.

A large and appreciative audience greeted this initial performance of an unusually fine religious pageant. With a personnel of seventy, this production was unique in its simplicity of scenery, attractive lighting and its pantomime effect. Its deep religious tone and reverent presentation, made it a most inspiring spectacle.

Story of Passion Week.

Portraying the events of Passion Week in story, song and action, the first scene opened on the triumphal entry into Jerusalem. The following scenes traced the events in the life of Jesus and His disciples from Palm Sunday until the time of the Ascension, as narrated by the reader, Rev. F. W. Craik, pastor of the church. In contrast to the joyousness of the first—a street scene, came the quiet group of disciples in the Garden of Gethsemane. Then followed the dramatic tableau in the courtyard of the High Priest, where Peter makes his denial. A feeling of pathos marked the next three scenes leading up to the burial. An effective picture was that of Simon of Cyrene, as he bore the cross of Jesus.

The closing scenes reflected a spirit of joy, as Easter morning broke, showing the three Marys at the tomb accompanied by the eight women of Jerusalem. Here they were greeted by the glad tidings of the resurrection by the two angels.

With the appearance of the ten virgins with their lighted candles, the pageant reached its finale, and the curtain fell on the assembled white-robed choir, singing "Jerusalem, Jerusalem."

A lovely feature of the pageant was the mixed group of twenty children who appeared in various scenes.

Colorful Oriental costumes added to the beauty of the picture, as worn by the disciples, who included Harold Fife, Clarence Porter, G. Lathangue, R. Howarth, R. Moynes, J. Freeman, H. Holbrooke and R. Kitchen. Equally fine in appearance and action, were the six Roman soldiers, in their brilliant coats of mail: Stan. Leggitt, W. Lawson, K. Moffatt, F. Lawson, W. Baldry and J. Williams.

The three Marys were beautifully depicted by the Misses Jean Hammond, Jean Rose and Mrs. Robert Kitchen, in their picturesque Eastern robes, while the two shining angels, Misses Darlene Elliott and Margaret Smart, were quite realistic.

The two maids, who identified Peter, in courtyard scene carrying the native water-jugs, were Misses Audrey Doig and Evelyn Watson, while the character of Peter was enacted by Ernest Davis, and Simon of Cyrene, by Gerald Cuff.

Another bevy of girls, whose work was excellent, were the ten virgins, as follows: Gladys Gustard, Nancy Pooley, Frances Allen, Ruby Swanger, Jean Meeks, Zaida Marvis, Dorothy Freeman, Gladys Rutherford, Francis McMahon and Dorothy Drysdale.

Well-Rendered Music.

The music and singing throughout were in keeping with the theme and beautifully rendered, the soloists including Mesdames H. Doig, Bert Pitchford, R. C. Searles and Mr. Wm. Hogan. Mrs. Searles acted as accompanist at the piano, assisted by Mrs. Earl Sakins.

With so large a cast, careful choosing and handling of actors and their parts was very essential, but under the direction of the capable committees, convened by Mrs. Ernest Kilner, with Mrs. F. B Elliott and A. Roseborough, the presentation was an outstanding success.

The very fine lighting effects were due to the clever manipulation of Arthur McLaren and Robert Hardie.

This fine pageant is well worth the repeat performance which will be given tonight in St. James' United Church auditorium.

DRINKING LIQUOR BY TWO MINORS IS TOLD IN COURT

Story Of Drinking Is Related In Charge Of Unlawful Selling

HEARING ADJOURNED

A surprising story of liquor drinking on the part of two minors, one seventeen and the other fifteen years of age, was unfolded in Magistrate's Court this (Friday) morning during hearing of a charge of unlawful selling of liquor against Ross Dixon, formerly of 381 Douglas Avenue, and now of 510 Sherbrooke Street.

The defence conducted by T. J. Carley K.C., offered a complete denial of the alleged offence as charged. In rebuttal of evidence given by the elder of the two youths that he had bought rye whisky from Dixon on the evening of April 9 last, the accused testified that he was at the city weigh scales with a load of junk at the time of the alleged transaction.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., conducted the prosecution.

At the close of all the evidence, Magistrate [illegible] adjourned the case until Tuesday morning next for arguments of counsel. He also remanded Dixon on a further charge to which he has pleaded not guilty of selling liquor to a minor. Bail was reviewed in the sum of $1,500.

Tell About Purchase.

The eldest of the two lads who was the first witness for the Crown said that on the evening of April 9 last his younger companion gave him a five-dollar bill, and "I went to Dixon's house and asked Dixon for a bottle of whisky. He said he didn't have a pint bottle, but he poured some into a pint beer bottle. I paid him $1.25 for it, and he gave me $3.75 change."

The witness stated that after purchasing the whisky he and his younger companion went out to a sand pit where each of them had a drink from the bottle. After leaving the sand pit they went and had a drink of ginger ale, afterwards going to the Orange Hall where they had another drink of whisky. It was at this stage that the younger lad got dizzy and went home.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Carley the youth admitted he has been drinking liquor for the past two or three years, and had tasted gin, Scotch, rye, and other spirits.

He could not distinguish the difference between rye and Scotch, but he said there was a difference between whisky and gin.

"Gin," he began, "tastes like perfume, and whisky——"

"Like the devil, I suppose," ejaculated Mr. Carley finishing the sentence.

Dixon testified that he received $3.75 in change.

He denied having given his friend five dollars to buy "intoxicating liquor," describing the sand pit incident, said "I took two or three swigs from the bottle and received $3.75 in change."

After he had the second drink up at the Orange Hall witness declared "I began to feel numb." He said he continued to get "dizzy" and went home to bed. After his brother came home, he said, their mother came upstairs.

"Then the fat was in the fire," Mr. McElderry suggested.

"Yes."

Works in Textile Mill.

Under cross-examination the lad said he had the five dollars left out of his wages after paying his board. He said he worked at a local textile mill repairing rolls.

Constable Joseph Wheeler told the court that on the night in question he saw the last witness at the home of his parents, and then brought the lad to the police station. Later the officer said he and the lad together with Constable Menzies went to the rear of the Orange Hall and there picked up part of a broken bottle which the lad indicated as having been the bottle in which the Rye was contained and which he broke.

Relating his visit to the Dixon house, the officer said a search revealed 32 quart bottles of beer; 2 full quarts of Rye whisky; 27 empty quart beer bottles; some empty Rye bottles and beer cartons. He said he had the house under observation for six weeks previous, and "I have seen men going there; men drinking there and men turned away from there."

"I asked Dixon if he had any liquor," the officer testified, "and he said, 'If you want it go and look for it'."

Constable A. Menzies also testified.

Wesley Johnston, 316 Sherbrooke Street, a cousin of the accused, called by the defence, said he was at Dixon's house on April 9 from 3.30 until shortly before midnight. He denied all knowledge of a lad or anyone else having called at the house to purchase liquor.

Mrs. May Dixon, wife of the accused, and Ross Dixon went into the witness box and both offered a complete denial of the allegations. The accused admitted he had heard the prosecution evidence, but he said, "He (the lad) bought no whisky from me. He never gave me a five dollar bill and I never gave him any change." He declared that the beer and spirits seized by police was kept at the house for the use of himself and his wife.

In cross-examination, Dixon testified that around the time that the lad was alleged to have made the unlawful purchase of liquor, "I was up town at the weigh scales with a load of junk." He sold the junk, he testified, and did not return home until 4.30 o'clock.

Club Women's First Meeting

Recently - Organized Group Hears About Oxford University

Miss Mary White of Moulton College, Toronto, was guest speaker at the first regular meeting of the recently-organized University Women's Club, held at the Y.W.C.A. on Wednesday evening.

The new constitution was read and approved and the date of meetings was fixed for the second Monday in each month.

Miss White, who has done postgraduate work at Oxford University on a scholarship given by the Canadian Federation of University Women, is now a member of the committee which awards these scholarships each year. The local club, which will contribute to this fund, found her visit most opportune and instructive. She described graphically the life of a student at an English university, and described also the wide difference in Oxford's educational requirements and those of Canadian universities.

At the close of the meeting, hostesses were Mrs. V. H. Currie, Mrs. S. J. Graham, Mrs. H. H. Graham and Mrs. V. R. Henry.

Aged Wanderer Has Preference For Highways Over The Trains

Man Aged 97 Books In For Night At Peterborough Police Station

PAYS HIS OWN WAY

Aged Robert Beverley, wanderer for nearly eighty years on North American highways, was an overnight guest at the Police Station here. The 650th transient to be registered since the first of the year, he gave his age as 97 years and stated he served with the Fort Hope Company in the North-West Rebellion.

Early in January last, the old Gentleman made front page news when he lost his dog "Flossie" while journeying by train from Guelph to Peterborough. Grief for a visit with his niece-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Beverley, the dog, which was recovered at the C.P.R. baggage room here, has since been lost again. Mr. Beverley says he lost his pet this time in Montreal.

Despite his advanced age, the old gentleman was carrying a 50-pound pack on his shoulders when he checked in at the Police Station after stepping off the train that came in from the East.

Pays His Way.

He gave an indignant denial when asked if he "rode the rods."

"I don't jump trains. I never did. I pay my way," he declared, explaining that he is an old-age pensioner who has been receiving the Government allowance ever since it was instituted in Canada.

A mild-mannered old gentleman with a kindly philosophy of life, Mr. Beverley wears a white flowing beard that gives him a patriarchal appearance. He has a preference for walking the highways, and at one time he said he used to earn a living as an itinerant grinder of knives and scissors.

Asked to what he attributes his remarkable health and vitality, he replied, "Pushing out in the open air." He added that he smokes a pipe and likes beer in moderation, but has never touched hard liquor.

Mr. Beverley was born at Maitland, Ontario, and has lived under six sovereigns.

Asked if he knew the name of the present King, he said: "The Prince of Wales is running the whole show now, but I did hear that he wanted to marry and couldn't be King any more."

Asked what he would have done if faced with the choice between a throne and a wife, the old gentleman, who is a bachelor, declared: "I'd have kept both of them if it had been me."

PIERCE DESCRIBES MANITOBA SURVEY

Recent Work On Manitoba Ontario Boundary Told To Kiwanis Club

"It was something far beyond anything attempted in survey before," J. W. Pierce commented as he told of the survey of the Ontario-Manitoba boundary line this winter in an address to the Kiwanis Club today. "Aerial photography, aerial transportation and radio communication have revolutionised modern boundary surveying in the far north."

Approximately $260 a mile was the cost of running the survey from Winnipeg river to the 12th Base Line which, to the layman marks the big angle in the boundary, in 1932 and 1933. Mr. Pierce said in showing how the modern aids to survey have reduced cost. Water was the chief avenue of transportation at that time.

Thanks largely to previous aerial mapping which indicated in advance likely canoe routes for transportation, cost of the survey from the 12th Base Line to Island Lake in 1930 ran only $150 a mile, he said. Airplanes were used as the sole means of transportation when the line was run 116 miles north-east from Island Lake this winter and the cost was brought down to about $100 a mile.

A matter of little remark to expert surveyors but a matter of wonder to the laymen is the accuracy of such survey work. Several years ago, Manitoba surveyors running base lines in the northern part of the province ran one line out to a point which they knew would be intersected when the boundary line was eventually run through. Mr. Pierce related. This winter the line his party was running intersected a tree on the end of the base line and they were amused to find a note of greeting nailed on the tree from the head of the Manitoba survey party to himself and his party, the speaker said. Where routine surveyors deal in minutes, boundary surveys are calculated in seconds, he explained.

D. J. Bourque, producer of the Kiwanis Jollies was guest at the luncheon and led the members in songs. Archie B. Oates introduced Mr. Pierce and John Comstock expressed the club's thanks.

Eleven Deputy Game Wardens Are Appointed For Peterborough District

Eleven temporary deputy game wardens have been appointed to watch over the game fish in Peterborough County during the approaching spawning season.

T. J. Lyons, local game warden, was given the details of these appointments in a letter on Thursday from the Ontario Department of Fish and Game. All the deputies live in proximity to favored spawning areas in widely distributed points about the whole district.

Only three of them served as deputies last year. They will work under the close direction of Inspector Lyons, who has a reputation for efficient work along that line, and they will receive preliminary training from him before beginning their duties.

Last year only eight deputies were appointed for this district during the spawning season.

PHYSICAL TRAINING PAGEANT PROVIDED AT THE COLLEGIATE

450 Girls Of The Collegiate And Vocational School Provide Splendid Pageant

PRECISION EXACT

A full audience lined the balcony and the gymnasium floor to witness the first Collegiate and Vocational School physical education demonstration in the school Thursday evening. A pageant of grand proportion was provided by 450 girls from all departments of both the academic and vocational sections.

Object of the pageant was demonstration of the nature of the physical training being afforded at the Collegiate, but far from routine was the show which was staged. Marches, dances, gymnastic numbers and games were distributed through the program in a pleasing and colorful variety. Unusual was the degree of ability and precision which prevailed throughout the exhibition.

Uniforms Looked Trim

The program opened with a march parade of the entire body of girls through the gymnasium in smart single file. They were garbed in the regular Collegiate gymnasium uniform—trim, white middies; short, black pleated skirts and black stockings. Young girls of the lower forms made their entrance first and older girls completed the parade.

First suggestion of the calibre of the display and of the weeks of intensive preparation which must have preceded it came with the staging of a Danish gymnastics number by girls of Forms IIa, IIb, and IIc. The complex and difficult routine with its frequent changes of timing and tempo was executed with precision.

Four groups of First Form girls provided intricate mass dance numbers entitled "Seven Jumps" and "Brown-Eyed Mary." They were joined by a circle of Household Arts girls for a graceful presentation of an "Old Fashioned Polka" with song accompaniment afforded by other groups seated at the south end of the floor.

Highlight of Program

Demonstration of the modern trend toward rhythmn in gymnastics by girls of Commercial form IIa and IIb and Household Arts II won appreciative applause. One of the highlights of the program was reached in the staging of two costumed character dances entitled "On the Banks of the Zuyder Zee" and "Jack and Jill." Girls of Forms IIIa, IIIb, IIIc and IIId afforded the Dutch Interlude with the traditional, picturesque pantomime. For the "Jack and Jill" number, provided by girls of Commercial III and Household Arts III, "Jacks" were distinguished by little juvenile suits and their "Jill" plamates were appropriate little-girl dresses.

Fifty assisted in the relay game demonstration which was followed by two clever clog dance numbers. In juvenile uniform, girls of Commercial IIa and IIb and Household Arts II symbolized ingeniously in dance their effort to learn arithmetic from their leader, Isobel Young. Somewhat similar in idea was the second of the two clog dance items entitled "Contagious" in which the girls followed their leader in accordance with the program notation, "Contagious is one of those people who does everything fast."

Athletic Skills

Older girls of Third, Fourth and Fifth forms provided a show of athletic skills—a medley of basketball, volleyball and badminton. Then followed in conclusion the two most picturesque costume items of the evening. "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," staged by girls of Commercial III and Household Arts III, and "Viennese Waltz" by a group of six Fourth and Fifth form girls. White tunics with red cross sashes, and white trousers comprised the trim uniform of the Wooden Soldiers. The appropriate white hats and red capes completed the ensemble.

For the beautiful Viennese waltz number, the girls were in faultless Georgian garb, waists and knee breeches and graceful Georgian gowns.

A "Salute to P.C.V.S." and rendering of the song "P.C.V." composed by the accompanist of the evening, Mrs. Foster, by a large finale grouping, concluded the program.

The pageant was in charge of Miss Dorothy Brisbin, physical instructress for the Academic section, and Miss Mildred Bailey, Vocational section instructress.

CRONIN'S RED SOX ARE NOT THINKING WINNING PENNANT

Big Job At Present Is To Fight For First Division

DIFFERENT CLUB

By BILL BRAUCHER

SARASOTA, Fla., April 16.—"A pennant? We're not talking about a pennant. We're going to fight for the first division."

Joe Cronin was giving his answer to the question heard in every training camp in the south—"What does Joe think of his ball club this year?"

As the manager of the gilt-edged Red Sox spoke, you could not help thinking what a whale of a difference a year can bring in the outlook of a ball club. Last year Cronin was full of high hopes for a championship. Many baseball observers were picking the team to win a pennant. And the Sox had started out looking to be worth every nickel of the millions that Tom Yawkey had spent to bring the stars together.

But the Red Sox vision was a mistake. He will have an opportunity to apply for a hearing.

High priced temperatures soured. The early season wonders wilted in the heat of the campaign. Injuries, illness and a sore arm here and there added to the difficulty. To be exact, the regal Red Sox folded.

Joe Cronin somehow reflected disappointment as he sat on the bench, watching infield practice.

"A lot of things happened to us last summer," he said. "Some of our best hitters slumped, and a couple of starting pitchers had arm trouble. When a team hits the skids sometimes it's hard to stop. But it's the same way winning, too, and now we all know the kind of work cut out for us. We have to pick up more pitching strength and the infield needs tightening up."

Young Bobby Doerr, sparkling recruit from the Pacific Coast league, was working out as second, with Eric McNair at short, Cronin's old stand; Pinky Higgins at third and Jimmy Foxx at first. That was a snappy infield.

"I may play second or short," Cronin continued. "The club may need some hitting and (he grinned) I think I still can hit."

The infield situation is at least what might be called congested. There were nine infielders on the premises. Besides Foxx, McNair, Higgins, Cronin, Kroner and Melillo, who played last year; Doerr, Art Mahan and Aubrey Graham were trying to win jobs with Doerr having the best chance.

Trying Them Out

A half dozen recruit pitchers mingled with Grove, Ferrell, Marcum, Walberg, Wilson, Henry and Ostermueller of last year's staff. Cronin expressed himself as pleased with the early showing of Emerson Dickman, former Washington and Lee hurler who put in part of a season at the Rocky Mount farm last summer, and Dick Mulcahy, former University of Texas star who also toiled at Rocky Mount last year. Cronin figures Jack Wilson, relief pitcher last year, or Jim Henry, who shared rescue roles with Wilson, as a likely starter.

One of the recruits with some experience behind him is Arch McKain, a big southpaw who put in his fifth season pitching in the American Association last year by winning 19 games for Minneapolis. Lee Rogers, 11-game winner last year at Little Rock, is one of the likely youngsters sent along by Billy Evans, former umpire and general manager of Red Sox farm operations. Evans has spent a busy spring sorting out hundreds of hopefuls for the various Boston farm clubs.

New Faces in Outfield

Of last year's outfielders, only two remain, and there are only three new faces, which probably means that the new men will be taken along for the ride. The holdovers are Roger Cramer and Mel Almada. One of the snappier recruits is Dominic Dallessandro, five-foot-fourinch tot from Syracuse, who surprises you when he bats against the baseball. Colonel Hunter Mills, who has had previous experience with Cleveland and the Cardinal chain shores, is up again after a good year at Rochester, where he hit .331. Fabrian Gaffke is a promising fly chaser from Minneapolis. Gaffke hit .342 last year in the Association and whacked out 26 home runs.

While catching replacements are unnecessary with the capable Rick Ferrell and Moe Berg to share the job, Cronin is pleased with the showing of Gene Desautels, former Detroiter, who was touted as one of the best receivers in the minors last year.

Cronin's job is difficult. The club is in the throes of transition. Spencer Yawkey having changed his mind about buying a pennant winner with established stars of other teams, and decided to nourish the club with a farm system.

Joe's job is to work and wait, and "fight for the first division." The leader of the Red Sox has a spirit of iron determination on his side. He will get the most possible out of the team as it stands.

PAID FOR SUIT IN PENNIES

Took 2,250 Pennies To Pay For Suit Of Clothes.

BEATRICE, Neb., April 16 (CP)—Ay, for two cents—but Woodrow Mc-Kissick, clothing store clerk, didn't punch any noses.

Instead he spent an entire afternoon counting out 2,252 pennies which Jake Rosshbuhrstt gave in payment for a $22.50 suit. The clerk returned the two extra pennies.

Remember When—

New York Rangers, paced by the two-goal performance of Frank Boucher, defeated Maroons 3-1 at Montreal nine years ago tonight to win the Stanley Cup. It was a hard and bitterly fought game. Twenty-one penalties were handed out, including three majors. It was the first time the world's hockey championship went to the United States since Seattle won in 1917.

A Trick or Two.

Burly Jack came right back at him with, "don't count us out . . . Our boys were hitting far from their best stride . . . we're good enough to beat Rangers . . . We'll show them a trick or two . . . "

Detroit did. They won 4-2 to deadlock the series and end Rangers' playoff winning streak. Patrick changed to a blue rigout from the "lucky" grey playoff suit he wore through Rangers' victorious campaigns against Toronto and Montreal Maroons, and said: "It's a natural let-down . . . Well win yet . . . We're a better team than ever now that the mental strain is eased."

Adams was jubilant. "We beat 'em with two rookies . . . We're back in our stride now." But Rangers came back to win 1-0 and it was Lester's turn to chortle. "The two-year jinx of Detroit ice is broken" he pronounced. "Rangers are rolling again . . . We're in the driver's seat."

There Rangers stayed until in the next game Marty Barry fired the goal for Detroit's 1-0 win. It was this that deadlocked the series at two games each and brought forth such succinct remarks as, "Anything can happen now" and "There's going to be a hockey game."

And still nobody argued. Things did happen. There was a hockey game. These starteglists were both right.

COUGARS INCREASE

COWLEY, Alta.,—(CP).—Mountain lions are numerous in this district, 60 miles west of Lethbridge this year, and many have been shot by hunters seeking the $20 bounty. Deer are also on the increase, and it is believed the animals were driven from British Columbia by forest fires last fall.

Fighting It Out For Infield Position With Red Sox

One of the brightest stars in the Boston Red Sox camp is Frank "Pinky" Higgins, who is fighting it out with other veterans and rookies for an infield position. If this picture can be taken as an example of his regular performances he would certainly be a handy man in the infield. This, incidentally, is what it called a spectacular catch in any man's language.

JACK ADAMS TALKS FINE CHAMPIONSHIP

Patrick Is Almost As Good But Fades With Rangers At Final

By Alan Randall
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, April 16—(CP)—Lester Patrick and his New York Rangers lost the Stanley Cup series to Jack Adams' Detroit Red Wings but in the matter of words these top - ranking National Hockey League managers divided honors about evenly today. They talked as fine a series as their teams played.

"They are the greatest hockey players in the world," said Adams of his Red Wings as he tapered off the word series with Patrick while Lester countered with congratulations and kept the talking laurels even.

Only once did lean-limbed Lester and round Jack falter. That was before last night's save-off engagement in the best three-of-five game tourney. Then they became non-committal. Words even became scarce.

Said Adams: "There's going to be a hockey game."

To which Patrick replied: "Anything can happen now."

Orgies of Optimism

There was none to argue with them but before that the managers engaged in optimistic orgies.

At times Adams' confident pronouncements, coming when injuries crippled his key men, appeared to be nothing more than whistling his way past the graveyard, but last night's 3-0 spurtre that retained hockey's top honors for Detroit bore out his early remarks.

When he came to New York for the first cup-round game Adams said, "We ought to take the Rangers barring bad accidents." But he lost 5-1. Before that game Patrick figured his men 6 to 5 favorites and prophesied victory. Afterwards, as Rangers headed for Detroit, Lester said he refused to worry "unless Detroit can win the next two games. There's a goal on every Ranger with the early showing of Emerson Dickman, former Washington and Lee hurler who put in part of a season at the Rocky Mount farm last summer, and Dick Mulcahy, former University of Texas star who also toiled at Rocky Mount last year. Cronin figures Jack Wilson, relief pitcher last year, or Jim Henry, who shared rescue roles with Wilson, as a likely starter.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

SENIOR GIRLS' basketball championship is at stake tonight in the Y.W. gym when Westclox and C.G.E. clash at eight in their final playoff game. Should be a honey and it'll just hustle the Clockmakers to retain their title as the Electrics look to have 'em shaded a trifle. A junior exhibition tilt between Westclox and St. John's—the junior runners-up—will be staged at nine o'clock. Team representatives and officers are asked to meet after the senior struggle to decide on details of the annual gals' cage banquet. The hoop double-header tonight ought to draw quite a crowd.

CHURCH SOFTBALL League holds its annual re-organization meeting tonight at 7.30 in the Y.M.C.A. and everyone interested is invited. Each Sunday School is permitted two voting members, but others may sit in and join the discussion. They'll elect officers, deal with entries and make general plans for the season. This is the spot to bring out new ideas, if any. At this time of year, we run a lot of notices about meetings, which some readers are not at all interested in. But this cannot be helped—it's important to the various sports' organizations. Later the meetings will be over and more interesting dope may be available. As the preacher said in a lefthanded compliment, as they prepared to bury the ne'er-do-weel: "At least, folks, he wasn't as bad all of the time as he was some of the time!"

AN ALL-STAR basketball game will be run off at the Y.M. gym tomorrow p.m. at 8.15, followed about nine by six amateur wrestling bouts between Ottawa and Peterborough grapplers. They should be good exhibitions. Local matment are: Bill Hogan, Steve Csumrik, Jim Thorburn, Fred Williams, Bill Taylor and Ross Pulkinghorn. No "Y" volleyball playoffs this week, but a round-robin final series will be staged there a week from tomorrow with the top four teams in, Spartons, Gunners, Rockets and Sharks. Each squad will participate in two games.

ANNUAL MEETING of the Girls' Softball League is Monday night at eight in Duffus', and interested parties are invited. 'Tis hoped to get a strong district loop going again with maybe Cobourg and Lindsay added. The officers hope to get everything cleared up at this one session. At the P.W.B.U. annual in Toronto on Sunday, they may decide on lengthening bases from 45 to 50 feet. Personally, we think the bases are okay as they are and we doubt if the distance will be changed. After all, girls are but girls!

HO, HUM, wrong again. The White writer contributes this: "It wasn't Eddie Whitehill this time. Strange as it may seem the Peterborough baseball moguls discovered another baseball plicher working (?) on a farm near there recently. His name is Jack Johnston and he hails from Western Canada. Let's see, Whitehill was discovered in the same manner just about a year ago." As we said some time ago, Johnston was around town some time—and known to the hall officers—trying to get work before he finally took a job on the farm. And, no doubt, Gunner Whitehill will be surprised to know he was found on a farm near here last year. At anyrate, a few productive farms of the same sort in the Belleville district would come in handy, eh?

DETROIT RED Wings won the Stanley Cup last night for the second straight year with a 3-0 verdict over N'Yawk Rangers before more than 14,000 wild-eyed fans at Olympia. The Wings' win was decisive enough for anyone, with Marty Barry and Earl Robertson outstanding heroes. The class of that crew can be figured when you realise they won the world's pro puck championship after losing such stars as Aurie, Young, Roulston and Smith! It is the only championship the 1936 "City of Champions" has retained this year. We pulled for the Wings all season, not only because we figured 'em a great outfit, but also because pudgy Jack Adams, their manager, once played for Peterborough. And at one time we were a regular attendant at Olympia, having seen that arena opened.

THE ANNUAL banquet and presentation of shields for the Church Hockey League of last winter will be held April 27th in the basement of Murray St. Church. The Women's Association of that church is doing the catering. It is a little late in the season for a hockey spread but there was an unavoidable delay in securing the shields. Members of the three winning teams, Murray St. Seniors, St. Paul's Juveniles and George St. Bantams, will be guests of the league. These banquets usually have about 50 in attendance, including loop officers, winning pucksts, and coaches and playyrs of other league teams on hand.

AS A guest of the C.G.E. Shop Bowling League last night we had an enjoyable time as that big circuit brought to a conclusion a successful season. They staged windup matches at Duffus', followed at the Empress Hotel by a banquet and the presentation of prizes. Some 250 members bowled through the season on 24 teams, being at it 26 nights. Last night 96 rolled in doubles. A team picked from this loop won the city league title and took part in the championship tourney in Western Ontario. Prizes last eve were presented by R. S. Cotton and H. A. Cranfield, with a number of other speakers. League officers were: President W. G. Shiner; Vice-pessy F. Batterson; Secretary Fred Martin, and J. E. Thomas, L. Calladine, W. Masters, Tom Miller, M. Armitage and R. Dyer. Prize-winners are listed elsewhere.

Victory Celebration Too Much For Jack Adams, Had To Faint

Wing Dressing-Room Is Madhouse After Fifth Stanley Cup Game

DETROIT, April 16—(C.P.)—His life's ambition realized for the second year in succession, jovial Jack Adams posed for all kinds of pictures in the world champion Detroit Red Wings' dressing room last night. He jumped, reared and hurled, then, for probably the first time in his life—he fainted.

The room, transformed into a madhouse of berserk humanity, went silent while Coach Adams was half-carried into a separate room, and then the bedlam broke out all over again when it was ascertained it was nothing more serious than a weak spell from excitement, joy and worry.

As usual, Friday John led his world champions through a massed crowd into the dressing room. Then while players fell all over each other in joy and pride, Adams jumped up and down in the centre of the floor, threw his battered hat at a group of newspapermen and proceeded to jump on it.

Calder Presents Cup

Under escort of several police officers, the battered Stanley Cup was brought in the room where League President Frank Calder, familiar bowler hat and walking stick conspicuous, presented it to Herbie Lewis, Adams and Owner James Norris, Sr., each in turn for the benefit of photographers.

The room flowed with beer as weary players gulped it down. Cigars and cigarettes were handed out and flashlight bulbs "pooped" persistently to light up the smoke-hazed scene.

Good-looking Earl Robertson, the minor league netminder brought in to take the place of the Vezina Trophy winner, Normie Smith, was mobbed as he waddled into the room with his arms about two-goal Marty Barry.

Every one had the opinion Robbie gave one of the greatest performances ever seen here. They told him so as he smiled happily and almost had his hand and shoulder broken by hand-shakers and back-slappers.

"They just can't keep you in the minors now," the dark-haired Barry told him. "You were great, kid—sensational."

"That last part goes for you, too, Marty," Earl said, and launched into honeyed words of praise for the handsome centre.

"Boy, it's great," Marty said in his serious way. "First they award me the Lady Byng Trophy and then I score two goals to-night. I guess I was celebrating."

Aurie Celebrates, Too

Little Larry Aurie, one of the first in the room after the game, threw his crutches on the floor and did a war dance.

"That's one goal for each of the broken-legged guys on this team," he shrieked at Adams. The other "guys," Captain Doue Young and Orville Roulston, yelled agreement. They thought it was a great touch.

In the Ranger room, Lester Patrick told of what a great club the world champions were. "But we were greater in defeat than in any one of the games we won," he said.

"It was a hell of a wonderful series between two great clubs," he added.

Ottawa Groaners To Perform Here

An experienced crew of amateur wrestlers from the Ottawa "Y" will be here tomorrow (Saturday) evening to stage matches with local matmen in the Y.M.C.A. gym, commencing at nine o'clock. H. B. Cowan, Sr., coach of the Peterborough amateurs, stated this morning he would match them according to ability rather than weight. "Every one of the Ottawa men is experienced in wrestling and used to public matches, whereas our boys — which quite good—lack that experience. I feel sure we will make it really interesting for the Ottawa contingent."

Drawn for Ability.

Louis DeLisle, 155 pounds, city champion at Ottawa in '35 and welter champion there last year, will be matched with Billy Taylor of this city, scaling 160. Harry Appleton, 165, with two years' experience, will be drawn against Ross Pulkinghorn, 160. Wendell Day, 170, of Salt Lake City and Ottawa, is matched with Fred Williams, scaling 180. Bud Budreo, 135, goes in against Bill Hogan, tipping the beam at 138. Instructor Cec. Holmes, 150, former holder of several titles, will probably meet Steve Csumrik, 140. One other match may be held, with Jim Thorburn and Dave Baker meeting.

Each match will have a time limit of 10 minutes, though two falls for one wrestler before that limit will finish the match. The local grapplers have been training hard for some time and are reported in excellent condition. The visitors are said to be first-rate amateur mat artists and some keen competition is anticipated. Mr. Cowan is hoping for a good attendance of fans to see these matches.

FARR OUTBOXES EX-CHAMP BAER IN LONDON BOUT

Californian Lacks Punch And Speed Against "Underdog" Welshman

UNEXPECTED VICTORY

LONDON, April 16.—(UP.)—Tommy Farr of Wales, heavyweight boxing champion of the British Isles and the Empire last night scored an upset twelve round decision over Maxie Baer, former world title-holder, befor nearly 14,000 fans at Harringay Arena.

Farr, who had been a 3-to-1 underdog in the betting battered and gashed Maxie's left eye and registered repeatedly with left jabs throughout the bout. Baer was slow and lacked his old punch.

Farr's titles were not at stake because he was fighting a non-British-ruler. The former South Wales miner was given a tremendous ovation. Fans screamed and danced in the aisles when his victory was announced. The victory is expected to give Farr a chance at Max Schmeling or Joe Louis for the world heavyweight title.

Maxie had been virtually scheduled — against Walter Neusel of Germany on May 31 and possibly against Joe Louis on July 30.

Baer Got $32,500.

While Maxie was earning his guaranteed $32,500, Farr gave him a boxing lesson, and only Farr's lack of punch prevented the Californian from being knocked out. Farr receives 30 per cent of the net gate and should get about $17,500. The gross take was $99,691.

The under-dog Welshman had been expected to take the count before the fourth round, but he won four, according to the United Press score sheet, while Baer took only three. Five were even.

A 23-year-old six-footer from Tonypandy, South Wales, Farr had planned his campaign carefully. He depended upon his speed and boxing ability to make a long-range fight of it, thereby evading Maxie's attempted smashing body attacks in close. At no time was Farr in danger, although he took considerable punishment in some of the exchanges and suffered a slightly gashed left eye in the seventh frame.

Afraid to Punch?

Baer's performance was most disappointing because of his reputed knockout wallop and because he outweighed Farr 211½ pounds to 196. Maxie failed to follow through after his own intermittent wild charges, and he appeared to be afraid to lash out with his punches—although both hands reportedly were in good condition. He was slow and wild with his jumping punches, often missing the opponents Farr by more than a foot.

From the sixth round on it was obvious that Farr would win unless Baer managed to slow him up with body hooks or stagger him with a lucky shot to the head. Farr, who is known throughout British boxing circles as a "powder-puff" puncher, apparently was landing just as hard as Maxie.

Baer's eye was so badly battered and gashed that the minute he entered his dressing room after the bout his handlers shouted for a doctor. Maxie also was badly cut on his inside lower lip.

"That eye bothered me throughout the fight," Max said. "I just couldn't get going, although I'm in fine shape. Farr certainly is the toughest fighter I ever met. He's the best British heavyweight champion they've had in a long time."

No Knockdowns

There was no knockdown in the bout. The closest approaches to a canvas trip came in the fourth, when Maxie charged Tommy to the ropes and rocked him with several hard hooks to the head, and in the sixth when Farr staggered the Californian with two hard left hooks to the mouth, knocking Maxie back on his heels.

The Welshman, who won the Empire title from Ben Foord on March 13, carried the fight to the ex-champ during most of the going. In the ten-round semi-final, Petey Sarron of Birmingham, Ala., claimant of the world featherweight title, won the decision over Harry Mizler, British lightweight champion. It was a non-title bout. Sarron forced the fighting throughout and won most of the rounds with a hooking attack to body and head. Sarron weighed 123¾ pounds; Mizler, 126¼.

SCOUTS WATCHING MONARCH'S WING AS PRO MATERIAL

Two Goals And Six Assists Are Chalked Up To Kowcinak—Second Ken Doraty

REDMEN PERK UP

By William B. Bunnaday
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, April 16 — (C.P.), — Professional scouts to-day kept a close watch on a boy who may prove to be another mighty-mite of big league hockey—Mike Dick Kowcinak. The 135-pound bundle of dynamite has played a big part in giving Winnipeg Monarchs an edge over Copper Cliff Redmen in the struggle for Dominion Junior supremacy.

Dick has fired two goals and figured in six others to lead both teams in scoring. His wingmate, 20-year-old Johnny McCreedy, is next in line with four goals and two assists for six points. Kowcinak, a tousle-headed blonde, has been a standout—his weight is the only thing that may hamper his hockey future.

More than one hockey expert has referred to the 19-year-old flash as a second Ken Doraty, who earned the title Mighty-Mite by his stellar pinch-hitting with Toronto Maple Leafs in the National League. Like Ken, now with Pittsburgh Hornets in the International-American League, Kowcinak is poison around the opposition nets.

Heading Redmen's parade of scorers are Alf Webster, second-string centre, and Roy Heximer, winger of the first line. Each has scored three goals and gained one assist in the three games, and Coach Maxie Silverman figures these boys will play jousting parts in Saturday afternoon's contest when he hopes his team will even the best-of-five series at two wins each.

Two Straight—In the Bag

"Absolutely—we'll win," said Wily Max, when asked of his team's chances. "If our boys start clicking there's no reason we can't lick Monarchs two straight. But if they beat us Saturday, it's all over, and just too bad for us."

Both teams welcomed the breather from last Wednesday's game which Monarchs won 2-1. Both previous tussles went into overtime, Redmen taking the first 4-3 and the Westerners evening it up Monday night with a 6-5 victory. A capacity house is expected to jam Maple Leaf Gardens for the fourth contest.

Silverman objected to his team being referred to as hand-picked and all-stars. "Why we have six boys still O.K. for Junior next season and none of these kids were stars when they came to the Nickel Belt this season. The homebrews are showing up just as well as the others."

Redmen's mentor said a lot depended on how well Red Hamill and Pat McCreavy went in the next game. These boys who work with Heximer have not lived up to advance notices in the series with Monarchs. Silverman thinks they'll snap out of it Saturday.

All was rejoicing in the Winnipeg camp. Their only worry—whether Remi Vandaele would be fit for Saturday—has been erased. The club doctor has announced the hard-bumping defenceman's wrenched back in good enough shape to permit his playing.

Porto Rican Outpoints Champion

In a non-title bout at New York, the scrappy Porto Rican lightweight hope, Pedro Montanez, decisively defeated champion Lou Ambers in a ten-round match. In the first round Montanez came close to scoring an early kayo and from then on he piled up a tremendous lead in points which prevented Ambers' final burst of speed from taking the decision. In this picture Montanez (RIGHT), is driving a couple of lefts and rights to the New York fighter's midsection.

SENIOR CAGERS IN SEMI-FINALS

Fords Meet McGill And Varsity Of B.C. Raymond's Union Jacks Tonight

TORONTO, April 16.—(CP). — Down through the years few Canadian communities have made such notable successes of their basketball campaigns as Montreal, Windsor, Raymond and Vancouver. Tonight those four hives of the game will be represented in Dominion Senior semi-finals that open in East and West.

Windsor's champion Fords, delegates to the 1936 Olympic games, will be at home to McGill University Grads of Montreal. University of British Columbia will take on Raymond's Union Jacks, Alberta champions, at Vancouver.

Chief challengers to Windsor and Montreal supremacy in the East in recent seasons have been Saint John, Ottawa, Toronto and St. Catharines. But usually Windsor's Alumni or Fords have gone through to finals and Montreal teams have had to go down fighting in semi-finals with the Ontario city.

The town of Raymond has established itself as men's basketball capital of its province, turning out good teams that as a rule have been forced to take the dust of British Columbia's survivors.

On the coast Vancouver and Victoria have been perennial foes. This year Vancouver's British Columbia University squad has ousted Victoria Dominoes 1936 finalists.

Only stern rival of the Raymond, Vancouver and Victoria clubs this year was Winnipeg, defeated in western semi-finals by Raymond.

SUDBURY EXPECTS BINGO KAMPMAN IN GAME TONIGHT

Burly Defenceman Will Replace Conick For Final Battle

EASTERN HOPES HIGH

CALGARY, April 16 (CP).—Prospects Bingo Kampman will return to the Sudbury lineup for the fifth game tonight of the Allan Cup hockey final with North Battleford Beavers buoyed Tigers' hopes of winning the Canadian senior championship.

With the best-of-five series tied 2-all in games, Tigers awaited decision on their protest of the fourth game won 3-2 by Beavers Wednesday night.

Sudbury protested a ruling of Referee Earl Overand of Okotoks, Alta., refusing to permit Tigers to replace Goalie Charlie Teno with a forward with 30 seconds to go.

Dr. W. G. Hardy, first vice-president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said the decision of the C.A.H.A. rules committee on the protest would be given today in Toronto.

Overand and his fellow-official, Bert Hedges of Toronto, will be replaced in tonight's game by Lorne Lyndon, Winnipeg, and Oliver Reinikka of Rossland, B.C.

Out Three Games.

Kampman, who missed the last three games because of a gashed foot suffered in the first game, was expected to take his place on the Sudbury lineup tonight to team with Chunkie Little Frank Lavigne. Steve Conick will be dropped to make way for the big fellow.

Manager Jack Abbott of Beavers said he would use the same team as saw service in the first four games. The probable lineups:

North Battleford—Goal, Davis; defence, Myles and McIntyre; centre, Duchak; wings, Shillington and Burke; subs, O'Keane, S. Allen, G. Allen, Schwab.

WINGS RETAIN STANLEY CUP IN 3-0 FINAL

Marty Barry Scores Two And John Sorrell The Third

FAST, ROUGH BATTLE

Rookie Goalie Robertson Holds Rangers To Shutout Second Time

By Allan Nicholson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

DETROIT, April 16 (C.P.)—Cowbells clattered and champagne glasses were lifted until dawn, at least, in this hockey-mad city today in honor of Detroit Red Wings—hockey history makers. The bells, it seemed, were the favorite noise makers, and champagne the drink of all.

With four stars watching from the sidelines, the great Jack Adams-piloted machine found the end of an uphill fight in shutting out amazing New York Rangers 3-0 and placing the Stanley Cup back in its Detroit show window until the end of next season, at least.

The final gong to the accompaniment of cheers and screeching from a joy-maddened, arena-jamming crowd of 14,102—largest gathering of the four games of the series here—marked the first time that a National League team from the United States has won the N.H.L. championship and the Stanley Cup two years in succession.

It is also but the second time in history that any team has captured both titles two years in a row. Ottawa Senators accomplished it in the seasons of 1919-20, 1920-21. By a strange coincidence, Coach Lester Patrick of the vanquished Gothamites called the Wings to take the battered old mug at the start of this season.

Three Stars Repeat.

As in the game on Tuesday—the fourth of the series—clean-cut Marty Barry, all-star centre; Syd Howe, Ottawa's versatile gamecock; and Goaler Earl Robertson were the brightest stars in a shining firmament of inspired battlers.

Barry, announced winner on Wednesday of the Lady Byng Trophy, awarded annually to the N.H.L. player judged to be most gentlemanly and most helpful to his team, tallied two of the goals, and got an assist on the third. Long John Sorrell counted the other — his first since the playoff began.

Robertson, spurned by Toronto Maple Leafs heads when they had a chance to buy him last year and chose Walter Broda instead, gave a display of goaltending never surpassed in this city. He kicked out goal-labelled shots time and time again.

Done With the Miners.

Brought up from Pittsburgh Hornets, Detroit farm team, to replace the great Normie Smith, Vezina trophy winner this season, who injured his arm in a league championship playoff game with Canadiens in Montreal, Robertson played sensationally all through the series. It is unlikely he's go back to the minors and Jack Adams announced the slick-haired "kid" is for sale.

Robertson went into the nets when Smith suffered a recurrence of his arm injury in the first game of this low-scoring series in New York a week ago Tuesday. Rangers won that game 3-1 with three of the goals being scored on Smith. Remainder of the games were played here because Madison Square Gardens was under contract to a circus.

Detroit took the second game 4-2 and Rangers again forged into a one-game lead in winning the third tilt 1-0. Detroit evened the count by reversing that score in the fourth meeting and Robertson gained his second successive shutout of the full-length series last night.

Howe, a little, rugged demon, matched his previous games performance with a great display of defensive hockey, mostly on the defence, but sometimes on the forward line.

Howe Greatest of Them All.

Coach Adams, apparently recovered from a fainting spell in the dressing room after the tilt, told a banquet audience that "Howe, is, in my opinion, the greatest all-round hockey player in the world to-day."

Ezzer's Johnny Gallagher played probably the greatest game of his career in working like a Trojan on the Detroit rearguard. He played 40 minutes and bore the brunt of defence duties after Ebbie Goodfellow, suffering from a crushed knee received in the fourth match, was unable to return for the second and third periods.

What appeared to be a Ranger goal was called back early in the second period and was thought by many to be the turning point of the battle. A penalty shot was called on the play but Robertson had little trouble in saving on Alex Shibicky's drive.

The Red Wings, who twice fought back to even the series after the Rangers, in an inspired rush, had taken the lead, were masters of the situation last night after Barry's first goal thirty-eight seconds before the end of the first period. It was scored while Joe Cooper cooled in the penalty box for butting Sergie Lewis. Barry deflected Syd Howe's hard shot from the blue line, to catch the Ranger goalie Dave Kerr, out of position.

The New York team which had swept aside the Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Maroons to reach the finals, came back with wild fireman rushes in a mad attempt to score, and almost did. Only a referee's decision that Lewis held Neil Colville as the "man with the iron jaw" shot, prevented a goal by Babe Pratt from counting in the second period. Alex Shibicky was awarded a penalty shot that Robertson stopped easily.

Barry set the stage for Detroit's second goal, getting the puck away from Pratt and shooting it to Herb Lewis who pushed it back for Barry's shot. Barry came in for the rebound and poked the puck under Kerr, giving him a futile attempt to save.

Barry counted again at 3.39 of the third period, pulling the game out of Rangers' reach. Sorrell, breaking up a Ranger rush, passed to Barry, who poked it past Pratt, then broke swiftly into the clear to skate in and beat Kerr.

Rookie Never Falters.

Although the Rangers never stopped rushing the Detroit nets, and at intervals literally rained pucks at Robertson, the rookie met all attacks without faltering, and hard-checking Red Wing defencemen usually saw that the Rangers were off-balance when shots were made.

New York—Goal, Kerr; defence, Coulter, Heller; centre, Boucher; wings, Dillon, Patrick; subs: Pratt, Johnson, Shibicky, N. Colville, Murdoch, Keeling, Cooper, Watson, M. Colville.

Officials—Stewart and Smith.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, April 16 (AP) — Heavyweight situation: Mike Jacobs will bet you Braddock and Louis fight in Chicago in June no matter how Judge Guy Fake rules in Newark...Other circles (perhaps not so well informed) think the bout will be transferred to New York with Max Schmeling meeting the winner in the fall...The smart boys say Madison Square Garden isn't nearly so interested in clinching a Braddock-Schmeling go as it is in proving in court that a contract is a contract ... This done, the Eighth avenue crowd, will be in position to do some trading—and get the best of it...At any rate, June 22 is just about two months away and so far little has been done about promoting a Chicago fight...So write your own tickets.

Intimates tell you the real reason Tony Canzoneri doesn't retire is that he is flat. All his dough is tied up in that big ranch in Marlboro, N.Y., and he needs ready cash...Charlie Gehringer's mother, Mrs. Theresa Gehringer, keeps his scrap book...Barney Ross is so disgusted with the fight situation in general he may go to Australia or Puerto Rico to defend his welterweight title against Jack Carroll or Pedro Montanez...Gene Tunney thinks Bob Nestell, Pacific Coast heavyweight hope, is the goods and recently spent all of 20 minutes giving the youngster a few tips.

Add hall of fame: Col. Jake Ruppert still calls Hank Greenberg, "Hank Goldberg." New Orleans fans are asking the Pelican management to inaugurate a "men's night" similar to "Ladies' Day"...Ethan Allen, outfielder, is writing a book on baseball. It cost the owners of the League between $10,000 and $15,000 to put the Senators on the field this season.

Fred Apostoli's manager has turned down an offer of $5,000 to fight Young Corbett in San Francisco and another offer to meet Freddie Steele in an over-weight bout, also in 'Frisco...

Remember When—

Champion Joe Stecher and Strangler Lewis, professional wrestling greats when wrestling was really a sport, battled for more than three hours at New York 17 years ago tonight. Stecher retained his world title but nine years ago Lewis finally won it from him. That was in the days when the title meant something and there weren't "world" title-holders in every city.

THE MOUTHPIECE

By Edgar Wallace and Robert Curtis

(Copyright—Released By Central Press Association)

READ THIS FIRST:

Charles Stuckey, of a London law firm, reluctantly has agreed to a scheme to defraud the daughter of one of his few respectable clients, Jacqueline Smith, of an inheritance of $1,500,000 from an American uncle. In keeping with the plan, Colonel Alec Lutman, who has a hold over Stuckey, and Jim Anson, and ex-convict, are stopping at the same hotel in Cotenau with Mrs. Smith and her daughter. Jim hopes to marry the girl, having her assign her property to him, before Stuckey informs her of her inheritance. In dire financial straits, Mrs. Smith already is impressed with Jim, posing as a wealthy Englishman, as an admirable "catch" for her daughter. Lutman, in the role of Jim's trustee, subtlely threatens Jacqueline with a check he caused for her mother returned marked "insufficient funds". Finding her mother distraught over their financial plight and Lutman's implied threat five more checks, Jacqueline tells her she will marry Jim. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 14

AFTER LEAVING her mother Jacqueline found Jim Anson smoking a cigaret in the lounge, and seated herself beside him on the settee.

"Well, Jim, do you really want me to marry you?"

"Of course I do, Jacqueline. I've been wanting and hoping..."

"Listen, Jim, before you start getting rapturous," interrupted the girl, "I don't love you, and if I marry you it will be because I'm sick of never having a shilling to spend, sick of the sort of life I've been leading. It'll be because you've got enough money to give me a home of my own and a good time and nice clothes and all that sort of thing, and because you've promised to make mother a generous allowance. Is that clear?"

"You don't give me much chance to misunderstand, Jacqueline."

"It's best to be frank. That's why I should be marrying you, and for no other reason at all. I don't want to marry you under false pretenses. I like you, but I don't love you and I don't believe I ever shall love you."

"It sounds a bit cold-blooded, Jacqueline."

She smiled. "Your proposal wasn't exactly ardent, Jim," she reminded him. "That's the position, anyway. Of course, I'll be a sport and play the game and behave as a good wife is expected to behave, but it will only be for the reasons I've given you. Do you still want to marry me?"

"Of course."

"Righto, Jim; I'm willing. So we call it a bet, do we?"

"Absolutely. And as soon as possible, eh, Jacqueline? I'll see old Lutman and get things fixed up and we'll be married straightaway, shall we?"

She nodded and got up.

"See you later, then, Jim," she said, and went up to her bedroom.

There, for a long time, she sat staring out of the window. "But why?" she kept asking herself. "Why does Jim want to marry me? And why does Colonel Lutman want him to?"

Charles Stuckey on the sunlit terrace of the Hotel Walderstein was a very different person from Charles Stuckey in the dingy office of Messrs. Stuckey & Stuckey in London.

He was dressed, for instance, in a suit of plus-fours of vivid pattern, which, though it caused no commotion in the valley of the Danube, long since inured to the British tourist's conception of suitable attire for foreign travel, would probably have caused a riot in Rotherhithe. From the pocket of his jacket protruded the inevitable pocket kodak, and on the back of his head he wore a green Austrian hat complete with its bunch of feathers. He was smoking a large German pipe, puffing at it furiously as he studied the little German phrase-book in his hand. Moreover, there was a look on his face which was never there when Charles Stuckey was in his Rotherhithe office. He never enjoyed himself there as he was enjoying himself now.

He had not been there many minutes before he had decided that he liked Cotenau. He liked the sunlit terrace of the hotel; he liked the view across the river; he liked his hat and the appearance, if not the taste, of his pipe; and he liked particularly the look of the girl who was seated a little farther along the terrace beneath the shade of the big umbrella.

The only thing which so far he had not found did not quite meet with his approval was the fact that the waiter, though no doubt he had been born and bred in the country, seemed quite unable to understand his own language—at least, as it was explained in Charles' little book.

"Beer!" said Charles, raising his voice as if mere volume of sound would convey his meaning. "I want some beer and a newspaper—anything but a Sunday newspaper."

"Bier, ja," said the waiter. "Sunday?" He raised his eyebrows, spread out his hands, and shook his head.

"You don't understand Sunday?" said Charles, and hastily consulted the index of his little book, found "Days of the week", and began hurriedly thumbing the pages.

And then, before the book could throw any light on the subject, he heard the blessed sound of a very pleasant voice saying in English, "Can I help you?" and glanced up to see Jacqueline, looking ever more attractive at close quarters than she had looked beneath the umbrella, smiling at him in a friendly way.

Charles replied with his broadest smile.

"Thank heaven!" he said fervently. "You speak English. It's the most marvelous thing that has happened to me since I entered the valley of the Danube."

'Marvelous? It's the language I was born into."

"That explains it," he said. "Why you speak it so well, I mean. You do, you know. You speak it much better than I speak German, and much better than this chap understands German. He doesn't even know the days of the week. I asked him for any newspaper but a Sunday one, and he looked as if I'd asked him to lend me a fiver."

Jacqueline turned to the waiter and rattled off a sentence in German which brought to Charles' eyes a look of rapt admiration; and the waiter, evidently understanding quite easily what she had said, turned and hurried away.

"Thanks awfully," said Charles. "And now, will you—if that sort of thing is allowed in this country—will you allow me to offer you a drink? You can order it yourself, you know, because the only drink I know in German is beer."

Jacqueline nodded toward her table beneath the umbrella.

"I have one there," she said. "Come and join me, won't you?"

They seated themselves under the umbrella and Jacqueline, accepting a cigaret, studied Charles keenly for some moments; and then, satisfied, apparently, with the result of her scrutiny, leaned back in her chair.

"Are you staying here?" she inquired.

"Well, no, as a matter of fact I am not," said Charles. "A bird of passage, you know. I move about a good deal," he added airily. "The fact is, I have just run over to settle a small affair for one of my clients. You don't mind my pipe, do you?"

Jacqueline shook her head, smiling.

"It fits the landscape," she told him. "It looks like Austria even if it smells like London."

Charles grinned.

"Hand pointed," he said. "Eight marks. Not dear, was it?"

"You get a lot of smoke for your money, anyway," laughed Jacqueline. "Do you often come over?"

"Now and then," said Charles. "I have several clients who reside in Austria, but, of course, unless it is something important, I usually send a clerk."

"Clients," said Jacqueline. "Oh, are you a lawyer?"

Charles glanced at her with unconcealed admiration.

"I say, that's very clever of you. Clients—lawyer. Yes, I see your train of thought. As a matter of fact, I am a lawyer. Do you mind?"

"Oh, no," smiled Jacqueline. "It's the way things happen, you know. If you see a blue-eyed cow in the morning you're certain to see one in the afternoon. I suppose he'll turn up today too—the other lawyer, I mean."

Charles frowned slightly.

"Hurray!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "The flood water is going down almost as fast as it came up. Soon the flood will be over. But how am I going to get down out of this tree?" he wondered. "I'm not very good at climbing. I should have been a monkey for this adventure."

Not Afraid

Still, being a brave rabbit gentleman, Uncle Wiggily twinkled his pink nose and wasn't afraid. He knew something would happen to save him. Until then he would stay in the tree house.

All of a sudden Uncle Wiggily felt hungry. No wonder! It was long past his dinner time and he had nothing to eat.

"Dear me!" he said. "What am I to do? What shall I eat?"

Just then he felt some drops splashing on his face and on his nose.

"Oh, it's raining again!" he thought. "Too bad!" Some of the drops ran down his cheeks and he licked them off with his tongue. To his surprise the drops were almost like sugar.

"Sweet rain!" cried Mr. Longears. "It is raining sweet rain! What a wonderful adventure!"

He opened his mouth. More sweet drops fell in it. But it wasn't really raining. The drops were coming from the end of a tree branch over Uncle Wiggily's stranded washtub boat.

"Can anybody tell me what this means?" asked the surprised rabbit.

"Yes, I can," a voice answered. "That sweet rain is good to eat."

And if the sardine doesn't jump out of his can and go swimming with the goldfish, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's rain candy.

Lawyers of Sydney, N.S.W., have been asked by Father P. Murphy, prominent Catholic clergyman, to refuse to have hand, act, or part in divorce proceedings.

To accustom horses to the flaunting decorations during the Coronation parade in London, the animals are being driven between rows of men waving pieces of sacking.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SWEET RAIN

"All hands on deck to lower the sail!" cried Uncle Wiggily.

With that the rabbit gentleman closed his umbrella. He was pretending to be a sailor rabbit because he had gone for a ride in a washtub boat on the high flood water. The washtub boat was now stuck high in a tree, where the water had carried it. Uncle Wiggily was pretending it was his tree house.

"For I may have to live in it a long time," he said as he looked over the edge of the tub and saw the deep water swirling beneath. "I can't get down out of my tree house until the flood waters go down. Dear me, what an adventure this is! Most surprising!"

Having closed his umbrella or, as a sailor would call it, having "furled the sail," Uncle Wiggily wondered what he should do next.

"I'm sort of shipwrecked," he said, speaking to himself as there was no one else in the washtub boat to whom he could talk. "But I shall do the best I can in my tree house," he said.

Rain Stops

Then he noticed it wasn't raining any more. If it had been he could have kept the umbrella open over his head and it would be like a roof to his tree house.

"I'll hoist the umbrella again if it rains," said Mr. Longears. "I can't use it as a sail any more because I am held fast in the tree."

That was quite true. The tub had become wedged between two large branches of the tree. Luckily the tub remained level so the bottom of it was like the floor of a house.

"Not many rooms in my tree house!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "It has only one, but that is enough for me. I may not stay here long."

Again he looked over the edge of the tub into the muddy, swirling waters of the flood.

"I suppose that is my bath room," laughed the rabbit gentleman. "But as I am not a very good swimmer, I'll wait for my bath until I get back to my bungalow and take a bath there."

As Uncle Wiggily watched the water beneath his tub in the tree, he saw that it was going down. At one time it had been up almost to the edge or rim of the tub, now it was halfway down the side.

of his Austrian hat and straightened his tie. "Don't you think I'm likely to know him?"

She shook her head.

"No, I wasn't thinking that; but I was wondering—Do you get into police courts and defend people?"

Charles looked shocked.

"I? My dear child, don't be absurd. Police courts! Chancery, administrative (estates, trustees, all

PRESS DISCOVERS HITLER ROMANCE WITH POLA NEGRI

So Worried About Her Aryan Ancestry He Sends To Paris For Check-up

POLE PAPERS CONFISCATED

WARSAW, April 16 —(CP)— A sensational story that Adolf Hitler has become an infatuated with Pola Negri, movie actress, that he sent agents into Paris to obtain proof of her Aryan ancestry, resulted last night in confiscation of two polish newspapers.

The Government seized all copies of the Warsaw newspaper, Kurjer Codzienny, and the newspaper Polonia, published at Katowice on the German frontier.

Both newspapers had reprinted an article from the sensational Sunday Referee of London of April 10, linking the names of Der Fuehrer and the exotic Pola.

The article, it was explained, was a reflection upon the dignity of the head of a foreign state.

Polish authorities said they knew nothing of any romance between the two, or the reported despatch of Nazi investigators to check upon Miss Negri's ancestry.

They insisted, however, that she was not Jewish and that Chalupiec family—her real name is Apolonia Chalupiec—is "pure Aryan."

The reprinted Sunday Referee despatch said that Hitler, often seen in Miss Negri's company during recent weeks, burst into tears and shouted, "The slanderers!" when romantic rumors of their friendship reached him.

ACCIDENT VICTIM

KINGSTON, Ont., April 16 (CP)—Miss Katherine Lydia Hinch, 82, died in hospital during the night from injuries received when struck by a car on Wednesday near Napanee. The car was driven by F. G. Embury of Kingston. It was stated by police at Napanee, Miss Hinch was apparently crossing the road to visit friends when she became confused.

HEPBURN'S INVITATION ACCEPTED BY STRIKERS

Millard And Cohen To Represent Men Place of Thompson

General Motors Insist Premier Be Included After Martin's Disrespectful Statements

ORGANIZER WITHDRAWS

Cards On Table Today — Strikers' Stewards Hold Long Night Session

TORONTO, April 17 (CP).—Negotiations between General Motors of Canada and their striking Oshawa employees will be resumed here this afternoon in the office of Premier Mitchell Hepburn, the Premier announced shortly before noon today.

At two o'clock, H. J. Carmichael, vice-president and general manager, and J. B. Highfield, plant manager of General Motors; Louis Fine, Ontario Department of Labor; the Premier, and probably two representatives of the Oshawa local of the United Automobile Workers of America will sit down to a round-table conference to work out a settlement of the strike which has kept 3,700 General Motors employees from work for the last 10 days.

Today's conference is a belated and indirect result of Mr. Hepburn's invitation of Thursday night to such a conference in his office yesterday morning, which failed to materialize in the absence of any union representatives.

Accept After Time Limit

After all-day conferences in Oshawa, the union early today decided it would "accept" the invitation to a conference, although the time specified had passed.

While General Motors will meet Millard and Cohen as representatives of the striking employees in Oshawa, it remains to be seen whether they will meet them also as representatives of Local 222, United Automobile Workers of America, affiliated with John L. Lewis' committee for industrial organization.

Announcement of acceptance of the invitation came soon after midnight by Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America.

Martin, making his second trip to the strike area since the walkout on April 8, conferred earlier in the evening with the shop stewards and then placed their proposal before a closed general meeting.

C. H. Millard, president of the Oshawa Local of U.A.W., and J. L. Cohen, of Toronto, union counsel, will represent the strikers, along with a committee, "on behalf of the union," Martin's statement said.

Martin did not indicate definitely when the conference would be held, but it was expected to be called immediately. Harry Carmichael, vice-president and general manager of General Motors, and James Highfield, plant manager, will probably represent the company, as indicated in the Premier's invitation.

There was no announcement regarding return to work of employees during any negotiations. Martin, after issuing the statement, said he would address a meeting of shop stewards at the Flint, Mich., plant of General Motors on Sunday afternoon, and speak at a membership meeting on Sunday night.

Decision Made In Detroit.

Martin's statement said:

"We have always stood ready to negotiate, provided negotiations are upon a proper basis. A proper basis was reached Thursday night in Detroit and confirmed Friday by telephone with General Motors officials in Detroit.

"According to the agreement reached in Detroit, negotiations were to be resumed between a local

Spaniards Stop War For Smoke And Chat

Madrid, April 17—(AP) INSURGENTS and Government soldiers took time out for a smoke together on the El Pardo front north of Madrid to-day.

Then, when they had collected the dead from No Man's Land, they returned to their trenches. Fighting started again.

HEPBURN BRANDS MARTIN, THOMPSON PAIR OF BLUFFERS

May As Well Get Out Gracefully—Denies Any G.M. Stock Among Cabinet

TURNS ON PROF. HAVELOCK

TORONTO, April 17—(CP)—Premier Hepburn was expected to gather representatives of General Motors of Canada and its striking workers in his Queen's Park office today for a peace conference.

One point is to be cleared up before the conference takes place. Mr. Hepburn sent the invitation to C. H. Millard, president of the Oshawa local of the United Automobile Workers Union, and J. L. Cohen, Union counsel.

The Union in accepting said Mr. Millard, Mr. Cohen and "The committee on behalf of the Union" would attend. Whether this meant the strikers would include United States Union representatives in the delegation was not made clear. Mr. Hepburn has consistently refused to deal with men he calls "foreign agitators."

A Generous Offer.

The latest official word from the Premier on the strike was issued last night when he said General Motors had made a "generous offer" in proposing to resume negotiations if the men returned to work. Mr. Hepburn said if it were adopted the government would see that it was carried out "as far as the jurisdiction of the government allows."

The premier said neither Homer Martin, international union president, nor Hugh Thompson, organizer of the U.A.W.A. would be permitted to take part in the negotiations which General Motors proposed yesterday.

"They're just a pair of bluffers and might as well get out of the country gracefully," the premier said of Martin and Thompson. "Incidentally they can take the mayor of Oshawa (Alex Hall) with them as

NO TRACE OF BOY

Disappears in Timmins Wednesday on Way to School.

TIMMINS, Ont., April 17 (CP)—No trace of Carlo Halonen, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Halonen, who disappeared while returning to school on Wednesday, has been found despite an intensive search by police.

The boy left his home on Wednesday to return to school.

The boy, a playmate of the two Timmins boys who left here last year by freight, being picked up in Toronto a few days later, may have decided to take a similar trip, his parents believe.

2 P.C. SCHOOL TAX IN SASKATCHEWAN

Hits Most Retail Sales Over 15 Cents—Will Pay Up Teachers, Increase Grants

REGINA, April 17 (CP). — Saskatchewan citizens today studied provisions of the new education tax bill imposing a two per cent. levy on retail sales of goods in the province with specific exemptions.

The tax bill was given third reading shortly before the Legislature was prorogued yesterday by Lieutenant-Governor A. P. McNab. It will come into force by proclamation, probably not earlier than July 1.

All purchases under 15 cents are exempt under the education tax to provide revenue for increased school grants and $200,000 for loans to school boards for payments on unpaid teachers' notes. Anticipated revenue is $1,550,000.

Articles valued from 15 to 74 cents will pay a one-cent tax. From 75 cents to $1.24 the tax will be two cents and the levy will be graduated similarly on higher values.

Use Stamp System.

Premier Patterson indicated stamps probably would be used extensively in collection of the tax but not exclusively. Stamps may be attached to packaged goods selling at a standard price, such as beer in the case, liquor in packages, dried fruits, toilet articles, radio tubes.

OFFICER APPRECIATIVE.

MELBOURNE Victoria.—(CP). — Startled when halted, a woman motorist blushed modestly when the policeman said to her: "I stopped you to compliment you. You are the only driver who has given the right signal, and made the right turn at this busy intersection."

Test Coronation Procession Prove Treat For Thousands

Sunday Morning Rehearsal To Be Complete With Troops, Horses, Landaus, Coaches, Bands

EVERYTHING TIMED

By I. Norman Smith
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, April 17 (C.P. Cable)—The Coronation procession will be rehearsed during the early hours of Sunday morning complete with troops, horses, landaus, coaches and bands. But khaki will be worn instead of the resplendent colors of the pageantry of May 12.

To-morrow's procession is to start at 10 a.m., but to throngs of eager Londoners anticipating watching it the hour will seem more like five a.m., for Sunday is the first day of summer time. Yet the police are expecting crowds of those people who are becoming increasingly aware they will be unable to witness the Coronation Day procession without a tremendous effort.

With a sovereign's escort and headed by Household Cavalry bands and an escort of Royal Horse Guards a state coach will proceed by the Victoria Embankment, Northumberland Avenue, and Pall Mall to Waterloo Place. There, at 7.10 a.m., troops of the various Guards regiments will join in and the procession

Barrel Navigator To Try Luck Again

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 17.—(CP)—Ernest Belgalski, Great Lakes barrel sailor, looked out over Lake Erie today and announced he planned to aim his barrel for Cleveland early in May and "after that Europe." Belgalski, undaunted by two unsuccessful attempts to sail the Great Lakes in his barrel-shaped contrivance, last fall said he believed that with alterations his craft would prove seaworthy this time.

Belgalski, a former deep sea diver, built the first barrel ship last summer but on its first test it stopped water. After making minor repairs he set out for Cleveland but something went wrong with the steering apparatus and the craft headed down the Niagara River towards Niagara Falls. He was rescued by Coastguardsmen. Belgalski spent his bonus as a United States Great War veteran on building the odd looking ship.

Kingston Official Is Guilty Of Theft

KINGSTON, Ont., April 17 (CP)—Charles Woods, 39, formerly on the staff of the city treasury department pleaded guilty before Magistrate Shea this morning to the theft of $1,004.61. He was remanded for sentence until Monday. Woods was employed for the past few years with the welfare department treasury. He had been arrested on the charge of the theft of $34, in the form of a relief cheque, and investigations disclosed that the total sum of $1,004.61 was stolen.

Woods faced court under a blanket charge, covering the total amount and pleaded guilty.

FEAR PRO-NAZI COUP LOOMING IN BUCHAREST

Banishment Of Ex-Prince Nicholas Stirs Rumblings Of Repercussions

WATCH IRON-GUARD

Cabinet Authorizes Government Use Sternest Measures In Suppression

BUCHAREST, Rumania, April 17 (AP)—The Rumanian government, fearing a pro-Nazi coup, was ready for any eventuality today as political repercussions of the banishment of ex-Prince Nicholas created tension throughout the nation.

Officials were apprehensive the banned Rightist "Iron guard," angered because its representatives were not consulted before Nicholas was expelled for refusing to renounce his commoner wife, might challenge the government. In a special session, the cabinet authorized the government to "repress with the strongest measures" any political disturbances fostered by the "iron guard."

Tension in the capital was partially relieved by the release pending trial of Prof. Alexander Gerota, who publicly opposed the government's action stripping Nicholas of his royal rank.

Women Behind It All

(In Belgrade, Yugoslavia, dispatches from Rumania declared a wave of protest against King Carol's association with Magda Lupescu had swept the nation after Nicholas was read out of the royal family. Authoritative Belgrade reports said Prof. Gerota was arrested because he asserted in his magazine "My Creed" that Nicholas' marriage to a commoner was a minor matter compared with the King's long association with Mme. Lupescu.)

Premier George Tatrescu remained firm in his intention to keep the Fascist "iron guard" under control, saying "We are prepared to make sacrifices."

The only outward indication of government precautions was strict police control of political meetings.

After the government ban guardists formed a new party, "All for the Fatherland," with General Zizi Cantacuzino as president, and this group, they contend, was entitled to representation at the crown council meeting that decreed Nicholas' ouster.

A Love Affair

All copies of two Polish newspapers carrying a story which linked the names of Adolf Hitler and Pola Negri, motion picture actress, in a love affair were confiscated at the German border. The story, first carried in the London Sunday Referee and reprinted in the Polish newspapers, reported Hitler to be in love with the former wife of Serge Mdivani that he had sent agents to Paris to check on her Aryan ancestry. A recent photograph of Miss Negri is shown BELOW with a photograph of the German dictator inset.

Big City Gunmen Get Lost, And Caught, In Tiny Town

Wound Federal Agent And Bystander In Escaping From Previous Trap

KIDNAP COUNTRY DOCTOR

OMAHA, Neb., April 17 (A.P.). — Two big city gangsters who engaged Federal agents in a gun battle in the Topeka, Kas., Post Office, wounding one of them and a bystander, were in jail here to-day after their bloodless capture by two country officers.

The New York City gunmen wanted for bank robbery, got lost in the criss-cross streets of a small Nebraska town last night and were disarmed before they could resist.

Ten hours after the men identified as Robert Suhay, 26, and Alfred Powers, 45, shot their way out of the trap set by Federal agents they were captives of Sheriff Homer Sylvester. During their flight they kidnapped a country physician and forced him to treat Suhay who was wounded.

Too Many Zig-zag Streets.

The Sheriff and his brother, Deputy Cass Sylvester, arrested them at Plattsmouth, Neb., a town of 3,700 population 25 miles south of here. Suhay and Powers found the winding streets of tiny Plattsmouth a maze. When they stopped to get their bearings on the town's outskirts the officers pounced on them.

H. B. Fletcher, Federal agent in charge here, identified the men as those charged with conspiring with Raymond McNelly and others to rob the Kalonah, N.Y., Bank, and with the $18,000 robbery of the bank last March 18.

McNelly was arrested in New York yesterday by Federal agents. Seized without resistance, he was arraigned before a U.S. Commissioner and held under $3,000 bond.

Powers and Suhay seriously wounded Wayne W. Baker, 27, on his first major assignment as a Federal officer. He was struck by four bullets. Another hit O. D. Davis, a bystander, in the foot.

NEW KILLING METHOD.

CANBERRA, Australia.—(CP). — An "electric stunner" is being used in Australian slaughter houses. It is placed over the ears of pigs which are immediately rendered unconscious. Meanwhile they are killed and the hair is removed by another machine in three minutes.

Wants Some Lessons In Western Fighting

Cascade Locks, Ore., April 17 CITY Marshal Colin Merrill, who wrote in fun to Dr. Franz Sargs, Budapest's much-publicized duellist, for instruction in the art wondered today just who was being kidded.

The doctor, in reply, offered to give sabre lessons when he visits the United States, in exchange for instructions in "how to fight more adversaries in your good old Western fashion."

DRIVER SUFFERED INJURIES TO HEAD

Chris Mason Thrown Through Windshield When Car Strikes Tree

When he failed to negotiate the curve at Reid street and Chemong road at 12.25 a.m. this (Saturday) morning, Chris Mason, 17, of 908 Bolivar street crashed the car he was driving into a tree and tore up a length of fencing, and as a result of being pitched through the windshield of the car sustained severe head injuries. He was removed to Nicholls Hospital in the police patrol car. According to police investigation Mason had been out driving with George Maclean and the latter's girl friend, and drove off in the car while Maclean was seeing the girl to her front door. The car was being driven east on Reid street and according to measurements made by police, it was driven for 16-feet on the shoulder of the road before proceeding a further 20 feet on the drive pathway to crash into a tree. The front of the car was completely wrecked.

"Jake" The Duck Meets Untimely End When Attacked By A Neighbor's Dog

The strange friendship between a dog and a duck who were familiar figures to residents of Chamberlain street as they played together on the street and in the back yards, has been severed with the violent death of the duck.

"Jake" which was the duck's name came to his untimely end because of his trusting innocence. He was all right so long as he played with his little four footed friend "Rex", the dog. But when he recently wandered over to Lafayette avenue, he encountered a neighbor's dog who was not so friendly disposed.

According to Mrs. B. P. Lockie, 462 Chamberlain street, who owned the two "good companions" "Jake" was attacked by a neighbor's dog, and after limping home with his feathered body badly mangled by canine teeth, he had to be destroyed.

U.A.W. AIMING FILE CHARGES AGAINST FORD

Will Have Him Definitely On Run By Monday Martin Boasts In Oshawa

MAY INVOLVE BEATINGS

Campaign To Enrol Magnate's Auto Workers In Union Is Intensified

DETROIT, April 17 (AP).—A drive to unionize employees of the Ford Motor Company proceeded today and the United Automobile Workers of America said it would file charges against the independent producer with the National Labor Relations Board.

"We will have Henry Ford definitely on the run by Monday," said Homer Martin, U.A.W.A. president, at Oshawa, Ont., where he went in connection with the General Motors of Canada, Ltd., strike.

He did not discuss the nature of the proposed charges against the company, but at Detroit Ed Hall, a union vice-president, said it was likely action would be taken in connection with the beating of two union members employed in the Ford plant at Kansas City this week.

Hall, who went to Chicago to confer with Stewart-Warner Corporation officials, said he would proceed to Kansas City to investigate the violence.

Drive Is Pressed

The U.A.W.A. intensified its campaign to enroll Ford workers, following the upholding of the Wagner National Labor Relations Act by the United States Supreme Court which provides that a labor organization having a majority of the workers shall be the collective bargaining agency.

"We have organized several thousand Ford workers already," declared Walter Reuther, president of the local union, whose area includes the main Ford plant in suburban Dearborn. "The West Side local already has a sufficient base in the Ford plant to ensure a permanent and lasting organization."

ARGENTINE NAZI LEADER IS SLAIN

Blame Reds But Witnesses Claim It Climaxed Dispute Over Party Funds

BUENOS AIRES, April 17.—(CP-Havas).—Acting on a demand from the German Embassy, Buenos Aires provincial authorities to-day ordered an investigation into the death of Joseph Riedel, Nazi leader in the Argentine, fatally wounded by unknown assailants at his home in suburban San Martin last Sunday.

While some witnesses were reported to have told police the Nazi chief had died in a quarrel with his followers over alleged misuse of party funds, dispatches from Germany indicated the press there was ascribing Riedel's death to the Communist International.

The "Fuehrer" of the Nazi organization in this country died early Monday, according to the police, from abdominal bullet wounds inflicted the preceding night in the hallway of his home. Argentine authorities kept his death secret until yesterday.

The theory that Riedel was killed by a bullet from his own gun was reported advanced last night by witnesses testifying at a police inquiry. Witnesses were said to have told police the gun went off when fellow-Nazis tried to disarm him after he became enraged at their challenges of his use of party funds.

Winnipeg, April 17—(CP) THE men at Westminster Church here are going to show the ladies just how it is done. As a twenty-fifth anniversary celebration in June, the men will hold a jubilee tea, with prominent business men of the city pouring tea. Senator J. T. Haig of Winnipeg is on the Guest Receiving Committee.

FOUR WITNESSES OF JEHOVAH WAIT THEIR SENTENCES

Wanted People To Believe 'Priests Liars, Financiers Thieves, Government Hypocrites'

JUDGE RULES IT SEDITION

QUEBEC, April 17 (CP)—Convicted of seditious conspiracy which the Crown claimed "might have resulted in revolution," four witnesses of Jehovah await sentence by Mr Justice Lucien Cannon who claimed the two men and two women "wanted the population . . . to believe priests are liars, our financiers thieves, and our governing classes, hypocrites."

The four, Mrs. C. Alton, Mrs. A. M. Rose, 69, and W. J. Brown, all of Belleville, Ont., and P. W. Greenwood of Montreal, arrested with a score of others more than three years ago, were convicted last night by a jury in court of King's bench.

Louis Lemay, head of defence counsel, said he would appeal the convictions.

The jury returned its verdict three hours after it had left the court-room where Mr. Justice Cannon explained everyone was entitled to religious freedom, but that religious freedom was not to be used as a cloak for the preaching of violent doctrines.

"I will not render my decision until Tuesday," he said after the jury returned the verdict. "I'm disposed to suspend sentence as far as the two women are concerned. I feel we are not dealing with the ordinary criminal which comes before the court, but there is a matter of principle at stake."

Psychology Only Way To End Square Pegs In Round Holes

Will Be Tested To Show Ability Says Professor

FEWER SPOILED LIVES

WINDSOR, Ont., April 17 (CP)—Not far distant is the time when every child, youth, man and woman will be psychologically tested to determine their abilities, Professor J. H. Levy, of Toronto, industrial psychologist, told members of the Windsor branch Engineering Institute of Canada, last night.

"When that time comes, he said, there will be fewer square pegs in square holes because individuals will know for what vocations they are suited, the things they can do best, and the type of occupation they will be happiest at.

"The purpose of the psychological test is not to find out how much you know," he said, "but to find out how much you are capable of knowing and doing. The thing is to find out what vocation an individual is fitted for. These days too many people are doing what they should not be doing."

For example, he said a great many children who take college courses should never go to university. They should be taught, instead, to work with their hands. As it is now, parents are puzzled to determine what vocations they should encourage

The veteran Ranger player got the second on a pass from O'Donnell. P. C. Steele gave England its half-time lead shortly before the interval.

Charlton Eliminated

Charlton Athletic dropped out of the English Football League championship race when held to a 2-2 draw at Everton. Manchester City, probable champion, maintained its three-point margin over Arsenal by downing Preston North End, 5-2. The Gunners, one point up on Charlton, blanked Portsmouth 4-0.

Send 30,000 Troops To Quell Tribesmen

In an effort to pacify rebel tribesmen on the northwest frontier of India—wild native fighters who have been systematically attacking British troops stationed near the frontier—British authorities at Delhi will send 33,000 men to the wild region of Waziristan. Leader of the tribesmen is the Fakir of Ipi, fanatical native who has been responsible for the guerilla warfare which recently took the lives of seven British officers, two non-commissioned officers and 20 native soldiers. Thirty-nine other soldiers of the same party were wounded. At the LEFT above is the first and only photograph made of the Fakir of Ipi, mysterious leader of the tribesmen. At the RIGHT is a typical native hillman well-armed and almost impossible to contact in his wild home, who stages the deadly sorties. A map of the northwest section of India showing the district where the guerilla warfare has been waged with disastrous effect to British rule. BELOW is a grow of British and native Indian soldiers with a mountain gun of the type used by the troops in their patrol of the boundary between India and Afghanistan. OUR LEAN BACON IS FINDING FAVOR UPON U.S. TABLES

Exports, Doubled In January And February However May Be Hit By Polish Pact

PRICE HIGH ACROSS BORDER

OTTAWA, April 17 (CP)—Canadian lean bacon, mostly intermixed with fat, is finding favor on United States breakfast tables judging by figures showing increased exports to that country.

Information gathered at the Department of Agriculture indicates high prices for hogs and bacon in the United States are responsible for the exports, as they provide enough margin over the Canadian prices to permit payment of the import duties, but reports also indicate a preference in some quarters for the meat from Canadian hogs.

Latest advices indicate United States prices are inclined to sag due in part to importations of high quality bacon from Poland and in consequence Canadian exports may not be as great in the next few months as during the winter.

In January and February exports of Canadian bacon and ham to the United States aggregated 469,600 pounds compared with 239,500 in the same period of 1936. Along with this some 19,854 live hogs were shipped across the line in the two month period, an increase over the same period the year before.

These exports occurred despite the duty which was not reduced on either hogs or bacon and hams under the Canada-United States

CANADA HAS PART IN HISTORIC PAST OF WESTMINSTER

Memorial Service To General Sir Arthur Currie Held There In 1933

SCENE OF JUBILEE

LONDON, April 17 (CP).—One of the last great services in Westminster Abbey, where King George and Queen Elizabeth will be crowned next month, was of special interest to Canada—the memorial service to General Sir Arthur Currie. This took place in the Abbey in December, 1933, simultaneously with the funeral in Montreal of the great Canadian war leader. The Abbey was also the scene of the funeral service of the first Lord Strathcona, great pioneer of the Canadian West, in 1914.

Canada's Golden Jubilee was celebrated by a special service in the ancient edifice on Dominion Day in 1917, when the vast congregation consisted largely of war-wounded Canadians, of nurses, and of other men and women from Canada and the rest of the Empire engaged in London on war service. Another such service was held in 1927 to mark the Dominion's Diamond Jubilee.

Of all the commemorations to be held within the Abbey undoubtedly the most impressive was the burial of the Unknown Warrior November 11, 1920. Immediately before the interment in the Abbey King George unveiled the cenotaph in Whitehall, less than a quarter of a mile away.

Memory of the spectacle offered that day remains ineffaceable with those who were privileged to witness it. One recalls the solemn quiet brooding over the great space of Whitehall, with the cenotaph standing solitary in its wrappings.

In the Abbey the open grave was within a few spaces of the west door. King George stood at the head while sergeants of the Guards lowered the body into the depth, and the silence was broken only by the creaking of a chair in some distant corner. Part of the royal family, including the then Queen of Spain, stood at the far side of the grave while the sentences of committal were pronounced by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Gladstone's funeral in 1898 drew to the Abbey followers of Liberal thought from all corners of Europe. And in 1905 the funeral of Sir Henry Irving, the greatest stage presence of his day, drew the attention of the world to the south transept of the Abbey, familiarly known as Poets' Corner, where reposes the dust of Chaucer and Spenser, and of Garrick, Irving's greatest predecessor.

Happier events in the Abbey of late years were the wedding of the present King and Queen, and the Duke and Duchess of Kent.

WEDDING SHOWER HASTINGS BRIDE

Miss Pearl McMillan, Bride-Elect Of Week, Guest Of Honor At Social

HASTINGS, April 17.—A most interesting pre-nuptial event took place on Tuesday evening when over 35 friends from Hastings, Norwood, Havelock, Westwood and Campbellford gathered in the Hastings Orange Hall to enjoy a social evening and present a miscellaneous shower to Miss Pearl McMillan, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McMillan whose marriage to Mervin Baptie of Norwood, takes place on Saturday.

Hastings L.O.B.A. No. 468 were responsible for the evening, which was pleasantly spent in euchre and dancing, with music furnished by Don Beamish and Phil Ford.

Following the service of refreshments, W.M. Bro. Arthur Beamish acted as master of ceremonies and graciously welcomed everyone. He then called the happy young couple to the platform, where they had reserved chairs for them near the display of daintily wrapped gifts. As J. Brown unwrapped the parcels, Mrs. Walter Warner read the names of those who presented the gifts, including silver, china, linen and many other useful things. The honored ones made suitable acknowledgement, thanking one and all for their kindness. After the singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" dancing was resumed.

Personals.

Mr. Robert Johnston, who has been connected with the C.N.R. for over 30 years and has been agent at Hastings for over 13 years, left on Wednesday for Stouffville, where he has accepted the position as head agent for the C.N.R. Mr. and Mrs. Johnston and son Bert have many friends who will regret to hear of their departure. As president of the Hastings Bowling Club, Mr. Johnston will be greatly missed by those who enjoyed his company. Mrs. Johnston and Bert are remaining in the village until Bert finishes his term at the Campbellford High school.

Recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Wilson were their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alex C. Wilson and little son, Donald Alexander of Toronto. Mr. Wilson remained over the week-end but Mrs. Wilson and son enjoyed a visit for most of the week.

Among those who attended the shower for Miss Pearl McMillan on Tuesday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Baptie, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Scott, Mr. Arnold Baptie and Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain of Norwood. Mr. John Cige of Campbellford, Miss Leona Board of Havelock, Miss Nena Currah of Omemee, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Loeb of Westwood.

Mrs. A. B. Spellman and son William of Rochester attended the funeral on Tuesday of the late Mrs. William Hill.

Miss Annie Beavis of Seymour, spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. L. Beavis.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Spencer are moving into the house vacated by Mrs. A. E. Spencer and daughter Annie who are exchanging homes with Mr. and Mrs. S. Spencer.

Rebel Move Upon Bilbao Said Halted

Insurgents Suffer Terrific Losses Charging Mountain Peak Stronghold

BLOODY ALL-DAY BATTLE

Besieged Port Offers Cash Prizes For Any Food Ship Running Blockade

HENDAYE, April 17.—(AP)—Insurgent troops, attacking under German military guidance broke today against stubborn Basque defenders of the strategic mountain peak of Saibi, five miles from Durango, government dispatches to the frontier reported.

The Agence Espagne (official government news agency) reported the insurgent advance, directed by German officers, had been halted definitely, thus saving Bilbao, the Basque capital, and Durango, 16 miles southeast of Bilbao, at least temporarily.

"Terrible losses" were inflicted on the insurgents, attempting to close in on the seaport where food supplies have been choked off by encircling land forces and the insurgent naval blockade, the agency declared.

The official insurgent communique concerning operations in North Spain said only that all activity had been halted by "a tempest of rain."

The strategic mountain peak, guarding Basque plains that stretch toward the capital, changed hands at least three times during bitter day and night fighting as planes swooped over the rugged battle line.

Hand-to-Hand Fighting.

Insurgent communiques early in the engagement said from 700 to 1,000 government troops were slain in the battle, much of it hand-to-hand fighting with bayonets and grenades.

Hoping to lure provision ships into food-pinched Bilbao, the Basque government offered cash prizes for food-bearing vessels that run the insurgent naval blockade.

Skippers arriving today would receive 5,000 francs ($220) with the prize diminishing 1,000 francs each day thereafter.

Captains of all the British food ships in St. Jean de Luz, however, remained in port waiting orders from their owners in the face of Britain's refusal to protect her shipping inside Spanish territorial waters.

The refugee-swollen population of Bilbao was said to total more than 350,000 persons facing near starvation conditions.

SECOND FORMERS PRESENT PROGRAM

Campbellford Literary Society Covers Wide Range In Presentation

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 17. — The Second Form Literary meeting of the Campbellford High School Literary Society was held in the school auditorium on Friday afternoon. Alfred Dutton on the bugle gave a few notes as the curtain was opened to the singing by the Second Formers of "Wake Up and Live."

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted following which Jack Thompson presented a splendid variety of current events of world-wide interest. A piano solo by Gwendolyn Neale, "In a Country Garden," followed the election of Vera Wood as critic. Next was a very humorous number entitled "Barber Shop Harmony," with the scene laid in a barber shop and including many primitive ways of hair cutting. The boys who participated were Ronald Russel, Joe Kelly, P. Winstanley, Ross Richardson, Bill Macdonald, Jack Thompson, D. Shaw, and L. Hendricks.

Constance McKelvie delivered an interesting reading.

"Hats of Other Days."

A well prepared item entitled "Hats of Other Days" took the form of a fashion revue of the early nineties with the long costumes and highly plumed hats being passed in revue. This constituted a very humorous and original part of the entertainment. Mary MacDonald, Nola Green, Ruth McGee, Helen Barnum, Christina McKenzie, Nora Millar, M. Lisle, M. McCulloch, C. McKelvie, P. Elmhirst, and Merle Black at the piano were all responsible for this pleasing feature. Gladys Elmhirst rendered a very delightful guitar solo. The recent song hit, "Little Old Lady," was dramatized by Second Form girls, with Madeline Lisle playing the part of the little old lady in an appropriate costume. For an encore "Moo-Moo" was sung.

A play, "One Never Knows," closed the interesting meeting. The players were Ralph Rutherford, Merel Black, Ruth McGee, Rose Richardson, O. Shaw, Helen Barnum, Alex McCulloch, Constance McKelvie, Bill Macdonad, and Joe Kelly.

The critic presented her report, in which she highly commended the Second Form. Don. Bennett, who assisted in several musical numbers, played "God Save the King."

WINS TABLECLOTH

Miss Jean Wallace, Prize Winner in Campbellford Chapter Draw

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 17. — The Esmeralde Chapter I.O.D.E. held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. R. A. Connor, when the draw was made for the lace cloth which Group No. 2 of the chapter was sponsoring. Miss Jean Wallace, Read street, was the winner of the prize. Following the business session the members played bridge for the balance of the evening, with Miss Gladys Reeves getting the prize for high score. A lovely lunch concluded the evening.

The Royal Road TO THE CORONATION

Crossing the Line aboard Renown en route to Australia

A TOUR of East Africa in 1924 and 1925 began the Empire travels of the present King. The next important trip was the voyage to Australia, when the commonwealth's new capital, Canberra, was officially opened in 1927. That trip was enlarged into a world tour, made aboard the battleship Renown, and during which the present King and Queen visited not only Australia and its sister dominion, New Zealand but also the Canary Islands, the West Indies, Panama (where American and Panamanian welcomes were extended to the party), Fiji and Jamaica and many other points.

We do not expect to give a chronological account of that tour though the next article will see the Duke and Duchess in Australia, but a lighter side to the cruise is today's pictorial subject.

On their East African tour in 1924-25, the Duke and Duchess "crossed the line" and His Majesty was given the usual initiation into Father Neptune's order of those who have sailed far enough south to cross the equator. But when the world cruise aboard the Renown began, either the lord of the sea or members of the royal party, or both, declined to accept the previous initiation as complete and final and insisted upon a second ceremonial. So today we have the prince receiving the attentions of the "barber" before being ducked in the traditional manner. He entered into the spirit of it all with zest.

The event, sets the spirit that dominated the entire voyage for once away from England and sailing his beloved ocean once more the prince secured an absence of formality throughout the cruise. He visited every quarter of the battle cruiser from bow to stern and engaged in every sport which the ship afforded. A great deal of work was necessary as plans for functions ashore were made while the Duke and Duchess kept in daily communication with England and the infant daughter they had been compelled to leave behind.

Proverbs 23:32—"At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."

Sabbath Message For the Shut-Ins

SABBATH MESSAGE By REV. E. R. JAMES Toronto

"Isaac builded an altar there and called upon the name of the Lord . . . and pitched his tent there and there Isaac's servants digged a well."

Genesis 26, 25.

This took place more than four thousand years ago. Isaac followed in the footsteps of his father Abraham, who was called "the friend of God," in putting Jehovah first in his life. He is laying the foundation of religion. Our world has received three great gifts from the nations of the past: Philosophy and thought from the Greeks, Law and order from the Romans, and Religion from the Jews. The Jew had a passion for religion. From this desire sprang not only the belief in the one God, but also the remarkable race of prophets. The prophet is not primarily a man who foretells the future. This was only a small part of his work. His chief power lay in the fact that he revealed the mind of God to his generation and to us. He lived so close to God that God gave him an insight into His mind. It is a son of "the friend of God" and the father of such a race who built an altar as his first act and gives us the secret of all true life.

1—RELIGION. "He builded an altar there and called upon the name of the Lord." The erection of an altar was the first work of the patriarchs. They had an instinct for worship. Do you put God first in your life? Do you say your prayers regularly, read a portion of God's Word and try to digest its divine thoughts? Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." You are to be a prophet to your generation. It is your privilege to get a glimpse of the mind of God and to pass it on. "As for me and my house we will serve the Lord."

All the servants of Isaac saw the altar. From time to time they saw him worshipping and offering sacrifices to Jehovah. It was a public act and an open confession of his faith in Jehovah. Do you attend Church regularly? It is an outward act of testimony and witness of your faith.

2—HOME. "He pitched his tent there." These patriarchs had no abiding city. The writer of the epistle to the Hebrews reminds us that the dwelling in tents was only an outward and visible sign that it was temporary and that they "looked for a City which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." To the thoughtful Jew the tent reminded him that his own life in this earthly body, or tabernacle, or tent was but for a short time. It taught him to live a detached life. Yet it is the home. Here Rebecca was brought as a bride; here the children were born; here hospitality was offered generously to the traveller. It was a place of joy and fellowship. Is your home set up according to God's law and rule; a place of real joy and happiness; of love and self-sacrifice; the father and mother honored by the children? In a word, is your home laying the foundation of a future Christian life and practice by your children when they start their own homes?

3—WORK. "There Isaac's servants digged a well." Work was necessary otherwise they would die in the wilderness. The well meant toil and labor, but it gave them the reward of water for themselves, their flocks and their herds. Water in that wilderness was the most valuable thing they had. Work is a necessity for all real progress and development of character and civilization. Work produces self-discipline, perseverance, patience, and a strong, worthwhile self-respect.

If you work for another do you perform it honestly, thoroughly, as "in the Lord"? In the Primitive Church the honesty and thoroughness of Christian slaves was quickly remarked by their masters. It was a proof of their Christian religion. "By their fruits ye shall know them." Are you just and upright in all your dealings with others? The toiler must remember that the Lord Jesus was a carpenter and knew the stress and strain of hard work.

Do others work for you? Do they respect you and look upon you as a good master who desires to give them a fair wage and values their cooperation? They are not merely "hands," a godless term. So often the employer grinds the face of the employed, forgetting they are brethren. He probably gives liberally to the Church as an eye-salve. Consequently many workers hate the Christian Church. Two thousand years ago manual labor was looked upon by Romans and Greeks as only fit occupation for slaves. It was unworthy of free men. But the Christian religion taught the dignity of labor. A new ideal. In human history the idealist is the man who has done something worth while.

"Isaac's servants digged a well." But behind them stood the directing mind and voice. This is true to-day, especially in such a mechanical age. The brainworker and scientist toil and labor also.

Perhaps you may be moved to offer this prayer in your family worship. It has been used for over fifteen hundred years:

"Support us, O Lord, all the day long of this troublous life until the shadows lengthen, and the evening comes, and the busy world is hushed and the fever of life is over and our work is done. Then, Lord, in Thy mercy grant us safe lodging, a holy rest and peace at the last, through Jesus Christ our Lord."

A National Message

The Bible makes it quite clear that THERE IS A WAY OF PEACE.

The statesmen of the nations are vocal with assurances that THEY ARE SEEKING to discover such a way.

The Archbishop of Canterbury voices his timely warning in the London daily press. He says:

"It would be wrong to give way to gloomy forebodings, still more to talk as if war were inevitable. It need not be if only responsible rulers, whatever language they may sometimes use for domestic purposes, were really determined to seek peace and ensue it, and if only Christian people in every country would make their loyalty to the Prince of Peace active and effective."

There is, then, A WAY TO PEACE.

Statesmen and spiritual leaders are SEEKING TO FIND THAT WAY.

The fact that they are all seeking it seems to indicate that IT HAS NOT YET BEEN DISCOVERED AND FOLLOWED by leaders and peoples.

Where may the way of peace be found?

Like children, playing the ancient game of "hide and seek," we stand by, knowing the hidden way; watching those who are seeking it; and as they seek, we cry from time to time "Warmer, warmer," as statesmen and spiritual leaders approach near and nearer to the point of finding the way.

"Warm, and warmer" we cry as the Archbishop calls for "LOYALTY TO THE PRINCE OF PEACE."

Surely there can be no question as to the entire fitness of this call THE PRINCE OF PEACE is also THE WAY OF PEACE. Jesus cried in His day, and cries as still: "I AM THE WAY . . ."

But, then, loyalty to Christ, such as the world has known, and such as the Church has known from the beginning—and there has been loyalty even to death—has never yet revealed the "way of peace" to the nations. There has been as much war during the Christian dispensation—perhaps more—as there has been in any former dispensation. But the Prince of Peace has not failed.

How can the citizen of one kingdom be loyal to the Prince of another kingdom especially when the terms of the services he is called to render to his own Prince are contrary to the terms of the kingdom over which the Prince of Peace rules?

How can a citizen of the Babylon regime render loyal service to the King of Israel?

Jesus answered a similar question by saying, "No man can serve two masters . . . ye cannot serve God and Mammon."

"BRASS TACKS" OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for April 18 is Genesis 13:13; 19:23-25; Deuteronomy 32:31-33; Proverbs 23:29-32, the Golden Text being Proverbs 23:32, "At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder."

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

WHEN generous spirited Abram gave his nephew, Lot, the privilege of choosing his portion of the land, Lot was selfish enough to take advantage of this generosity by choosing for himself the better portion of the land, and leaving the less favored grazing land for his uncle and his uncle's flocks and herds. "And Lot lifted up his eyes, and beheld all the plain of Jordan, that it was well watered everywhere before the Lord destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, even as the garden of the Lord . . . and Lot dwelled in the cities of the plain, and pitched his tent toward Sodom."

Pitching Tents Sodomward

No man better than Lot illustrates the folly of "gaining the whole world and losing his own soul." This is what Lot did when he "pitched his tent toward Sodom," for we read: "The men of Sodom were wicked and sinners before the Lord exceedingly." Yet, Lot chose to rear his family in such an environment because the well watered plains promised him fat cattle! He thought only of building up a business to leave to his children instead of giving concern to the infinitely more important matter of rearing proper children to whom to leave that business. He put what was good for cattle ahead of what was good for home and family and children. His daughters married Sodomites and their children, Moab and Ammon, were the everlasting disgrace of Lot and their descendants a perpetual thorn in the side of Israel. It never pays to pitch one's tent toward Sodom no matter how well watered the surroundings may seem to be.

The Destruction of Sodom

Numerous recent excavations in the region of Sodom and Gomorrah substantiate the biblical record of the destruction of these ancient cities of the plain, in which we read, "Jehovah rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah brimstone and fire from Jehovah out of heaven; and he overthrew those cities, and all the plain, and all the inhabitants of the cities, and that which grew upon the ground." As a result, that which once was "as the garden of the Lord," became desolate and uninhabitable for 2,500 years.

The Testimony of Archeology

Prof. Melvin G. Kyle, one of our most scholarly of recent archeologists, contrasting the remains of ancient civilizations of this with other nearby regions noted a remarkable stoppage of civilization here at a period near the time of Abraham: "Here was an absolute break, something happened, the incoming Middle Bronze Age does not come here, nor any other civilization instead of it. Everything is at a standstill on the plain for 2,500 years; until Byzantine times 600 years after Christ there is no trace of any kind of civilization on the plain . . . . . Twenty-five hundred years of climatic influence was needed to wash away the evil and restore the captivity of Sodom." The ruins of Pompeii left by the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius in A.D. 79 afford similar mute but eloquent testimony of judgment upon a civilization unspeakably bestial in its degradation. Even the very rocks cry out that "the wages of sin is death."

The Wine of Sodom

Lot's drunkenness and shame are proof of the truth Moses embodied in his farewell song, "Their vine is the vine of Sodom, and of the fields of Gomorrah: their grapes are grapes of gall, their clusters are bitter; their vine is the poison of serpents, and the cruel venom of asps."

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

The point where the arcane schools diverge from the conventional schools of thought is in the means of acquiring knowledge. To make this clear we will use Plato's analysis of the four faculties (Rep. VI., 511). In the visible sensuous world we have (1) Perception of images; (2) Faith or psychic groping. Together these amount to opinion and illusory knowledge. In the Intelligible or Super-sensuous world we have (3) Philosophic Reason, and (4) Direct Cognition. These latter are equivalent to Wisdom or True Knowledge. Number one covers the whole field of the physical sciences which are concerned with the phenomena of external nature. Number two embraces the outer forms of religion and all phases of blind belief, and these two degrees, pertaining as they do to the lower self is all that is available to those who cannot rise above the illusion of this material world. The third degree relates to speculative philosophy which seeks to arrive at first principles by the effort of pure reason. The fourth degree though is the direct apprehension of Truth by the lucid mind and is independent of any reasoning process. Jesus "saw" what the Father did, therefore He could do likewise. The scientist and the exoteric religionist rely on the bodily senses, the psychic emotions and the intellectual faculties as these exist now in the present stage of humanity. But the esoteric cult, refusing to be confined to the narrow limits of the senses, and recognizing that the powers of the Self are hampered by the imperfect instrument of the body, devotes himself to an intensive self-evolution, to an unfoldment of the latent possibilities inherent in the Light within him; for that Light is the source of all the powers of his being, of all that he is, has been, and will become. His effort is not so much to "know" as to "become," and herein lies the tremendous import of the Delphic inscription, "Know Thyself," which is the keynote of all the mystery schools. For true self-knowledge can only be attained through self-development in the highest sense, a development of the divine potencies which will transform the seeker ultimately into an immortal being clothed in a deathless ethereal form of ineffable beauty. This process of transcendental self-conquest is but the necessary prelude to rebirth as a spiritual being no longer fettered in time. The consciousness must transcend all that it now holds most dear, self, time and matter. For all these things are not real. God is the only Reality there ever can be, and we can know of Him only to the extent of our realisation of His Spirit within us; no more, no less than what we are capable of receiving. But it is well to remember we may extend that capability to infinity, to grow in that respect is Life itself, a life of which this present one is but a shadow.

How to Tell Your Sex

Do you know how to tell sexual characteristics from arms? Try this and you may be surprised.

Stand up close to a table, turn your hands palm forward, and lean with your hands together on the table surface, the fingers hanging over the edge. Now try to bring your elbows together without breaking the straight up-down line of your arms. Some people can do it, putting their arms in the form of a Y, others can't, and their arms stay in the form of a V.

The Y form is what the scientists call a secondary feminine characteristic, the V form, a secondary masculine characteristic. The ideal, of course, is for men to have the V form and women to be able to make the Y form, which proves that they are 100 per cent. normal. There is nothing particularly serious about having the wrong reaction, but we thought you'd like to cheer up on yourself.—Le Journal de la Femme, Paris.

Church Army Captain

The Church Army who have now been established in Canada for about ten years will again have a representative in the city this week-end, when Capt. Gibson will address the congregations of All Saints' church as both services.

Best known through Capt. Casey who was the first field secretary and a frequent visitor in Peterborough, the Church Army has been carrying out an increasingly extensive work in Canada from Atlantic to Pacific.

Parochial missions, police court work, camps and hostels, are all activities of the Church Army and besides that each year the new recruits make a long itinery through the country to hold one night or week-end missions in a great number of churches.

The Church Army have not established halls or churches of their own but always work through the parochial system of the Church of England and under direction of the Bishops, for this reason they are always welcome visitors wherever they go. The week-end visit of Capt. Gibson is looked forward to by many friends who always are ready to open their hearts and homes to any representative of the Church Army.

Effects of Alcoholic Beverages — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Gen. 13:13;19:23-25; Deut. 32:31-33; Prov. 23:29-32.

When Abram generously offered his nephew Lot the privilege of choosing the better part of the land, Lot chose the plains that were well watered toward Sodom.

When "Lot pitched his tent toward Sodom" he knew of its wickedness, drunkenness and vice. He put his cattle above the interests of his children, his home and his own soul.

Modern excavations at the site of ancient Sodom testify to the truth of the biblical record of the destruction of the cities of the plain.

In answer to Abram's prayers God spared Lot from the burning city. But by his drunkenness Lot brought shame upon his descendants.

A MAN'S IDEAL

"Isaac builded an altar there and called upon the name of the Lord; and pitched his tent there and there Isaac's servants digged a well."

Genesis 26, 25.

This took place more than four thousand years ago. Isaac followed in the footsteps of his father Abraham, who was called "the friend of God," in putting Jehovah first in his life. He is laying the foundation of religion. Our world has received three great gifts from the nations of the past: Philosophy and thought from the Greeks, Law and order from the Romans, and Religion from the Jews. The Jew had a passion for religion. From this desire sprang not only the belief in the one God, but also the remarkable race of prophets. The prophet is not primarily a man who foretells the future. This was only a small part of his work. His chief power lay in the fact that he revealed the mind of God to his generation and to us. He lived so close to God that God gave him an insight into His mind. It is a son of "the friend of God" and the father of such a race who built an altar as his first act and gives us the secret of all true life.

1—RELIGION. "He builded an altar there and called upon the name of the Lord." The erection of an altar was the first work of the patriarchs. They had an instinct for worship. Do you put God first in your life? Do you say your prayers regularly, read a portion of God's Word and try to digest a divine thought? "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." You are to be a prophet to your generation. It is your privilege to get a glimpse of the mind of God and to pass it on. "As for me and my house we will serve the Lord."

All the servants of Isaac saw the altar. From time to time they saw him worshipping and offering sacrifices to Jehovah. It was a public act and an open confession of his faith in Jehovah. Do you attend Church regularly? It is an outward act of testimony and witness of your faith.

2—HOME. "He pitched his tent there." These patriarchs had no abiding city. The writer of the epistle to the Hebrews reminds us that the dwelling in tents was only an outward and visible sign that it was temporary and that they "looked for a City which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." To the thoughtful Jew the tent reminded him that his own life in this earthly body, or tabernacle, or tent was but for a short time. It taught him to live a detached life. Yet it is the home. Here Rebecca was brought as a bride; here the children were born; here hospitality was offered generously to the traveller. It was a simple home, a place of joy and fellowship. Is your home set up according to God's law and rule; a place of real joy and happiness; of love and self-sacrifice; the father and mother honored by the children? In a word, is your home laying the foundation of a future Christian life and practice by your children when they start their own homes?

3—WORK. "There Isaac's servants digged a well." Work was necessary otherwise they would die in that wilderness. The well meant toil and labor, but it gave them the reward of water for themselves, their flocks and their herds. Water in that wilderness was the most valuable thing they had. Work is a necessity for all real progress and development of character and civilization. Work produces self-discipline, perseverance, patience, and a strong, worthwhile self-respect.

If you work for another do you perform it honestly, thoroughly, as "to the Lord"? In the Primitive Church the honesty and thoroughness of Christian slaves was quickly remarked by their masters. It was a proof of their Christian religion. "By their fruits ye shall know them." Are you just and upright in all your dealings with others? The toiler must remember that the Lord Jesus was a carpenter and knew the stress and strain of hard work.

Do others work for you? Do they respect you and look upon you as a good master who desires to give them a fair wage and values their co-operation? They are not merely "hands," a godless term. So often the employer grinds the face of the employed, forgetting they are brethren. He probably gives liberally to the Church as an eye-salve. Consequently many workers hate the Christian Church. Two thousand years ago manual labor was looked upon by Romans and Greeks as only fit occupation for slaves. It was unworthy of free men. But the Christian religion taught the dignity of labor. A new ideal. In human history the ideal is the man who has done something worth while.

"Isaac's servants digged a well." But behind them stood the directing mind and voice. This is true to-day, especially in such a mechanical age. The brainworker and scientist toil and labor also.

Perhaps you may be moved to offer this prayer in your family worship. It has been used for over fifteen hundred years:

"Support us, O Lord, all the day long of this troublous life until the shadows lengthen, and the evening comes, and the busy world is hushed and the fever of life is over and our work is done. Then, Lord, in Thy mercy grant us safe lodging, a holy rest and peace at the last, through Jesus Christ our Lord."

"BRASS TACKS" OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for April 18 is Genesis 13:13; 19:23-25; Deuteronomy 32:31-32; Proverbs 23:29-32, the Golden Text being Proverbs 23:32. "At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder."

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

WHEN generous spirited Abram gave his nephew, Lot, the privilege of choosing his portion of the land, Lot was selfish enough to take advantage of this generosity by choosing for himself the better portion of the land, and leaving the less favored grazing land for his uncle and his uncle's flocks and herds: "And Lot lifted up his eyes, and beheld all the plain of Jordan, that it was well watered everywhere before the Lord destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, even as the garden of the Lord, and Lot dwelled in the cities of the plain, and pitched his tent toward Sodom."

Pitching Tents Sodomward

No man better than Lot illustrates the folly of "gaining the whole world and losing his own soul." This is what Lot did when he "pitched his tent toward Sodom," for we read, "The men of Sodom were wicked and sinners before the Lord exceedingly." Yet, Lot chose to rear his family in such an environment because the well watered plains promised him fat cattle! He thought only of building up a business to leave to his children instead of giving concern to the infinitely more important matter of rearing proper children to whom to leave that business. He put what was good for cattle ahead of what was good for home and family and children. His daughters married Sodomites and their children, Moab and Ammon, were the everlasting disgrace of Lot and their descendants a perpetual thorn in the side of Israel. It never pays to pitch one's tent toward Sodom no matter how well watered the surroundings may seem to be.

The Destruction of Sodom

Numerous recent excavations in the region of Sodom and Gomorrah substantiate the biblical record of the destruction of these ancient cities of the plain, in which we read, "Jehovah rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah brimstone and fire from Jehovah out of heaven; and he overthrew those cities, and all the plain, and all the inhabitants of the cities, and that which grew upon the ground." As a result, that which once was "as the garden of the Lord," became desolate and uninhabitable for 1,500 years.

The Testimony of Archeology

Prof. Melvin G. Kyle, one of our finest scholarly of recent archeologists, comparing the remains of ancient civilizations of this with other nearby regions noted a remarkable stoppage of civilization here at a period near the time of Abraham: "Here was an absolute break, something happened, the incoming Middle Bronze Age does not come here, nor any other civilization instead of it. Everything is at a standstill on the plain for 2,500 years; until Byzantine times 600 years after Christ there is no trace of any kind of civilization on the plain. . . . Twenty-five hundred years of climatic influence was needed to wash away the evil and restore the captivity of Sodom." The ruins of Pompeii left by the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius in A.D. 79 afford similar mute but eloquent testimony of judgment upon a civilization unspeakably bestial in its degradation. Even the very rocks cry out that "the wages of sin is death."

The Wine of Sodom

Lot's drunkenness and shame are proof of the truth Moses embodied in his farewell song, "Their vine is the vine of Sodom, and of the fields of Gomorrah: their grapes are grapes of gall, their clusters are bitter; their vine is the poison of serpents, and the cruel venom of asps."

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

The point where the arcane schools diverge from the conventional schools of thought is in the means of acquiring knowledge. To make this clear we will use Plato's analysis of the four faculties (Rep. VI., 511). In the visible sensuous world we have (1) Perception of images; (2) Faith or psychic groping. Together these amount to opinion and illusory knowledge. In the Intelligible or Super-sensuous world we have (3) Philosophic Reason, and (4) Direct Cognition. These latter are equivalent to Wisdom or True Knowledge. Number one covers the whole field of the physical sciences which are concerned with the phenomena of external nature. Number two embraces the outer forms of religion and all phases of blind belief, and these two degrees, pertaining as they do to the lower self is all that is available to those who cannot rise above the illusion of this material world. The third degree relates to speculative philosophy which seeks to arrive at first principles by the effort of pure reason. The fourth degree though is the direct apprehension of Truth by the lucid mind and is independent of any reasoning process. Jesus "saw" what the Father did, therefore He could do likewise. The scientist and the exoteric religionist rely on the bodily senses, the psychic emotions and the intellectual faculties as these exist now in the present stage of humanity. But the esoterist, refusing to be confined to the narrow limits of the senses, and recognizing that the powers of the Self are hampered by the imperfect instrument of the body, devotes himself to an intensive self-evolution, to an unfoldment of the latent possibilities inherent in the Light within him; for that Light is the source of all the powers of his being, of all that he is, has been, and will become. His effort is not so much to "know" as to "become," and herein lies the tremendous import of the Delphic inscription, "Know Thyself," which is the keynote of all the mystery schools. For true self-knowledge can only be attained through self-development in the highest sense, a development of the divine potencies which will transform the seeker ultimately into an immortal being clothed in a deathless ethereal form of ineffable beauty. This process of transcendental self-conquest is but the necessary prelude to rebirth as a spiritual being no longer fettered in time. The consciousness must transcend all that it now holds most dear, self, time and matter. For all these things are not real. God is the only Reality there ever can be, and we can know of Him only to the extent of our realization of His Spirit within us; no more, no less than what we are capable of receiving. But it is well to remember we may extend that capability to infinity, to grow in that respect in Life itself, a life of which this present one is but a shadow.

How to Tell Your Sex

Do you know how to tell sexual characteristics from arms? Try this and you may be surprised.

Stand up close to a table, turn your hands palm forward, and lean with your hands together on the table surface, the fingers hanging over the edge. Now try to bring your elbows together without breaking the straight up-down line of your arms. Some people can do it, putting their arms in the form of a Y, others can't, and their arms stay in the form of a V.

The Y form is what the scientists call a secondary feminine characteristic, the V form, a secondary masculine characteristic. The ideal, of course, is for men to have the V form and women to be able to make the Y form, which proves that they are 100 per cent. normal. There is nothing particularly serious about having the wrong reaction, but we thought you'd like to check up on yourself.—Le Journal de la Femme, Paris.

National Message

The Bible makes it quite clear that THERE IS A WAY OF PEACE.

The statesmen of the nations are vocal with assurances that THEY ARE SEEKING to discover such a way.

The Archbishop of Canterbury voices his timely warning in the London daily press. He says:

"It would be wrong to give way to gloomy forebodings, still more to talk as if war were inevitable. It need not be if only responsible rulers, whatever language they may sometimes use for domestic purposes, were really determined to seek peace and ensure it and if only Christian people in every country would make their loyalty to the Prince of Peace active and effective."

There is, then, A WAY TO PEACE.

Statesmen and spiritual leaders are SEEKING TO FIND THAT WAY.

The fact that they are all seeking it seems to indicate that IT HAS NOT YET BEEN DISCOVERED AND FOLLOWED by leaders and peoples.

Where may the way of peace be found?

Like children, playing the ancient game of "hide and seek," we stand by, knowing the hidden way, watching those who are seeking it; and as they seek, we cry, from time to time "Warmer, warmer," as statesmen and spiritual leaders approach near and nearer to the point of finding the way.

"Warm, and warmer" we cry as the Archbishop calls for "LOYALTY TO THE PRINCE OF PEACE."

Surely there can be no question as to the entire rightness of this call THE PRINCE OF PEACE is also THE WAY OF PEACE. Jesus erred in His day, and cries so still: "I AM THE WAY . . ."

But then, loyalty to Christ, such as the world has known, and such as the Church has known from the beginning—and there has been loyalty even to death—has never yet revealed the "way of peace" to the nations. There has been as much war during the Christian dispensation—perhaps more—as there has been in any former dispensation. But the Prince of Peace has not failed.

How can the citizen of one kingdom be loyal to the Prince of another kingdom, especially when the terms of the services he is called to render to his own Prince are contrary to the terms of the Kingdom over which the Prince of Peace rules?

How can a citizen of the Babylon regime render loyal service to the King of Israel?

Jesus answered a similar question by saying, "No man can serve two masters . . . ye cannot serve God and Mammon."

Church Army Captain

The Church Army who have now been established in Canada for about ten years will again have a representative in the city this week-end, when Capt. Gibson will address congregations of All Saints' and St. John's Churches at both services.

Best known through Capt. Casey who was the first field secretary and a frequent visitor in Peterborough, the Church Army has been carrying "on an increasingly extensive work in Canada from Atlantic to Pacific.

Parochial missions, police court work, camps and hostels, are all activities of the Church Army and besides that each year the new recruits make a long journey through the country to hold one night or week-end missions in a great number of churches.

The Church Army have not established halls or churches of their own but always work through the parochial system of the Church of England and under direction of the Bishops, for this reason they are always welcome visitors wherever they go. The week-end visit of Capt. Gibson is looked forward to by many friends who always are ready to open their hearts and homes to any representative of the Church Army.

It Was the Premier's Business

The Examiner is in receipt of an unsigned letter in which a great deal of abuse is applied to Premier Hepburn. In one place he is a puppet of General Motors, in another a little czar; toward the end he is a Hitler and a Mussolini and finally Mr. Hepburn is advised to mind his own business. The letter is not being published for two reasons (1) we do not know who wrote it, and (2) it is so abusive it is not fit to print.

In the first place Premier Hepburn has been minding his own business. When a man occupies the highest position the province of Ontario can give him what is termed "his own business" covers a wide field. When he was confronted with the coming of the C.I.O. from United States to Canada he had to make up his mind what he would do about it. He had before him, as any other reading citizen of the province could have, the record of the C.I.O. since it came into prominence and power in United States. He would know it had occupied plants for over a month at a time in defiance of court orders and injunctions. He would know, too, that John Lewis had been one of the factors working with influence and the money of the United Mine Workers to the extent of $100,000 to secure the election of President Roosevelt, and that Lewis was receiving his reward when he proceeded to inaugurate his campaign of defiance of recognized law. All this information was and is public property, and it was the basis on which the Premier would form his decision. We do not believe any reasonable person would quarrel with a man who faced facts and made a decision.

It is fact—and one which is to the credit of the strikers at Oshawa—that they have not followed the tactics of the C.I.O. in United States. They have been carrying on their fight fairly in Oshawa. For that we cannot give credit to the C.I.O. The tactics of the C.I.O. have not changed; they are exactly the same in United States today as they have been. They have not attempted them in this province because it is recognized they would not be tolerated.

There has been opportunity within recent days to see how the plan of unionism in this country, dominated by control in United States, would work out. The suggestion has been made that if the strike in Oshawa was not speedily settled then a strike should be called in the General Motors at Detroit because cars for export trade, formerly made in Oshawa, would be supplied from Detroit. If that plan were to be made operative and given recognition, then it would follow that labor trouble in United States might well call for a strike in a Canadian plant and our workers, with no pay, would be thrown out of employment.

We do not appreciate at all the control of unionism in this country being handed over to those across the line.

If Premier Hepburn has erred it has been in placing too much emphasis on the gathering of mounted police and special provincial police. We take it that the great majority of the strikers in Oshawa are decent, ordinary law-abiding citizens, and when there is much done and a great deal more said about gathering special forces to deal with them it produces resentment and thus makes settlement difficult. It worked that way during the furniture strike in Stratford in 1933 when tanks and soldiers were brought over from London. It drove workers with an open or independent mind directly into the hands of those who had organized the strike and who were urging that it be continued.

Apart from that this paper believes Premier Hepburn has been minding his own business when he made a decision that the C.I.O., judged on the basis of its record in United States, was not wanted in Ontario.

A Minister Retires

Rev. George A. Mackenzie has written a letter to his members at the Congregational Church in Stratford saying the time has come for him to relinquish his charge. He is in his 77th year. When he ceases active participation in the work of the Congregational Church we believe that church will cease its existence as such in this country. For this reason: In order to ordain a minister for the Congregational Church it is necessary to have two or possibly three Congregational ministers conducting the service of ordination, and without Mr. Mackenzie we do not believe that number could be found.

Rev. George Mackenzie has had a long life of service and it has not been easy. He began as a secretary for Bramwell Booth in London; he was identified with Salvation Army meetings in that city when it was not unusual for the members to be pelted with anything which the crowd found at hand to use. He has been in parades where instruments used by band members were trampled to pieces.

So it is of more than local significance to learn that Mr. Mackenzie has concluded that the time for active service nears an end, because it also means virtually the disappearance of the officially constituted Congregational Church ministry in Canada.

What a Happy Family!

There is not much spare time in between the occasions on which there is something in the papers about Aimee Semple McPherson, who operates Angelus Temple in Los Angeles. There does not appear to be a great supply of love and good wishes hovering about the premises.

Going to law about it seems as natural as can be for the whole family. The latest case is where Roberta Semple, the daughter of the evangelist Aimee is suing an attorney, Andrews, who acts for Aimee, for $150,000 and the ground is slander.

Then Aimee's mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, gets in the news too. She was romping about the court room, making remarks to Aimee, to whom she has not been speaking for several years, and one lawyer remarked she had the "airs of a female Neptune."

What a swell and happy life these folk must be leading. It is a good thing the Sabbath day comes along once in seven, and then they can all gather in the Temple and repent—and start back for court on Monday morning.

Horace Is Rather Smart

There is a new machine in the accounting department of this office. We call him or it Horace, because that was the name of the teacher who used to teach sums and fractions in the village school.

Horace is a remarkable chap. We were asking him questions this morning just to see if he was smart; feeding him questions such as the little folk used to struggle with in school days. And probably do so today.

Horace claims he can multiply and do so in fractions, or rather that claim has been made on his behalf. So we put this question to him:

> A farmer sold 597 bushels of oats at 27½ cents per bushel. How much money did he receive?

Some keys were punched and a small crank was turned and Horace answered $336.38 and he did it in less time than one could write out the question. We asked him if he were sure the answer was correct and he did it over again and produced the same result.

Then Horace was tried on a matter of division. This was the question:

> A man had $2,278 and he desired to divide it among his five children. How much would each receive?

Horace blinked for a moment at that one, as he had never heard of any person having so much money and desiring to give it away, but went to work. He clicked a little and spun a little and finally said that each child would receive $475.60. We allowed him two seconds to do that sum and Horace finished on time.

The next one we thought would stump him. It was this:

> A man had $23.37 in his pocket, but there was a hole in it and he lost $7.09 on the street. On the way home he bought groceries and paid $2.17 for them, and he also purchased a load of wood for which he paid $6.40. How much money did he have when he reached home.

That one did not bother Horace for a moment. Almost at once he produced the answer—$8.71—and did not look the least disturbed, nor did he boast. It was merely part of the day's work.

We didn't bother Horace with questions of straight addition because he said so many other machines had been doing that for so long a time that the novelty had gone out of it. Horace grinds out the answers as fast as they can be asked. When not working he rests at ease with a bit of covering over him to keep out the dust. If the mechanical Horace had been sitting in the seat of the village school of other years it might have been possible to have taken home a report card at the end of the month which would have brought forth parental acclaim and the prophecy that a great future lay in store.

Butter on Hot Days

One of our correspondents writes to tell about a farmer who has rigged up a corner of the drive shed as an ice house. The shed was built to hold a buggy and a phaeton some years ago, and there is room to spare. It was mentioned too that the ice would come in handy during the hot weather for cooling milk, cream and butter for table use.

Ice is used on a number of farms, but the idea of using it for keeping the butter cool and solid in the hot weather for home use is good. We like it. There was never anything like that on Lot 4 Concession Ten. The butter would be brought up from the old stone cellar in the morning and it would be fair enough at breakfast. When it got fetched up for dinner it was not so good. Around noon the kitchen got rather warm. Along the side where the table stood the sun used to shine in and if the blind was pulled down hard it used to make the place too dark for good vision at meal times.

It was on those hot days the butter suffered. Sometimes it used to get revived a little by putting it in a dish and sinking the dish in a pail of water, but that was only a temporary measure. On such days the butter seemed to feel like all the rest of the folk did. If one had spent the morning hoeing corn or potatoes then it meant three had been no shelter from the sun, and by the time the corn got high enough to provide some shade it didn't need any more hoeing. So on such a day it seemed right that the butter should also be suffering from the heat. Which it did.

The hired man always held his piece of bread right flat in the palm of his hand when he laid the butter on, but when the butter got thin from the heat he had quite a problem laying it on thick enough. It would seem the best tool to use on such an occasion would be a spoon, but the hired man never stooped to anything like that. He had a brand of table manners which he considered were fairly good and from them he would not depart.

So we regard it as quite an advance now that people are using ice in summer time on some of the farms to keep the butter cool and solid. In that condition it is so much easier to cut deep into the stuff and lay it on thick.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It is estimated that 10,000 Canadians will be in London for the Coronation. Fortunately for the taxpayer most of them will be there at their own expense.

A professor of the University of Toronto has been giving an address on the topic "To pet or not to pet." We always have had an idea that depended largely upon the petee.

Foreign missionaries, according to an Italian story, will be welcome in Ethiopia, but the despatch does not say whether they are wanted to civilize the native population or the conquerors.

A national co-ordinator of traffic is proposed in the United States. The man who gets that position will not need to worry about what he is going to do in his spare time.

Speaker in Toronto criticized the hostesses who serve cocktails to young people but as no names or addresses were given the speech will not be regarded as particularly helpful.

Hon. David Croll has promptly disavowed any ambition to lead a third party in Ontario and that decision will be applauded by all who believe that in a multiplicity of parties there is confusion.

It is an inaccuracy to say that the striking automobile workers in Oshawa are Communists. But the fact is inescapable that all such labor troubles are looked upon with much favor by Communist leaders.

Hugh Thompson, United Automobile Workers' organizer, says that he does not think the people of Canada want a dictator. He's right whether the dictator be called John L. Lewis or by any other name.

Hon. Arthur Roebuck has been invited to join the C.C.F. and we are not looking for either the Liberal or Conservative organizations to get out an injunction to prevent the former attorney-general from accepting.

If any shadow of doubt has ever entered Premier Hepburn's head as to the wisdom of the course he has been following in connection with the Oshawa strike it must have been at the moment he read that Rev. Dr. Shields has made a speech endorsing the Premier's stand.

Canadian boy scouts are to erect a chain of beacons across Canada to be burned on the night of Coronation Day. It will be a spectacular contribution to the success of the celebration and at the same time will revive a custom that is rich in historic color.

The Soo Star, in reply to the Examiner's remark that women should not be called upon to use a bucksaw, remarks "If one can get a wife to do it, why not?" In presenting that argument it is also recorded that a woman in the Soo recently threw a policeman over the woodshed. To such a woman we suppose operating a bucksaw would be no more strenuous than mixing a salad or boiling an egg.

WEE ANGUS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ There was a party down the street, Wee Angus got fixed rather neat, of suds he used a peck; he's now a careful sort of lad, a thing that makes me rather glad, he even washed his neck.

¶ He got his hands washed pretty good, and had them fixed like how he should, he had his collar straight; I was advising him a bit, and telling when to stand and sit, and not to stay too late.

¶ I noticed that his shoes were fine, the heels had even got a shine, the best I've ever seen; his tie was fixed and it was right, he was a pleasant looking sight, his handkerchief was clean.

¶ When he came home it just struck ten, a decent hour for little men, I didn't think it late; I asked him what he had to eat, and if he sat square on his seat, and didn't lick his plate.

¶ He answered everything quite well, he said he didn't jump or yell, was noiseless when he'd chew; and I was pleased at all he said, and told him he best go to bed, he loosened off a shoe.

¶ There was one thing he didn't know, just where his wad of gum should go, it was a swell affair; so when it came the time to eat, he felt around below the seat—and parked his gum down there.

Not Anxious For Another Strike

(From the Oshawa Times)

IN the face of many varied and conflicting forecasts as to the likelihood of a general strike of General Motors plants in the United States being called in sympathy with Oshawa workers, The Times this morning sought to secure some definite information as to the consensus of opinion in the United States.

With the terms of Mayor Alex. Hall's ultimatum still fresh in the minds of citizens today, and with considerable difference of opinion here as to the effect of such an ultimatum to the International Union head, the following telegram will serve in some measure to give Oshawa citizens an insight into the situation in two of the greater motor cities across the border.

Below is a copy of a telegram sent by The Times to the editors of the Flint Daily Journal and Detroit Free Press, with the replies received this afternoon:

The Times' Wire

"What is likely feeling of men in your General Motors' plants to Mayor Hall's demand to Martin that sympathetic strikes be called in United States to support strike here stop. Reply from Martin expected noon today but in any event our citizens anxious to have some idea feeling of men themselves stop. Would they likely obey strike call in these circumstances? stop. Please wire story any length you think useful."

Reply From Flint

The Editorial Dept.
Oshawa Daily Times:

"Flint, Michigan, April 15:—Having suffered severe losses in wages since the beginning of the strikes in General Motors plants last December, the average worker in Flint plants of the corporation, which employ more than 40,000 men and women, is reluctant to think of being called out on strike over something which does not concern him.

"In view of recent incidents in plants here, it is believed that only the usual groups of radical members of the United Automobile Workers would respond to a strike call in support of the Oshawa situation, but because of the fact that this minority group operates in key positions in the General Motors plants, it is likely that most plants in Flint would be affected by such a strike call, as has been the case on several occasions.

"Every strike that has taken place in Flint to date has been called by a minority of the workers and the last sit-down in the Chevrolet plants brought numerous personal fist fights.

"The majority of workers in G.M. plants in Flint have realized the fact that they have been the losers in the strikes that have taken place in the past and are not anxious to add further wage losses to those already incurred."

Reply From Detroit

To the Editor,
Oshawa Daily Times:

Detroit, April 15.—Impossible answer your question, as there are eighty thousand General Motors employees scattered through seven or eight Michigan cities. Anyone who undertakes to give answer in less than a month's work is guessing or dishonest. Not even Union officials can tell without vote.

THE COMMON TOUCH.

(Montreal Star)

EARLY in his reign King George VI has already given ample demonstration of those little human touches which made his father one of the most beloved monarchs in British history. These traits are not always understood by the public, who sometimes see only the glamour attaching to the monarchy.

The duties imposed on a King are so onerous that he has little choice of, and little time to enjoy the simple pleasures which his subjects take for granted. Quite recently King George VI ordered the Royal pigeon lofts to be brought back into the Royal domain so that the birds can be entered in the principal competitions. His father was a lover of the graceful racing pigeon and its reports show that, through his personal interest and knowledge, King George V had built up a fine strain of racing pigeons in the Royal lofts.

As those who have lived or travelled in England know, pigeon-breeding is a hobby which captures the interest of the most lowly. Thousands of the poorer people often have their own lofts, many of them rudely made, in which they breed and keep their special strains for competitive flying.

When King George V died the Royal lofts were placed under the control of a village schoolmaster at West Newton, but the latest order of the new King shows that he has "the common touch" which the British people so dearly love.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE.

(Detroit News)

A little girl is dead, the first roller skater struck this spring in Michigan by an automobile. Though it was not in Detroit, the warning applies here as it does wherever there are children and paved streets. Skaters should b kept off the streets, but at many places smooth walks are unavailable and the temptation to skate on the pavement is great.

All drivers should realize this special risk and be on guard against it, night and day. At night, remember pedestrians or skaters are usually invisible from a car approaching another car's lights.

Just After Laurier Came In.

LAST week on this page there was a story of an ancient Peterborough newspaper, The Weekly Despatch of January 13, 1847. Today through the kindness of Constable Harry McLachton who came across the faded journal at his home, we are able to review another old paper, not a Peterborough one this time and not of such venerable vintage as that old time Despatch but still a very interesting publication.

It is a copy of the Toronto World and it is more particularly notable because it is a sample of a newspaper once popular and long since passed, but because of the time at which it was published. This edition as a matter of fact saw the light of day on Saturday, June 27, 1896, and thus was just four days after the Conservative administration headed by Sir Charles Tupper had been turned out of power at a general election by the Liberals under Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, who was destined to hold office for the next fifteen years.

Naturally the World which was a Conservative organ and the proprietor of which had been one of the defeated Government candidates earlier in the week was full of political news.

On the front page appeared a typical cartoon by Sam Hunter the Millbrook boy who was then coming to the front in the profession which he was destined to follow for the next forty years. Mr. Hunter who drew upon the Canadian countryside and the Stoney Lake territory where his summer holidays have long been spent for the background for his political cartoons had located this particular drawing in a rural landscape with Hon. Wilfred Laurier industriously hoeing the weeds in a field and calling across the fence to Oliver Mowat, the Liberal Premier of Ontario, to get busy because "We've got more than one hard row to hoe."

Getting Ready To Leave

THE front page, too, conveyed the information from Ottawa that it would be impossible for Sir Charles Tupper's government to leave office until the end of the following week and that in the meanwhile there was keen competition for places in the new Laurier cabinet. Oliver Mowat, we are told in another front page article had left the previous day for Montreal to consult with the victorious Liberal leader. Of particular Peterborough interest was still another Ottawa despatch which said that George A. Cox, formerly of Peterborough, was being prominently mentioned as the likely choice for the finance portfolio in the new administration. As to the rush for Cabinet jobs the World remarked that the "C.P.R. will be putting on an extra coach for Ottawa, for the boys will be going down in droves and in sleepers."

In its long editorial reference to the result of the election Mr. MacLean's paper endeavored to extract some sunshine out of the situation. "The Conservative party, paradoxical as it may seem," said the leader in part, "is stronger today than it was this day last week. The party is rid of the Manitoba school nuisance. What was the fatal weakness of the Conservatives becomes the rock on which the Liberal party will probably meet its doom."

The Kincardine Review quoted in the same issue, treats the result more whimsically. It remarks, "Subscribers in arrears will please pay up at once. We are beginning to feel hard times already." From our own district the Bobcaygeon Independent, whose utterance often found their way into bigger newspapers in those days, sounded a different note: "In the result of Tuesday," says the Independent, "The Liberals of Ontario may well take warning. The writing is on the wall. Pandering to clerical bosses has gone to its fullest limit. The provincial government should beware for further sectional interference will not be tolerated."

Outside of politics this 1896 World did not contain a great deal of news. There were some world items of course. One related how the Cunarder Campania made a record trip from New York to Queenstown in 5 days, 2 hours and 32 minutes. Another told of how the British South Africa Company had reluctantly accepted the resignation of Cecil Rhodes and Alfred Beit from its board of directors. There was nothing from Peterborough in the issue but coming close to home was a story from Marmora which related how B. C. Hubbell's store at Marmora had been broken into by burglars who blew open a safe and got away with $50.

The Bicycle Craze

THE bicycle craze was at its peak about this time and the World was full of advertisements calling attention to the merits of a dozen and one different makes of wheels: Clevelands and Crawfords, Wanderers and Waverleys, Beeston Humbers and Dayions competed for popular favor while haberdashers advertised bicycle caps and suits and hosiery and advised the public to get properly togged out for the invasion of Quebec by 15,000 Canadian wheelmen.

There was quite an extensive sporting department and therein we read that on the previous day the Toronto ball club and Providence had met in an Eastern League game in the old ball grounds over the Don and the invaders had won by 7 to 4, with Dunn and Dowse as the Toronto battery.

On the same day down at Red Oak, Iowa, that grand pacing stallion, John R. Gentry, sent against time, had covered a mile in 2.03 ¼, clipping a quarter of a second off his own world's record.

A San Francisco despatch said that James J. Corbett and Thomas Sharkey had signed an agreement to meet in a finish fight for $10,000 a side, while on the historic Poughkeepsie course Cornell won the intercollegiate boatrace from Harvard, Pennsylvania and Columbia. In Toronto the old lacrosse rivals Torontos and Tecumsehs were billed to meet in a battle at Rosedale Field, and other amusements advertised for the benefit of Toronto folk were band concerts at Hanlan's Point and the old Upper Canada College grounds by the bands of the Grenadiers and the 48th Highlanders.

Interesting were the advertisements. Eaton's stressed in their display ads the fact that the store would close at 5 p.m. every day except Saturday and at 1 o'clock that day during the summer months, while the Simpson store publicly featured the installation of a new soda fountain on the main floor. Jamieson's at the corner of Yonge and Queen advertised men's straw hats at from 25 cents to $1.50, while the Bon Marche went them one better by offering fancy straw hats in mixed colors for boys at 5 cents each.

There were only ten pages in the World that day but they are all interesting because of the illuminating glance they give of a fascinating period in Canada's history, when the reign of the Conservative party at Ottawa had just been brought to an end and Laurier was about to present to the country his "Cabinet and Talents."

An Ancient Sit Down Strike

(From the Buffalo Courier-Express.)

IN 1883 the Canadian Pacific Railway was being built across the prairies of Saskatchewan. When they weren't at work, members of the railroad construction crews sought game and diversion in huge buffalo herds. Scores of bison often were killed in one hunt and whole districts cleared of bears.

Naturally, the Indians didn't like that. Chief John Piapot of the Crees especially did not like it. He called a war council of his braves. Chief John Piapot thundered denunciation of the buffalo-killing whites. But the Crees did not go on the war path. First, they decided, they would try a sit-down strike.

So hundreds of them trekked to the scene of railroad building and pitched their tents along the right of way, squarely in the path of the gang-laying, shining twin ribbons of new steel which placed the tent of Chief John Piapot. Then Chief John went in and sat down.

The sitting-down Indians bore arms. The railway builders had arms, too, but they didn't want gunplay. So they sent word to Ottawa; and Ottawa promptly responded.

Soon the force and majesty of the law arrived in the persons of one sergeant and one constable wearing the scarlet coats of the Royal Canadian Mounted. For a long time, the two mounties talked to Chief John Piapot, appealing to his better nature and all that sort of thing. Chief John Piapot sat pat.

Then the sergeant issued his ultimatum. Chief John Piapot must get up and get out of the way of empire-building in exactly fifteen minutes. At the end of fifteen minutes, Chief John still was sitting in his tent, with his head rock around him. The less exalted Crees also were sitting where Chief John had bade them to sit.

"Time's up," said the sergeant of mounties. He took out his knife and cut the guy ropes of Chief John Piapot's tent. Down came the tent on the heads of the chief and his principal councillors.

This brought most of the sitting-down Crees to their feet with angry yells. Their chief had been humiliated. The two policemen must be killed, the braves shouted.

But Chief John Piapot crawled out of his wrecked tent and said there wouldn't be any killing. The sit-down strike was over, and it was time for the braves to go home. They went.

The authorities at Ottawa sent orders to the railroad-builders to limit drastically those buffalo hunts. So Chief John Piapot's sit-down strike was not in vain.

To The Editor

THE STRIKE SITUATION

Editor Examiner,

Sir: The Oshawa strike gives us many things to think about besides getting the men back to work.

On first appearances Mr. Hepburn is absolutely right. We do not want or need any foreigners to butt into our affairs. The men have an absolutely perfect right to strike but they are capable of conducting the affairs without foreigners having to help. Let us tell those foreigners to think what they would do with any Canadian who went over to their country to make trouble.

The article in the Telegram of Monday tells us what we can look for presently. More United States organizers or rather agitators are coming here to do the same with General Electric and Westinghouse as they have done with General Motors. At a dollar or two a man it is pretty good pickings.

But what about Canadian industry being exploited by managers and superintendents from across the line? Why are these men not required to naturalize and become Canadian citizens? We have to do this even to have the very lowest kind of a job in the U.S.A.

What is really happening is the outcome of this faulty policy. The exploiter has come and done plenty in our Canadian factories and now the men who learned how to fight them over there have had to come over here to show us how to protect ourselves and we need the protection.

We have as good engineers and works managers in Canada as the best in America. Canadian industry must be protected for Canadian workers from the top to the bottom and the men who are sent over from parent plants must become Canadian citizens—but it were better that they did not come at all.

All good luck to anybody who is going to keep the Canadian jobs for the Canadian worker and who will show the Canadian worker how to protect himself from the selfish foreigner who is exploiting Canadian workers, industry and profit alike.

Yours,
PETER B. OROUGH.

RECEIVING BOX BUILT IN WALL SOLVES PROBLEM

Small Packages May Then Be Delivered When Not At Home

OPENS FROM INSIDE

You can solve the problems of what to do with small packages that are delivered when you are away from home by having a receiving box built in the wall. One home had such a unit built in between the service porch and breakfast room. It measured about 12 by 14 inches. It consisted of two cast-iron frames, and had an inner and outer door, the outer locking automatically when closed from the outside,—opening only from the inside.

When you are expecting a package, the outer door is left ajar. When the package has been placed inside, the door is closed. When you want to remove the package, open the door from the inside.

Repairs and improvements of a permanent nature to the home may be made under the terms of the Dominion Government's Home Improvement Plan. Loans, large or small, may be obtained at any Canadian bank at a very low rate of interest.

Modernization Starts In Bathroom

WHEN the modernizing urge comes to the home owner, usually a start is made in the bathroom or in the kitchen. This is quite natural because so many of the houses built from ten to twenty years ago have plumbing fixtures that were perfectly all right in their day, but are now hopelessly out of date, and which detract considerably from the value of a house.

The old bathroom shown in the illustration to the left was typical of the bathroom of twenty-five years ago. It belongs definitely to the era when the bathroom was a purely utilitarian room without any of the charm and colorful distinction which it has today.

When the owner of this home decided to modernize, he started with the bathroom. The old tub on legs was replaced with a built in tub with overhead shower. The noisy and unsatisfactory old closet was replaced with a quiet siphon jet toilet, and the old wall-hung lavatory was replaced with a modern pedestal lavatory. The drab colourless decoration of the bathroom was transformed by walls and floors tiled in soft shades of orchid and green, with window and shower curtains to harmonize.

Unless one has had some personal experience with bathroom modernizing, one is likely to have mistaken ideas as to the cost. Consult one of your local master plumbers, suggests the Institute of Plumbing and Heating, and you will be given expert suggestions whereby your bathroom can be improved to give increased satisfaction, convenience, and enhancement to the value of your properly. And all this can be done at very moderate cost and with easy payments under the Home Improvement plan.

Fish And Game Notes

A Column Conducted in Interests Of Fishing And Hunting

THIS announcement of the appointment of eleven deputy game wardens for this district during the spawning season will be encouraging to local sportsmen since it shows that the Department is becoming more appreciative of the importance of protecting fish during the spawning period. Last year there were only eight deputy wardens in this district. It should also prove a deterrent to poachers, who have already become chastened by the determined efforts of Warden Lyons.

D. J. Taylor, Deputy Minister of the Department, gave out the information this week that he intends to distribute 100 per cent more maskinonge fry this season than last.

It was on this point of lunge fry that the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association was critical of the department administration. While this district received 80 per cent of the fry hatched last season, the quantity of fry, it was claimed locally, was lamentably small. This fact was pointed out to Hon. Harry Nixon, the Minister, when the Peterborough deputation went before him at Queen's Park this Spring to ask for a fish hatchery for the Kawarthas.

The local situation gained the sympathy of Hon. Mr. Nixon and he promised that this season there would be more men used in stripping the fish and a much greater batch of fry would be distributed.

Big Order Sent In

Perhaps the Department was further encouraged to make arrangements for the increase in the quantity of lunge fry when they received recently the requisitions for lunge and other game fish for distribution in local waters from the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association. E. A. Outram, Association secretary, sent off the greatest sheaf of requisitions for fry and fingerlings to go out from this district in some years.

It is in the distribution and planting of the fish, supplied by the Department, for propagating local waters that the Association does its greatest work and incurs heavy expense.

Direct results of such propagation work is seen in the presence of pickerel in Rice Lake and the Otonabee River. Years ago pickerel were unknown in these waters. Local sportsmen saw possibilities for pickerel there, the Association was organized, and one of its first tasks was the planting of pickerel fry in Rice Lake. Now these fish are numerous and give the local angler much sport.

Association members are convinced that it was the portable fish hatchery which up until two years ago was operated at Pigeon's Creek which did more than anything else to maintain lunge fishing in Pigeon, Buckhorn, and Chemong Lakes and Deer Bay.

Some chuckles were found, it is said, among those essays submitted in the Association's contest for school children.

One contestant, after urging protection of game, wrote, "but the skunk does not need any protection, because he can look after himself."

Another youngster, pointing to the need of observing fish laws, penned this: "If poachers were not so busy there would be more fish, and we would all have more fun drowning dew worms."

A Keene contestant proved something of a cynic. He wrote, "My dad tells me that when he was a boy fishes were so plentiful you could catch a bagful in a day's fishing, but I think that is just somebody's nightmare."

Anyone who enjoys fishing should be present next Friday night in the Public Library lecture room to hear Bill Lang, famed Toronto angler, tell some of his experiences, and show pictures to prove 'em, in fishing lakes and streams over most of the continent. His moving pictures are said to be the finest fishing shots ever obtained, and Bill has a style of telling stories that brings a breath of the woods. He is a Canadian character and the Fish and Game Association did a nice job in arranging for his visit here.

The fly-caster is the greatest fishing addict we have. One of these gentlemen, a keen brook-trouter, was entertaining a friend at his home the other night. Telling of speckled beauties, he became so enthusiastic that he brought down his tackle from the attic, attached it all up, and out on the lawn with the aid of some rays from a street lamp, he put on a nice demonstration of fly casting.

By the way, Warden Lyons is going to give much attention to the Little Ouse River this summer. It is on this stream that the Fish and Game Association and the Department is carrying on concentrated restocking efforts. The stream is closed to fishing this year as it was last year. When it is opened it is expected that the fishing will be good. The public will be able to fish on payment of a rod fee to farmers along the stream. These farmers are interested in the scheme, and most of them are deputy game wardens to ensure that the fish are protected.

However, the Cavan stream is open for public fishing so the trout anglers will get in their fun there.

15% MORE HEAT WITH THIS Findlay STERLING MOISTAIR FURNACE

Fifteen per cent. more comfort—fifteen per cent. less money for fuel.

Put it either way—and you win. In other words—with same fuel consumption the Sterling Moistair will provide heat enough for one room more than any other furnace of its size.

Forcing your fire will not give you heat beyond the ability of your furnace to deliver it. You may have learned this to your sorrow and disgust. If you have, now is the time to replace the old heating plant with a Findlay Sterling.

THESE 4 FEATURES ALONE MAKE A STERLING MOISTAIR A BETTER FURNACE

1. The heat shield hung about 2 inches inside the galvanized iron casing and the heat retaining apron, circling the firepot, give you two supreme advantages—a cool basement a fuel saving of at least 75 per cent. No lost heat.
2. Scientific humidification is vital to healthful home heating. With an automatic Humidifier on the Sterling, humidification is always constant, always certain.
3. Clean, sanitary evaporation—freedom from rust and corrosion. These are the big health-building features of the new Findlay porcelain-enamel water-pan.
4. An increase of 15% to 20% in capacity enables the Sterling Moistair to heat, with the same fuel, one more large room than any other furnace of its size. If this extra capacity is not required, you have the surplus for extreme weather and for reducing fuel consumption.

Ask your dealer or your banker how you can obtain the necessary funds for financing this improvement—or write direct to Findlays Limited, Carleton Place, Ont., about our easy payment plan.

Ask us for special folder descriptive of this furnace — or a Findlay Furnace suited to your requirements.

Suitable Decorative Scheme Adds Greatly To Dark Room

Pictorial Paper Used In Room Which Got Very Little Sunlight

AND GREEN CARPET

The room that does not get much sunlight can be made more cheerful by a suitable decorative scheme. The owners of a home which had a dining room facing north decided on the use of a pictorial paper to make the room appear brighter.

A wainscoting ran around the room. A plain dark paper had been used above this, making a charming background for the family's furniture but creating a gloomy atmosphere. A pictorial paper, done in light colors, depicting grassy slopes and gay flowers was chosen. The woodwork was repainted in its original ivory colour. This was the only change made in the room, but the difference was unbelievable.

A green carpet carried out the grassy effect. Side curtains of a dull orange reflected sunshine in the room, harmonizing with the mahogany furniture. Instead of a dull dining room the glory of a June day was permanently reflected.

Funds for decorating the home and making it a brighter place in which to live may be obtained from any Canadian bank under the Home Improvement Plan.

'PEG BOY CELLIST BELIEVED GENIUS

English Critic Proposes To Give Lad 12 Best Musical Education World Can Provide

WINNIPEG, April 17—(CP)—Arthur Benjamin, prominent English critic, made plans today to give Winnipeg's 12-year-old cellist, Lorne Munroe, whom Benjamin described as a genius, the "best musical education the world can provide."

"If Sir Hugh Allan of the Royal College of Music in England could hear the boy play just once, I'm almost certain a scholarship would be granted him," said the London critic, adjudicating at the Manitoba musical festival.

Benjamin offered to take Lorne to England with him, provide him with board and lodging in his own home and see that he is given the best musical education possible if a Winnipeg service club would undertake $1,000 annual maintenance expenses. The service club is considering the offer.

Lorne has studied only in Winnipeg but he took his first cello instruction when he was three years of age and 2½ hours of daily practice in recent years have been under direction of his mother, a pianist. Mrs. Munroe, wife of Wallace R. Munroe, commercial artist, still teaches Lorne music theory.

Both mother and son were pleased with Mr. Benjamin's offer but neither looked with particular excitement on the prospect of Lorne going to London.

"I'd like to see Lorne stay on this continent," Mr. Munroe said. "We'd like to have him go to some musical centre in the United States. I don't want to stand in his way but he's pretty young to be on the other side of the Atlantic from his family."

Neither mother nor father made any statement whether they would permit the boy to go to London should the opportunity materialize.

"It would be lovely, all right," was Lorne's only comment on the suggestion he study overseas.

Lorne does not find long hours of practice tedious. A sturdy, quiet and self-possessed boy, he likes to play his chosen instrument.

LOAN PLAN OFFERS FINE OPPORTUNITY TO LOCAL FARMERS

Chance Given To Cash In On Record Tourist Business

CAN BUILD CABINS

Hon. C. D. Howe's assertion the other day that tourist traffic into Canada this summer will be the greatest on record means a great deal to this country.— if we are prepared to adequately take care of the huge army of summer visitors the Minister of Transport predicts.

It means a great deal, too, to the people of this district for the Kawarthas will undoubtedly attract a worthwhile proportion of the augmented tourist traffic and that will entail a demand for more accommodation.

There is a splendid chance to cash in on this record business and no one is in a better position to do so than the farmer in this district whose land borders on a lake or river affording an opportunity for the location of tourist huts on picturesque sites.

The Home Improvement loan plan was made to order for a proposition of that kind. Under its provisions a farmer who wants to erect tourist cabins on his own property is entitled to a substantial loan that will enable him to go ahead with a building program that will let him earn rich dividends from the investment in the form of tourist dollars.

There are many folk in this district who have perhaps contemplated building but have been held back by the lack of ready capital. For them, the Home Improvement plan opens wide the door of opportunity.

They should discuss the matter with their banker—we believe that they would find it decidedly to their advantage.

HINTS ON HOME IMPROVEMENT

New Horizons

Young girls are a problem. Their likes and dislikes change with the wind. Perhaps one minute she is particularly fond of soft pastels and wants a sweet, frilly bedroom of pink white and blue. Then before you know it she's just "ca-razy" about dull blues, and orange yellows and does wish she could do something about that old pink and white room of hers.

Well, let her change it. Tell her to budget her spending money and go to it. And she can do it too, for it won't cost her much. And it won't cost her much because paint costs so little and is THE big feature in room decoration. The walls—fresh, clean, glowing paint . . . the furniture, and most furniture is wood these days since the passing of the old brass bed, means just a new coat of enamel. The draperies can be changed for as little as twenty-five cents the yard. She can do the furniture herself, and perhaps by taking over some of his more bothersome chores for a week, she can get her big brother to do the walls for her.

And when changing color schemes entails so little expense, why not let your horizons change when the whim strikes you. And it's fun to watch a room change and grow into something quite different right under your own eyes and hands.

Just suppose you already have a clean, cream-colored set of bedroom furniture. Leave it its original color, and get to work on walls and draperies. Picture the cream furniture, a buff colored rug, deep rose walls, cream woodwork, and a cheerful chintz at the windows. Then, again, there's deep blue for the furniture, buff rug once again, with ivory walls and deep yellow and white checked cotton for bedspread and drapes. Or visualize this room "tailor-made", as it were. Furniture a dull brown enamel; yellow for the walls; a bedspread made of light tan and brown striped material, a loose heavy weave; and floor length deep yellow unbleached cotton draperies. We'll assume you have ivory venetian blinds, just to give it the finishing touch.

Man, woman or child . . . everyone of them will find a change of room decoration a decided tonic. Painting is fun, it's easy . . . and it's inexpensive . . . and for the comfort, charm and beauty it will lend your home, it is worth its weight in gold.

TWEED, PICTON HAVE LINED UP IN LOAN PLAN

Local Organizations Are Completed And Campaigns Are Being Pushed Ahead

DOMINION FIGURES

The latest organizations in this district under the Home Improvement plan, John E. Jones, fieldman for this district section for the Ontario Advisory committee informs the Examiner are located at Tweed where W. H. Sayers is chairman of the local committee and at Picton where W. E. Scott is leading the campaign.

"The latest report I have had," said Mr. Jones, "shows that there are now 124 local organizations formed in Ontario, so that the work is now well in hand and the next provincial conference we will have next week should be marked by very encouraging reports of progress made throughout the province."

That such is the case throughout the Dominion is indicated by the fact that Finance Minister Dunning has announced that up to the middle of last month, the last date on which a complete checkup was made, home improvement loans in cities and towns over 10,000 population numbered 3075 with a total value of $1,252,843. In addition loans made for improvement to farms numbered 866, valued at $288,794. Including the smaller towns and villages the total number of loans was 5441, amounting to $2,001,158.

Toronto with 624 loans amounting to $184,815 was still at the head of cities on March 15. Montreal's total was 335 loans amounting to $182,902.36. Other cities in order were Vancouver, 257 loans at $53,554.47; Winnipeg, 126 loans at $51,266.48; Edmonton, 112 loans at $32,791.46.

Among cities with population ranging between 30,000 and 40,000, Sidney, N.S., headed the list both in amount and number of loans. A total of 64 loans amounting to $19,485.40 was reported from Sidney.

The returns showed New Westminster, B.C., reported the largest amount and number of loans of any city and town between 10,000 and 20,000. The number reported was fifty-six and the total $19,490.

The figures issued by the Minister for farm improvement loans, follow: Prince Edward Island, 18 ($3,341); Nova Scotia, 105 ($30,312); New Brunswick, 65 ($13,069); Quebec, 92 ($31,198); Ontario, 297 ($99,503); Manitoba, 43 ($9,569); Saskatchewan, 26 ($9,793); Alberta, 120 ($61,217); British Columbia, 99 ($31,709).

Plan Constructive Effort To Revive Building Trade

President Of Canadian Manufacturers' Association Endorses Plan

MERITS SUPPORT

OTTAWA, April 17—National and patriotic motives, as well as self-interest, should prompt Canadians from coast to coast to support the Home Improvement Plan in the opinion of B. W. Coghlin, President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. Because it is a constructive effort to revive the building industry, improve conditions for those numerous activities dependent upon construction, and thus give wide-spread employment, Mr. Coglin issued the following statement in support of the Plan:

"I have no hesitation in endorsing the Home Improvement Plan. Any national co-operative effort to revive the building and kindred industries and thus give wide-spread employment to those who may have been out of work for years, merits our generous and energetic support. A plan which not only harnesses self-interest to the provision of employment but also calls for response from the people on the ground of patriotism, should meet with success.

"The Home Improvement Plan is, above all, simple. Under its terms the credit-worthy home-owner finds his path, formerly strewn with financial difficulties, clear and direct. He decides what improvements his home requires, he finds out their cost and he applies for a loan from the bank. He can make his application with no feeling of hesitancy. The banks have agreed to co-operate, and if he can show that he will be able to meet the instalment payments, the loan should be made.

"Revival of activity in the building trades would go far toward bringing Canada back to that condition of general prosperity which we all desire. The effect of such a revival on unemployment is obvious. We have only to reflect on the quantity of labor which must go into the production of each commodity necessary to home construction to realize this.

"Practically all Canadians should benefit from the Home Improvement Plan. Because this is the case, because its benefits must be wide-spread and inclusive, I give it my support."

BRINGING BACK OLD ENGLAND

Decorating Room That Brings To Mind Rolling Green Country

REMODELLING COTTAGE

A room that brings to mind the rolling green country of England, was created by a housewife who wanted her home to be "different." She had undertaken to remodel a cottage and the result was decidedly distinctive.

The walls of the English living room were tinted brick, and the ceiling was beamed. A triple casement bay window replaced the regulation window. Not wanting to go to the trouble of laying new floors in the cottage, the owner had the cracks filled and the whole varnished. Then a carpet, which had been used in the former home, was laid.

Victorian furniture, which had been in the family for generations was combined with a few modern pieces, bought with the owner's personal funds. A pair of Chinese ancestor portraits were the only decorations on the brick walls. English chintz was used for draperies.

The room so impressed many people who saw it that one woman, who wanted an extra living room in her own home, followed this general scheme in creating a room in her basement.

Such changes can be made under the Dominion Government Home Improvement Plan.

LIFFORD LINE

Mr. Ester Preston of Peterborough, is the guest of friends and relatives at Lifford.

Mr. Richard Wilson accompanied his nephew Mr. Archie Wilson, to Lindsay, on Wednesday to attend the funeral of the late General Garnet Hughes at Riverside cemetery.

Work on the fields has again commenced in this locality. Mr. Harry Preston, Eighth Line, made the initial move by plowing for part of a day. On Tuesday two teams were noticed plowing on a field owned by Mr. Owen Kincaid, Eighth Line. On Wednesday George Strong, near Bailieboro, was noticed discing a field, while Charlie Chapman was busy harrowing.

The maple syrup industry is a failure in this locality this season, the run of sap being the lightest in years. Most farmers are making only sufficient for their own supply, making the demand strong on the local market.

Fall wheat has wintered well in Manvers, which is particularly gratifying owing to fears concerning it during a winter of sparse snow. On account of scarcity of seed grain of all kinds farmers wish for the minimum amount of seeding, which fact will be assisted by the growth of wheat, rye and all fall seeding.

SCHEME APPEALS TO SELF INTEREST OF MANY SECTIONS

Much Home Improvement Work To Be Done Says Arthur B. Purvis

MANY WILL BENEFIT

One of the most helpful explanations of the Home Improvement scheme that has yet been made was voiced recently in a broadcast by Arthur B. Purvis, chairman of the National Employment Commission, who pointed out that the plan appeals to the self interest of many sections of the community.

"In the building and contracting industry it offers opportunity, not so much to the big firms, whose field of operation covers the whole Dominion, but more particularly, as the National chairman expresses it, to those who are usually described as local builders, whose facilities and equipment are limited and a large part of whose business in normal times consists of making repairs and alterations.

They Have the Answer

Too often in the past few years such men have heard prospects say, "Yes, I would like to do that job but I haven't got the cash." Now they have the answer—a loan under the Home Improvement Plan—and those who are going out and looking for work with that weapon to help them are finding plenty to do.

To the manufacturers of building material, to dealers in all kinds of building supplies, it offers prospects of increased sales. They can help themselves by telling people how to use the Plan.

To the home owner, it brings the opportunity to protect the investment he has made and to provide for his family extra comforts and conveniences.

To the owner of residential property, it affords a means of providing conveniences such as garages and additional bathrooms which will command increased rental.

A Municipal Benefit

To the municipality it provides an opportunity of maintaining its assessment role, since without adequate maintenance work properties very quickly deteriorate in value. It also offers the expectation of a lowering of expenditures for relief and, most important of all, to the unemployed artisan it gives hope of a return to steady employment.

The basic idea behind the Plan is that in the field of home improvement there is work to be done—work which should be done—work which in many cases has been delayed too long. Owners of residential property are urged for their own sakes to give this matter of delayed maintenance their immediate consideration. For those whose financial position requires that they should be able to pay in instalments over a period, the Home Improvement Plan provides a means by which they can spend those few dollars now which may save them many times the amount later on.

Improvement Is Needed

No one will contend for a moment that thousands of Canadian homes do not need improvement. The fact is obvious. The condition is country-wide. Run-down, out-of-date, unpainted, unattractive, inconvenient homes are to be found in every city and town. They are in evidence in rural sections, on the farms. If it were not that I know so well causes which have brought these conditions about, I would say we should be ashamed of our homes.

It will be generally agreed that, from the point of view of the home-owner, there is pressing need for some plan which will permit house renovation. But the need extends far beyond the home-owner. The fact that home repair has been practically abandoned during half a dozen years means that the building trades have stagnated. The need is apparent here and markedly so.

As one travels through the country one realizes that this matter of home improvement is largely one of leadership. The houses which compose streets and towns are either well kept or badly kept. It only needs someone to start the ball rolling by setting a good example. This was the experience in the United States. We believe it will be followed in Canada.

Camerons' Pioneer House On Boundary Of Asphodel One Of Oldest In County

John Cameron Pioneer Settler Of Peterborough County In 1820

CAME FROM SCOTLAND

Grandson Of G. A. Gillespie Represents Sixth Generation Of Family

ONE of the oldest houses in Peterborough county is the log building on the farm of Hugh Cameron in the first concession of Asphodel township on the east side of the Asphodel-Otonabee boundary, th pioneer home of John Cameron, who left the highlands of Scotland in 1820 to wrest a livelihood out of the virgin forest of Canada, "to rough it in the bush."

The big stone fire place in the old house has been cold these many years. Hens nest in the long deserted living room where for many years the flames of hardwood logs flung on the opposite wall and ceiling sportive shadows of John Cameron and his good wife Margaret Knox, and their bairns.

"Gone With the Wind"

All those dim yesterdays and their stout hearted people have disolved into the shadows of the past, and are by each light succumbing to the ravages of time. They served their day and generation, and eventually they will all disappear.

To strangers who pass that way John Cameron's pioneer dwelling would be just another deserted log house. If indeed they noticed it at all, but to the Cameron clan it is the old homestead with the attachment of deep sentiment that remains in the hearts of those who cling to and preserve ancestral acres.

Even pictures taken of it before it had fallen into the decay of disuse have faded to misty outlines, and when a new one was proposed a few days ago, Hugh Cameron gave expression to the family sentiment for the old place with a remark that it seemed a pity to make a picture of the house in its present dilapidation. He seemed to suggest with manly diffidence that it was hardly fair to the memories of the house and all it had been to the Camerons for so long to turn the limelight of publicity upon it in its day of neglect and desolation. Obviously it had been a spacious and roomy house for its time, and if the Camerons were all like this grandson of the builder they must have been kindly and happy spirits.

A Cameron Clansman

From records compiled by Mrs. James S. Hope of the second concession of Otonabee, a granddaughter of the progenitor of the family who was one of the county's pioneer settlers, it is related that John Cameron was born in the county of Inverness, Scotland, in 1777. He was a clansman of the Camerons whose chief was Lochiel with whom he served for three years in Ireland during the rebellion. His discharge papers were signed on June 26, 1802 by Colonel D. Cameron, commanding officer of the Lochaber regiment.

John Cameron was then 24 years old. Soon after his discharge from his Highland regiment, when he was no longer needed for active service, he quickly adjusted himself to civilian life by deciding to take up farming with a man of property named John Wilson, J.P. About the same time he married Margaret Knox. His engagement on the Wilson farm continued for seventeen years when he turned his thoughts to Canada. John Wilson gave him a certificate of character, reference papers, declaring that John Cameron was a man of honesty, sobriety and loyalty whose work "was to my entire satisfaction." The document was attested by Alexander Campbell, a magistrate of Renfrewshire, and was signed by him at Hurlet, May 6, 1820, affirming that John Cameron was preparing to leave Scotland for Canada. It mentioned that he had been an active member of a corps of volunteers in Paisley.

At Cameron's Point

Events of the Cameron family's departure from Scotland and of the long and tedious sea voyage are just another forgotten chapter of the wrench of home ties and of the hardships endured by the sturdy and ambitious Scotsmen who came to this country a century or more ago. Family tradition says the Camerons came into Ontario as far as Toronto, and shortly afterward retraced some of their steps to Rice Lake where they lived for a time at what is till known as Cameron's Point, in the first concession of Asphodel. It is east of Colonel R. E. Birdsall's estate where Rice Lake is confined between narrower banks and flows on as the Trent River.

Their first winter in Peterborough county was spent at the Point. Then in the early twenties of more than a century ago John Cameron moved from the lake front, up the Asphodel boundary almost to what is now No. 7 highway, acquiring substantial property. He built his first log house on the Otonabee side, constructing it of trees he felled on his own land. The family's move was across the first concession line to the Asphodel side. It is related that John Cameron took up one hundred acres for each of his six sons, John, James, Duncan, Peregrine Maitland (the first white child born in Asphodel, who was named after the incumbent Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada), Ewen and Donald, and another hundred acres for himself.

Cameron Settlement

Donald the youngest son was born in 1827. There were also four daughters, Jane, Catherine, Ellen and Mary, and of these ten children all but two, John and Mary, married, and in their turn brought up large families whose descendants are scattered throughout Canada even to the Pacific coast. Many of them have remained in the original settlement of the Camerons, on both sides of the Asphodel-Otonabee boundary, and have retained their love of the land that has been a family loyalty and inheritance through the long century since John Cameron built the homestead house that is slowly breaking up under the wear and weight of the years.

As the family grew in numbers the house was enlarged, and when refinements of living in those early days brought such domestic improvements as an iron stove, the stone fire place was reduced to the subordinate and menial service of a wood box. That of course, was long after John Cameron died in 1851, but grandsons of his recall today when the filling of the stone "wood-box" seemed a heavy task for boys, so broad and high and roomy was its space.

Increase Possessions

The Camerons took root in the soil of Asphodel and Otonabee, and it is significant of the family's adherence to agriculture that not only have they kept possession of the original seven hundred acres but grandsons and great grandsons of John Cameron now own at least nine hundred acres in the old neighborhood.

Of many a pioneer family throughout this district there is hardly a surviving trace, and the

For Sunday, April 18

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE holds auguaries of very important and exciting affairs. This commotion may be due to the launching of new projects or a new regime of a social, domestic or romantic nature, since all these matters are under high stimuli for change, enterprise and accomplishment.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a very important and constructive year, with powerful influences at work in both business and private lives. New undertakings, fresh environs and powerful associations are imminent, with probably much commotion, change and excitement abounding.

A child born on this day probably will be an outstanding character, with unusual but constructive talents and tendencies. It may have many social graces and should be popular, although probably erratic, changeable and restive.

For Monday, April 19

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for doubts, difficulties and peculiar situations which might be hasardous unless met with a certain spirit of expediency, craft or collusion.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which certain tendencies toward subtlety, craft, strategy, intrigue or expediency may count for more than direct and open measures in circumventing treachery, fraud, distortion, malice and slander.

A child born on this day may be versatile, clever and shrewd, leaning toward the crafty, intriguing and subtle for its success. There is a possibility of these characteristics being indulged to its detriment, unless given early training in integrity and honesty in its dealings.

ARM IS CAUGHT ELECTRIC WRINGER

Small Child Sustains Severe Injury To Her Right Arm

Betty Rosborough, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Rosborough, 267 King street who recently sustained severe injury to her right arm when it was caught in the wringer of an electric washing machine, is reported to be making satisfactory progress.

While the child's mother left the house for a few minutes on a recent morning to make a purchase at a nearby grocery, it is stated, Phyllis Rosborough an elder child was demonstrating how the wringer worked with a scarf, when the younger child got her arm caught between the rollers.

Hurrying back from the store, the mother found her small daughter with her arm caught between the rollers up to the elbow. The arm was badly crushed, and lacerated, and it is probable that a grafting operation will have to be performed at a later stage to prevent the child being permanently disfigured as a result of the accident.

Unusual is the nature of a writ which has been issued by G. N. Gordon, K.C., on behalf of Used Store Fixtures Limited, Toronto, against famed Lloyds of London. Since Lloyds of London is not a corporate firm, any such suit must be directed against each of the 800 participating members, Mr. Gordon explains. The writ is for $6,000 damages in connection with a fire on the property of Used Store Fixtures Limited which was covered by a policy with Lloyds.

A new "baa-baa" chorus is heard in the country these Spring days, recent arrivals of lambs that appear to double the number of sheep in farm flocks. The lambkins skip and gambol with what seems to be the joy of life, and taking a still picture of them exacts as much patience as Fred Roy often requires in his photography of baby boys and girls who perversely uninterested in looking toward the camera and the lures that are held in that direction. ENGLISH COMPANY LIKE TO COME HERE ALD. GORDON SAYS

Remove Factory From City Where Labor Troubles Are Very Intense

NEED TWENTY ACRES

Possibility that a large English manufacturing company will remove a factory to this city to avoid labor disturbances and high rents and taxes in the large Canadian city in which it is now located was suggested by Alderman G. N. Gordon today. Stating he was not at liberty to reveal the name of the firm at the present, Mr. Gordon said he has been in communication with the general manager for some time.

If the plant is brought to Peterborough, twenty acres will be required, he revealed. He stated: "The general manager of the company is a former Peterborough boy and he is anxious to have his office located in Peterborough to take it away from one of the largest cities in Canada where labor conditions are very much disturbed and rents and taxes are very high on account of municipal extravagance and bad management by City Councils there."

Saying Peterborough's freedom from serious labor trouble was one of the chief attractions to industry, Alderman Gordon declared strikes always give a city a bad name and predicted that Oshawa will not get any new industry for a long time to come. The way to keep a city healthy in industrial matters is for all to do their best for friendly settlements of labor disputes through meetings with the help of Federal or Provincial labor officials, he said.

He stated he had been in conversation with some Dominion Woollens employees and felt they had a serious grievance in regard to their wages. He advised the workers, however, to avoid giving the city a bad name by asking for a Conciliation Board from Ottawa rather than causing strike trouble.

Fashion Service

A romantic coral rayon-challis print made this charming basque dress.

It's such a figure flatterer with its shirred bosom and flared skirt gathered at the back. The gathered fulness minimizes the waist and hips. Grosgrain ribbon around the edge of the skirt accentuates the wide hem. It is a bright tone picked out of the print. Grosgrain ribbon bows trim the bodice.

You can make a different looking dress with the same pattern of navy blue sheer with fresh white pique shirt collar. You'll find it extremely wearable later for summer, town, travels and "week-ends."

It's fun to make, too, with the simplified sewing chart that is included.

Style No. 3081 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38-inches bust. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material with ¾ yard of 39-inch contrasting for belt and bows with 8¼ yards of ribbon for edge of skirt.

DISTRICT COUNCIL.

About ninety members of the Peterborough District Council of the A.Y.P.A. attended a meeting in St. John's Parish Hall, Peterborough, on Wednesday night. Owing to the absence of the president and secretary, Mrs. P. Dorrell occupied the chair and Miss Queenie Hope acted as secretary. A letter was received regard the Bishop Horden Memorial School at Moose Bay. The Dominion Council of the A.Y.P.A. has been asked to undertake the equipping of one hundred beds for this school. The local Council has expressed its willingness to co-operate and branches were asked to do what they could toward this end. Two branches have already signified their intention to equip a bed.

Miss Clemena Long was elected as delegate to the Dominion Conference to be held at Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Montreal, in June. Jack Marshall, convenor of dramatics, announced that he expects three or four plays to be entered for the district dramatic contest to be held soon. Lee Cuthiller announced an increased subscription to the A.Y.P.A. Monthly. The business session was closed by the Rev. R. T. F. Brain with prayers. A few get-together games were enjoyed, followed by the service of refreshments.

Mrs. F. Dorrell, on behalf of the District Council, expressed thanks to St. John's Branch for their hospitality. Out-of-town branches represented were from Emily and Omemee, while a large number of members were present from each of the four city branches.

ALL SAINTS' BRANCH.

At a recent meeting of All Saints' A.Y.P.A., it was decided to send a donation to the Bishop Horden Memorial School and also to assist in sending a delegate from Peterborough District A.Y.P.A. Council to the Dominion Conference at Montreal in June. An invitation was extended to St. John's Branch for a joint social evening to be held on May 3, and plans were discussed in connection with the forthcoming tennis season.

With The Girl Guides

The Girl Guides of the First and Third Companies held enrollments at their meetings on Monday and Thursday nights respectively. At the First Company, two guides of the Nightingale Patrol, Marian Sutherland and Freda Grey, made their promises; while at the Third Company, Mrs. D. White, who is training to be a Brown Owl, was enrolled.

We feel that a great many people do not know what Guiding is. Guiding is practically the same as Scouting, and has been incorporated by royal charter for the purpose of developing good citizenship among girls, by forming their character; training them in habits of observation, obedience, and self-reliance; inculcating loyalty and thoughtfulness for others; teaching them services useful to the public and handicrafts useful to themselves; promoting their physical development; making them responsible for keeping good homes and of bringing up good children. Its desire is to co-operated with educational and other bodies working to this end.

Summer Trip Is Reviewed

Miss Anne Jamieson Tells Fellow Club Members Of Visit Abroad

Miss Anne Jamieson gave a delightful review of a trip abroad taken by her last summer, at the regular meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Peterborough, held in their George street clubrooms, with Miss Birdie Dawson in the chair.

Miss Jamieson outlined graphically the pleasant details of her sojourn abroad. After landing at Plymouth and proceeding by train to London, the party motored along the South Coast to Land's End, then north through the Lorna Doone country to Glastonbury and Bath, on through the midlands in North Wales, the Lake district, Gretna Green, and the Burns' country and the Caledonian Canal. They visited Inverness, the Highlands, the country of Sir Walter Scott, the Trossachs, Balmoral Castle, Stirling and Edinburgh before returning to England.

Taking an aeroplane to France, they visited Vimy Ridge and the War cemeteries and had a glimpse of Versailles and the historic places there. Returning to London, they visited many churches and notable places before returning to Canada.

The program of the evening was also enlarged by a humorous reading "Clinicked", given by Miss Florence McBride.

APSLEY

A successful dance given by the Apsley ball team was held in the Reynolds Hall on Thursday, April 15. A good time was enjoyed by all. The music was excellent, supplied by Mr. Laroe of Burleigh and Mr. Elliot of Apsley. Another dance will be put on by the ball team in two weeks' time.

Mrs. Pashler and daughter Ivy and Miss E. Tanner of Loon Lake are on a visit to friends in Toronto.

A euchre party was held at Red Cross Hospital on Tuesday evening. Prizes were won by: Gentlemen, George Carr; ladies, Mrs. Harold Tucker; men's consolation prize, by Mrs. Warren Payne. It was in aid of Apsley Women's Institute.

PIONEER HOUSE IS OLDEST IN COUNTY

titles of their lands have passed through the hands of strangers. The Camerons, however, have flourished in the section of the county which they cleared and built up. Even the school house on the hill to the south of the homestead is called "Cameron's School," and the present teacher is Helen Cameron, a daughter of the late Donald Cameron, whose father and great grandfather were of the same name. Miss Cameron is a great granddaughter of the pioneer. And in the cemetery nearby many of the Camerons are united in the long rest of the grave.

Life of Good Works

The pioneer wife and mother who had been Margaret Knox lived to be eighty-six years of age. She died in 1889, mourned by her family and by the entire neighborhood.

"She had been a true mother in Israel to all those with whom she came in contact," Mrs. J. S. Hope told the Examiner. "She was a good nurse, giving her assistance without expectation of remuneration or reward, save what a clear conscience and delight in doing good in the community carried to her heart. It was quite a common thing for her to go distances on horseback, often in the night, to render aid to the sick, and many of the most sturdy yeomanry at Asphodel and Otonabee were ushered into being under Mrs. Cameron's care. Her house was always a stopping place for those who came that way, and for a long time services were held on the Sabbath by the minister who came from Cobourg once a month, as there were no churches near at hand. People of that locality came and listened to him gladly.

Surviving Grandchildren

Of the numerous descendants of John Cameron and Margaret Knox in the present day are the following grandchildren: Hugh Cameron, on the homestead; David J. Cameron, 370 Bolivar street; John H. Cameron, 494 Aylmer street; Mrs. William Clarke, Peterborough; Mrs. J. S. Hope, concession two, Otonabee; Robert Y. Cameron of the first concession of Otonabee and his sister Helen; James D. Cameron, 371 Gilmour street; Mrs. Annie Kidd of Lakefield; Mrs. Elizabeth Ford of Toronto; William Cameron of Edmonton; Stuart Cameron of Skookumchuck, British Columbia.

Mrs. James Boswell and her son live on the homestead of James Cameron on the Otonabee side of the boundary, opposite the Hugh Cameron farm. She is a daughter of John Cameron, son of James whose father was John Cameron the pioneer.

Various branches of the family could be traced through succeeding generations down to the present, but the record might not be complete. For example G. A. Gillespie and Adam Gillespie of Peterborough and Peter Gillespie of Keene are great grandsons of the original John Cameron.

Incidentally the family has completed the cycle of time and movement by contributing a member of the fifth generation to the youth of Scotland. One of the descendants of John Cameron is Thomas A. Smith a little boy of two years, son of John I. Smith and Eva Cameron Smith of Edinburgh, Scotland, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Cameron of Bolivar street.

Grandchildren and great grandchildren of John Cameron who are farming today on the lands acquired during the pioneer period are: Hugh Cameron and Robert Y. Cameron, Mrs. Boswell, Gordon Cameron and Robert J. Cameron; and also James K. Cameron and William Cameron who have bought additional land in the old settlement.

Sixth Generation

The children of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Gillespie of Peterborough are of the sixth generation of the John Cameron who came from Scotland in 1820. That descent was in the female line. John Cameron's daughter Jane married Hugh Christie, and their daughter Margaret married John Gillespie, father of George A. Gillespie of Peterborough, whose son John Lang Gillespie is the father of two children, the eldest a boy, John Gillespie, who represents the sixth generation of descendants of John Cameron and Margaret Knox.

The following poem by Mrs. J. S. Hope entitled "The Lament of the Old House" reflects the sentiment of a granddaughter of the pioneer parents endeared by memories of its part.

"There's a little old grey house,
standing there within the hollow,
Standing there within the hollow all alone;
With its doors and windows open to the sunlight and the breezes
And the music of the birds in merry tone.

"Oh! little old grey house why are you standing empty?
Why are you standing empty and forlorn?
Where are all the kindly faces that once were found within you,
And the feet that trampled out and in at morn?

"But the old house standing silent, does not answer to my pleading.
Yet an echo seems to come from out its walls,
And I hold my breath to listen to the old time memory voices,
That are coming back in answer to my call.

"Oh! a century and more ago, the forest here was standing
And the hands that bravely toiled to place me here,
Hewed my timber from that forest as a shelter for their loved ones,
And here I've stood for many a changing year.

"And often here within those walls there gathered on the Sabbath,
Men and women who had come from far and near
To listen to the word of God, for there were then no churches,
But the travelling preacher preached the gospel here.

"And the red man of the forest in his roaming often entered
Within those walls he was a welcome guest,
He had learned to trust the white man, and he claimed him for a brother
And here beside the hearth-stone he would rest.

"And the troops of merry children that have grown up beside me,
For generations three and four were born within my fold;
But finer homes were wanted and the old home was forsaken,
To stand through summer's heat and winter's cold.

"But times have changed; are changing still,
And the old house is slowly but surely sinking down to hide beneath the clay
And nothing then but memories, such holy, happy memories,
Are all that shall remain to us of many a happy day.

"Now the voices have departed, I can no longer hear them,
Can it be that I just fancied they were here?
Ah, no! they brought a message from the past so distant,
And still at times it seems so very near.

"And they whispered of another home that's waiting over yonder,
Of a mansion made with hands, above the sky,
In that bright and glorious city where no sadness ever enters,
We shall meet again in the sweet bye and bye."

PSYCHOLOGY

their children to follow, when the whole question can be cleared up by certain proved tests.

Three Ways Of Finding Out.

Professor Levy explained that there are three methods of determining the capabilities of an individual. The first is to size up the individual by sight, judging him by facial and bodily characteristics. The second is the anthropological method. Use of measurements of the head and body. The third is the only scientific method, he said, and that is the psychological method.

A man's walk is revealing of his make-up, he continued. "If you see a man who walks with a strut, probably with his thumb hooked in the corner of his vest, that means he has a peculiar amount of conceit and pride. The criminal classes have a peculiar walk. They have a slouchy walk, with knocking of the knees," Professor Levy said.

Relief Gardens

Parties desiring relief gardens this Spring are asked to register at the Relief Office, corner Queen and Simcoe Sts. As in previous years, provision is also made for others not on relief to secure plots of ground if desired.

TRAPPERS REPORT MUSKRAT CATCH LESS THAN THIRD

Marshes Almost Dry And Water Not Deep Enough To Drown Rats

TEN DAYS TO SELL CATCH

Trappers from the district marshes report less than none-third the average catch of muskrats for the season that ended on Thursday.

"The water was too low" four or five men told the Examiner to-day in explanation of the disappointing returns for their work of the last ten days. "The marshes were almost dry, and you could walk around in them without getting wet.

Another trapper supplemented this statement after verifying it by saying that the water wasn't deep enough to drown the rats when they were caught, "and they twisted off a leg or two and got away."

In a season of normal depth of water, the trappers usually find the captured rats at the bottom of the marsh, drowned in their struggles to escape from the steel jaws of the traps which are anchored by chains to some fixed root or other object.

"We'd find a rat in a trap one morning this season and like as not there would be another the next morning," a trapper told the Examiner.

Prices have been ranging from $2 to $2.25. Trappers have ten days to dispose of their catch, and the local harvest will not be generally known until next Saturday.

"The catch this year from the Rideau to Lake Scugog will not be more than 30 per cent. of the average," the Examiner was informed, and "the off season" is bound to be reflected, it was said, in higher prices for Hudson seal coats next winter.

CHURCH SOFTBALL IS RE-ORGANIZED

Executive Elected And Rules Made At Lengthy Loop Meeting In "Y"

The Church Softball League held a good meeting last night at the "Y" and made definite progress in reorganizing. About 15 delegates were on hand, representing such churches as Mark Street, St. John's, St. Paul's, George Street, Murray Street, All Saints, Knox and Park Street. When Whitby Thirnbeck, 1936 president, had to leave early, Len Agnew took over the chair, Don Charlton was secretary for the gathering.

Five were elected to the new executive, these to add to their number if they see fit, and to elect their own officers. Len Agnew and Don Charlton, long connected with interchurch sports, were chosen; while Lloyd Parnall and Art Mann were elected for their second term; and Byers Smith, a newcomer who has been active in sports at Park Street, was voted in. Executive meets Monday next at seven p.m. in the "Y" to revise rules, elect officers and set the league activities going. Closing date for entries will be April 26th, and play will likely commence the first week in May.

Lengthy Session

It was a three-hour meeting with much discussion, but little criticism of last year's officers, as the 36 schedules were run off with little trouble. The nine senior teams, three junior, seven juveniles and five bantams, enjoyed a good year in softball.

A balance of $4.43 was shown by Treasurer Lloyd Parnall's report, $30.11 being receipts, $23.16 the expenses, and $2.50 bonds still being owing to Mark St., Knox and St. Paul's teams. Only two changes in rules were made last night. It was decided that no City League player be allowed to play in the Church League until the City League is under way. Church League players are allowed to participate in two City League games. A City League player is defined as one who was signed with a City League team at the end of last season. Last year's rule was to allow one City League player on each church team. In the senior and junior sections this year, teams must have nine players present to start a game, but in the juvenile and bantam sections seven players may start. Entry forms and lists of rules will be sent to the various churches this coming week.

TERRY INTENDS TO DIRECT PLAY FROM THE BENCH

Johnny McCarthy Is Slated For First Base With The Giants

MANCUSO IS CAPTAIN

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS, April 17.—"You can say that Johnny McCarthy is going to play first base, Hank Leiber will be in centre field and Lou Chiozza at third. Those are the important changes in the Giants. We'll have a better ball club than the one that won the pennant last year."

Bill Terry seemed certain when he spoke. For that matter, the boss of the Giants always is pretty sure of himself.

On the field the Giants and Indians were warming up for one of their long series of spring exhibition games. Bob Feller, kid speedball king, was burning a few to Steve O'Neill, manager of the Indians, great catcher of years ago.

Good Batting Practice

"We haven't been hitting much," Terry continued. "But after a few innes of Indian pitching, we ought to improve. Especially Feller. Our batters are getting good spring practice waving at that boy. National league pitching ought to be easy for the club after facing him this spring. Steve better look out there—he'll get killed."

Steve must have felt the same way about it, for just then he called another catcher to work with Feller.

"Don't let him cut loose," Steve admonished the new mitiman.

Terry continued to discuss the Giants.

"We'll probably have only one new starting pitcher, and I'm pretty well satisfied with the staff as it is. We're going to keep Cliff Melton. Won 20 games for Baltimore last year. We've sent out Yarewick, Meketi and Benne and one more probably will go. We'll have eight pitchers."

The regulars are Hubbell, Fitzsimmons, Gumbert, Ciabler, Castleman, Schumacher, Coffman and Smith. That means one will have to go to Jersey City if Melton continues to satisfy the boss as he has so far. One guess would be Coffman.

Big Enough!

Melton is a big southpaw, six-feet-four, weighing 20 0pounds. He has shown plenty of stuff in training. All the pitchers are well advanced, because of their early work under Havana's hot sun.

We asked Terry about Schumacher, whose pitching arm went dead in September of 1935, and who lost more games last year than he won.

"Hal found he had fluid on his elbow," said Terry, "but his arm seems to be all right now. It wasn't necessary to operate because the doctors caught it in time. His case was something like Fitz', except that the fluid hardened on Freddie and they had to chip it off."

If Schumacher comes back, the Giants' pitching staff appears more than adequate. Hubbell, Castleman, Melton, Schumacher and Fitzsimmons give the club a good starting line, with Smith, Gabler and Gumbert for relief.

Jackson Likes Team

During the training trip we had a chance to talk to Travis Jackson, former third sacker of the Giants who is Jersey City pilot now. Jackson said he thought the team had been improved greatly by the addition of Chiozza. The former captain of the Giants said he thought Chiozza would cover third better than he (Jackson) did last year. Chiozza came to the champs from the Phils a tail end club, and the change had pepped up his play immeasurably. Jackson expressed the opinion, also, that Bartell and Whitehead were greatly improved in their work allound second, and that Leiber would be a better ball player this year.

Terry is stout in his insistence that McCarthy will play first base, but he must have doubts about whether the youngster will hit major league pitching. When he sent Lee Powers to Baltimore recently, Terry retained an option on him, so Powers can be recalled at any time. Boss Bill advised Powers to be ready to return to the Giants at any time, should McCarthy flop. McCarthy is a fine fielder, but his hitting has been a worry. Terry has been schooling him at the plate in an effort to improve his form.

Five Hundred for Gus

The Giants' outfield is well set, with the veterans, Mel Ott and Joe Moore flanking Hank Leiber, and with Jim Ripple and George Davis as reserves. The catching is in capable hands, with Gus Mancuso, who recently was made captain of the team by Terry, to do the bulk of the receiving. Gus is a durable backstopper, and the $500 award that goes with the captaincy has stirred his ambition to catch a complete season.

When asked Terry if he was definitely through as a first baseman,

"I'm going to retire," said Bill. "I'm 39 years old, and though my bum knee has felt fine this spring, I'll stay on the bench this year, I guess. We've got a rattling good ball club without me."

Bill seemed sure about it, so I guess that settles it.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE-CRACKER.

Mister Sporting Editor:

This Detroit Red Wing team is the greatest hockey aggregation in the world. Any team that can lose 3 or 4 star players and have me pick them as the winner of a serious and then go out and grab off the honors is entitled to all the applause that kin be showered on them. Mister Jack Adams' gang started out early in the season by losing their captain and Star defence player, Doug Young, with a broken leg. They promoted Mister Orville Roulston from Pittsburgh and after he had shaken down into the job and was starring in the defence role, bang went 1 of his legs, and Mister Johnny Gallagher had to be brung up from the minors 2 weeks before the playoffs. Mister Larry Aurie while was leading the whole league in scoring at the time, put himself out of the game for the rest of the season by also busting a leg.

They Started Crippled

And so the Wings went into the playoffs crippled, but in spite of that they walzzed through the 1st 2 games with the Canadiens. Then in the 3rd game Mister Normie Smith, the year's all-star goal minder has his arm badly hurt and he's out of action for a while, although he got back in time to do a marvelous job in the 5th game of the serious. Then along come the Rangers, hot as chile con carne after taking the Leaves and the Maroons in 4 straight games and only allowing the two outfits a solitary goal. Mister Smith hurts his arm again and the Rangers give the Wings a bad lacing in the opening game of the serious at New York. Up from the minors again comes the young Mister Robertson and steps into the breach. But the Wings ain't through with their bad luck yet. After the Rangers has took the 3rd game and put themselfs in a position where they only gotta cop one more to con the battered old Stanley mug it is discovered that Mister Ebbie Goodfellow picked as one of the two all-star defence men of the season, has crocked his knee, and can't play in the 4th game.

On the Spot, But—

There's the picture. The Rangers only a game away from the cup and the Wings with 3 of their 4 all-stars on the hospital list, needing to win 2 straight from an outfit that is as torrid as mustard.

Right there the Detroiters showed what a really great team can do when their backs is to the wall. Led by Mister Marty Barry—wonder if them Toronto sports writers still think Mister Apps should of been picked for the centre position on the all-star N.H.L. squad—they took the 4th game, 1 to 0, and then with the series all tied up they come back in the 5th battle and win going away by 3 to 0. When the checks was down and games hadda be won the crippled Wings had class enough left to win the last 2 battles and more than that, shut out twice in succession a high-scoring confident New York machine. All Mister Barry did in that final dash for the cup was to score the only goal of the 4th game and 2 out of the three in the final argument, while he assisted in the other. During the playoffs he piled up a new high scoring record, with 11 points, and, neighbors, that is coming through in the pinches. Close behind him in the here line was the kid goalie, Mister Robertson who turned in 2 shutouts to end the tussle and this Mister Bid Howe who dropped back on the defence to fill the shoes of Mister Ebbie Goodfellow and give a grand performance.

Getting the Kinks Out

That's a lot about Detroit, but the Wings has earned it. Locally, Mac. Mister F. Collins has got his ball blavers out in the "Y" gym these nights and the boys is discovering some muscles they never knew they had. Anyway, they been taking to it with a vengeance and when the time comes to get out-of-doors they will probably start in better shape than ever before at this time of year.

Well, old timer, I guess that is the allotment for the week; anyway I'm calling it that.

Sportfully Yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

Westclox Retain Title In Girls' Cage League

Nose Out 21-18 Win Against C.G.E. In Deciding Game Of Ladies' Basketball Playoff Series

A THRILLING TUSSLE

Westclox girls won the senior championship of the Ladies' Basketball League last night at the Y.W. gym when they defeated C.G.E. by a 21-18 score before a noisy crowd of rooters. The teams had each won one game in this final playoff series. A batting display put up by the Clockmakers upset the dope as the Electrics were generally rated a bit stronger.

It was a gruelling, speedy struggle with both teams calling for time out several times as the players neared exhaustion from the hot pace. The game was exciting from start to finish with good and bad basketball mixed up. Checking was close and both sides drew a bunch of personal penalties, the winners cashing in on more of the free throws. M. Hallahan was lost to the C.G.E. late in the game with four fouls.

Westclox set the pace from the start and had a 13-5 edge at half-time. The Electrics rallied strongly in the third quarter and, at one time, had the Westclox lead whittled down to one point. However the victors had some punch left and came on to hold a slight margin on the attack in the final quarter. They showed an edge in shooting over C.G.E. the latter crew having to look at all in this department.

Fast All Through.

At not time throughout the torrid tussle did either side slow up. They kept up a rapid pace from whistle to whistle. The winners used a short passing game on the attack and close checking in their own area on the defensive. C.G.E. started slowly and had to fight from behind all the way. They took more chances with long passes, missing many, and seeing numerous shots roll around the edge of the hoop and fall off. The game was decidedly in doubt till the very finish.

G. Mortimer showed the way for Westclox in their win with 10 points. B. Slade was next with five, while G. Hunter and M. Slade had two each, and M. Snowden and A. Livingstone one apiece. M. Woods was best for the other squad with eight points. M. Rodgon clicked for six and A. Craig for four. All the players on both teams, regulars and alternates turned in a fine performance in this titular tilt. The teams:

Westclox—G. Mortimer, G. Hunter, A. Livingstone, B. Slade, M. Slade, M. Snowden, D. Merrett, C. Wheatman.

C.G.E.—A. Craig, M. Rodgon, E. Hodson, M. Woods, K. Rogow, E. Bragley, D. Schultz, M. Hallahan, J. Alexander.

Referee, Joe Cooper.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 17—(CP)—Victims of Windsor Fords' high-geared forces a stunned Montreal McGill Grades' basketball team held a meeting to-day to decide the best way of combatting the Canadian champions near-perfect form. Unless Grads perfect a method in a hurry the best-of-three series for the Eastern Canada Senior title will be over to-night.

Flashing speed and brilliance the McGill crew had never seen before, Fords had little difficulty in running up a 57-17 win in the first tilt of the series last night. There probably won't be any need for a third game Monday with Fords, Canadian Olympic representatives last year, highly-favored to repeat the bitter dose to Montreal hopes in the second match.

The highly-rated pair of Johnny Ferraro and Ole Olsen was effectively throttled by Fords last night, Olsen was held scoreless while Ferraro managed to snare but six points. Both looked slow in comparison to the pestiferous Windsor little-men.

The only times the teams were evenly matched was in the first five minutes of play, when the visitors forged to the front by a point or two.

Ferraro, leading scorer for Grads and coach of the Montreal Football club of the Interprovincial Union last Fall, although unable to play under a residence ruling, appeared slow afoot throughout the game.

Olsen, another football star, who played with Western Canada and Dakota teams before moving to Montreal, played a better brand of the cage game than the husky Ferraro, although he had no points to show for his efforts.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

THE SIMON pure rasslers are at it tonight at the "Y", some gees from Ottawa and some local lads. Five or six bouts in all, short and snappy mat exhibitions, and they ought to be good. Coach H. B. Cowan has some good amateur talent and he expects plenty of opposition from the experienced Ottawa grapplers. They'll be matched according to ability rather than weight. Ottawa chaps are: Louis DeLisle, Harry Appleton, Wendell Day, Bud Budree, Cec. Holmes and maybe Dave Baker. Local matmen include: Bill Hogan, Ross Pulkinghorn, Steve Czumrik, Bill Taylor, Fred Williams and maybe Jim Thorburn. The 10-minute bouts begin about nine o'clock, being preceded at 8.35 by an all-star cage exhibition. Should draw quite a crowd of fans.

ANNUAL SPRING meeting of the Southend Softball League will be on Monday at seven bells in the Barracks Booth, across the road from the Brinton softball diamond. Last year's executive and any one else interested are urged to be on hand. J. W. Copping is prexy and D. Pearson secretary. Officers will be elected, entries taken and plans for the season made. This is a pretty fair independent loop and should go over okay again this year. Hope the teams aren't using commercial names, though.

* * * * * *

MONDAY NIGHT at eight in Duffus', the lacrossers meet to discuss important business. It's an executive session dealing with progress on the new box, finances, grouping, etc. Should be a group meeting here, and I would suggest Belleville as the spot to encourage that place to enter a team. They are showing signs of interest and will probably climb aboard. Quinte scribe fears we're trying to give them and Norwood the run-around as far as an O.A.L.A. intermediate "A" grouping goes. Far from it, the more the merrier. Trenton Fliers look like a sure entry and probably Oshawa, too. It ought to be a four or six-team league and do much to revive the gutted-stick game.

* * * * * *

HE ADDS: "One thing they are doing in Peterborough that could well be duplicated here is the erection of a box for lacrosse. Apparently, the Liftlockers intend deserting Riverside Park as a vacant lot opposite the George St. wharf has been optioned for a lacrosse field. Local lacrosse interests have been trying to obtain the Belleville Arena for home games, as has the R.C.A.F., but the arena management hasn't even given the 'marathon runners' as much as a tumble. With senior ball out in Belleville the lacrossers should get a good spot of their own for twilight fixtures."

* * * * * *

A GOOD turnout last night at the Church Softball League as they elected their executive and passed a couple of rulings. Officers will be chosen at an executive meeting Monday at seven p.m. in the "Y" from this slate: Len Agnew, Don Charlton, Lloyd Parnall, Art Mann and Byers Smith. The closing date for entries is April 26th and the loop will likely get underway the first week of May. A balance of $4.45 was shown from last year. One new ruling has it that no City Softball League signed player of last year may play in the Church League until the City League is under way this season. But how many then to a church team? And Church Loop players are allowed to play two City League games. In senior and junior sections this year a team must have nine players to start a game, but seven players may start in juvenile or bantam tilts. Other dope is in to-night.

YE PERENNIAL senior girls' cage champs, Westclox, came out of their corner fighting last eve at the Y.W. to cop another title. They beat C.G.E., 21-18, in an exciting tilt before a good gang of rooters. An edge in the first half, plus sufficient punch in the final quarter to stave off a C.G.E. rally gave 'em the duke. It was an exhausting scrap all through. The Electrics on past performances this season should have won but they weren't a money team and muffed a million chances when the chips were down. Westclox cashed in on every opportunity and deserve credit for a fine showing. The first of this three-game series saw C.G.E. take a 39-9 win, but Westclox came back in the second to nudge out a 13-11 nod and took a 21-18 win last eve. C.G.E. outscored 'em 58 to 43 on the series but lost the championship.

FROM STRIKE-BOUND Oshawa comes a few remarks about baseball down that way. The writer says the GM-men dropped dough last summer and they'll operate with a small working executive and less glamor this year. He is quite high on his team with the addition of Bennett and Foley as catcher and centre fielder, and the return of Goose Osborne, a good infielder. J. R. Highfield—you read his name often in strike news—will likely be president of the club, with Sam Cunningham business manager, and Art Lesge the coach. Which of the three outfielders, Hurst, Rowden or Mathews, will be dropped for Foley, dependent makein no remarks—but we imagine Peg Hurst will be benched.

* * * * * *

THIS TOO from Oshawa: "Regarding the junior team, last year's O.B.A.A. champions, we understand there will be no junior club here this year. That is stark tragedy. Some years ago, General Motors took over hall in this city and when junior sponsorship was dropped, it wasn't long till the seniors flopped and baseball died in Oshawa. Dropping junior baseball is a sure way to kill the game. Last year's junior club is going to play in the Lakeshore Intermediate League, that news being definitely announced at a loop meeting some days ago." They must be slicing expenses pretty closely if they are cutting out their juniors—and they have some excellent material for junior ball down in Oshawa now. Almost as good as we have in Peterborough.

* * * * * *

HITHER AND YAWN: Sudbury won the Allan Cup last night with a 9-3 verdict over North Battleford . . . . And Barrie took a two-goal lead over the Norvoks with a 6-4 win in the first of home-and-home finals . . . . Poor old Belleville—with a "B" complex—yells because the O.A.S.A. brackets them with the intermediate "A" softball towns; are we chuckling! . . . . We've just heard that the Granite lacrossers have applied definitely for entry in a group with the Peks . . . . Junior Westclox girl cagers failed to show up for their game with St. John's last night, and failed to notify anyone . . . . Gals' softball meeting in Monday eve to elect . . . . Local lacrossers meet that night there, too, at eight . . . . And men softballers have a huddle there Tuesday at eight . . . . Charlie Gehringer of the Tigers drawed down 17 G's per annum . . . . Big gang of ball prospects working out last eve in the Y.M.C.A.; similar nights next week for these drills.

B.C. CAGERS TRIM ALBERTANS 44-22

Thunderbirds Need Only Win Tonight To Win Western Men's Laurels

VANCOUVER, April 17 (CP) — University of British Columbia's blue and gold thunderbirds, victors by 44-22 in the first game of the best-of-three basketball series with Raymond Union Jacks, need only a victory tonight to win the Western men's championship.

A great scoring splurge in the second half of the opening game last night with the Alberta champions gave Thunderbirds 24 points while they held Raymond to seven. The students led 20-15 at half-time.

Speed and clever passing of the great Varsity team, conquerors in the B.C. final of the 1936 Dominion runners-up, Victoria Dominoes, bewildered the quintet for Alberta's Mormon country in the second half when the Jacks wilted badly.

Ran Matthson, tricky Varsity star, topped the scoring with 12 points, while Raymond's Paul Fairbanks was second with 10.

Carpetball Notes.

Cridlands mbas delivery van put on a burst of speed and completely demoralized the Curtis Brickyard gang, who wasted a lot of bricks.

C.P.C. Cookhouse gang cooked the goose of the Fighting Parsons, killing any hope of prize money position.

C.P.C. Cookhouse squad did some heavy cooking, burning out the Hydro gang in short circuits.

The annual banquet will be held in the Legion Hall Wednesday, May 5th, at 7 p.m. sharp. Tickets will be out next week. Let us put it over big.

At The Baseball Training Camps

BROOKLYN, N.Y., April 17 (AP)—Ebbets' Field fans turning out to watch the Dodgers and Yankees wind up their spring exhibitions, are surprised to see Lou Gehrig on the sidelines. The iron horse is nursing an ailing finger on his left hand. Van Mungo, who fanned six Yankees yesterday, has collected a total of 33 strikeouts for the grapefruit campaigning.

New York.—Advance ticket sales indicated a crowd of 20,000 would be on hand to see the Giants open their own Polo Grounds against Cleveland Indians today. The big question mark was whether First Baseman Johnny McCarthy would be recovered enough to get into action. A ball hit him on the nose yesterday.

New York.—Here is how the major league baseball clubs will open the 1937 season:

American League.
April 19—Philadelphia at Washington.
April 20—Washington at New York, Boston at Philadelphia, Cleveland at Detroit, Chicago at St. Louis.

National League.
April 19—Philadelphia at Boston (doubleheader, morning and afternoon).
April 20—New York at Brooklyn, St. Louis at Cincinnati, Pittsburgh at Chicago.

DAYTON, O.—Quote Chuck Dressen, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, to-day: "I have concluded golf is good for my players. The fundamentals of hitting a baseball and a golf ball are the same. Another thing, I'll know my boys aren't hanging around in pool rooms and cafes."

Friday's Exhibition Results.

OLD INJURY JINX KEEPING KEY MEN OUT OF LINE-UPS

Double Opener Sees Athletics-Senators In Washington And Phillies-Bees In Boston

BIG DAY IN NEW YORK

(Associated Press Sports Writer.)
By Alex Feher

NEW YORK, April 17 (AP). — From New York's champions to Philadelphia's last-placers, by way of the Midwest, the 1936 standings and the hopeful predictions of the "experts," it looks like a banner year for big league baseball.

Old man injury jinx, who knows a lot about the game but not a thing about music, is striking the only sour note in the swing perfection of opening day by keeping key men out of several lineups for the getaway program Monday and Tuesday.

Some 250,000 fans may be on deck for the double opener—the Athletics-Senators clash in Washington and the Phillies-Bees in Boston—with a seven-game schedule Tuesday following Monday's curtailed program. The biggest crowd, a looked-for 50,000 or so is expected at the New York Yankees' stadium, where the world champions entertain their perennial headaches, the Senators. Another good-sized gathering is almost certain for the renewal of the National League's hottest rivalry, the Giants and Dodgers in Brooklyn.

Closer Race This Season.

Competitively, the race figures to be closer this season in the American League, with more concentration on pitching strength, and even more of a dog fight in the National. In the last few days, however, even the experts have been hard put to keep up with the possibilities as a result of the epidemic of injuries and ailments.

Joe DiMaggio, key man of the Yanks, will be out for two weeks, recovering from a tonsilectomy. Ted Carleton, No. 1 Cubs pitcher, will be lost for a month with a chipped right elbow bone. Jimmy Foxx is in a hospital indefinitely, suffering from sinus condition. Pitchers Tommy Bridges of the Tigers and Lefty Grove of the Red Sox are ailing, and Stu Martin, St. Louis Cardinals' infielder, hasn't completely recovered from his appendicitis operation.

As matters now stand, the Yankees, featuring the same heavy-duty artillery that took both the American League and world-series apart in 36, look like a shoo-in for the pennant again—but certainly not by the 19½-game margin of a year ago. The Tigers, with Mickey Cochrane and Hank Greenberg back on the firing line, and the Indians, with Rookie Bob Feller, biggest freshman pitching sensation in years, a potential 15 or 20-game winner, furnish the top threats. A possible explosive force are the Boston Red Sox, especially if their rookies produce.

In the National League, the Cardinals' swaggering Gas House gang is favored—but you can't make a lot of observers believe it. There appears too many "ifs" in St. Louis, particularly in a comparatively new infield and a pitching staff that was shot full of holes a year ago, and is only partially patched up with Dafty Dean and Lon Warneke.

FIRED FIRST SHOT

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask.—(C.P.)—The man who fired the first shot in the famous battle of Duck Lake during the Riel Rebellion, was Joseph McKay, 81, known to his friends as "Gentleman Joe." Mr. and Mrs. McKay entertained friends and relatives here recently in celebration of their golden anniversary.

CAMPBELLFORD TENNIS CLUB WILL REMAIN IN LEAGUE

Dr. Hugh R. McLaren Elected 1937 President At Campbellford Gathering

CAMPBELLFORD, April 17.—Dr. Hugh R. McLaren was unanimously elected president of the Tennis Club at a meeting held in the Public Library on Friday evening. Other officers of the club for the ensuing year will be Dr. K. B. Longmore, vice-president; Hugh Nind, secretary-treasurer; Kenneth Cairns, chairman of Grounds committee; Hilton Beatty, chairman of Membership committee; Miss Eleanor Ferris, chairman of Refreshment committee.

The treasurer's report showed the club to be in a sound financial position and it is expected that during the season necessary repairs will be made to the grounds and especially to the club house on which it is proposed to put a new roof.

Arrangements for the schedule of games, which is to be drawn up so as to include all members of the club, was left in the hands of the committee who it is thought will endeavour to retain the club's identity as member of the Trent Valley League of which they were the 1936 champions. Fees are to remain the same as last year, $4.00 for senior men and $3.00 for senior women while those under twenty years of age will fall in the junior class and will also pay $3.00. The large number attending the meeting would seem to indicate the enthusiasm for this popular summer sport and an even larger membership than last year is expected now that it is possible with the lighting equipment to extend the playing time after dark.

SUDBURY TIGERS WIN ALLAN CUP FROM BEAVERS

Miners Come From Behind Twice And Win With Three Goals In Third Period

FINAL SCORE IS 5-2

CALGARY, April 17.—(CP). — Sudbury Tigers won the Canadian Senior Hockey Championship and the Allan Cup here last night by defeating North Battleford Beavers 5-2 in the fifth game of the best-of-five finals with a great third-period rally that netted three goals. Each team won two games previously.

Coming from behind in both the first and second periods, the fighting Eastern Canada champions broke loose after the halfway mark in the third to fire a trio of markers into the Beaver net while holding North Battleford scoreless.

George Hastie Sudbury's slight centre, gave a beautiful exhibition of playmaking as he shot passes for three goals and counted the final tally on a lone effort.

More than 5,000 fans who jammed Victoria Arena saw the Allan Cup presented to Tigers immediately after the game. Frank Lavigne courageous captain of the 1937 Canadian senior champions, accepted the cup on behalf of the Nickel Belters. It was the first time the trophy has up for competition in 1908, that gone to the Northern Ontario mining centre.

Turning point in the game came after 11 minutes of the final session when Farmer Chamberlain took a pretty pass from Hastie and drove it behind Ken Davis before the Beaver goalie could move.

Beavers Drop Caution.

Forced to abandon their cautious tactics, Beavers started a ganging attack that gave Sudbury two scoring chances and Tigers tallied on both.

Len Hill, crafty Sudbury right-winger, broke away and passed to Don Grosso after carrying the disc over the blue line. Grosso went in fast and batted the rubber past Davis. Vic Myles, Beaver rear-guard, was in the penalty box at the time for kicking Hastie's drop-pod stick.

With less than a minute to go, Hastie broke up a Beaver attack and shared the loose puck. He went in alone, pulled Davis out and slid the puck past the sprawling goalie.

Remember When—

Battling Nelson, trying a comeback after two years' idleness, was easily defeated in 12 rounds by Freddie Welsh, lightweight boxing titleholder, 20 years ago to-night. The champion showed superb footwork. He was not hit solidly more than half a dozen times by the 31-year-old negro. Benny Leonard won the crown from Welsh on May 25, 1917, by scoring a technical knockout.

BARRIE TROUNCES VOCATIONAL CREW FOR 2-GOAL LEAD

Toronto Hopes Dimmed By 6-4 Beating And Final Game At Midland

ON SMALL ICE

TORONTO, April 17.—Even the most rabid Northern Vocational fans are willing to admit this morning that the local students' chances of copping the O.H.A. Junior "B" championship are mighty slim. You can't blame them, either, for the plucky collegians from the north end of the city went down to a 6 to 4 defeat before the classy Barrie Colts at Maple Leaf Gardens last night.

That two-goal margin practically assures the stampeding Colts of their second Junior "B" title in three years, for they swing into the deciding game of the goals-to-count series at Midland next Tuesday night. And, if you've seen the Barrie boys play on that small ice surface, you can fully realize how remote Norvocs' hopes are of doing the impossible.

Sparked by Bill Long and Alvin (Buck) Jones, the Colts overtook Northern's early goal lead before the first session was culminated, and playing brilliant, cohesive hockey during the rest of the tussle were never headed. Long rifled home the first three goals. Jones rapped in a pair and Scott also counted, Goalie Grunt Goring played another spectacular game in the nets, particularly in the closing minutes, and along with Jones and Dyte formed a defensive barrier as formidable as three Lionel Conacher's.

Norvocs Battle Gamely

Forced to rearrange their line-up because of Hank Goldup's dislocated shoulder injury, Northern Vocational battled with all of the old college try, but couldn't get to first base when scoring opportunities came their way. How they ever missed out in the final ten minutes as they stormed all around the Barrie net, potting from all angles, remains as one of those great unanswered hockey mysteries.

Carnegie Nets the Opener

Carnegie opened the scoring in the first period, but Bill Long's two markers in the latter stages of the session gave Barrie a 2 to 1 lead at the interval. The teams were both short-handed on Long's first goal, and Barrie had a man advantage on the second. The clever left-winger continued his deadly sniping with a goal in the second, but Nicholson counted a couple of minutes later to keep Northern in the running.

Hal Scott and Buck Jones shot Barrie ahead 5-2 at the start of the final frame, but Jack Hood and Weisman came back quickly to reduce the Norvoc deficit to one goal. Jones broke loose in the face of a withering Toronto offensive, had his first two efforts blocked brilliantly by Finlay and then banked in Long's passout at 16.36 to complete the scoring. Norvocs finished strongly, but their power plays just failed to click as they stormed around the Barrie net.

Barrie.—Goal, Goring; defence, Jones and Dyte; centre, Bowen; wings, Long and Scott; alternates, Brock, Leigh, Walker, Palmer and Livingstone.

N. Vocational.—Goal, Finlay; defence, Hogan and Cowan; centre, Carnegie; wings, Weisman and Taylor; alternates, Mann, Nicholson, Williams, Spanner, Hood and Harper (spare goalie).

Referee—Johnny Mitchell, Hamilton.

First Period

1—Toronto, Carnegie (Taylor) Cowan) 7.14
2—Barrie, Long (Dyte, Bowen) 13.46
3—Barrie, Long (Bowen) 16.11
Penalties—Cowan, Williams, Scott, Nicholson.

Second Period

4—Barrie, Long (Scott) 17.21
5—Norvocs, Nicholson (Cowan) 19.39
Penalties—Dyte, Jones, Williams.

Third Period

6—Barrie, Scott (Long) 1.26
7—Barrie, Jones (Scott) 7.38
8—Toronto, Hood (Taylor) 8.33
9—Toronto, Weisman 17.46
10—Barrie, Jones (Long) 18.36
Penalties—Jones, Williams, Scott, Cowan (major), Walker (major), Long.

THE MOUTHPIECE

By Edgar Wallace and Robert Curtis

(Copyright—Released By Central Press Association)

READ THIS FIRST:

Charles Stuckey, of a London law firm, reluctantly has agreed to a scheme to defraud the daughter of one of his few respectable clients, Jacqueline Smith, of an inheritance of $1,500,000 from an American uncle. In keeping with the plan, Colonel Alec Lutman, who has a hold over Stuckey, and Jim Asson, an ex-convict, are stopping at the same hotel in Cobensil with Mrs. Smith and her daughter. Jim hopes to marry the girl, having her assign her property to him, before Stuckey informs her of her inheritance. In dire financial straits, Mrs. Smith already is impressed with Jim, posing as a wealthy Englishman, as an admirable "catch" for her daughter. Lutman, in the role of Jim's trustee, subtlely threatens Jacqueline with a check he cashed for her mother, returned marked "insufficient funds." Finding her mother distraught over their financial plight and Lutman's implied threat over the check, Jacqueline tells her she will protect her. Stuckey arrives at the hotel and Jacqueline meets him accidentally.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 15

"AS THE Master of the Rolls was saying to me," Stuckey was telling Jacqueline, "just before the long vacation—we were lunching together—

'My dear Charles,' he said, 'if one didn't see your name in the papers—as of course one does—one wouldn't know you were alive.' " He laughed rather self-consciously. "That is the sort of firm mine is."

"I see," said the girl. "Well, my lawyer isn't that sort at all."

"But of course, there are lawyers and lawyers. If he were one of the big men no doubt I should know him."

"Oh, he isn't," said Jacqueline. "He's very small potatoes, according to mother. He has a practice among the poor people who want defending in the police courts. Criminals mostly, I should say. Mother says they call him the 'Mouthpiece'."

"Mouthpiece," repeated Charles. "How queer! Where does he hang out?"

"He has an office at a place called Routhernithe," she told him. "It is a poor part of London, mother says, but he has a wonderful old office, overlooking the Thames. I have an idea he must be quite clever—I believe he gets all sorts of people off who really ought not to be got off—but I should think there's something queer about him that has kept him from getting on. Drink, probably. Do you think he drinks?"

"With an office in Rotherhithe I shouldn't blame him if he did," said Charles. "But he doesn't—not to excess. A beer now and then—when he can get it—I wonder where that waiter is?" He glanced round, saw no sign of the waiter, and turned again to the girl. "It has just occurred to me," he said: "Are you by any chance Miss Jacqueline Smith?"

Jacqueline glanced at him quickly consternation in her eyes.

"I say, you're not my lawyer, are you?"

"As a matter of fact," said Charles, "if you are Miss Jacqueline Smith—Are you?"

"I am."

"Then I am," said Charles.

"You're Mr. What-is-it, some funny name—Stuckey?"

"Stuckey," corrected Charles. "Charles Stuckey of the firm of Stuckey & Stuckey."

Jacqueline smiled.

"Known amongst your aristocratic clients as the 'Mouthpiece', eh, Mr. Stuckey? You're the 'Mouthpiece', and I fairly put my foot in it. I'm dreadfully sorry."

"Don't mention it," said Charles. "The Mouthpiece!" He gave a rather forced laugh. "Yes, I believe they do call me that. Very amusing."

"And all that about the Master of the Rolls and administering estates and trustees and the rest of it—all lies, eh, Charles? You don't mind me calling you Charles, do you? I'm sure you can't like being called Stuckey. And you needn't look in the least uncomfortable about lying, because we're all liars here. Mother's a liar, and I'm a liar and Jim Asson—he's my fiance, you know—he's a liar; and I have a sort of idea that Colonel Lutman—he tries to wear an eyeglass and is Jim's trustee—is the biggest liar of the lot. Now do you feel at home?"

Charles nodded and smiled.

"We know where we are, anyway," he said. "So you are Jacqueline Smith, are you? Well, let's have a look at you." He inspected her solemnly for some moments and then nodded. "You're very pretty," he announced.

Jacqueline laughed.

"If that is a legal opinion, Charles, don't count on getting six and eightpence for it. I can get that sort of thing for nothing. Besides you're probably lying again."

"Oh, no," said Charles hastily, "not to you. As your legal advisor, I might, if occasion arose, lie on your behalf. That's what you would be paying me for. But you may trust me never to lie to you." He smiled. "As a matter of fact, I don't believe I could do it without blushing all over my face, and that's all wrong, you know. A lawyer who blushes all over his face when he tells a lie deserves to be struck off the rolls. He'd soon be bankrupt, anyway."

"And I suppose you've brought the important document with you, eh, Charles? Some deed or other, isn't it?"

"Well, no," said Charles. "I haven't brought the deed. I've brought a rough draft of the marriage settlement, that's all."

"May I see it?" asked Jacqueline. Charles demurred.

"Well, it is rather irregular, you know. My instructions came from your mother, and she might not wish...."

"But I wish it, Charles. I want to see it before the others see it. You're my lawyer too, aren't you?"

Charles felt in his pocket, drew out a document, and handed it to Jacqueline. She opened it out and glanced at it.

"Know all men by these presents," she read. "What does that mean, Charles?"

"Well, as a matter of fact," said Charles, "it doesn't mean anything much—just a piece of legal terminology. It's the right thing to say, you know, when you start off, just as when you meet anyone you say 'Good morning. Beastly weather, isn't it?' "

"Oh, I see," said Jacqueline, and continued reading. " 'To the aforesaid Jacqueline Mary Hibbert Smith'—is that me?"

"All of it," said Charles.

" '. . . . shall manage'—I don't see what that means, Charles." She leaned toward him, indicating a line with her finger. "That bit."

Charles took the document.

" 'Notwithstanding and arrangement heretofore mentioned,' " he read. "Oh, that means that you—that is, your husband—well, you see it's like this: all the money will be in the control of your husband."

"You mean he'll be boss?"

"Exactly."

"All my money as well as his?" Charles nodded.

"Well, I don't see that it matters, anyway," said Jacqueline, "as I haven't any money."

She took back the document and read on:

" 'Ten thousand dollars per annum to the said Jacqueline Mary Hibbert Smith.....Five thousand dollars per annum to the said Millicent Mary Agnes Maud Smith'—that's mother, I suppose?"

"All of it," smiled Charles.

"Maud! Good Lord! She kept that from me. Well, I suppose it's all right. Do you want me to sign it?"

Charles snatched the paper almost roughly from her hand and thrust it back into his pocket.

"Great Scott, no!" he exclaimed. "This is only the rough draft, you know. It may have to be altered. Your mother may not agree to the terms."

"You mean mother may want more? Oh, don't blush about it, Charles. You know as well as I do that this deed isn't only for my benefit. If I'd only myself to think of....." She paused and shrugged her shoulders. "But you're my lawyer, not my father confessor."

Charles' eyes seemed vaguely troubled as he continued his chat with Jacqueline.

Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S RAIN CANDY

Uncle Wiggily, who was held as a sort of prisoner in his waistline shirt, up in a tree, looked around when he heard a voice saying:

"That sweet rain is good to eat."

The rabbit gentleman, who had an adventure of being carried away by the flood and left stranded in a tree when the water began to go down, looked around to see who had spoken.

He saw a jolly Blue Jay bird flitting his wings to dry them after the big April shower and the rabbit asked:

"Did you say this sweet rain was good to eat?"

"Yes, Uncle Wiggily, I did," was the answer.

"What do you mean?" asked the rabbit.

It Is Sap

"I mean," the Blue Jay answered, "that what you thought was rain is only the juice, or sweet sap of the maple tree dripping down on you from the end of a broken branch."

"Oh, then it isn't really raining?" asked the rabbit.

"No, that's just the sweet maple sap dripping down on you," said the bird. "The rain is over. Soon the flood will be gone."

"But how am I to get down out of this tree?" asked Mr. Longears. "I ain so high up here in my tub that I am afraid to jump down. And I never was a good tree climber. How am I to get down even if I don't starve by reason of eating this sweet maple sap rain. I believe you said it was good to eat?"

"Oh, yes," answered the Blue Jay. "Maple sap, even though it isn't made into maple candy, is good to eat. It isn't very filling but it will keep you from starving."

"That's fine!" said Uncle Wiggily, "I'll take some more." He opened his mouth and more maple rain or sap dropped into it.

sap or juice starts to run up in trees. During Winter it stays down in the roots under ground to keep warm. Not all tree juice is sweet like that of the sugar maple.

"That does make me feel less hungry," said Uncle Wiggily as he swallowed more of the "sweet rain" as he had first called it. "But what about getting down?"

"I'll fly to your bungalow and tell your wife and Nurse Jane you are stuck in a tree," offered the bird. "They will find some way to get you down, I think."

"I'm sure they will," said Mr. Longears. "And while you are gone I'll let some of the maple sap drop into the washtub. If I get enough I can take it home, boil it into syrup and make candy."

"Indeed you can," said the Jay. "It will be sweet rain candy."

"That's fine!" said Uncle Wiggily, "I'll take some more." He opened his mouth and more maple rain or sap dropped into it.

Call in Help

Mrs. Longears and Nurse Jane were much surprised when the Blue Jay told them where Uncle Wiggily was, up in a tree.

"We must call the fire department dogs," said Mrs. Longears. "They have long ladders for getting rabbit gentlemen out of trees."

"Oh, yes!" agreed Nurse Jane.

With the help of the fire department dogs Uncle Wiggily got down out of the tree. By this time his tub had a lot of maple sap in it. This the dogs carefully lowered to the ground, spilling only a little.

Then Uncle Wiggily got Nurse Jane to boil the sap until it was thick like syrup. And when it was poured into a dish it hardened into maple sugar or rain candy.

"Hurray!" joyfully shouted the rabbit children as they ate it.

It was a fine end to the adventure. And if the tooth brush doesn't get an ache and have to go to the dentist, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Jingle's practice.

OUR LEAN BACON IS FINDING FAVOR UPON U.S. TABLES

trade treaty. The duty is 3½ cents a pound on bacon and hams and two cents a pound on live pigs.

Widely Advertised

Reports reaching Ottawa are that in some sections of the United States Canadian bacon is winning favor and that restaurants and hotels are advertising the fact they serve it as a special attraction.

Canadian bacon is lean whereas the United States product is fat. The Canadian product has been developed with a view to the British market and almost all the hogs of the heavy pork type have been eliminated from Canada. In the United States this type is still common on farms and in the corn-growing states can be reared quickly and cheaply on a corn diet.

Despite the efforts to the United States and increasing shipments to the United Kingdom considerable quantities of Canadian pork and hams have gone into storage. Total hog marketings to date this year are about 27 per cent. higher than a year ago.

A shortage of feed on the farms may cause a decline in marketings during the spring and early summer months but experts are confident they will be ample to meet demands from both British and American markets.

HASTINGS PLAY WELL RECEIVED

Trinity United Church Y. P. S. Presents 'The Redheaded Stepchild'

MUSICAL PROGRAM

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 17.—That amateur plays are always popular in Hastings was evidenced on Wednesday evening, with the performance of the three-act comedy drama, "The Red-headed Stepchild," presented by the Young People's Society of Trinity United Church. The Town Hall was filled to capacity, and the excellent production under the capable direction of Mr. A. V. German, who also acted a part, was given with marked talent by the various characters taking place.

Rev. P. W. Newell was chairman and extended a welcome to all. Comstock's orchestra of Westwood contributed very pleasing numbers. Between acts 1 and 2, W. W. Knight gave a cornet solo, "The End of a Perfect Day," and between acts 2 and 3, Miss Mary Murphy of Campbellford gave a humorous reading, entitled "Roller Skating."

The stage was prettily arranged as a setting for the play, the scene taking place in the living-room of Richard Russel's fashionable home in Chicago. As the curtain is drawn, quickly names are seated at the table made attractive with its silver service; in the living-room, prettily arranged with a chesterfield, lamps, pictures, etc., all helping to make it appear home-like. The costumes were very appropriate for the characters, and beautiful gowns were displayed during the party given by the society women.

The play developed from domestic complications in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Russel, due to the coming of Mrs. Russel's step-daughter, Elizabeth (Bess), known as the Redheaded Stepchild, who is to make her home in the future with her father and stepmother.

The cast of characters are: Mrs. Edith Russel (Katherine German), a cold, haughty aristocratic society woman, second wife of Richard Russel (A. V. German), a financier, sedate, with a most lovable disposition, greatly devoted to Betty (Mrs. Alton Thompson), a regular tomboy, alert and alive but genuine, who has always lived on the ranches of Montana and knows nothing about society or city life. Mrs. Russel's daughter, Lucia (Claudine Hoard) is very attractive, well cultured, affectionate and sympathetic. George Garrison (Laverne Seabrook) is Lucia's admirer, handsome, polished and attractive. Dudley Russel, the son (Gordon Meclee) is lighthearted and typically American, cultured and much addicted to slang. Mrs. Russel's friends are society women. Mrs. Oliver Woodruff (Mrs. Everet Hess) is conventional, sharp-tongued, insincere and given to malicious gossip and Mrs. Emery Scott (Grace Orr) is cold, austere and sarcastic, with a royal bearing and manner. Briggs, the butler (Wallace Orr), an elderly type of servant, was exceptionally fine in his quiet outfit. Ethel Ashley (Myrl Seabrook) and Lucille Christy (Mildred Pulfer) are two society girls, the former bitingly sarcastic and the latter pretty and engaging.

Mass Flight Across The Pacific

In one of the largest mass-formation flights across Pacific Ocean, 12 giant United States navy patrol flying boats took off from San Diego, Calif., for a 2,270-mile flight to Honolulu. Twenty hours later the first of the silver-winged flying boats circled the Pacific island city and slid into the harbor there. The other 11 flying boats landed at one minute intervals, having kept their formation all the way across the vast expanse of water. "Just a routine delivery of equipment and transfer of personnel," was the reason given for the flight by naval authorities. The photograph above shows some of the flying boats as they prepared to take off on the long flight.

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL ADDRESSES Y.P.U.

Tells Janetville Audience His Experiences Teaching In Northern Ontario

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, April 17.—A special feature at the regular meeting of the Young People's Union in the United church on Monday evening was the address by Percy Hamilton, Principal of South Janetville Public School, who related some of his interesting experiences while teaching school at Chemina in Northern Ontario.

Chemina is French for Road and is the end of the road. It is a small village composed entirely of rough sheeted tar paper covered shacks, and is two hundred miles straight north of North Bay. It is thirty-two miles from any other village and is only accessible by railroad.

The school, which had been opened three months, upon his arrival, had no desks but roughly constructed table and benches were used instead. The scholars numbering 25 were of seven nationalities including English, Indians, French Canadians, Ukrainians, Doukhobors and Finns.

A school teacher from Rouyn, Que., came in every two weeks to teach the children Bible study in the schools and although the parents would not attend any form of church service themselves, they rarely objected to their children receiving religious instruction. The pupils despite all disadvantages progressed exceedingly well in both school and Bible studies.

The I.O.D.E. of Galt somehow learned of the difficulties of the new school and through communication with the teacher were able to send the necessary text books and scribblers for those not fortunate to have them, and they also sent during the speaker's term there, a library consisting of two hundred splendid books. One Christmas this fine organization sent a gift of a victrola with several records which was truly appreciated by these unfortunate children.

The speaker emphasized the need of all kinds of help in Northern Ontario and suggested that the local society contribute in some way.

A hunting trip in the winter in 40 below zero weather, making a journey of twenty-five miles on snowshoes over loose snow five feet and more deep was vividly and amusingly portrayed.

The speaker concluded with a description of how "claims" are "staked" and "worked."

A vocal solo and encore by Rev. H. C. Wolfraim, accompanied by Miss Bessie Howe, and two splendid readings, "An April Morning," by Miss Isabel Marshall, and "In the Old Church" by Miss Isabel McInnis, completed the enjoyable program.

A banquet to close the season is being arranged for Monday evening, April 26th, at 7 p.m.

COBOURG

The meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association of Northumberland County which was slated to be held at Warkworth this week for the purpose of selecting a candidate to contest the riding at the next Ontario election was called off until a later date. This action was taken following Premier Hepburn's announcement there would be no provincial election this year and it was felt that a meeting to select a candidate would be premature.

The operators of fishing boats that during the past week have been going out into Lake Ontario from Cobourg report very fair catches of white fish and herring, but only a very few lake trout have been taken. STRIKE IS DYING

Edmonton Tie-ups Are "Dying a Natural Death."

EDMONTON, April 17.—(CP).—Managers of three packing plants and two laundries where strikes broke out within the past two weeks declared to-day the tie-ups were "dying a natural death." This was denied by strike leaders and by officials of the Meat Packers and Laundry Workers' Unions, seeking recognition by the walkouts.

would be no other word for it than revolution."

Lemay and Associate Counsel Fanning Gosselins contended there had been no crime, no offence, because the accused believed sincerely in the righteousness of their cause. They came here to work in what they believed to be in the interest "of the people and Jesus Christ."

It was sedition, Justice Cannon told the jury, "if you reach the decision that our institutions would be overthrown, that our liberty and means of government would be radically changed" by the teachings of the accused.

It did not matter, he charged, whether people believed contents of the pamphlets distributed by the accused—that did not lessen the charge they conspired to distribute the literature. There was no doubt in the Justice's mind the accused were sane. What the jury had to decide was why had they undertaken such acts.

soon as we get the money he owes the province."

The international union representatives had announced at Oshawa that Mr. Hepburn was "out of the picture" as far as negotiations went but the premier contended that it was actually they who were out of the picture.

No G.M. Stock In Cabinet

Mr. Hepburn denied any member of his government held a single share of stock in General Motors. This was in reply to a question by Professor E. A. Havelock of Victoria College (a unit of the University of Toronto) as to whether any member of the cabinet held such stock. The question was asked at an Oshawa strike meeting.

Both Mr. Hepburn and Hon. Harry Nixon, provincial secretary, denounced Prof. Havelock's suggestion as "despicable." Mr. Nixon said inquiries would be made about Professor Havelock to "whatever governing body of the University is responsible for paying the man's salary."

committee, guided by international representatives, including Hugh Thompson, (C.I.O. organizer) and local plant managements. With that understanding we came to Oshawa Friday. General Motors desires these negotiations to take place in the Premier's office.

"Upon arriving in Oshawa, we learned that Mr. C. H. Millard, representative of the international union, had received the following telegram from Premier Hepburn:

"'April 15, 1937.

"'Toronto, Ont.

"'Mr. C. H. Millard,

"'Union Headquarters,

"'Oshawa, Ont.

"'Would urgently request that you attend along with your counsel, Mr. Cohen, conference in my office tomorrow morning. Am also inviting Mr. Harry Carmichael and Mr. James Highfield to be present.

"'(Signed) M. F. Hepburn.'

"This invitation was dealt with at the membership meeting tonight.

"We are therefore accepting this invitation of the premier to meet General Motors in his office, and Mr. J. L. Cohen, counsel for the international union, will attend with Mr. Millard and the committee on behalf of the union."

Carmichael's Stand

Early last night Harry Carmichael company vice-president, amplified a previous statement on behalf of General Motors and said negotiations would be begun with strikers if they went back to work, but otherwise Premier Hepburn would have to be a party to any subsequent parleys.

His statement said:

"In view of the fact that representatives of the United Automobile Workers of America from the United States have undertaken to make disrespectful statements in connection with the Prime Minister of Ontario, to the effect that he will not be a party to any future negotiations, on behalf of General Motors of Canada, Limited, I wish to make the following statement:

"There will be no meeting between officials of General Motors of Canada, Limited, and representatives of their employees until the men first go back to work, or unless the Premier of Ontario, Mr. Hepburn, meets the Canadian executives of General Motors in a joint conference with the shop committee of the workmen."

This followed Carmichael's earlier statement that if the workers called off the strike and returned to their jobs, "We hereby agree to meet the committee from the various General Motors plants of Canada and enter into an agreement with them concerning wages, hours and working conditions, the negotiations to begin immediately upon the termination of the strike."

Shop Stewards Mum

What transpired at the meeting of Martin with the shop stewards was not divulged, although it was stated the stewards were in agreement with the union president's proposals.

It was unofficially reported that these would be among proposals to be urged on the company as a condition to return to work; any agreement shall include all General Motors plants and its subsidiaries, including plants at Oshawa, Windsor and St. Catharines; recognition of the Oshawa Local 222 of the U.A.W.A.; seniority rights for all employees; establishment of a grievance committee.

Horse Need Not Be Destroyed Simply Because Leg Is Broken, Says Trainer

CINCINNATI, April 17.—There is no need for destroying a horse or any other animal when its leg is broken, Dr. Peter Wehner, dentist and racing enthusiast, declared recently.

"The animal has no more lost its usefulness when its leg is broken than a human has," said the specialist on focal infections, pointing to his stable of thoroughbreds, of which two once were doomed to be shot because of fractured limbs.

Both horses, Prince Kiev and Prince Pine, stumbled while racing and suffered compound fractures. They are five-year-old stallions. Prince Kiev will race this season at Latonia. Prince Pine has been retired to stud. Their racing careers were interrupted as two-year-olds.

Dr. Wehner uses casts made from dental stone after the fracture has been set. The first must be removed after a short while to allow for swelling. This procedure is repeated until the bones have healed.

SALTING OF MINE CHARGE UPHELD

Quebec Report Urges Prosecution But Names No One Fearing Their Escape

QUEBEC, April 17—(CP).—Report of Willie Amyot, K.C., confirming the charge that assay samples of Rubec Mines, Limited, in Northern Quebec, had been "salted," was before the public to-day with the responsibility for the falsification laid to an unnamed person.

Recommendation that prosecution be taken against the person responsible was contained in the report, released last night, but Mr. Amyot said: "We do not believe we should name this person in this report. To act otherwise would invite this individual to flee before being arrested.

The report, based on an inquiry by the Registrar of the Quebec Securities Act, upheld the charge of Ontario Securities Commissioner Godfrey that drillings from holes 15, 18, and 19 had been salted and further claimed, through one of the engineers who examined the drillings, that similar salting had been done to samples from holes 1, 3, 4 and 6.

The report, compiled from findinds of Paul D'Aragon, Montreal engineer, and Provincial Geologist L. V. Ball, charged salting of diamond drillings had been practised since operations started at the company property in July, 1936.

The drilling company, its officers and employees, was absolved.

"Fraud of such a nature," said the report, "would be diminished greatly if work on all Quebec mines was directed by a professional engineer." Mr. Amyot suggested the Attorney-General's department should insist on having a report submitted from a member of the Corporation of Professional Engineers of Quebec before sale of shares in any mine in Quebec is permitted.

HEPBURN CONSIDERS LICENSING OF TRADE UNIONS

Sees Stopping Dues Being Sent Into U.S. End Of Agitations

Delay In Settlement Likely Send Export Business To U.S. At Oshawa Men's Expense

LOSS NEVER BE REGAINED

Thompson Hints Strike "Summer Long"—May Need Million Dollars To Finance It

TORONTO, April 19.—(CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario, prominent figure in the Oshawa General Motors strike negotiations, today announced government law officers were studying legal possibility of licensing trade unions which collect dues here and send them "across the line."

The Premier reiterated he was determined to stop the "exploitation of Canadian Labor" by such organizations as John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization. Throughout the 12-day automotive strike the Premier has been opposed to the United Automobile Workers of America, of which Oshawa strikers are members, because of its C.I.O. affiliation.

"If we could stop the collecting of dues, a large part of which goes across the line to men like Lewis, we would end this trouble," said the Premier.

"I have no antipathy to International organizations, particularly the American Federation of Labor, whose attitude to the Lewis crowd is the same as my own. We are hoping men of the calibre of Mr. Moore (W. H. Moore, member of Parliament for Ontario county, Oshawa's riding, who has been offered the new Labor Industries Board chairmanship) will be able to settle strikes peacefully and set an example to a bewildered world.

"Every strike is an economic loss. No strike can be won without violence. We have the example of Spain where they don't seem able to settle their differences except by bloodshed.

"This government is sympathetic with labor and provides the necessary legislation to settle differences which might exist between labor and capital."

Send Business to U.S.

Inability to settle the present differences at Oshawa, he said, was simply being the means of transferring export business from there

CAN OPENER GETS SEVEN INTO JAIL

Boys Face Thirty Charges Of Shopbreaking And Theft Around Toronto

TORONTO, April 19 (CP)—Discovery of a can opener led to the arrest of seven youths — none more than 18 years—at the week-end, on charges shopbreaking and theft. The boys are alleged to have entered schools, stores and houses in two city districts. More than $500 worth of stolen property was recovered.

First arrest was made when Detective James Ledlie saw a youth clambering over the fence surrounding Queen Alexandra School. A can-opener dropped out of the boy's pocket and he allegedly admitted he had tried to pick the school lock with the utensil.

After 16 hours investigation, six others were rounded up. Those held on a total of 33 charges are Emerson Burnett, 17, John Shadoff, 16, John McAulay, 18, Roy Fountain, 17, Raymond Baker, 16, Thomas Douglas, 16, and Frank Matta, 18.

DR. G. C. LEACH DIES IN TORONTO

Practised Medicine For Four Years In Peterborough After Graduation

TORONTO, April 19 (CP). — A prominent Toronto physician, Dr. G. C. Leach, 68, died at his home here early today. Born at Rosneath, north of Cobourg, he attended Cobourg High School, and later the University of Toronto, graduating from there in Arts. Afterwards he went to Queen's University, where he graduated in medicine in 1906.

Dr. Leach then went to Peterborough, where he practised for four years. While in that city he met Alice Pitty, later to become his wife. Following his stay in Peterborough, he practised in Hamilton, working in the latter city for 22 years. A little more than two years ago he opened his practice in Toronto.

Besides his widow, Dr. Leach is survived by three children: Marion, a nurse in London, Ont.; Florence, in Peterborough, and a son, Whitney, at home.

ROEBUCK RESIGNS AS COMMISSIONER HYDRO-ELECTRIC

Feels He Will Be Less Effective On Board Than Off It After Recent Events

RESUME LAW PRACTICE

Takes 1 and 2—Design— Roebuck

TORONTO, April 19 — (C.P.) — Arthur W. Roebuck, who resigned as Attorney General on Premier Mitchell Hepburn's request in connection with Oshawa General Motors strike policy, to-day quit his post as member of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

The former Attorney General said he would return to private law practice with George Bagwell. The Premier asked for resignations of Mr. Roebuck and David A. Croll, Welfare and Labor Minister, last week on the grounds they failed to fall in line with the government's policy in connection with the General Motors strike.

In a letter to Mr. Hepburn to-day Mr. Roebuck says:

"After several days of careful thought, I have reached the conclusion that it is not possible for me to continue at this time as a member of the Hydro Electric Power Commission. I am indeed loath to sever my connection with my fellow commissioners for whom I entertain the highest regard.

"It would appear to me, however, that commissionership adds little to any influence which I might have in matters that are essential. I am of the opinion that in the interest of the system I would be less effective on the board than I may be off it.

Oscar The Snake Ignores Mail And Sleeps On Into The Spring

Fan Thinks Leamington Trucker's Pet Should Be Getting More Vitamins

BACK TO WHEAT FIELD

LEAMINGTON, Ont. April 19—(CP).—Oscar the snake, famed for riding about Leamington in the seat padding of a truck the past three months is getting popular. Oscar received fan mail.

The other day came a letter from Beamsville near St. Thomas addressed to "Oscar the Snake care of Sam Wallace, Leamington, Ont." The writer happened to be an old friend of Wallace's, in whose truck Oscar rides. He wanted to make sure Wallace was doing right by the two-foot garter snake.

Sympathies were extended to Oscar for the lack of vitamins in the padding of the cab cushion, where the friendly reptile has been snoozing since January. Oscar was urged to head back to Dover township where Wallace picked him up half-frozen in a wheat field.

Spring had come and it was about time Oscar pulled himself together and got something to eat the writer pointed out. You can live so long on nothing, and no longer, Oscar was told.

But the serpent hasn't offered to come out of his cushion nest lately to hear the words of advice—Wallace opened the letter in the absence of Oscar.

"Phantom Fliers" And Secret Naval Actions Reported In Baltic

GERMANY VS. RUSSIA

Swedes Hint Nazis Preparing To Bottle Moscow's Fleet

OSLO, April 19.—(AP)—Reports of "phantom fliers" in the far north of Norway, Sweden and Finland and secret naval manoeuvres off their strategic coasts brought a wave of "war scare" rumors to Scandinavia today.

The stories of mysterious airplanes flying over little inhabitated regions of the north and of foreign warships offshore pointed the opinion of military experts that the area was in direct danger of becoming a theatre of war in the event of a conflict between Russia and Germany.

Military authorities at Bergen, Norway, announced yesterday their investigations have established that four warships, one aircraft carrier, one submarine and one airplane of unidentified nationality manoeuvred close to the Norwegian coast April 5.

In Oslo, the newspaper Aftenpost openly said Germany had sent warships to look for possible bases for air and naval operations in the Arctic Ocean, while such a conservative journal as the Stockholm Svenska Dagbladat emphasized the possibility of Sweden's becoming a battleground in advocating better defence measures.

Military experts consider the interests of Russia and Germany in the Arctic fairly obvious. In the event of war, these experts declare, Germany would strike first to hostile up the Russian fleet in the Baltic by taking control of the narrow waterways around Denmark.

At the same time, the German sea and air fleets would try to establish Arctic bases to disrupt Russia's essential Arctic communications.

Germany, it was pointed out, also has an important interest in protecting her yearly imports of high grade iron ore from Sweden, ore that accounts for half of the high temper steel used in German armaments.

It isn't exactly a rumble seat, and probably to these fine looking children it had all the comfort of a limousine. Actually there are six of them in the car, a precious load of little passengers. One is held on the woman's lap, presumably the mother, and the other is facing the quartette, hidden by the spare tire. This incident caught by the camera on George street is strikingly human in its appeal through the interest of the four youngsters, youth gazing at the main street scene and going somewhere as little hostages to life and fortune. The car was identified through the license number as belonging to James Emmons, lot 7, concession 5, Smith township.

PICKEREL RUNNING IN LARGE NUMBERS

Run Is So Heavy They Can Readily Be Seen From Surface

Pickerel are reported to be running in unprecedented number in the vicinity of the locks at Rye's Boathouse on the Otonabee. Poachers have been attracted and have been removing the fish by the bagful each evening, it is reported.

Each year about this time the fish start the upstream trek, bent on spawning. One south-end resident reported the run was so heavy the other evening the fish were "as thick as the hair on a dog's back." Although not to be compared with a salmon run, the run has been such that the swarms can be seen readily from the surface.

The season on pickerel remains closed until May 1, but it is understood large numbers of the fish are being gaffed. Fish and Game Inspector Lyons is reported to be investigating.

CANADIAN LABOR STRIKES LOOMING AS MAJOR SNAGS

Brew Darkly In Contrast To Low Record Of '36 With 276,997 Lost Hours

LOWEST SINCE 1932

OTTAWA, April 19. — (CP) — Strikes in a number of Canadian industries promise to make labor relations a bigger factor in Canada's industrial picture during 1937 than a year ago. Last year, according to figures compiled by the Labor Department, was unusually free from labor troubles but a different situation will probably prevail when 1937 is reviewed.

The loss in man-working days through labor disputes in 1936 was 276,997, lowest in any year since 1932. The record high for time loss since 1901 when labor statistics were first collected by the Labor Gazette was 3,400,943 man-working days in 1919, the year of the Winnipeg general strike. The record low was 91,797 in 1930.

With 3,700 workers idle the Oshawa automobile factory strike is larger than the largest strike of last year. This was the strike of coal miners at Glace Bay, N.S., in sympathy with a similar strike at New Aberdeen, N.S. A total of 1,950 miners quit work and 10,000 man-

Harold L. Garner Is Appointed Examiner's Managing Director

Harold L. Garner, whose appointment as Managing Director of The Examiner was announced to-day, when asked for a statement, said: "There is a little human interest story in connection with my taking over what I consider the opportunity of my lifetime, that is perhaps more interesting than anything else I might say. Twenty-three years ago I was working in the C.P.R. ticket office in London. The president of the Examiner was then in an executive position on the "Free Press" in that city. He sent for me one day, and asked me if I would be interested in learning the newspaper business. I told him I did not know anything about it, but if he believed I could fill the necessary qualifications for a beginner, I would like to try it. I told him it seemed strange that he should send for me that day, because I had just received a telegram from the Burlington Railroad in Chicago offering me what seemed a good opportunity there. Mr. Muir asked me if my wife was in favor of going to Chicago. I told him she was much opposed to the idea. "Well," he said, "you'd better take a good look at the newspaper business."

"I worked for some years in London with Mr. Muir and Arthur Kennedy, and when an offer came from the Toronto Globe and I discussed it with my chief, he advised me to take it as an opportunity for further development. I was with the Toronto Globe for some years, then an offer came to go to a better position on the Mail and Empire where, I served for six years, and joined the combined forces of the Globe and Mail at the time of consolidation. In discussing the first Toronto position with Mr. Muir, he said to me when I left, "Keep your feet on the ground, work hard and some day I may be looking for you." Recently I was advised that the day and opportunity had arrived, and here I am.

"I am delighted to come to Peterborough. In looking back over the growth of The Examiner I realize that its continued success in service in this community is due in large part to an able group of men who have successively given generously in fine leadership and community service. I cannot take the place of anyone; I shall, however, try to make a place for myself, and in so doing, endeavor to uphold the fine traditions of the men who have served before, and to earn the co-operation of the people of Peterborough and district by zealous service with The Examiner to this entire community."

Mr. Muir, when asked if he had any comment, looked over Mr. Garner's statement and said: "Not a word. The man who takes over an important position and declares himself with such clear vision, sincerity, sense of duty and appreciation of the service given to the community by those who have worked ahead of him, needs no comment from me."

No Drought Expected On Plains This Year

Washington, April 19.—(U.P.) WEATHER Bureau officials last night scanned their charts and graphs and then announced unofficially that they don't expect another drought on the great plains this year.

They won't back their prediction with a bet, however. They remember the record of three major droughts in the past six years which brought parched fields and baked plants instead of bumper harvests. They believe the dry cycle should now be ending, but they cannot guarantee it.

OSHAWA STRIKE GANG DIGGING IN FOR LONG SIEGE

Shop Stewards Believed About To Urge Mayor Ask Dominion Take Hand

EXPECT UNION CASH AID

OSHAWA, Ont., April 19.—(CP)—General Motors strike, shorn of its latest peace move, entered its 12th day with little more than speculation over its possible duration.

From Hugh Thompson, organizer for the Committee for Industrial Organization, came word that the strikers are "really digging in," preparing for a long period of idleness if necessary.

There were reports that the shop stewards representing the Oshawa local of the United Automobile Workers of America would favor an approach by Mayor Alex Hall to the Dominion Government for direct mediation in view of the collapse of reopened negotiations at Queen's Park, Toronto, Saturday.

The Mayor, meanwhile, pondered his plan of calling a general meeting of strikers and urging them to return to work. His plan was made known last week when he sent word to Homer Martin, U.A.W.A. president, that a sympathy strike should be called in United States plants of General Motors. Otherwise, the Mayor said he would advise the strikers to break from the C.I.O. and call off the walkout.

Mayor Hall said last night he would consider the situation and probably come to a decision today whether this move now should be made.

"Industrial Autocracy Over"

Martin paid another visit to the strike scene Saturday, addressing an open-air gathering of strikers in a drizzling rain. He told them the C.I.O. has no desire to destroy business or industry and that "the day of industrial autocracy is just about over."

He termed "absurd" any idea that the C.I.O. is Communistic, and told his listeners: "We say to industries, 'Let us negotiate and see how much you can pay us without hurting you and without hurting us.'"

Martin left Oshawa Saturday night for Flint, Mich., where he addressed automobile workers Sunday and left later for Washington where he is scheduled to meet John Lewis, chairman of the C.I.O.

Shop stewards of the Oshawa local met Sunday afternoon, but an expected statement did not come from the meeting. C. H. Millard, president of the Oshawa U.A.W.A. local, later addressed a meeting in Hamilton, where he claimed the union has "definite proof" that General Motors attempted to "make trouble" at the Oshawa plant.

Organizer Thompson outlined to newspapermen his plans for a possible long drawn-out strike. He said

Automobiles Are Killing More Than Industry Ever Did

SAFETY CONSCIOUSNESS

Annual Safety League Convention Is Meeting In Toronto

(Special to The Examiner)

TORONTO, April 19.—Headway is being made in the battle against industrial accidents but the hazard of highway accidents is gaining with alarming strides, J. H. Vernor of the Western Clock Company, retiring president of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, declared in an address to the annual convention of the association here today.

"Automobiles today are killing more people annually than industry ever did," Mr. Vernor asserted. "It is our problem for our drivers are under compensation. Education of drivers and selection by physical examination as well as mental tests can do much to reduce the hazard and are recommended to our membership, but equally as much, if not more, can be done by proper supervision of our highways and both educational and punitive measures by the police of whom there are altogether too few in this province.

Makes People Think

"I have noticed that a traffic officer gives people to think, even though he does nothing but patrol his sector. I would recommend to the government that they spend more money on highway accident prevention along the lines developed by Brigadier-General Draper of Toronto who will speak at this convention and who has grasped the magnitude of his problem in an exceptionally broad-minded fashion. His constructive way and with the idea of eventually developing safety consciousness on the part of the public as there associations do in industry."

Reviewing his stewardship as president of the association, Mr. Vernor tendered thanks to his executive and staff for their work during the past year. He said the organization now comprises the Toronto head office which employs 24 persons and from which 10 inspectors operate, and five divisions, Ottawa-St. Lawrence, Toronto-York,

ACT ANGERS PREMIER

Prepares Drastic Action If C.I.O. Moves In North Spread Further

TORONTO, April 19.— (CP). — Charges that strikes are being planned in Northern Ontario's mining areas to-day formed the latest attack of Premier Hepburn on John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

The Premier said last night he had "definite knowledge" that C.I.O. organizers are trying to bring on strikes at the International Nickel Company mine near Sudbury and in the Kirkland Lake and Porcupine areas with all possible speed.

The new charges against the C.I.O. were made by the Premier 24 hours after he called off negotiations for a settlement of the strike at Oshawa of 3,700 members of the United Automobile Workers of America, an affiliate of the C.I.O.

The conference the Premier called with General Motors' executives and union representatives collapsed Saturday afternoon when the Premier found union representatives telephoning Homer Martin, International President of the U.A.W.A. from a vault near his Queen's Park office.

The Premier's statement last night contained a warning to the people of Ontario that if the "invasion" of the province by the Lewis organization became "any more menacing, more drastic combative action than

Contract To Play Two Weeks In Toronto Club Is Found In Her Purse

BOOKING AGENT HELD

NEW YORK, April 19 (AP) — A theatrical booking agent was taken into custody today for questioning as police tried to solve another of New York's spectacular homicides, a hammer murder in a rehearsal hall within earshot of the incandescents of the bright light district.

The victim, who used the name of Tania Lee Lova, was of the theatre, and it was in theatre atmosphere that she was found fatally bludgeoned yesterday. She was scheduled to appear in a Toronto, Ont., night club.

Upstate, Micha Ross, 30, was found at the home of his father-in-law, a former police chief. Apprehended at Mountaindale by a state trooper, Ross was to be brought to New York for questioning.

A concert violinist, Miss Lova, legally Julia Nussenbaum, 28, of Bridgeport, Conn., was found unconscious in a rehearsal room, her head bloody from hammer blows. Near her was the instrument by which she died.

The unconscious artist was almost concealed by a curtain. A smudge against the wall led investigators to believe the woman had been pinioned against it while her attacker beat her.

In the woman's purse was a contract to play for two weeks at a Toronto night club with her partner, Mario Montigio, who plays the accordian. Illness of the latter prevented their leaving New York on time to appear there.

CLOSING HOURS GO INTO EFFECT

Liquor Board Amends Ruling To Comply With Council's Order

The new closing regulations for beverage rooms in Peterborough as adopted by the city council and approved by the Liquor Control Board went into force Saturday which meant that the local beer establishments are required to close at 10 o'clock.

The hours as fixed by the council provided that beverage rooms should close at 11 o'clock standard time on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights and at 10 o'clock standard time on Saturday night except during the period of daylight saving when the closing hour was set at 11 o'clock daylight saving time for every night of the week. When the bylaw was submitted to the Liquor Control Board orders were issued that beverage rooms should close at 10 o'clock daylight saving time on Saturday nights during the daylight saving period, a ruling that differed from the local bylaw. The error was pointed out to the Board and a second order has been issued carrying out the arrangement made by the council which means that the closing hour on Saturday nights during the period of summer time will be 11 o'clock day light saving time.

Tragedy Near Arden Occurs As Young Victim Drops Shotgun

KINGSTON, April 19.—Orwell Thompson, 12-year-old adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Mills Beasley of Henderson, died in the Kingston General Hospital shortly after midnight Friday from wounds inflicted by a shotgun Friday afternoon. Dr. C. J. Whyfock, coroner, of Sharbot Lake, stated that no inquest will be held.

Thompson, who was out shooting suckers with another lad, dropped the gun. The trigger, striking a log, discharged.

Dr. D. W. Boucher of Kingston, who attended the young lad, said that the shot blew off his right hand, and penetrated his right eye into the brain. He died a few hours after being admitted to hospital without regaining consciousness.

The Royal Road To The Coronation

Their Majesties have many pleasant recollections of their Australian visit

FIFTEEN thousand miles the Duke of York had travelled to open the new federal parliament buildings of the Dominion of Australia and the welcome he and his Duchess received when the Renown steamed into Sydney Harbor attested to the pleasure the visit accorded the dominion.

Sydney provided days of crowded official functions that were only the beginning of a hectic tour that culminated in the impressive ceremony at Canberra, the new capital, on May 9, 1927. Balls and luncheons and dinners were interspersed with visits to industrial areas of Sydney and other cities visited during the tour, and to public gatherings that eagerly acclaimed the young prince and his duchess who showed so obviously their interest in the country and its people.

There was relaxation, too, with the couple entering into the sports and amusements of the land and adapting their schedule, as much as possible in the short time at their disposal and with the many cities to be visited, to every phase of Australian life. Their interest in the dominion has not faded with the years and today's pictures record a charming incident that recalls their Australian tour. For at the left, the Duchess of York is shown when she, along with the Duke, attended in an official capacity at the unveiling in Westminster Abbey of a bust to Adam Lindsay Gordon, the Australian poet and the first of his country to be so honored. The richer picture records the triumphal drive through Sydney at the beginning of the 1927 tour. After the Canberra celebrations, when at the invitation of Mr. Stanley Bruce, then premier of Australia, the Duke turned the key which opened the doors of the new and stately parliament buildings, the Duke and his party set their course homeward.

He had passed another milestone in his career and had added another chapter to the saga which leads to his coronation.

SHIPPERS HIRING NON-UNION GANGS

Picketing Continues At Toronto, Hamilton Docks—May Spread West

TORONTO, April 19.—(C P)—Shipping companies with boats to unload at Great Lakes ports seemed little worried today as wage disputes kept union stevedores away from work at Hamilton, Toronto Point Edward water fronts. While the Longshoremen stuck to their demands for more pay, the companies hired non-union men to take their jobs.

Strikers at Hamilton were told last night a sympathy walkout was scheduled for the head of the lakes. Lawrence Robertson, a union man, declared such strikes would be called early in the week at Port William and Port Arthur.

While Toronto unionists claimed one company had refused to have the Ontario Labor department arbitrate in the strike, Louis Fine, Industrial Standards Act officer, confirmed that no application had been made for his services.

Picketing continued at both Hamilton and Toronto docks, but arrangements were made for continued loading and unloading operations by nonunion labor, of which companies said there was more than enough available. Negotiations looking to a possible settlement were scheduled for today at Point Edward.

ERECT NEW HOTEL AT CAMPBELLFORD

Abraham Rappaport Adding To His Tourist Camp Property, South Of Town

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 19. — Campbellford is making a serious bid for its share of the tourist business with the erection of a summer hotel and cottages on the river just north of the town. Beginning two years ago with four cottages the area is now built up with seven cottages and a two-story hotel with provisions to accomodate in all about seventy-five. Each of the cabins is equipped with lights, fireplace and radio, while the hotel will house a modern kitchen and banquet hall with three large open fireplaces on the main floor and the second floor will be eight double bedrooms with four bath rooms and two private sitting rooms. All of the bed rooms will open on a large windowed verandah overlooking the river. Adequate preparation is being made for the needs of the children with supervised swimming and playgrounds with slides and swings in an area which has been levelled and planted with shade trees.

A. Rapparport, who is the promoter of the scheme, declared that he expected the greater portion of the work on the hotel and grounds would be finished by the middle of June.

CHINESE PUZZLE

Police Unable to Unravel Evidence From Gambling Raid.

CHICAGO, April 19.—(CP). —The evidence they collected in a gambling raid was just a Chinese puzzle to Policeman Harold Murphy and Francis O'Malley. They listed it as follows:

A handful of black and white beans, oddly shaped dominoes and slips of paper. Even the writing on the paper was in Chinese, they reported. Nine Chinese men were arrested.

SCOTLAND NEEDS 250,000 HOMES

Overcrowding Six Times Greater Than In England Survey Shows

GLASGOW, April 19—(CP)—To wipe out slums and put an end to over-crowding, Scotland needs to provide nearly 250,000 houses it was stated in the annual report of the Department of Health for Scotland.

The survey of overcrowding made under the housing (Scotland) Act, 1935, the report said, brought into sharp focus and magnitude of the Scottish housing problems.

"Overcrowding in Scotland is relatively six times greater than in England," the report adds: "More than 22 per cent of Scottish houses are overcrowded; and minimum of 250,000 new houses is needed merely to relieve these conditions.

"To this formidable task is added the urgent necessity for making further progress with slum clearance.

"Local authorities during 1936 intensified their efforts to improve housing conditions, and contracts for more than 37,000 state-assisted houses were approved by the department during the year—an increase of 66 per cent on the total approved during 1935.

Juliana Home – 28 Pounds Lighter

Princess Juliana of Holland, who recently married Prince Bernhard Zu Lippe-Biesterfeld, is said to be in "reduced circumstances". The circumstances, however, do not refer to monetary matters but purely to avoirdupois. The princess, shown ABOVE with her husband during a shopping expedition in Paris following their return from a three-months' honeymoon, lost a total of 28 pounds during the wedding trip. Note the slimness of the royal bride, thought to have been the result of sporting activities such as skiing, etc.

Family Of 8 Is Wiped Out In Explosion

Mother And Seven Children Die As Home Is "Scattered Like Matchwood"

HUNT ONE BODY

Stump-Blasting Material In Cellar Blamed—Father At Barn Escapes

MUSKEGO, Wis., April 19 (AP).—Death early today of a 17-year-old girl brought to eight the number of persons of one family killed when an explosive substance stored in the basement of their farm home near here blew up.

Neighbors joined the grief-stricken father in a search of the ruins for the body of another child.

The mother, Mrs. Mary Wazsak, 34, and seven children were seated around the family radio last night when the explosion demolished their home.

Louise Wazsak succumbed to injuries in a hospital today. The body of Raymond Wazsak, 3, has not been recovered.

Coroner Martin from said evidence indicated 50 pounds of pyrotol, used for blasting stumps, had caused the explosion.

John Wazsak, the father, told a hysterical story of how the house raised off the ground and "scattered like matchwood" as he stepped out of the barn where he had been "doing the chores."

IS A LOAN THE WAY OUT OF FAMILY FINANCIAL JAMS?

Should a family borrow when it gets in a financial jam? We say, "No," unless the loan is made part of a constructive plan to prevent the need of borrowing in the future. If that is done, borrowing can prove helpful—especially to families dogged by creditors or faced with emergencies.

GROWING CONCERN PLACE OF RELIGION

Religion In Schools Discussed By United Church Board Of Education

TORONTO, April 19.—Pointing out the growing concern regarding the place of religion in the public schools, the Board of Christian Education of the United Church at the annual meeting last night, suggested the outlook of the present age upon life had a trend toward too much that was secular and scientific and not enough that was spiritual.

No system of education can be adequate for the needs of life that does not include an expression of faith in God, claimed the board. A resolution passed recorded the conviction "that the time has come to consider seriously how this belief can find its place in the life of our public schools."

The board urged that the Committee on Philosophy of Education give serious consideration to the place of religion in public school education. The board also urged that leaders of religious education in each Province take such steps as they are able to make religious education an integral part of the school experience of every child; that each conference committee on Christian education look into their own Provincial laws for week-day religious education and encourage ministers to take advantage of every privilege.

BUEHLER BROTHERS

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta.

ALEXANDER wept when he heard from Anaxarchus that there was an infinite number of worlds; and his friends asked him if any accident had befallen him, he returns this answer: "Do you not think it a matter worthy of lamentation that when there is such a vast multitude of them, we have not conquered one?

—Plutarch.

Dear Friends:

Once upon a time there was a young person rather handicapped in life, with poverty, with a weak body, and with indifference towards the gifts he had been endowed with, by parents and relatives. And inside his mind a seed was planted that he would rise above these things.

So, every time someone said, "You cannot do that," or "that is much too hard for you," he felt this seed begin to sprout, and he went ahead and DID the thing which seemed so hard to do. He felt that when he stiffened his spirit, when he forced this weak body to do these so-called impossible things, he became stronger both in body and mind.

He got an inward exhilaration, a feeling akin to the gods, for he was rising above circumstances and making it a step-ladder to gain the things he desired, and as he grew older, he found that all he needed to spur him on if he was inclined to slack-off, was for someone to tell him he couldn't do a certain thing, and he went ahead and proved they were wrong.

They called him ambitious, and sometimes this word is used to denote a person is ruthless, getting their desires even if someone else has to suffer for it. Ambition takes on many forms, but true forms of it are the biggest help, for it makes you forge ahead, it causes you not to believe in failure, it raises you out of the mud of failure.

You will hear people scoff and say of someone, "oh he is too ambitious," and you are just as liable to hear them say of another, "I have no use for him, he has no ambition at all."

Alexander wept for worlds to conquer, and we too can conquer worlds of a different kind if we set our minds to it. First we attack ourselves and our tendencies to put things off to another time, then we attack our lazy habits, and then we look at the source of our discontent and decide to change all that.

I am still convinced that no one could be out of work for two or three years without an opportunity of SOME kind of work. This depression did not only hit the men, it hit the women too, but the women would work at anything for even a pittance rather than go idle, for their ambition would not let them be, so the men then claimed women took the work from them. Piffle! It is easy to find excuses for not working, for stifling ambition, just as it is easy to call yourself a patriot in time of war, when all the time it is simply adventure calling, and a desire for a change in life.

I grant you when anyone, man or woman has worked for years at some sort of work and then get discharged, it is hard for them to turn to something new, but it could be done. On the face of it the young man just out of college or university cannot drop into the work they have been training for. But cannot they try something else in the meantime? Cannot they cultivate even a hobby, and maybe find their hobby was of more importance than the thing trained for?

But you have to have a burning ambition to get ahead, you have to quit complaining because you cannot do this, and that, and you have to get up and go, and look around for something even in the home which will use up your energies, so that you will be in fit condition when your opportunity comes.

It is amazing how many things can be found to do, and it is also amazing how many blind themselves to these things. They want to do one thing only, and if they cannot do that, they are content to stand around street corners, killing ambition, without which they will never conquer any world. So, don't envy anyone success, but get your ambition working full time and the world of lazyness and discontent will fall with your efforts.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Toronto Has An Idea

Ald. Percy Quinn of Toronto has an idea, and when a Toronto alderman has an idea one knows at once there is something in it for Toronto. Toronto has its Casa Loma, costing $2,000,000, which belongs to the city now via the route of unpaid taxes.

In order to make money out of it the suggestion is that the five Dionne quints should be brought to live there for eight months of the year as princesses in a real castle. People from all over would go flocking there; there would be a charge of 50 cents to enter the place. Back taxes would be paid, profit would be made, and everything would be beautiful—for Toronto.

The fact that the North Country, which needs business a good deal more than Toronto, would be cut off from the traffic which goes to see the quints at Callander, means nothing at all when Toronto gets a big idea.

The thing would be a washout. The attractiveness of the Dionne children is immeasurably enhanced by the location in which they were born and brought up. There is a certain novelty and adventure in having to go so far from the beaten path to see them. Bring them down to where the crowd is and the novelty would be discounted.

Toronto had its own stork derby and if it wants to fill the castle with the results of that miserable contest it should have no difficulty in finding tenants. The idea of lugging the beautiful Dionne children down to Toronto is so poor it should never have been mentioned as a method for providing for the salvation of Toronto's taxation castle.

It Can't Be Done

Miss Marjorie Bell, Director of the Visiting Homemakers' Association in Toronto, addressed the annual meeting and told about conditions and customs she encountered in the course of a year's work. She found that in the years between leaving school and marriage the girls or young ladies did nothing which prepared them for home life; did little to develop physical strength or steady nerves. There had been a false standard set and as a result many of the girls were spending so much on cosmetics, clothes and beauty parlors there was nothing left for nourishing food.

Miss Bell mentioned making inquiries in one rather large firm and she failed to find a girl there who had eaten any breakfast. The reason was they had been out so late the night before they wanted to sleep just as long as they could before hurrying off to work. A number of them said that at noon hour they would get a light lunch, some coffee and cigarettes and that would "see them through."

It is hardly necessary to make any comment on this because any sensible person knows the answer. It can't be done.

Satisfaction In Words

Mayor Hall of Oshawa was mad. Perhaps he is yet. Premier Hepburn made the announcement he was going to proceed and try to collect some money from him which the Premier says should have been turned in during the time when Mr. Hall was crown-attorney. The Mayor replies he owes the province nothing at all; not a cent. Every account was carefully audited and checked before payment was made.

Mayor Hall claims Premier Hepburn made his statement about the money because the Premier was afraid the Mayor would have the Oshawa strike settled before the Ontario Premier was able to do so, and it is rather sad to think two men should become angry one with the other about such a matter.

But the Mayor of Oshawa says he would like to get hold of Mitchell Hepburn and give him the "worst thrashing a man ever received." The Oshawa reports indicate the Mayor weighs in at 135 and used to a fast and hard-going lacrosse player. The weight of the Premier has slipped from us at the moment, or perhaps we have never seen it stated. The one thing which seems to stand in the way is the recognition on the part of the Mayor that there is a law which says such a thing should not be done. So he has to find satisfaction, 1, in claiming he could lick the Premier to a frizzle; 2, that he would like to do so; and 3, that he refrains from taking such action on account of the regard he has for the majesty of the law. And when a man is much annoyed we take it he finds some satisfaction having so said.

Does Not Make Sense

It apparently paid the International Railway Company to take their case to the Privy Council. For years the company operated the "Gorge Route" at Niagara Falls—that was on the Canadian side. The Niagara Parks Commission took over the property, and the amount to be paid for the line was arbitrated, and it was a long and expensive process. The decision was that the company should be allowed $179,104, and that figure was arrived at on the basis of the line being of little value and scrap prices prevailed.

The Ontario Court of Appeal affirmed the figure arrived at by the arbitrators, after which the case went to the Privy Council, and the figure to be paid by the Parks Commission has been raised to $1,047,807. The basis for such a finding is said to have been on what it would cost to replace the line less depreciation. The arbitrators had based the value of the line at what it would bring as scrap metal.

The difference in the way of looking at the thing is going to cost the Parks Commission $868,703. There is, we believe, altogether too much difference between these two awards on the same property. The great gap in between the figure of the arbitrators and that of the Privy Council does not make sense.

No Perfect Highways

Five occupants of a car which went off highway No. 20 near Fonthill brought suit to recover $25,000 damages from the Department of Highways. Mr. Justice MacKay dismissed the suit. The case then went to the Court of Appeal and the first judgment was sustained. So the plaintiffs receive nothing.

The claim was that the car left the road because one shoulder of the road was lower than the general level of the pavement, the variation being by measurement 3½ inches. In delivering judgment one of the learned members of court remarked "You cannot expect to have a highway like a billiard table."

And that is probably correct enough, but it might be well to talk about that condition more frequently. It may be the average motorist by reason of having to pay over his money for license plates and gas tax has within him the feeling that there ought to be a great mountain of money available for building and keeping roads in the same condition as the billiard table. According to the opinion of an engineer that cannot be done. Our informant said there was always a change going on and it made itself apparent in the levels of roads, and in some districts it would be more marked than others.

If one seeks more evidence on that point it is necessary only to refer to the number of "Bump" signs which the Highways Department places along the roads each spring. Our information is that these bumps cannot be prevented, and they are found in all parts of the province. So the truth seems to be we cannot guarantee a perfect highway, and that is something which car drivers must consider. A car travelling at high speed over such a spot is likely to swerve a great deal more dangerously than one travelling at a more moderate rate.

The Cocktail Habit

R. M. Motherwell of Ottawa, was speaking in Toronto at a meeting of the Board of Christian Education of the United Church, and this he said:

"I am not half as worried over the beverage rooms as I am about hostesses who serve cocktails to young people."

Another comment was made by Prof. D. D. Thomson of Nova Scotia:

"Cocktail parties have become so prevalent that people are beginning to think that cocktails are as innocent as a cup of tea."

A gentleman in this city remarked that at the New York season he was surprised to see the number of young people who were taking good stiff drinks of liquor in several homes. There seemed to be no questions asked; there was no suggestion that the parents of the young people might object, and there was no advice to the younger folk from the older ones that they would be well advised to leave it alone.

The young man who goes about acquiring a taste for hard liquor is going to be the loser in the long run. His ability to drink will never be a factor in his advancement. The plain truth is he may find it a substantial reason why he will not advance.

A Scot and His Words

There was a Scotsman in the office on Saturday waiting to get the result of the football game, and he had several things to say and relate when the wire said Scotland had defeated England 3 to 1 in the last international football match of the season.

It was interesting to hear him say "Scotland." He used a great round "O" in it and refused to concede that any one was right when saying "Scawtland." Likewise he pronounced "dog" the same way, giving full value to the "o" as we would in naming the letters of the alphabet. He was certain Canadians were wrong as they could be in saying "dawg."

So whether we can agree to the point of adopting his method of pronouncing his beloved "ScOtland" it was essential that full agreement be extended on the fact that ScOtland had won the football game.

New coins are to be minted in Canada this year and we notice that the dollar one will have a picture of a canoe. Perhaps it might be possible to have the boat marked Made-in-Peterborough.

There is one commodity in Canada of which there never is any danger of a scarcity; that is legislation. The Saskatchewan Legislature has passed 100 new laws during the session just closed.

NOTE AND COMMENT

We have been looking the sport pages over carefully to see which boxing promoter has had the enterprise to book the Premier Hepburn-Mayor Hall fight.

The Buffalo man who plans to cross the Atlantic in a barrel should have timed his attempt so that he might arrive in England for the Coronation.

Saskatchewan folk will soon be tax-conscious now that a provincial sales tax is to be piled on top of the eight per cent Dominion levy.

Some of the officials who have been dismissed at Queen's Park know how the innocent bystander feels when he gets hit by a stray bullet.

Now the C.I.O. has introduced the slow-down as a follow-up to the sit-down policy. Sooner or later will come the show-down.

Four Montreal prisoners have been a total of over 300 years in prison but they will probably get a few years off for good behavior.

This new Cleveland rookie pitcher is expected to win at least 20 games this season and that is not bad for a young Feller.

British Columbia is to have a general election on June 1st and that seems an unfortunate way to start one of the finest months in the calendar.

Thirty relief workers in Guelph have gone on strike and now according to the views expressed by some folk these men should be given relief because they are on strike.

Twelve million whitefish have been placed in Lake Huron. That sounds like a lot of fish until you pause to realize that they have been put into a lot of water.

Mr. Hepburn has called upon Homer Martin and Hugh Thompson, C.I.O. organizers to get out of Ontario. And right on the eve of the beginning of the tourist season, too!

President of the Associated British Chambers of Commerce says that the rising cost of living is creating a menace for Britain's export trade. It is not a good thing for the consumer either.

Jaywalkers in Germany have to attend a lecture on road behavior and pay an admission fee of 35 cents. That is, those who are not dealt with by the coroner.

Stories of a mutiny in Dartmoor prison on Coronation day are denied. The prisoners probably realize that if they started anything like that some of them would be sure to be crowned.

Even without any opposition to interfere the Prince Edward Legislature took nearly a month to get through its business. Politicians must talk even when they have things all their own way.

Major Douglas has been invited to return to Alberta and if that province is to do anything about social credit it is to be hoped he will accept. There should be at least one person brought into the province who really understands the thing.

The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom has passed a resolution condemning Premier Hepburn for his attitude toward the Oshawa strike. The League might at the same time have expressed its opinion of the new anti-God campaign just launched in Russia.

Toronto trades unionists apparently are not aware of the fact that on the other side of the boundary line the American Federation of Labor to which they belong is fighting bitterly to save itself from being strangled by the C.I.O. whose cause in Canada they are espousing.

THANKS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I'd like to thank the Weather man, he fitted nicely with my plan, when it came Saturday; for I'd been urged to take the rake, and drive in here and there a stake, and work for half a day.

¶ The neighbors are ahead of me, they even labor after tea, they're ready for their seed; I never like to work that hard, nor always putter in the yard. I like to sit and read.

¶ On Saturday I planned to start, in making beauty do my part, perhaps I'd dig a hole; I have some sort of plants that climb, I'd coax them with some binder twine, or else I'd plant a pole.

¶ One neighbor has a roller too, he'd lend the thing as he was through. I'd run it all alone; I thanked him in a kindly way, there wasn't nothing else to say, I wanted much to groan.

¶ If I would roll that thing around, and try and flatten out the ground, I knew next day I'd ache; it is of monster size I know, should have three men to make it go, I feared my arms might break.

¶ I thought of all these things a lot, and felt in spells both cold and hot, I scented coming pain; 'twas then the weather man stepped in, a word of thanks I offer him—for it began to rain.

They Used To Hit Them on the Head

Prepared by Ontario Hospital Association

"IN few fields of science have growing pains been so acute as in the evolution of the modern hospital," Dr. F. W. Routley, secretary of the Ontario Hospital Association, stated to-day.

"A glance at the history of hospital development makes one realize the astounding capacity which we, of the present day, possess of mentally digesting and soon accepting as commonplace those gifts of science, without benefit of which untold thousands of previous generations paid with their lives or suffered horrors indescribable," Dr. Routley asserted.

"On the tortuous upward road through the ages to the great modern hospital we know to-day, we see discarded by the wayside, hospital practises which, in the light of our present knowledge, make us shudder, and medical superstitions which, while they may tickle our modern sense of humour, bring the realization that the generations before their physical interpretation on their bodies had no cause to appreciate that humour."

As instances of these Dr. Routley cited the cautery iron, the leech, the surgical operations, without anaesthetic, when two or more men were required to hold the struggling patient on the operating table; the hospital attendants, often criminals, who abused the patients and filched their possessions, bringing the hospitals a little lower in public taste to that of the filthy prisons of the day; the beliefs that powdered mummy or amulets when taken internally had curative effects, that the tongues of serpents were the best cleansers of ulcers, and so forth, ad infinitum; uncleanliness, poor food, bad ventilation, and nearly everything else which science has taught us as detrimental to the care of the patient.

"It requires little imagination," said Dr. Routley, "to visualize the state of mind of the patient who entered the ancient Egyptian hospital for an operation, anticipating an anaesthetic in the form of a blow on the head with a wooden mallet; or the patient in the dark Middle Ages who, after being stripped practically naked, was crowded into a none-too-sleek bed with two or three other patients, one of whom might have a dangerous contagious disease and the other be in a dying condition; or the patient in the early nineteenth century who on entering the hospital was almost overcome by an atmosphere made foul by hemorrhage, infection, gangrene and discharging wounds, which, due to the belief in the benefits of suppuration, were rife in the wards, and who, having to undergo an operation, knew that mortality from surgical operations at that time was as high as ninety and even one hundred per cent.

"One only has to stand in the portals of any of our great modern hospitals," Dr. Routley pointed out, "to realize how far up the road of science and security we have climbed within the last fifty years. It is an almost impossible mental gymnastic to so stand, watching the intricate hospital mechanism which has been built up as a great bulwark between life and death, between health and disease, observing the bright walls and polished corridors, the trained nurses hurrying to and fro in their starched white uniforms, sensing the almost overpowering feeling of cleanliness, of kindly efficiency, of restful security—and then trying to replace this with a picture of the hospital as it was one hundred years ago, with unswept floors, soiled linen, little ventilation, festering wounds—a place of mental and physical torture.

"Hundreds of generations before us," concluded Dr. Routley, "and millions of our ancestors would have given almost anything they possessed for the security which our great modern hospitals now represent. In counting our present-day blessings, the modern hospital should stand in the forefront because it is our greatest defence of our most valuable asset, that of life itself."

HALIBURTON.

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

THE village of Haliburton has prohibited cows from grazing on any of the streets in the municipality, but that does not mean that the village Fathers are going to let the grass grow under their feet. It seems that the animals have been browsing along the grass fringing on the main street, and this has tended to "tie up traffic and slow down business."

Haliburton has been a sleepy village ever since the decline of the lumber business in the vicinity. It was at one time a flourishing town, but in recent years it has had to depend largely upon summer tourist traffic. With the completion of the new highways through the surrounding country, the village is evidently beginning itself from the dreams of a riotous past and looking forward to a respectable future as a centre of attraction to visitors. The country round about forms one of the most picturesque parts of Ontario, with its numerous lakes and streams and lofty hills. Situated about two-thousand feet above sea-level, the air is invigorating, and the fishing—well, there are some great fish up in Haliburton.

Now that the cows are to be removed from the highways there will be a free right of way for motorists, and we trust that the village will be so busy during the coming summer that there will be no chance for the grass to grow on the main street of Haliburton.

Pleasant Life in Little Places.

(From the Lindsay Post.)

Cars passing through a small town visible for those affected.

Or village, persons from cities are frequently heard to remark: "How do they ever live in a place like this. I'd die if I had to spend my life in this Burg." The village looks pretty quiet to the city acquainted with street cars and skyscrapers and accustomed to inhaling second-hand garlic fumes in crowded elevators.

There isn't anything very lively looking about the staid homes and church steeples. Neighbors' cows grazing on the side streets seem to add to the placidness of it all and nobody seems to be in a hurry in the little towns that provide dwelling places for a great share of Canada's population. For those who thrive on big-time excitement the little places seem impossible.

An incident occurred at Norland recently that perhaps explains why there are people who can live in the little places and like it. Norland is a small village, small enough that everyone is acquainted with everyone else. When good-fortune smiles on one family, the whole village is happy. When tragedy strikes in one place or death calls a Norlandite home, there isn't a smile on anyone's face. Everybody feels genuinely sorry and try by visitation and condolence to make the lot as easy as possible.

Not long ago a fire wiped out one of the finest homes in the village. Not only was the house lost but the furniture and personal effects of the family went up in flames, leaving them temporarily destitute.

Being a small place, folks didn't take the attitude that after all it wasn't any of their business to see that they were clothed and housed and made comfortable. There was a shower of useful and necessary gifts. Not content with this along with considerable personal aid, a benefit dance was held at which a nice sum was realized to help reestablish this family.

When a new home is built there will be no shortage of labor, folks will just pile in and help build it and get this family on whom misfortune has frowned back on their feet again.

It isn't so hard to live in a little spot where folks do things like these. The Norland incident is typical of what would occur in almost any small town or village in Canada.

When people have a real heart interest in one another there isn't the same call for synthetic entertainment. In fact it seems to fall pretty flat when weighed against the pleasure of doing a good turn for a neighbor.

Explaining the Wagner Act.

(From the Ottawa Journal.)

MUCH is being said of the Wagner Labor Relations Act, declared constitutional by the United States Supreme Court. But the Act is not what many people seem to think it is, judging by what they say.

The Wagner Act—so-called because it was sponsored by Senator Wagner of New York—provides:

1. A guarantee to workers of the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing.
2. That employers shall not interfere with, restrain or coerce employes in the exercise of the above right.
3. That employers shall not dominate any labor organization or contribute financial or other support to it (Company unions are thus declared illegal).
4. That it shall be considered unfair for any employer to encourage or discourage union membership by "any condition of employment," or to discharge or "otherwise discriminate" against any employe for filing charges or giving testimony under the act.
5. That representatives of a majority of a company's employes shall speak for all employes.
6. That when a case arises involving a dispute as to which of two or more labor organizations represents a majority of the employes, the National Labor Relations Board (a Federal Government organization) shall conduct elections to determine which labor group is in the majority.
7. That in the event of an order of the National Labor Board being ignored, the Board may ask a Circuit Court of Appeals to compel compliance, with heavy penalties, including imprisonment, for non-compliance.

The foregoing is what the Wagner Act provides for. Here are things it doesn't provide for:

1. It does not compel agreements between employers and employes. (It does not, for example, apply to the shops of Henry Ford, where the workers are not organized).
2. It does not prohibit any individual employe or any group of employes whether the group is in a minority or not) from presenting grievances.
3. It has nothing to do with wages, hours, or with working conditions.
4. It does not apply to purely local industries, to industries whose activities are not embraced in "interstate commerce."

Whether the Wagner Act, as outlined above is a "desperately radical step," as some represent it to be, must be a matter of individual opinion. It would not be so considered in England. The Lancashire cotton industry is one of the greatest employers of labor in the world. It has not merely collective bargaining with the unions—it goes much farther. Labor representatives sit in its councils—not merely with respect to policies which affect directly, but with respect to policies affecting the industry generally.

The truth is that the United States with all its recent hullabaloo about "New Deals" and social security, is just now reaching the pre-war stage in England under Asquith and Lloyd George.

Where Women Are Very Strong.

(From the Sault Ste. Marie Star.)

THREE editors down around Cobourg and Beamsville seem to be a touchy lot. The other day this paper properly gave due credit to a lady in our Geraldton for buckssawing a six-inch block of wood in 14 seconds, and does Old Ontario receive the news in the proper spirit? The answer is in the negative, because the lady's work seemed to convey the impression to the public that the publicized work of masculine buckssawers down around Peterboro, Trenton, St. Catharines, etc., was not worth the joyful yelps the papers made over it. Of course there is a difference between 14 seconds and several times that elapsed period.

The St. Catharines man now wants to bet us a plug hat against a 1936 beer permit that this column never saws wood at all and expresses the view "The bet will not be taken." As this column hasn't got a plug hat—due to the high cost, the bet is hereby accepted.

Then the Peterboro Examiner says the lady might have tackled a piece of cedar which Mr. Kennedy unseasonably says could be cut "with a bread knife." Waving aside the general impression that a lady should be treated with marked courtesy even when she is buckssawing, the remark seems to reflect a bias against womankind, to which we shall draw the attention of a west end lady who is said to have recently thrown a policeman over her woodshed. A still tongue, etc., is wise in these parts, sometimes.

Mr. Kennedy urges that a party up here letting the woman saw the wood, may we unhesitatingly submit that if one can get one's wife to do it, why not?

FRIENDLY ADVICE.

(Windsor Star)

NO one can accuse justly Premier Hepburn of being a prohibitionist. If anything, he tends far towards free drinking. But even Mr. Hepburn did not dare open taverns for the sale of hard liquor in Ontario. Neither would he allow the sale of beer and wine in bona fide restaurants, although we personally think that would have been far better than the licensing of "mock hotels."

Public opinion has a strange way of adjusting to certain situations. Mr. Hepburn's scruples have an axe to grind and he would not be cancelling licenses on a large scale unless he felt he was gaining votes by so doing.

If the distillers and brewers are smart, and we think they are, they will take quiet steps to introduce a little more temperance in drinking. If there is a fair degree of temperance, the extreme prohibitions will never get to first base; but if intemperance becomes rampant, the first thing the people know, they'll find the prohibitionists hitting a home-run.

REFORESTATION.

(Kitchener Record)

AT this season of the year the soil is saturated with moisture, water in the creeks and streams is at a high level, the remaining patches of swamp are oozing moisture and in the woods there are pools of water.

A few months hence conditions may be vastly different. If there is no rain for a week or two in June or July, the land becomes dried out and as hard as a brick where clay soil predominates. Crops begin to suffer and gurgling streams become silent.

Then it is we have to suffer for our interference with Nature. Forests and swamps were intended to act as water reservoirs to provide moisture throughout the summer. We have made a thorough job of draining the land, so much so that the water runs off hurriedly in the spring, causing considerable damage by erosion and carrying with it fertility elements which are badly needed for plant growth.

Unfortunately the mistake has been made because our foresight wasn't as good as our hindsight. But it is not yet too late to undo some of the damage. One remedy lies in a comprehensive scheme of reforestation.

ON THE RIGHT PATH.

(Kitchener Record)

SHORTLY before the session of parliament ended, Labor Minister Rogers announced that it is the government's intention to spend a million dollars in an endeavor to open the door to opportunity for the unemployed young people of the Dominion. Canadians who have the welfare of the rising generation at heart will not begrudge this proposed expenditure, for the youth of this country will be the citizens of tomorrow. It is vitally important that something be done to make the jobless young people feel that a sincere effort is being put forth to aid them in the serious business of making a living. We cannot afford to let youth grow up into manhood, dissatisfied with their lot. It is obvious what the future would bring if the problems of youth were met with indifference.

IT WAS SETTLED.

(New York Post)

THEY'RE whispering this tale in labor circles: A sit-down strike among sixty employees of the Research Department was called in the Indiana factory of an auto accessory company. The president decided to settle it quickly. He entered the factory and told the strikers: "Boys, you might as well be comfortable here." He sent for blankets, and then had three cases of brandy brought into the place. When the workers almost had finished the brandy the president brought sixteen young ladies to amuse the strikers. At the height of festivities the officer departed, and returned—bringing with him all the wives of the strikers to view the Indiana version of a Bacchanalian revel . . . The strike was called off forthwith.

ALWAYS COSTLY.

(Niagara Falls Review)

STRIKES always diminish business and, in the case of General Motors at Oshawa, there is a danger that the Canadian export business may be lost to the United States plants because of the present stoppage of work. Far better would it be in all such cases if negotiations preceded rather than followed strikes; better for all concerned, the workers who would not lose wages, and the employers who would not lose markets sometimes never recovered. If export business generally handled by Canadian plants is lost to the United States factories, it is simple arithmetic to figure that many Canadian workmen will have slimmer pay envelopes.

remains that I have recently been compelled to disagree with reference to the method of handling the pending industrial dispute, and for me at this moment to continue in an important office under your government would leave me open to serious misunderstanding.

"I, of course, realize that you are handling the strike situation in accordance with your views which as it happens differ from mine, but under the circumstances I am convinced that my proper course is to resign.

"It is with deep regret that I thus sever our only remaining official connection, with the exception of our common membership in the Liberal party and I confess to a feeling of sadness at the circumstances which make such action on my part necessary."

CADETS MOBOLIZED

The P.C.V.S. Cadet Corps was mobilized last week in the Armouries under the direction of H. A. Craig. About 300 cadets "fell in." The Corps is made up of boys from first, second and third forms. Students of fourth and fifth forms and Special Commercial are exempt from compulsory training, but may drill voluntarily. Only a few turned out.

It has been the custom of former years to dismiss the entire student body when the cadets are out for drill but this year those who do not take cadet training and the girls are apparently to remain at their desks until 4 o'clock.

Ralph Hagarman this year succeeds James Morrow to the position of commanding officer. The Bugle Band is under the direction of Hugh Davidson; First Aid under Jack Craig and Phil Rislow has command of the signallers.

MORNING ENTERTAINMENTS

Alicia Langley gave a very interesting talk Tuesday morning on Lawther College in North Wales, where she studied last year. She outlined the customs of Wales and differences between Canadian and Welsh schools. Many were surprised to hear that the girls played lacrosse at this school, entering into the spirit of the game with great enthusiasm.

Thursday morning, Eileen Sillon of 3D Academic, gave a humorous recitation entitled "Levinsky at the Wedding." The comic relief was well received.

GUEST SPEAKER

"Choosing a vocation" was the title of an address given my Rev. C. R. Duncan, educational secretary of McMaster University, to the student body last week. He urged each student to choose the vocation for which he is best suited and to stick with it. Do not try any old job that sounds good, he warned. The young man or woman going out into life without a clear plan is apt to go through a procession of many jobs, he suggested.

L. J. Pettit introduced Mr. Duncan.

NEW BOOKS

Miss Edith Murphy, librarian reports the addition of a small selection of new books to the school library shelves. Both fiction and non-fiction titles are in among the volumes and music, aviation and journalism are the three principal subjects covered.

The writing of material for the press is dealt with thoroughly in the Journalistic additions and the books will supply a demand frequently indicated in the student body. The aviation titles are mainly fictional but of an educational type of fiction.

Talk of a tunnel under the English Channel is being revived.

Aged Man Holds Forth On Corner But Deaf Man His Only Audience

Whether he was singing hymns, preaching the Gospel message or delivering a dissertation on the evils of drink, may never be known. But at all events an aged man attired in somere black suit and dark hat held forth at the north-west corner of George and Hunter Streets for a considerable time on Sunday evening, with a deaf man constituting his sole audience. Although the evening was cool the speaker was seen to doff his overcoat and hang it on a peg that protruded from a nearby pole. Then he produced a little pamphlet from an inner pocket and started in to deliver some kind of a message. Pedestrians paused in their stride as the only person who tarried for any length of time was a deaf man, off in a westerly direction.

Giant Flying Boats Test New Landing Raft

A new type of raft, especially constructed for landing passengers from empire flying boats, is being tested by Imperial Airways at their landing base at Southampton, England. The flying boat shown ABOVE at one of the new landing rafts is the type which will be used by Imperial Airways for the transatlantic air service to begin soon. The huge flying boats are expected to have a landing base in Eastern Canada and the rafts may be used at the base.

Wentworth, Western Ontario and Essex-Kent. The tendency to intensify divisional activities has been continuing, he said.

"I am further pleased to report that these activities have all been carried on within the budget which this year is some $14,000 less than we had at the peak some years ago.

"In the immediate future we believe there will be a more apparent appreciation of what these associations can do as the new type of experience rating about which you are to hear this morning should bring home to those employers who lag in prevention that every dollar spent pays actual hard cash money dividends."

Can Overcome Hazards

"Mechanical hazards can be overcome," he stated further. "The trend of accidents from this cause has been steadily downward due in large measure to your activity.

"I wish to warn our membership against neglect of proper safeguarding of mechanical hazards. Such work is first the problem of the management. If every executive will seriously impress upon his organization that safety is a part of production just as much as the work itself we may look to the future with even greater hope."

"Again let me say, it pays both in alleviating human suffering and in money dividends," he said, urging members to learn their factory hazards from their men most familiar with the hazards, and to eliminate them by safeguards and discipline. "Industry has spent many millions paying accident costs when it could have spent a few hundred thousands in preventing them and have been better off."

Thanking the association for honoring him with the presidency during the past year, Mr. Vernor said: "It will ever be a source of great pride to me that I have had a part in furtherance of this truly great and humanitarian movement."

She Flees England To Miss Coronation

NEW YORK, April 19.—(CP)—Jean Haslip, 27-year-old biographer of "Parnell" was in New York today on her first visit to North America and on her arrival yesterday she said her main idea was to get away from London for the Coronation.

"It's going to be dreadful," Miss Haslip said. "I never saw London look so dreadful, with all those stands built up, and thousands of Australians all around. It seems absurd to me that they're running the Coronation this way. The King is supposed to be a King of all the people, but with the prices they're charging for seats, certainly few of the working people will even get a look at him."

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 19—(CP). — Skyrocketing overseas markets combined with excellent Continental demand, pushed export sales of Canadian wheat to nearly 2,000,000 bushels, stimulating a brisk rally on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day.

At the close of the active session wheat future were 3¼ to 2¼ cents higher with May at $1.36⅛, July $1.33¼ to ⅝, and October $1.21¼ to ⅜.

Excellent seaboard buying during the session offset fairly liberal selling from southern interests. Prices continued to climb in the final hour and May wheat at one time showed gains of more than four cents above Saturday's close.

July flax moved ahead the full 5-cent allowable limit during the first two minutes. Other coarse grains operations were small but good advances were chalked up.

Scolding At Home Sends Boy On Road

Hamilton, April 19 (CP)

HARRY Lumsden, giving his address as Buffalo, was found today by police in a bed of bullrushes near Hamilton Beach. When questioned, he said he had run away from home when scolded for not getting high enough marks at school. After hitch hiking from Buffalo last night, he decided to spend the night in the bullrushes. He was removed to the children's shelter.

mass meeting to-night of more than 3,000 strikers of General Motors of Canada, Limited, he announced to-day after a conference with Organizer Hugh Thompson of the United Automobile Workers of America. The strike has continued for 12 days.

"I will be attending the mass meeting to-night of strikers, but I have no further comment to make at this time," said the 32 year old Mayor who last week telegraphed an ultimatum to the International Union headquarters at Detroit that he would call a mass meeting here to-night and tell the workers they were being "fooled and hood-winked," unless the International Union called a sympathetic strike in United States plants.

Homer Martin, International President of the Union was reported to have announced in the United States to-day there was no immediate prospect for a sympathetic strike in General Motors plants there to strengthen Oshawa strikers' position. Instead, the Union will finance the strikers here, providing entertainment, medical and hospitalization care and welfare needs.

Thompson last night declared he could not say the amount of money required to finance the Oshawa strike as the strike might last "all summer."

"We may need a million dollars before it is through," he said. "The men are digging in and have a higher morale than at any time since the strike started."

to the American plants of General Motors.

"It may be true that the men are being handed out a pittance by the American organization to stop them from starving, but they will never entirely remain so that not all those men will again be employed.

He recalled "promises by Martin (Homer Martin, U.A.W.A. president) since repudiated, that no cars would be manufactured for export in the United States."

He felt he was "safe in saying" that as soon as the Oshawa strikers manifested a desire to return to work, General Motors would open their plant immediately."

"As far as the C.I.O. is concerned," he reiterated, "The Government is determined to fight inroads of these people to the finish. We are not going to stand by and see Canadian workmen be made the goats to fatten Lewis' chest. Lewis is only interested in the fees he can collect from Canadian pay envelopes."

Asked if a special session of the Provincial Legislature was likely to be called to deal with special legislation covering the situation, Mr. Hepburn stated that the situation was being studied from every angle.

Before deciding on any specific plan of action regarding the organization efforts of the C.I.O. in Northern Ontario, he said he would "await further developments."

COULD WIN ANYWHERE

Ontario's Premier's Stand Indicates Attitude Towards Working Class.

OTTAWA, April 19 (CP)—"Hepburn could win any seat in Ontario if he went to the people on the Oshawa strike issue," Alderman Stewart Smith of Toronto said in a speech here last night.

The Ontario premier's stand on the General Motors strike clearly indicated his attitude towards the working class, said Mr. Smith. He declared the Communist party was becoming stronger every year and was steadily working for the benefit of the workers.

Germany imported over 1,150,000 bales of cotton in the last year.

KLINK ADDRESSES OVERFLOW CROWD

Evangelist Speaks To Pentecostal Audience On "Mark Of The Beast"

Evangelist Otto Klink, of Miami, Florida, spoke to an overflow crowd at the Full Gospel Pentecostal Church on Water Street Sunday night on "The Mark of the Beast." In the course of his sermon he said, "The question might be asked, Who must an anti-Christ arise?" The answer is that every dispensation ended with failure, and the present dispensation will be no exception. After the failure of the Hebrew nation the Gentiles under Nebuchadnezzar received the commission to be "peculiar people unto God. God intended to rule the world through four Gentile powers: Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece, Rome. You have learned from history that these empires failed. Nominal Christendom (not Christianity) is a failure. If you do not believe it explain to me, why we have over 500 million more heaten in the worl dtonight than we had 125 years ago. It really isn't a question any more, when will the world be Christenized, but when will the world be heathenized."

Will Give New Religion.

"The anti-Christ through the false prophet will give the world a new religion. Man is a religious being. Recently did the French philosophes Bentler say, 'Man is incurably religious.'

"There are some men in the world now having the number of the name of the beast. Travellers who have lately come back from Italy have informed us that in most Italian homes hangs the picture of Mussolini. The picture bears the inscription: "Viva Il Duce. The word viva is abbreviated to V-v, that means two Vs. If you now figure this in Romans numerals, you get 666. V-v-10, I-1, L-50, D-500, U(V)-5, C-100, E-no number, end. In the homes of most Germans hangs the picture of Hitler with the inscription, "Der Deutsche Titane" (The German Titan). Irenaeus, an early Church-Father, claims that the anti-Christ's name would be Teitan, for the Greek letters in the name Teitan, with their numerical values, amount to 666. T-300, E (epsilon)-5, I-10, T-300, A-1, N-50—666. There is only one hope for us. We may escape the Mark of the Beast by accepting the Mark of God. Here it is, Eph. 4:30, "The Holy Spirit of God, whereby we are sealed (marked) unto the day of redemption."

"Now we feel free to buy other things we need . . ."

"NOW that we have provided for our future, we feel free to spend more money on our home and family.

"It's so simple. We just set aside part of our income and immediately acquired a Life Insurance estate. It would have taken years to build up such an estate in any other way.

"It's mighty comforting, too, to know that the savings we put into Life Insurance each year are building up a cash reserve for emergency, and for our own old age."

Coronation Colors Featured At Lakefield Mission Supper

Mothers And Daughters Of United Church Stage Annual Event

PLEASING PROGRAM

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, April 19—Attractive decorations in keeping with the spirit of the approaching coronation added an air of festivity to the Mother and Daughter banquet which members of the Mission Circle of Lakefield United church held here on Wednesday evening, April 14, in honor of their mothers.

A large gilt crown in the centre of the room formed the nucleus of the decorations. Festoons of red, white and blue bunting were draped diagonally from the crown towards the corners of the room. Crests bearing a replica of the King and Queen occupied a position of honor above the head table. Hand-painted place-cards, crown-shaped, were in the regular red, blue and gold color scheme. Lighted candles and attractive table decorations completed the altogether delightful effect.

The Toast-List

After a delicious repast, a toast-list was taken off, with Miss Mary Webster, president of the Society, acting as Toast-mistress. Miss Webster welcomed the girls and their mothers, expressing the hope that those who are not yet members will join the Society.

Nora Webster proposed the toast to the King; in reply the National Anthem was sung by all present. Helen Burgess proposed a toast to our country, "O Canada" was sung in response.

Phyllis Webster proposed a toast to the Church. Mrs. G. F. Kelly responded. Cora Charlton proposed a toast to our Missionaries. Mrs. W. W. Leonard replied. Madeline Charlton proposed the toast to "Our Mothers." Mrs. W. I. Charlton replied.

A vocal duet by Misses Cora Charlton and Nona Lynburner, entitled "My Mother's Eyes," and a piano solo by Miss Lois Yale, were much enjoyed by the audience.

The Guest Speaker

After the toasts, Miss Webster introduced the guest speaker, Miss Connie Wagar, of Peterborough, who delivered an address entitled, "Missionary Mirrors."

"There are many kinds of mirrors," Miss Wagar said, "but all have only one purpose,—to reflect clearly."

"Great artists mirror objects, great musicians mirror beautiful sounds, and authors mirror personalities." Someone has said that "Life is a mirror," i.e., we get out of life what we put into it.

"When something was needed on earth so reflect a little bit of heaven, a bit of love was mixed with courage, and a touch of patience added. With these were put faith, sacrifice, high ideals, cheerfulness and reverence, and the result produced was "Mother." Do we, the daughters, reflect all these attributes of our mothers," Miss Wagar asked the girls. "Have we last? Do we criticize? or do we reflect courage? Criticism should be put in a bottle marked poison and placed high on a shelf out of reach," she said. "Moral courage is essential in these days," Miss Wagar continued, and patience is a quality to be cultivated. Have we faith or do we worry? Are we willing to serve gladly and with humility? As members of the Mission Circle we should seek to reflect Christ to others. ... that the world sees of Christ is what is shown by his followers. We must be ready to sacrifice for Him. Consecration of our life to Him places us on a new and higher plane. It gives us new hopes, new motives, new ideals and new power," Miss Wagar said in conclusion.

Margaret Tanner and Zelma Darling moved a vote of appreciation to Miss Wagar, and Miriam Brown and Isobel Brown expressed the appreciation of the Circle members for the work done by the committee in charge of arrangements.

The remainder of the evening was spent in jolly games in which everyone joined. Rev. G. F. Kelly was master of ceremonies for this portion of the entertainment. The singing of Auld Lang Syne brought a most enjoyable party to a close.

The committee in charge of arrangements was composed of: Mrs. W. J. Charlton, Mrs. W. W. Leonard, Mrs. G. F. Kelly, and Misses Madeline Charlton, Irene Darling and Mary Webster. Mrs. D. H. Charlton, Mrs. F. Darling, Miss Eva Hendren and Miss Zelma Darling assisted with the decorating. Miss N. Webster, Miss M. Sanderson and Mrs. Hopkins served. Miss Eva Hendren accompanied the musical selections on the piano. Mrs. G. F. Kelly provided musical accompaniment for the games.

"Faithful Friend to Women"

MANY women suffer from periodic pains in side or back, catarrhal drains — "heat flashes" they should try that vegetable tonic favorably known for almost 70 years as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Read this Mrs. Wm. Arthur of 246 Dufferin St., Stratford, Ont., said: "I hardly have dotted great benefit from Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a faithful friend to women. I am the mother of several children and it brought me through each period of expectancy in the best of health. It helped to drive away that upset, nervous condition and the ache in my back. Also it strengthened my entire system." Druggists everywhere.

LOW VITALITY MAY CAUSE 'FLU

Beware of widespread epidemic!

Keep your system free from poisons that lower resistance.

Doctors agree that one of the greatest causes of 'Flu is lowered resistance caused by accumulation of harmful body wastes and poisons. Don't take chances. Keep your system free from these harmful wastes and poisons by taking Fruit-a-tives regularly. Start right now too, because 'Flu strikes quickly, without warning. Fruit-a-tives, the prescription of a prominent Canadian physician, contains extracts of fruits and herbs and act to stimulate the liver and four other vital organs to normal healthy action; activate the flow of bile, cleanse the intestinal tract of harmful wastes and poisons; tend to purify the blood of poisons and acids. Guard against 'Flu. Have your supply of Fruit-a-tives right now. Every druggist has them. Be sure you get only genuine "Fruit-a-tives".

Delegates Give Reports Of Port Hope Presbyterial At Auxiliary Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, April 19—Bringing the highlights of the Presbyterial held at Port Hope on April 7, to the local auxiliary, was the aim of the President, Mrs. L. W. Scott, and the delegates to the Presbyterial, when the regular meeting of the W.M.S. was held last week at the home of Mrs. Robert and Mrs. George Mouncey.

The convention hymn was sung, the convention theme prayer was repeated, and the Scripture lesson read by Mrs. K. Hamie, was the story of Christ's last prayer, the lesson read at the opening worship service at the Presbyterial. The delegates, Mrs. R. Crego and Mrs. A. Nill, brought full reports of the morning and afternoon sessions.

The Devotional Leaflet, "Jesus and the Joy of Service," read by Mrs. L. Turner, was in keeping with the story of the Presbyterial.

During the worship period the names of five foreign missionaries and three missionaries on the home field were read by the president, and special prayers were offered for these and those in training.

During the business period it was decided to quilt a custom quilt and also one for sale on April 23 in the town hall.

The meeting decided that June 10 would be the suitable date for the sectional meeting to be held in Roseneath this year.

The treasurer reported $45.00 on hand. Mrs. K. Hamie, temperance secretary, read an article entitled: "For Promotion of Temperance."

Mrs. L. W. Scott sang as a solo, "There's a Voice in the Wilderness Crying," and Mrs. Andrew Brown read a story entitled, "Others." A Biblical contest was conducted by Mrs. K. Hamie.

After the closing exercises refreshments were served by the hostesses. There was a large attendance.

The May meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. W. Varcoe, with Mrs. L. W. Scott in charge of the study book.

has been instituted to date" may be forthcoming.

Prepared To Act

Mr. Hepburn said the government is keeping a close check on the efforts of the C.I.O. men in northern Ontario and proposed to deal promptly with any difficulties that might develop.

He charged the "paid emissaries" of Mr. Lewis were "out to cause an upheaval." He said they did not care whether they "provoke an economic panic or not so long as they get control of the workmen's pay envelopes and exact their monthly toll."

He said the C.I.O. leaders had been "feeding their hungry, greedy eyes" on Northern Ontario's mines even before the Oshawa strike. "Let me tell Lewis and his gang here and now that they'll never get their greedy paws on the mines of Northern Ontario as long as I am prime minister," he declared.

The Saturday conference in Mr. Hepburn's office broke up with dramatic suddenness. The proceedings were held up at first by a preliminary discussion of the status of the strikers' two representatives and the exact basis on which negotiations were to be carried on.

During this discussion J. L. Cohen, union counsel, who represented the workers with C. H. Millard, Oshawa union president, telephoned Homer Martin at Oshawa from the premier's office and with the premier's knowledge.

Later Cohen left the Premier's office to confer with Mr. Millard and Hugh Thompson, C.I.O. organizer, who had been waiting outside. They decided on another talk with Martin and went to a telephone in a vault off the Premier's waiting room. The union men were directed to the telephone by reporters.

Hepburn Steps In.

Told by his secretary of what they were doing, Premier Hepburn ran out of his office and through a waiting room crowded with reporters and photographers to the partly open door of the vault.

"Who are you phoning?" he demanded. "Are you phoning Martin?" Cohen said they were. The Premier turned around and declared, 'Good afternoon, everybody. There are going to be no negotiations by remote control here."

Later the Premier told reporters he had made it clear he intended to deal only with employees of General Motors and "not with the paid firelings of John L. Lewis." So, he said, he had no alternative but to terminate the proceedings.

He said he would not resume negotiations with Mr. Cohen or Mr. Millard. He would ask employees of the General Motors plant to send men who actually represented their interests. The next move was up to the automobile workers.

Reporters who asked Mr. Cohen whether the C.I.O. was trying to control negotiations directly were told: "Mr. Hepburn was aware I was talking to Mr. Martin and in no way demurred."

"Just why did negotiations break off?" he was asked.

"I don't think there is any explanation for any drastic act at any time except in the mind of the person who acts drastically," he replied.

Premier Hepburn told newspapermen that it had been stated that at the outset of the meeting that H. J. Carmichael, vice-president and general manager, and J. B. Highfield, Oshawa plant manager, represented General Motors, and Messrs. Cohen and Millard the strikers.

Not Representing C.I.O.

The strikers' representatives had stated they had no instructions from and in no way represented the C.I.O. and that the immediate purpose of the conference was to deal with the Oshawa strike situation. Mr. Hepburn claimed.

Difficulties had arisen over the attempts of Mr. Cohen to protect other matters into the preliminary statement. Mr. Cohen had asked to talk to Homer Martin and Mr. Hepburn had left the office.

The Premier continued: "I returned to my office, and was shortly informed that without my permission they were using a telephone in the vault in my office. They entered the vault and no one is allowed there. There are a lot of private and important papers in it.

"I found Cohen placing a long-distance call for Martin. It is clear this was just another Martin-Thompson set-up. I am determined to oppose the inroads of Lewis and his organization, and there was no course open to me but to bid the gentlemen good afternoon."

OBITUARY

MRS. ELIZABETH MARRIN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, April 19—One of Madoc's oldest residents, Mrs. Elizabeth Marrin, passed away on Monday, April 5th, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Walsh, Madoc Township.

Mrs. Marrin, who was 93 years of age, was born in Sloco, the daughter of Thomas Mulrooney and his wife Anne Corrigan. She married Patrick Marrin in 1872, and came as a bride to the old Marrin home near Madoc village, in which her husband was born.

They moved to Marmora in 1911 and celebrated their golden wedding anniversary there. Her husband predeceased her in 1926, when she came to live with her daughter, Mrs. George Walsh. She was a faithful member of Sacred Heart church in Madoc and saw the corner stone of the present Roman Catholic church laid.

One son, J. P. Marrin, predeceased her two years ago. Left to mourn her loss are Mrs. Thomas Hogan, of Windsor; Mrs. George Walsh, of Madoc, and Thomas Marrin, of Detroit.

The funeral was held on Thursday, April 8th, to Sacred Heart Church, Rev. V. H. Meagher officiating. Interment was made in the family plot in Marmora.

MARY ANN WIDDISS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, April 19—Thursday, April 8, marked the passing of what is believed to have been the oldest resident of this community, in the person of Mary Ann Widdiss, who passed peacefully away following a brief illness at her home, situated about one mile east of Millbrook, where the little old lady had lived during almost the whole of a century period.

Of Irish descent, deceased was the daughter of the late Jeffrey Widdiss and his wife, Margaret White, who removed to Canada from their native Ireland during pioneer days, clearing land and constructing a home wherein they raised their family of twelve children, eight sons and four daughters; only one of whom now survives and remains a resident of the homestead.

Small of stature, one marvelled at her tales of incidents when she walked to Emily and Lindsay; at times making the trip to her brother's home and back in as little as one day; and being connected with a millinery shop in Lindsay where she found sale for her hand made hats, she was often obliged to carry parcels of various types and sizes either and sometimes both of the ways.

Gifted with the art of doing needlework, the late Miss Widdiss made most of her own clothing and household necessities, having completed a patched quilt, upon which she was working as late as last October, about which time she ceased to be so active and became more dependent upon her friends for assistance in moving about her home. Ambitious and ever generous, her handwork was widely distributed among her many friends and acquaintances and a niece, Mrs. J. Powell, is in possession of a handsome beaded hand bag made by her aged aunt during the Christmas season and given as a token of remembrance.

Of a strong Christian character, complaints were seldom uttered, she being seemingly content with her home and work; occasional visits from her many friends were perhaps her greatest pleasures.

Receiving baptismal rites at Ida, deceased was brought up in the Methodist church and has been an honored member of the Home Department of the Sunday School of St. Andrew's United church, as was the Ladies' Aid ever since [illegible] organization.

Left to mourn her passing are one brother, George H., youngest of the family of twelve, and a near and intimate member of the household, Miss Mary Widdiss, who has given tender and loving care during many years.

Older residents will remember members of her family previously deceased, namely: William, John, Eliza, George, Sarah, Mary, Ellen, Robert, Edmund, Jeffrey and Jasper.

The funeral held from her late residence, Saturday, April 10, was largely attended and conducted by Reverend A. L. Siscoe, B.A., pastor of St. Andrew's United church. Floral tributes were many and beautiful, and interment was made in the family burial plot, Gardiner's cemetery.

Pallbearers were L. W. Smith, J. L. Larmer, I. W. Rutherley, W. A. O'Brian, H. B. Allen and W. H. Coombe, Millbrook.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Widdiss, Victoria Road; Mr. and Mrs. Allie Fee, Emily; Mr. and Mrs. George Henderson and Mrs. Emma Woods, Omemee; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Trew and son, Alvin, Cavan; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Powell and family, Campbellcroft.

Not dead, oh, not but borne beyond the shadows
Into the full clear light;
Forever done with mist and cloud and tempest,
Where all is calm and bright.
Not silent—just passed out of earthly hearing,
To sing Heaven's sweet, new song.
Not lonely—dearly loved and dearly loving,
Amid the white-robed throng.
No, not forgetful—keeping fond remembrance
Of dear ones left awhile,
And looking gladly to the bright re-union,
With handclasps and with smile.

plans have been completed for formation of entertainment, sick benefit and welfare committees. Financing of these, as well as an athletic program and provision for "free moving pictures" would be requested from international headquarters.

Deny $75,000 Cheque.

At the same time Thompson denied reports that a cheque for $75,000 had been sent from union headquarters. He maintained there was no immediate need for relief funds, adding that aid already had been given locally where necessary. Another company pay day falls on Wednesday, with one week's wages still due the men.

Thompson claimed organization of the strikers is complete. They are supervised by 300 stewards, each responsible for 15 or 20 persons. These stewards, in turn, are responsible to 52 chief stewards. Reports are received hourly, he said, from the 13 gates of the plant and every incident and rumor is made known to local headquarters.

Thompson stated payment for the phone call to Homer Martin from Premier Hepburn's office on Saturday—the call that prompted the Premier to break off negotiations—would be made by cheque for 95 cents from the U.A.W.A.

The organizer also indicated that if Mayor Hall calls a meeting to urge the strikers to return to work, he would address them in reply to the Mayor's appeal.

Oshawa churches yesterday offered prayers for early and peaceful settlement of the strike. The move was general among all congregations.

Since the strike began on April 8, the city has set a 15-year record for law observance, Chief of Police Owen D. Friend said yesterday.

First arrest during the strike period came on Saturday night when a transient walked into the Police Station and asked to be charged with vagrancy. He was sent to the County Jail at Whitby. Not in 15 years have 10 days passed without an arrest.

There have been no drunks on Oshawa's streets, the Chief said. Beverage rooms, beer warehouses and liquor stores have been closed since noon the day of the walkout.

Sunday Purchasing Is Aiding Decline Of Sabbath Observance

Rev. F. A. Lawson Of Lord's Day Alliance Visits City

PREACHES AT TRINITY

People who buy ice-cream, cigarettes or gasoline on a Sunday are partly responsible for the growing decline of Sabbath observance, the Rev. F. A. Lawson, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance told the congregation of Trinity United Church before whom he preached on Sunday morning.

The visitor who was extended a welcome to the pulpit by the Rev. George E. Easton admitted that neither the Lord's Day Alliance Act or any other Act could be enforced unless there was sufficient public sentiment behind it and in this connection he urged the need of educating public opinion and declared that this work might well be started in the Sunday schools.

He expressed the opinion that "Sabbath observance is one of the most important, if not the most important question facing the Christian church. He was satisfied that the Christian church is strong enough to keep the Sabbath observed, if the church wishes to do so.

Mr. Lawson outlined the struggle that had been made to have the Lord's Day Alliance Act placed on the Dominion statutes, and claimed it is the best law of Sabbath observance in the world. He admitted, however, that at the present day the Act is being flaunted and said, "If that were not the case we would close our offices tomorrow as our work would be finished."

The speaker characterized the Sunday sales by druggists of cigarettes, tobacco, ice-cream and soft drinks as being unfair competition, but he said the druggists are not solely to blame for the condition as they have been selling other things besides drugs in regard to public demand.

Mr. Lawson scored Sunday baseball and speaking briefly of the issue that has arisen in Toronto against the Sunday sale of cigarettes, he said, "It is merely a smoke screen, because we intend to go after every type of Sabbath Day violation in an effort to preserve Sunday as a day of rest and worship."

Advancement, preferment, dignities, high friendships and many pleasant adventures of a social or romantic nature are read from the prevailing planetary influences. Business as well as private lives are under excellent auspices for happiness and prosperity.

Those whose birthday it is are in line for promotion, success in employment and in important business projects, as well as for tokens and benefices of very influential personages. But at the same time, rash, tempestuous, impulsive, quarrelsome and reckless behavior must be restrained lest they jeopardize excellent prospects for profit and pleasure.

CAPITOL THEATRE IS CELEBRATING 16TH ANNIVERSARY

Doors First Thrown Open To Public On April 21, 1921—Accommodates 1,100

BIG BIRTHDAY CAKE

The Capitol Theatre is celebrating its sixteenth anniversary this week with a gala program featured by a solid week's showing of the phenomenally successful screen version of "Maytime" starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy and by a huge birthday cake in connection with which a weight guessing prize contest is to be held. The patron guessing the correct weight of the cake or nearest to it will receive a prize the nature of which will be disclosed in the theatre's advertisements during the week.

The announcement that this is the sixteenth anniversary of the opening of the popular theatre will come as a surprise to many folk. It does not seem possible that so much time has elapsed since Peterborough playgoers flocked to the new screen palace to get their first glimpse of its handsomely appointed interior—yet after all it was just three years after the end of the War that the place was completed.

As a matter of fact the Capitol threw its doors open to the public for the first time on the night of April 21, 1921 and the opening was a triumphal success. Despite the fact that Peterborough citizens in company with the people of the whole province were voting that day on whether or not the importation of liquor into Ontario should be permitted, the referendum failed to interfere in the least with the opening of the "theatre beautiful" as the Capitol management rightly called the new amusement place.

Turned Them Away

Although the Capitol accommodates 1100 people the place was completely sold out before six o'clock and hundreds who wanted to be on hand for the premier performance were turned away disappointed. It would be interesting to know how many remember the name of the first feature picture shown on the Capitol screen. It was "Behold My Wife" based on Sir Gilbert Parker's novel "The Savage". The program also included two comedy shorts in one of which Larry Semon was featured and "Topics of the Day" from the Literary Digest. Marjory Stevens, young violinist, contributed several numbers and an eight-piece orchestra under the direction of Herbert Hawthorne was heard to advantage.

It is interesting to note that the Capitol was opened under the direction of J. G. Green, district manager for Paramount, who along with Charles Dentlock, Paramount's electrical expert, were here for the first performance. The first manager of the theater was Edward Abbey.

At the time of the official opening there were four other theatres in Peterborough showing pictures, the Regent, the Empire, the Allen and the Grand Opera House, the latter in the intervals between road shows. Of these only the Regent is left in the active list.

Many Feature Pictures

The second picture is probably better remembered than the first. It was Fannie Hurst's "Humoresque" and scored a tremendous hit, the fore-runner of a long list of notable screen productions that have delighted Capitol audiences in the sixteen years that have passed. How long that is could of course be accurately figured but in the absence of official statistics it can be estimated roughly that in the 832 weeks the theatre has been entertaining Peterborough playgoers something in the neighborhood of 2000 feature pictures have been shown, along with hundreds of newsreels and comedies. The Capitol has kept abreast of the times. It was among the first to install sound equipment and whenever a new development of importance in regard to equipment has been brought to the front the Capitol management has always been quick to take advantage of the invention and thus improve the quality of its programs.

The present staff of the Capitol consists of A. E. Cauley, manager; G. D. Beavis, assistant manager; Margaret Allen, cashier; "Teddy" Crowe, maintenance; Harry Bistow, chief projectionist; Emile Baumer, assistant projectionist; Tom Stenton, relief projectionist; Robert Naples, doorman; Joe O'Toole, chief usher; Johnny Watson, Phil Bistow, Stuart Cauley, Jack Kennedy, Morris Dixon, ushers.

"Maytime" will be shown all this week with three showings a day, while the birthday cake, baked by Hooper and twenty-four inches high, with sixteen candles to do honor to the anniversary, will be on view at every performance. Every visitor to the Capitol during the week will get a chance to estimate the weight of the big cake.

CHOIR PRESENTED HANDEL'S MESSIAH

Fine Presentation Is Given By The Choir Of Murray Street

Many expressions of congratulation were showered on the members of the choir of Murray Street Baptist Church, and their director, Arthur Collison, L.R.S.M., A.D.C.M., at the close of the fine presentation in the church on Sunday evening of portions of Handel's famous oratorio, "The Messiah."

The choir, which sings at all times with a quality of fine precision and well-harmonized, rounded tone, excelled itself in its presentation of the immortal music of this well-known composition, and was augmented by a number of visiting voices, as well as guest soloists.

Choral selections included "Surely He hath Borne our Griefs", "Behold the Lamb of God", "And the Glory of the Lord", while the final choral number was the "Gloria in Excelsis" from Mozart's Twelfth Mass.

Soloists were Miss Margaret Kitchen, singing "He was Despised and Rejected"; Mrs. L. R. Croombridge, "How Beautiful are the Feet"; Miss Phyllis Rome, "He Shall Feed His Flock like a Shepherd"; Adam Hawley, "Why do the Nations", and Arthur Phillips, "Comfort Ye", and "But Thou Didst Not Leave his Soul in Hell."

In keeping with the musical theme of the evening's service, the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe gave a sermonette on "Music's Message."

National Life Of Canada Is Threatened By Nazi Paganism

Collapse Of Western Civilization Forecast By Move Continues

HITLER AN ANTI-CHRIST

The germ of Nazi paganism is making its way into the national life of Canada and the United States, the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr declared in his sermon on Sunday night at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. He saw the collapse of western civilization if it continued to grow.

"I declare we are in grave danger of becoming paganized in this country," Dr. Barr said. The inclination to substitute mere humanitarianism for Christianity, which he said was growing in churches today, and to discuss social and economical problems in place of the word of Christ is another form of paganism, he said. "When we find the church turning over its services to the discussion of every possible 'ism' under the sun, there is paganism."

Charging Hitler is an anti-Christ in many particulars, Dr. Barr said that in Germany "the Divine authority of Jesus Christ has been supplanted by the earthly authority of a dictator." He stated he had no hesitation in saying that if the influence which Germany has had one Christian religion since the Reformation continues in the future, we will be faced with the fact that Christianity is on the wane. If the ideas propounded in Germany today are going to spread, the Christian church will fall. He saw in that country the first signs of the collapse of the entire nation.

Outlining the importance of Germany in the growth of Protestantism the speaker scored the new official religion, calling it "a diluted Christianity which leaves Jesus Christ out of the picture and substitutes the old Nordic gods of force." The nation has changed its God, he declared.

The Rambling REPORTERS

AN ALBINO FROG.

Out in the country recently Allan Macnab, 424 Weller street, came across an Albino frog of such unusual markings and appearance that he brought it home with him. A grass frog, the little reptile, instead of having the regulation green body with black spots, has a white body with cream-colored spots and pink eyes. The pink eyes, Mr. Macnab believes, "are indication of the true albino."—H. R.

Dogs Continue To Run At Large So Now Housekeeper Is Summoned

Although he gave a written undertaking for twelve dogs to be humanely destroyed, when he appeared on an adjourned charge of permitting dogs to run at large contrary to provisions of a Dogs Township by-law, John Devereo, 78-year-old peddler and a Miss Williams described as the aged man's housekeeper, would not permit Inspector Thomas Johnston and his assistant to touch any of the dogs when they visited the premises recently, it is alleged. As a result Miss Williams is to appear on a summons charging her with permitting dogs to run at large. She was served with the summons by Provincial Constable David Surrester and is to appear before the magistrate on Wednesday.

OBITUARY

SISTER M. REGINA.

After nearly half a century of devoted service in St. Joseph's Community, Peterborough, Sister M. Regina, (Ellen Donoghue) died early Saturday morning, April 17, at St. Joseph's Hospital. During these long years, she served the Community with fidelity and loyalty. As a teacher she filled positions in the Separate schools in Port Arthur, Fort William, Lindsay, Cobourg, and Peterborough. In Port Arthur, especially, she spent many happy and successful years at the work she loved. Her years of ill-health were as lovingly accepted and offered for souls. In such days of adversity, Sister Regina acquired an almost constant habit of ejaculatory prayer. When called suddenly to her final recoloning, this beautiful habit sustained her, and her last audible words were "Jesus, Mary, Joseph."

Sister Regina was the daughter of the late Mr. John Donoghue and Ellen Grogan, of Ennismore. She is survived by four brothers: M. S. Donoghue, Peterborough, John and Edward of Ennismore, and Mark of Calgary; four sisters, Mrs. Mary Killen, Mrs. D. A. Crough and Mrs. Wilfrid Carroll, all of Ennismore, and Mrs. Battersby of California. Rev. J. Q. Killen, Rockyford, Alta., Rev. Sister St. Wilfrid, St. Joseph's Hospital, Parry Sound, is a niece, Rev. Mother St. Robert, Mount St. Joseph, Rev. Sr. St. Mark, St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, and Rev. Sr. Miriam of St. Joseph's Convent, Sault Ste. Marie, are cousins. An aunt, Mrs. Ann Donoghue, who is in her ninetieth year, is among the relatives left to mourn the deceased.

The Funeral Mass for Sister Regina took place at nine a.m., Monday, April 19, in St. Joseph's Chapel, Mount St. Joseph. His Excellency, Most Rev. Denis O'Connor, D.D. LL.D., pontificated, assisted by Rev. C. J. Carroll, Deacon, and Rev. E. Grant, Sub-Deacon. Rev. P. Costello, P. P., Hastings, was High Priest. Rev. C. Corkery and Rev. J. V. Masterson, D.D., were Deacons of Honour. Present in the sanctuary were: Rev. J. J. O'Brien, Pastor of Sacred Heart Church, Very Rev. Dean O'Sullivan, Pastor, Immaculate Conception Church, Rev. J. V. McAuley, P.P., Campbellford, Rev. V. Gillogly, P.P., Ennismore, Rev. C. Moloney, and Rev. C. Begley, Peterborough.

Interment took place in St. Peter's Cemetery. Rev. C. Moloney, a cousin of the deceased, officiated, assisted by Rev. J. V. McAuley, Rev. V. Gillogly, and Rev. C. Carroll. Six nephews of the late Sister acted as pall-bearers: Dominic Donoghue, Tim Donoghue, Joseph Kennedy, Mark Kennedy, Stafford Killen and John Killen. R.I.P.

"DOCTRINE OF ATONEMENT."

"Doctrine of Atonement" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon for First Church of Christian Science, Peterborough, on Sunday. The Golden Text was, "John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sins of the world." (John 1: 29). Selections from the Bible included the following from John 17: 1, 11: "These words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee: And now I am no more in the world, but these are in the world, and I come to thee. Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following from page 19: "Atonement is the exemplification of man's unity with God, whereby man reflects divine Truth, Life, and Love. Jesus of Nazareth taught and demonstrated man's oneness with the Father, and for this we owe him endless homage. He did life's work aright not only in justice to himself, but in mercy to mortals,—to show them how to do theirs, but not to do it for them nor to relieve them of a single responsibility."

PLANS COMPLETED FOR Y.W. PAGEANT

Over 300 Girls Will Take Places In Annual Festival In Opera House

Final plans for the annual gymnasium pageant were reviewed at the April meeting of the Y.W.C.A. Board of Directors. The pageant will be held at the Grand Opera House, Friday, May 7th. Miss Littlefield, physical director, who capably directs this large production, outlined the delightful fairy story of the magic garden which is the setting for the dances of the second part of the program. The grand finale features the "Coronation of the Flowers," a beautiful and patriotic closing with all the classes, over 300 members, producing a beautiful garden of baby pinks and blue bells, pansies, roses, sunflowers, daffodils, corn - flowers, poppies, daisies, sweet William, Jack-in-the-Pulpit and thistles with butterflies and woodpeckers visiting the garden. The classes are all practicing twice a week. Costumes are being finished by the volunteer church groups, and this year are more intricate, delicate and colorful than ever before as the flowers blossom under the capable designers and sewers. Artistic posters have been made by the "Y" artists and gym members are busy distributing dodgers, placing pennants in store windows and selling tickets.

Mrs. F. M. Sommerville, convenor of the Educational Committee announced a lecture on "Egypt" to be given by F. J. A. Morris, Monday. Each year Mr. Morris kindly gives one of his popular literary lectures, the proceeds being for the Y.W.C.A. foreign work.

Outlines of the North American Y.W.C.A. conference being held at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, April 28, 29 and 30, were reviewed by Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, president. It is expected Peterborough Association will be well represented. A general secretaries' refresher course precedes the area conference which includes Mexico, British West Indies, Newfoundland, U.S.A., and Canada.

The swimming pool committee announced the pool would be ready to open April 26.

Plans for the annual meeting of the Association were considered and it was decided to invite Miss Margaret Constable, one of the Y.W.C.A. members representing the Canadian Association at the youth congress, Geneva, last summer to be guest speaker. The date of the meeting was set for May 20.

Other committee reports included reviews of the past months' activities. The newly-organized Girls' Council had met with Miss E. Law of National staff, March 12. The Council had sponsored an Easter play, the annual membership party and a rummage sale. Seven Peterborough members attended the Y.W.C.A. girls' conference at Hamilton. The various club programs included visits to the Examiner Printing, the Post Office, a series of beauty talks by Madam Merriam, cooking, sewing and social evenings, the junior clubs being entertained by the Jeanette Scott Chapter I.O.D.E. The household workers' course had provided exceptionally helpful training and will be held again next fall. The current events lecture series, leadership training school, Red Cross home nursing and child study courses and the Y.W.C.A. membership tea were all successful educational programs of the month.

Gymnasium classes had enjoyed social events in connection with St. Patrick's Day, the junior classes being guests of the losing classes in the basketball tournament. Badminton and basketball provided extra recreation. The basketball banquet and dance are scheduled for Friday, April 23.

Easter vesper services in the residence had as guest speakers Rev. M. C. Parr and Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe.

44 CANDIDATES ARE CONFIRMED AT ST. JOHN'S

Most Rev. Archbishop Owen Urges Members To Think Of Diocese As Family

TWO SERVICES

Forty-four candidates were confirmed by the Most Reverend Derwyn Trevor Owen, Primate of the Church of England in Canada and Archbishop of Toronto at two largely attended services at St. John's Church on Sunday morning and afternoon.

Of the total number confirmed thirty-five boys and girls received the "laying on of hands" at the morning service in the presence of a congregation that sorely taxed the seating capacity of the historic old Parish church. They were presented to the Archbishop by the rector, the Rev. W. F. Robertson, while his assistant, the Rev. R. T. F. Brain, acted as the Archbishop's Chaplain.

At another service in the afternoon, nine adults were received into full membership of the church.

In a brief sermon which he delivered just prior to the first of the two confirmation services, Archbishop Owen spoke of the meaning of the symbolism connected with the service, and stated, "The symbol of the laying on of hands is the outward and visible reality of God."

He told the candidates that confirmation is a service of decision in which those who were presented for confirmation had tried to face up to the problem of life and had decided for himself or herself that there is a God and that they would follow Him.

"Confirmation is their decision to stand on the side of God and to seek the power of the Holy Spirit from day to day," the Most Reverend speaker declared.

He explained that the confirmation service is a service of two distinct parts. First, he said, there is the promise which the candidate makes towards God, and secondly there is the "laying on of hands" which symbolizes God's attitude towards those who believe in Him and strive to serve Him.

The Archbishop commended the members of the congregation on having raised the full allotment last year for the work of the Church of England in Canada and overseas, and he hoped they would continue to do so during the present year. He asked them to think of the Diocese as a family and themselves as a member of that family.

VIOLET DAY IS MOST SUCCESSFUL

Humane Society Reports Biggest Returns In Several Years

The most successful Violet Tag Day in years rewarded the energetic efforts of committee and taggers alike on Saturday, when the local branch of the Humane Society made its annual appeal to the public. A total sum of $348 was realized, registering an advance of $52 over last year's total.

Among the junior taggers, Jimmy Shields of Bolivar street realized the largest amount, winning a year's subscription to "Animal Life" as a reward. As Jimmy is already a subscriber to the official organ of the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, he generously turned over his prize to his companion-tagger, Earl Casey.

Little Jane Abbott, only seven years old on her last birthday, was the youngest tagger.

Members of the committee at headquarters included the convenor of tag-day, Mrs. E. S. Marsh, also Mrs. S. O. Shields, convenor of rosettes; Mrs. C. A. Nelson, Mrs. W. G. Howden and Mrs. R. Abbott, supply convenors; Mrs. W. A. Young, convenor of corsage and motor bouquets.

Dogs who added to the interest of the tag-day and helped in procuring funds for less-fortunate animals, were "Mike", owned by Jane Abbott; "Toy" owned by Winifred Powell; "Rover", owned by Dorrell Heffernan, and "Biddy", owned by June Shield.

Sunday Purchasing Is Aiding Decline Of Sabbath Observance

Rev. F. A. Lawson Of Lord's Day Alliance Visits City

PREACHES AT TRINITY

People who buy ice-cream, cigarettes or gasoline on a Sunday are partly responsible for the growing decline of Sabbath observance, the Rev. F. A. Lawson, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance told the congregation of Trinity United Church before whom he preached on Sunday morning.

The visitor who was extended a welcome to the pulpit by the Rev. George E. Easton admitted that neither the Lord's Day Alliance Act or any other Act could be enforced unless there was sufficient public sentiment behind it and in this connection he urged the need of educating public opinion and declared that this work might well be started in the Sunday schools.

He expressed the opinion that "Sabbath observance is one of the most important, if not the most important question facing the Christian church. He was satisfied that the Christian church is strong enough to keep the Sabbath observed, if the church wishes to do so.

Mr. Lawson outlined the struggle that had been made to have the Lord's Day Alliance Act placed on the Dominion statutes, and claimed it is the best law of Sabbath observance in the world. He admitted, however, that at the present day the Act is being flaunted and said, "If that were not the case we would close our offices tomorrow as our work would be finished."

The speaker characterized the Sunday sales by druggists of cigarettes, tobacco, ice-cream and soft drinks as being unfair competition, but he said the druggists are not solely to blame for the condition as they have been selling other things besides drugs in regard to public demand.

Mr. Lawson scored Sunday baseball and speaking briefly of the issue that has arisen in Toronto against the Sunday sale of cigarettes, he said, "It is merely a smoke screen, because we intend to go after every type of Sabbath Day violation in an effort to preserve Sunday as a day of rest and worship."

For Tuesday, April 20

Advancement, preferment, dignities, high friendships and many pleasant adventures of a social or romantic nature are read from the prevailing planetary influences. Business as well as private lives are under excellent auspices for happiness and prosperity.

Those whose birthday it is are in line for promotion, sucess in employment and in important business projects, as well as for tokens and benefices of very influential personages. But at the same time, rash, tempestuous, impulsive, quarrelsome and reckless behavior must be restrained lest they jeopardize excellent prospects for profit and pleasure.

CAPITOL THEATRE IS CELEBRATING 16TH ANNIVERSARY

Doors First Thrown Open To Public On April 21, 1921—Accommodates 1,100

BIG BIRTHDAY CAKE

The Capitol Theatre is celebrating its sixteenth anniversary this week with a gala program featured by a solid week's showing of the phenomenally successful screen version of "Maytime" starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy and by a huge birthday cake in connection with which a weight guessing prize contest is to be held. The patron guessing the correct weight of the cake or nearest to it will receive a prize the nature of which will be disclosed in the theatre's advertisements during the week.

The announcement that this is the sixteenth anniversary of the opening of the popular theatre will come as a surprise to many folk. It does not seem possible that so much time has elapsed since Peterborough playgoers flocked to the new screen palace to get their first glimpse of its beautiful appointments and, as yet after all it was just three years after the end of the War that the place was completed.

As a matter of fact the Capitol threw its doors open to the public for the first time on the night of April 21, 1921 and the opening was a triumphal success. Despite the fact that Peterborough citizens in company with the people of the whole province were voting that day on whether or not the importation of liquor into Ontario should be permitted, the referendum failed to interfere in the least with the opening of the "theatre beautiful" as the Capitol management rightly dalled the new amusement place.

Turned Them Away

Although the Capitol accommodates 1100 people the place was completely sold out before six o'clock and hundreds who wanted to be on hand for the premier performance were turned away disappointed. It would be interesting to know how many remember the name of the first feature picture shown on the Capitol screen. It was "Behold My Wife" based on Sir Gilbert Parker's novel "The Savage". The program also included two comedy shorts in one of which Larry Semon was featured and "Topics of the Day" from the Literary Digest. Marjory Stevens, young violinist, contributed several numbers and an eight-piece orchestra under the direction of Herbert Hawthorne was heard to advantage.

It is interesting to note that the Capitol was opened under the direction of J. G. Green, district manager for Paramount, who along with Charles Denlock, Paramount's electrical expert, were here for the first performance. The first manager of the theater was Edward Abbey.

At the time of the official opening there were four other theatres in Peterborough showing pictures, the Regent, the Empire, the Allen and the Grand Opera House, the latter in the intervals between road shows. Of these only the Regent is left in the active list.

Many Feature Pictures

The second picture is probably better remembered than the first. It was Fannie Hurst's "Humoresque" and scored a tremendous hit, the fore-runner of a long list of notable screen productions that have delighted Capitol audiences in the sixteen years that have passed. How long that list is could of course be accurately figured but in the absence of official statistics it can be estimated roughly that in the 832 weeks the theatre has been entertaining Peterborough playgoers something in the neighborhood of 3500 feature pictures have been shown, along with hundreds of newsreels and comedies. The Capitol has kept abreast of the times. It was among the first to install sound equipment and whenever a new development of importance in regard to equipment has been brought to the front the Capitol management has always been quick to take advantage of the invention and thus improve the quality of its programs.

The present staff of the Capitol consists of A. E. Cauley, manager; G. D. Beavis, assistant manager; Margaret Allen, cashier; "Teddy" Crowe, maintenance; Harry Rimes, chief projectionist; Emile Baumer, assistant projectionist; Tom Stenton, relief projectionist; Robert Boyter will begin his pastorate in Peterborough on May 16.

The new pastor at Park Street has been in Thorold church for six years. He is a graduate in theology of the Toronto Bible College and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary of Louisville, Ky. Since his ordination in 1926 he has served the churches in Walkerton and Thorold.

CHOIR PRESENTED HANDEL'S MESSIAH

Fine Presentation Is Given By The Choir Of Murray Street

Many expressions of congratulation were showered on the members of the choir of Murray Street Baptist Church, and their director, Arthur Collison, L.R.S.M., A.D.C.M., at the close of the fine presentation in the church on Sunday evening of portions of Handel's famous oratorio, "The Messiah."

The choir, which sings at all times with a quality of fine precision and well-harmonized, rounded tone, excelled itself in its presentation of the immortal music of this well-known composition, and was augmented by a number of visiting voices, as well as guest soloists.

Choral selections included "Surely He hath Borne our Griefs", "Behold the Lamb of God", "And the Glory of the Lord", while the final choral number was the "Gloria in Excelsis" from Mozart's Twelfth Mass.

Soloists were Miss Margaret Kitchen, singing "He was Despised and Rejected"; Mrs. L. R. Groombridge, "How Beautiful are the Feet"; Miss Phyllis Rome, "He Shall Feed His Flock like a Shepherd"; Adam Hawley, "Why do the Nations"; and Arthur Phillips, "Comfort Ye", and "But Thou Didst Not Leave his Soul in Hell."

In keeping with the musical theme of the evening's program, the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe gave a sermonette on "Music's Message."

sent to him a short time after. Mr. Boyter will begin his pastorate in Peterborough on May 16.

The new pastor at Park Street has been in Thorold church for six years. He is a graduate in theology of the Toronto Bible College and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary of Louisville, Ky. Since his ordination in 1926 he has served the churches in Walkerton and Thorold.

National Life Of Canada Is Threatened By Nazi Paganism

Collapse Of Western Civilization Forecast By Move Continues

HITLER AN ANTI-CHRIST

The germ of Nazi paganism is making its way into the national life of Canada and the United States, the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr declared in his sermon on Sunday night at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. He saw the collapse of western civilization if it continued to grow.

"I declare we are in grave danger of becoming paganized in this country," Dr. Barr said. The inclination to substitute mere humanitarian ism for Christianity, which he said was growing in churches today, and to discuss social and economical problems in place of the word of Christ is another form of paganism, he said. "When we find the church turning over its services to the discussion of every possible 'ism' under the sun, there is paganism."

Charging Hitler is an anti-Christ in many particulars, Dr. Barr said that in Germany "the Divine authority of Jesus Christ has been supplanted by the earthly authority of a dictator." He stated he had no hesitation in saying that if the influence which Germany has had one Christian religion since the Reformation continues in the future, we will be faced with the fact that Christianity is on the wane. If the ideas propounded in Germany today are going to spread, the Christian church will fall. He saw in that country the first signs of the collapse of the entire nation.

Outlining the importance of Germany in the growth of Protestantism the speaker scored the new official religion, calling it "a diluted Christianity which leaves Jesus Christ out of the picture and substitutes the old Nordic gods of force." The nation has changed its God, he declared.

The Rambling REPORTERS

AN ALBINO FROG.

Out in the country recently Allan Macnab, 494 Weller street, came across an Albino frog of such unusual markings and appearance that he brought it home with him. A grass frog, the little reptile, instead of having the regulation green body with black spots, has a white body with cream-colored spots and pink eyes. The pink eyes, Mr. Macnab believes, "are indication of the true albino."—H. R.

OBITUARY

SISTER M. REGINA.

After nearly half a century of devoted service in St. Joseph's Community, Peterborough, Sister M. Regina, (Ellen Donoghue) died early Saturday morning, April 17, at St. Joseph's Hospital. During these long years, she served the Community with fidelity and loyalty. As a teacher she filled positions in the Separate schools in Port Arthur, Fort William, Lindsay, Cobourg, and Peterborough. In Port Arthur, especially, she spent many happy and successful years at the work she loved. Her years of ill-health were as lovingly accepted and offered for souls. In such days of adversity, Sister Regina acquired an almost constant habit of ejaculatory prayer. When called suddenly to her final reckoning, this beautiful habit sustained her, and her last audible words were "Jesus, Mary, Joseph."

Sister Regina was the daughter of the late Mr. John Donoghue, and Ellen Crough, of Ennismore. She is survived by four brothers: M. S. Donoghue, Peterborough, John and Edward of Ennismore, and Marz of Calgary; four sisters: Mrs. Mary Killen, Mrs. D. A. Crough and Mrs. Wilfrid Carroll, all of Ennismore, and Mrs. Battersby of California. Rev. J. Q. Killen, Rockyford, Alta., is a nephew, Rev. Sister St. Wilfrid, St. Joseph's Hospital, Parry Sound, is a niece, Rev. Mother St. Robert, Mount St. Joseph, Rev. Sr. St. Mark, St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, and Rev. Sr. Miriam of St. Joseph's Convent, Sault Ste. Marie, are cousins. An aunt, Mrs. Ann Donoghue, who is in her ninetieth year, is among the relatives left to mourn the deceased.

The Funeral Mass for Sister Regina took place at nine a.m., Monday, April 19, in St. Joseph's Chapel, Mount St. Joseph. His Excellency, Most Rev. Denis O'Connor, D.D., LL.D., pontificated, assisted by Rev. C. J. Carroll, Deacon, and Rev. E. Grant, Sub-Deacon. Rev. P. Costello, P. P., Hastings, was High Priest. Rev. C. Corkery and Rev. J. V. Masterson, D.D., were Deacons of Honour. Present in the sanctuary were: Rev. J. J. O'Brien, Pastor of Sacred Heart Church, Very Rev. Dean O'Sullivan, Pastor, Immaculate Conception Church, Rev. J. V. McAuley, P.P., Campbellford, Rev. V. Gillogly, P.P., Ennismore, Rev. C. Moloney, and Rev. C. Begley, Peterborough.

Interment took place in St. Peter's Cemetery. Rev. C. Moloney, a cousin of the deceased, officiated, assisted by Rev. J. V. McAuley, Rev. V. Gillogly, and Rev. C. Carroll. Six nephews of the late Sister acted as pall-bearers: Dominic Donoghue, Tim Donoghue, Joseph Kennedy, Mark Kennedy, Stafford Killen and John Killen. R.I.P.

Dogs Continue To Run At Large So Now Housekeeper Is Summoned

Although he gave a written undertaking for twelve dogs to be humanely destroyed, when he appeared on an adjourned charge of permitting dogs to run at large contrary to provisions of a Douro Township by-law, John Deremo, 76-year-old peddler and a Miss Williams described as the aged man's housekeeper, would not permit inspector Thomas Johnston and his assistant to touch any of the dogs when they visited the premises recently. It is alleged. As a result Miss Williams is to appear on a summons charging her with permitting dogs to run at large. She was served with the summons by Provincial Constable David Silvester and is to appear before the magistrate on Wednesday.

VIOLET DAY SUCCESSFUL.

The Violet Day on Saturday under the auspices of the Peterborough Humane Society was a great success, yielding a total of close to $300, the best recorded by the Society in several years. The girls in charge of the campaign worked faithfully and were rewarded with the best results for some time.

"DOCTRINE OF ATONEMENT."

"Doctrine of Atonement" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon for First Church of Christian Science, Peterborough, on Sunday. The Golden Text was, "John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, 'Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sins of the world.'" (John 1:29). Selections from the Bible included the following from John 17: 1, 11: "These words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee; And now I am no more in the world, but these are in the world and I come to thee. Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following from page 16: "Atonement is the exemplification of man's unity with God, whereby man reflects divine Truth, Life, and Love. Jesus of Nazareth taught and demonstrated man's oneness with the Father, and for this we owe him endless homage. . . He did life's work aright not only in justice to himself, but in mercy to mortals,—to show them how to do theirs, but not to do it for them nor to relieve them of a single responsibility."

44 CANDIDATES ARE CONFIRMED AT ST. JOHN'S

TWO SERVICES

Forty-four candidates were confirmed by the Most Reverend Derwyn Trevor Owen, Primate of the Church of England in Canada and Archbishop of Toronto at two largely attended services at St. John's Church on Sunday morning and afternoon.

Of the total number confirmed thirty-five boys and girls received the "laying on of hands" at the morning service in the presence of a congregation that sorely taxed the seating capacity of the historic old Parish church. They were presented to the Archbishop by the rector, the Rev. W. P. Robertson, while his assistant, the Rev. R. T. F. Brain, acted as the Archbishop's Chaplain.

At another service in the afternoon, nine adults were received into full membership of the church.

In a brief sermon which he delivered just prior to the first of the two confirmation services, Archbishop Owen spoke of the meaning of the symbolism connected with the service, and stated, "The symbol of the laying on of hands is the outward and visible reality of God."

He told the candidates that confirmation is a service of decision in which those who were presented for confirmation had tried to face up to the problem of life and had decided for himself or herself that there is a God and that they would follow Him.

"Confirmation is their decision to stand on the side of God and to seek the power of the Holy Spirit from day to day," the Most Reverend speaker declared.

He explained that the confirmation service is a service of two distinct parts. First, he said, there is the promise which the candidate makes towards God, and secondly there is the "laying on of hands" which symbolizes God's attitude towards those who believe in Him and strive to serve Him.

The Archbishop commended the members of the congregation on having raised the full allotment last year for the work of the Church of England in Canada and overseas, and he hoped they would continue to do so during the present year. He asked them to think of the Diocese as a family and themselves as a member of that family.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR Y.W. PAGEANT

Over 300 Girls Will Take Places In Annual Festival In Opera House

Final plans for the annual gymnasium pageant were reviewed at the April meeting of the Y.W.C.A. Board of Directors. The pageant will be held at the Grand Opera House, Friday, May 7th. Miss Littlefield, physical director, who capably directs this large production, outlined the delightful fairy story of the magic garden which is the setting for the dances of the second part of the program. The grand finale features the "Coronation of the Flowers," a beautiful and patriotic closing with all the classes, over 300 members, producing a beautiful garden of baby pinks and blue bells, pansies, roses, sunflowers, daffodils, corn flowers, poppies, daisies, sweet William, Jack-in-the-Pulpit and thisties with butterflies and woodpeckers visiting the garden. The classes are all practicing twice a week. Costumes are being finished by the volunteer church groups, and this year are more intricate, delicate and colorful than ever before as the flowers blossom under the capable designers and sewers. Artistic posters have been made by the "Y" artists and gym members are busy distributing dodgers, placing reminders in store windows, and selling tickets.

Mrs. F. M. Sommerville, convenor of the Educational Committee, announced a lecture on "Scott" to be given by F. A. Morris, Monday, April 26th. Last year Mr. Morris kindly gave one of his popular literary lectures, the proceeds being for the Y.W.C.A. foreign work.

Outlines of the North American Y.W.C.A. conference being held at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, April 29, 29 and 30, were reviewed by Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, president. It is expected Peterborough Association will be well represented. A general secretaries' refresher course precedes the area conference which includes Mexico, British West Indies, Newfoundland, U.S.A. and Canada.

The swimming pool committee announced the pool would be ready to open April 26.

Plans for the annual meeting of the Association were considered and it was decided to invite Miss Margaret Constable, one of the Y.W.C.A. members representing the Canadian Association at the youth congress, Geneva, last summer to be guest speaker. The date of the meeting was set for May 20.

Other committee reports, included reviews of the past months activities. The newly-organized Girls' Council had met with Miss E. Law of National staff, March 12. The Council had sponsored an Easter play, the annual membership party and a rummage sale. Seven Peterborough members attended the Y.W.C.A. girls' conference at Hamilton. The various club programs included visits to the Examiner Printing, the Post Office, a series of beauty talks by Madam Merriam, cooking, sewing and social evenings, the junior clubs being entertained by the Jeanette Scott Chapter I.O.D.E. The household workers' course had provided exceptionally helpful training and will be held again next fall. The current events lecture series, leadership training school, Red Cross home nursing and child study courses and the Y.W.C.A. membership tea were all successful educational programs of the month.

Gymnastics classes had enjoyed social events in connection with St. Patrick's Day, the junior classes being guests of the losing classes in the gym members' campaign. Badminton and basketball provided extra recreation. The basketball banquet and dance are scheduled for Friday, April 23.

Easter vesper services in the residence had as guest speakers, Rev. M. C. Pate and Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe.

VIOLET DAY IS MOST SUCCESSFUL

Humane Society Reports Biggest Returns In Several Years

The most successful Violet Tag Day in years rewarded the energetic efforts of committee and taggers alike on Saturday, when the local branch of the Humane Society made its annual appeal to the public. A total sum of $349 was realized, registering an advance of $52 over last year's total.

Among the junior taggers, Jimmy Shields of Bolivar street realized the largest amount, winning a year's subscription to "Animal Life" as a reward. As Jimmy is already a subscriber to the official organ of the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, he generously turned over his prize to his companion-tagger, Earl Casey.

Little Jane Abbott, only seven years old on her last birthday, was the youngest tagger.

WHITE SOX ARE SMOOTH WORKING BALL MACHINE

Club Composed Of Cast-Off Players Finished Third In 1936

SEWELL BIG HELP

By BILL BRAUCHER

CHICAGO, April 10.—The White Sox are wonderful.

Here is a ball club with the kind of pitching and hitting that go with a fifth place team, yet the White Sox hauled themselves right up into the No. 3 hole last year, a game behind the Tigers, and what's more Manager Jimmy Dykes says they'll do it again, or better than that.

You wonder what's holding 'em up? So do I, but for purposes of this article I have to guess, and my guess is Dykes.

He Just Picks 'Em Up

Dykes has taken castoffs from other teams, gangling rejects, has-beens, came-closers, good-field-no-hitters, and has made ball players out of them. What's more he has made them play together with the same team work and unity shown by some clubs supposed to be vastly superior to the Hose.

Look over his pitching staff. Clint Brown was sent away by the Indians. Bill Dietrich was a fellow Connie Mack couldn't see. Merritt Cain was disapproved by both Mack and Rogers Hornsby. Lefty Lee finally was given up by Cleveland.

Catcher Luke Sewell was believed washed up at Cleveland four years ago, but that proved to be the Indians' biggest mistake.

Infielder Minter Hayes was ordered to leave Washington, and overstuffed Henry Bonura, first baseman, was ridden on a rail out of Cleveland. The Pirates gave Tony Piet plenty of pavement.

Last year the Yankees finally despaired of Fred (Dixie) Walker and sent him along to join the Dykes museum. A first string catcher, a first string outfielder, two regular infielders and three pitchers—are players other ball clubs regarded as merely people in the way, yet Dykes uses them as vital cogs in a ball club that clicks.

As a leader who can waken the spirit of hustle in a team, Dykes is without a master in the major leagues, and with the collection of athletes now at his command, may finish again in the first division, though it would be rash to pick the club better than fourth.

Rigney May Stay

His starting pitchers will be Ted Lyons, Vernon Kennedy, Johnny Whitehead, Monte Stratton, Bill Dietrich and Merritt Cain. Present plans call for Lee and Brown to do relief service, but Dykes is considering making a starter out of Lee, who has all the stuff in the world and needs only confidence to keep him going. Johnny Rigney, brought back from St. Paul, has been impressive in training camp games and may hang on.

Bonura is back at first, Hayes or Piet at second, Luke Appling at short and either Dykes, Steve Mesner or Piet at third. Mesner was All-Western American Legion third baseman when he was 14 years old, and he is only 19 now, but packs plenty of promise. He hasn't looked well in the training games, but he starred for Los Angeles during the last two years. Dykes is 39, but still has a flock of ball games in his system, and the team functions better when he is out there himself.

The outfield will be composed of Ray Radcliffe, Walker and Larry Rosenthal. Radcliff makes up for fielding deficiencies by slaying the ball. Walker's arm is coming back, they say, and if that's true, the Sox have picked up a fine ball player. Rosenthal is a youngster who came up from St. Paul last summer and made a good showing. Besides these there are Mule Haas and Mike Kreevich, excellent reserves.

Sewell Great Help

Sewell is 36 years old, but is one of the smartest catchers in the league. He should be available for more than 100 games, which is good news to the pitchers.

Whether the club goes to the top or not, the Sox are favorites in this man's town. Can't they take those Cubs, though!

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

The days are getting warmer,
And the snow has left the lawn,
You can see the silver dew-drops
On the bright, green grass at dawn;
There's a kind of hopeful feeling
And we realise it more,
As the bowling days draw nearer
When we ope' the club-house door.

Today is Monday, April 19th and to a lot of people it just means Monday, April 19th—but to those of us who are interested in summer sports it means that the time is slowly but surely coming around when we will be able to enjoy our favorite pastime.

But as far as lawn bowling is concerned there is a tremendous amount of work to be done yet before we ever think of tossing our bowls down the green, and so today we will confine our remarks to the most important branch of our club, and that is the membership committee or the organization of the rinks.

The chairman of the membership committee—Geo. Gimblett,—has his hands full filling and completing the rinks—a job that is tough anytime — but this can be done, and done thoroughly with the fullest co-operation of all appointed skips—and if we are to bowl at all, and if we are to make our bowling club a success it is up to you and I, whether we are skips or not, to help out this committee and by so doing not only help the club out show that your heart and soul are behind this good old game of bowls.

If you are short a man or two or if you know of any person who is likely to bowl, if you will kindly pass this information to Chairman Geo. Gimblett, we feel sure that he and his committee will be only too glad to co-operate with you . . and just in passing we might point out that May 1st is the date set as the last day for receiving rinks . . . we will have more to say on this subject in a day or two.

The annual meeting of the Central Ontario Lawn Bowling Association will be held in the club-rooms, on McDonnel street, on Thursday evening, April 22, at 8 o'clock . . Delegates from all over this district will be present and we would also like to see a large local representation present . . This is a very important meeting and on behalf of the president, J. D. Fitzpatrick, we are again asking the local boys to please keep the date open.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

A COUPLE OF soap-box orators tonight in Duffus', both at eight o'clock. The big girls' softball meeting—it's also open to little girls—should draw quite a crowd of interested parties from here and the district. It's the annual re-organization meeting and will see a lot of fur flying as the moguls get the circuit started for the season. Then an open meeting of the lacrossers is being held, too, and all interested should attend. They'll discourse on plans of the new box on George St. south, deal with finances and discuss grouping and players. Much should be accomplished at both these huddles.

JACK MAUNDER, who used to knock out sports for the Lindsay Post, is doing ditto now with the Kirkland Lake News. He sends us a clipping of the Graboski family in Kirkland Lake—and up there they must resent Oshawa taking credit for supplying the colorful Jo-Jo Graboski and the husky Tony to the puck world. Their home is at Kirkland Lake where their dad John Graboski, is a wood dealer. Jo-Jo is starring now with Wembley Lions, the English champs, while Tony is a regular with Hershey B'ars, winners of the eastern amateur U.S. hockey title. Both have been seen in action here a few years back.

THEY FIGURE in the Inter-County Ball Loop that a portable floodlighting system for night games would cost at least $10,000. About four G's for equipment, a like amount for the buildings to generate power, and the rest for transportation trucks. The idea would be to rent it around to the various clubs in turn. We suppose the league would own it, selling shares and demanding a good rental fee in an effort to make it a revenue producer. Anyway, the matter will come up in a week or so at a meeting in London. The matter leaves us very cold and any ball player who ever did his stuff under the arcs will tell you it's a lot tougher than under natural lighting.

SENIOR BALL indoor exercise drills at the local "Y" will continue this week the same nights as last week—Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday from seven o'clock to eight. Quite a gang has been turning out and maybe more will be on hand this week. It won't be long till they're prancing around like a Mexican full of beans and just rarin' for action on the outdoor diamond. Another couple of weeks may see the Petes' prospects training outdoors and battling for berths. Shouldn't be quite a scramble this year with half a dozen spots in doubt and more Spring interest exhibited by the players than in several years. The ball season can't roll around any too soon to suit us.

PROVINCIAL WOMEN'S Softball Union held its seventh annual meeting in Toronto yesterday with a good representation, Gladys Mortimer attended from here. This Union was officially recognized by the W. A. A. F. as the sole controlling body in Ontario for girls' softball, and affiliated team may play against an independent outfit without receiving permission. The gals decided in future not to name a softballer for the trophy as outstanding athlete, since their nominee never receives serious consideration anyway. They also suspended the manager and players of the Kirkland Blue Tops one year for failing to kick in a share of playdown receipts. A balance of $14.-82 was shown. Nora Seddon of Ottawa was returned as prexy.

* * * * * *

THE damsels passed two important amendments. One was to confine entries to 30 organizations so the Union wouldn't become too unwieldy for the executive to take care properly of affiliated circuits. The other rule was to increase the distance between bases from 45 to 50 feet. It should cut down on the runs and stolen bases but may mean that the gals will have to eat more grape nuts or whatever it is that lends that extra bit of energy. In our grandmom's youth it wasn't only undignified to run but a 50-foot dash was practically fatal! The little ladies of today seem to have what it takes.

FOLKS from here who went to Toronto on Saturday to see Monarchs of Winnipeg take the Memorial Cup with a 7-0 swish over Copper Cliff say the Northerners wilted badly and didn't look as good as our Junior Colts in this final fracas. At the same time they sing the praise of a worthy championship outfit in the Winnipegs. On Saturday night, a slim crowd sat in bored fashion through an international tussle which saw Wembley Lions defeat the Hershey B'ars, 6 to 3. A good game but the fans failed to get excited. The Lions meet Winnipeg Monarchs this eve, the latter team bolstering a bit with lads from Toronto. In Midland tomorrow, Norvocs and Barries settle the O. H. A. junior "B" title and Barrie is favored to cop the duke.

LOCAL WRESTLERS GIVE OTTAWA MEN STIFF OPPOSITION

Visiting Matmen At "Y"-Have Edge On Experience In Classy Five-Bout Card

AMATEUR GRAPPLING

The team of five wrestlers from the Ottawa Y.M.C.A. Wrestling Club, which competed against members of the Peterboro Y.M.C.A. Wrestling Club on Saturday evening won three of the five awards and drew in the other two bouts, but that tells only a small part of the tale. The fact is that the Peterboro wrestlers made a wonderfully fine showing against older and much more experienced wrestlers, almost all of whom were either champions or former champions. On the basis of the night's showing, the best wrestler was a Peterboro boy in W. Taylor, who secured a draw with Abe Hannah, heavyweight champion of Ottawa and district. Taylor, had the bout been settled on points, would have been entitled to the decision because of his aggressiveness. In the closing part of the bout he lifted Hanaph clear, threw him heavily to the mat and became aggressor long enough to entitle him to the decision had it been awarded on points, instead of as a draw in the event of there being no fall.

When the bouts were arranged, H. B. Cowan, Sr., the instructor of the local wrestlers, informed the Ottawa club that he had a group of young and inexperienced wrestlers, some of whom had only 4 months' training, none of whom had ever competed in a tournament or for a championship and only two of whom had had any experience with out-of-town wrestlers. He suggested that wrestlers from the Ottawa Club with a similar degree of experience should be sent to Peterboro to give both sets of boys needed experience. This was agreed to but the Ottawa Club found that Mr. Cowan was a former Canadian champion and as one of their members admitted Saturday evening, they got together the strongest group of wrestlers they could secure for Saturday night. Hannah, the heavyweight champion of Ottawa, is said to have had some 12 years' experience in wrestling.

He is the ideal build of a wrestler, being short, broad shouldered and powerfully built. This will be realized when it is stated that his neck measures 17½ inches and his biceps indicated they would go down to 15 inches. The fact that Taylor of Peterboro, with only two seasons of training and almost entirely inexperienced, was able to win a well-earned draw against such formidable opposition and was manifestly the freshest of the two contestants at the close, delighted the Peterborough fans.

Lots of Class

Other members of the Ottawa team were Harry Appleton, 163 lbs., who has a decision to his credit over Hannah, and who next week will compete in Ottawa against Hannah for the Ottawa city heavyweight Championship. Louis DeLisle, the 145 lb. Ottawa city champion, in 1936, and the 136 lbs. champion in 1935; Cecil Holmes, 150 lbs., the instructor of the Ottawa club, who has won five Ottawa city and district championships; and Bod Budreo, 130 lbs., an expert and experienced wrestler with years of experience.

One of the best bouts of the evening was between Freddie Williams, of Peterboro and DeLisle. DeLisle is a beautifully-built athlete, but Williams gave him a battle for some 7 minutes before having to concede a fall. On three occasions DeLisle took Williams to the mat and tried to break through his defense but without any success. He soon found that Williams had a counter for all his holds and was even threatening to roll him into a fall with the result that one each occasion he relinquished his advantage, preferring to continue the bout on his feet. Thus, Williams on a point basis was equal with DeLisle, until DeLisle finally secured a well-earned fall.

The bout of the evening which aroused the most excitement was when Steve Oshurik, at 142 pounds stacked up against Cecil Holmes, 150 pounds. When Mr. Cowan informed the spectators that Steve had had only 4 months instruction, that he was 17 years of age and a pupil at the Collegiate and it was realized that he was going up against a many times champion, many years his senior, and with some eight pounds advantage in weight, the crowd was all for Steve. It had been arranged before the bouts that in the event of the contestants working partly off the mat that they would break clear and come back to the centre. Holmes went to work on Steve like any experienced wrestler would but found it hard to close with him. On two or three occasions he brought Steve to the mat near the edge with the result that Steve immediately made tracks to get over the edge. As soon as the crowd saw Steve's tactics they got a great kick out of it when his large and older opponent had to let him go and come back to start all over again in the centre. Steve, who is a beautifully built youngster, and gives promise of developing into an exceptionally fine wrestler when he gets more experience and training, lasted out some six minutes before finally conceding a fall.

Too Much Experience

At 182 pounds, Appleton, of Ottawa, with his greater experience, was too much for Ross Pulkinghorn, of Peterborough, a boy still in his teens and with only four months instruction. This bout lasted only three minutes, being won by Appleton. Had Paulkinghorn had as much training, for example, as Taylor, he probably would have made an equally good showing.

Bill Hogan, for Peterborough, showed some particularly fine work in the opening bout at 136 pounds, when he gained a draw against Budreo of Ottawa. As soon as these two opponents faced each other it was seen that Budreo was an older and more experienced wrestler and the way he went to work on Hogan showed this. He was the aggressor throughout and entitled to win the bout on points had it been decided that way. However, Hogan put up such a strong defence Budreo was unable to break through it. On three occasions Hogan electrified the crowd by throwing his opponent heavily to the mat, by means of side chancery and buttock holds, but was unable to pin him. Budreo cleverly working out of danger and into the top position.

The bouts were closely contested throughout. As a result, Mr. Cowan, who acted as referee, had very little to do. It was not necessary for him to call any of the contestants for the use of illegal holds. The Ottawa team was an exceptionally fine group of wrestlers who were at the disadvantage of having to wrestle immediately after a seven-hour automobile trip over slippery roads. The results of the bouts greatly increased the confidence and enthusiasm of the Peterborough wrestlers. It is proposed that further bouts of the same kind shall be held next fall when the two wrestling clubs resume their activities.

Reds Defeat Whites In Basketball Game

In a smart exhibition basketball game between all-star teams at the "Y" on Saturday night, Weir's Reds nosed out a 34-31 decision over Galley's Whites. A large crowd of fans saw an interesting struggle which was in doubt till the end. The count at halftime was 24-10 for the winners but the other side made it close the final session. Jakafby, Holmes and McArthur led the Pictors in scoring while Galley, White and Hammell supplied the scoring punch for the losers. The teams:

Reds: Weir, Wolstenholm, Dougherty, Crowe, Holmes, Jakafby, McArthur.

Whites: Galley, Long, White, Crowe, Kingdon, Hammell.

Referee, O. Gunsolus; umpire E. Ascott.

Immediately after this game, an exhibition in the flying rings was put on in the gym by Jack Wolstenholm and Bill Taylor, which drew applause from the crowd.

MOSQUITO SLAUGHTER.

WINNIPEG — If "this bite killed a million," mosquitoes advertised, then some 67,500,000,000 insects will be wiped out by the $2,700 proceeds of Saturday's tag day to fight the pests here.

FIFTY SWIMMERS IN "Y" CAMPAIGN

Water Stars Given Opportunity To Increase Prowess With 35 Pool Tests

A campaign for better swimming is on and over fifty names are already entered on the big progress chart in the men's locker room at the Y.M.C.A.

The chart, which is five by four feet, in size is ruled both ways and has thirty-five graded swimming tests numbered across the top and the names of the entrants are placed down the left margin. A red star is put on the chart opposite the swimmer's name as each test is passed.

"The object of the chart," says Gordon Minty the "Y" swimming coach, "is to increase the attendance in the pool by giving each member some definite work to accomplish and to afford the opportunity of improving his swimming and increasing his water knowledge. To complete the thirty-five tests it is necessary to swim a distance of a mile and a half and that alone is bound to improve one's watermanship."

The following men are entered and have a number of stars to their credit:

Howley Hopes To Hang On Until Major Leagues Unload

Most Of Leafs Are Newcomers With Not a Great Deal Of Experience

OUTFIELD IS GOOD

MAINER CITY, Fla., April 19—(CP)—Dan Howley is starting the International Baseball League season with a hope—a hope he can get by with this present Toronto team of youngsters until major league clubs see fit to unload surplus players and send him promised help. Leafs finished in fifth place, out of the playoffs, last season.

Three veteran outfielders and a rookie, three pitchers with unimpressive records and a young catcher are holdovers from the 1936 second-division Toronto team.

The other dozen names on the roster are newcomers with two years' experience in Class C or D leagues.

Howley came out of retirement to manager the Toronto team and his first move was to sign John Heving, veteran catcher with Toronto in 1933 and '34. Next, Howley obtained Frank Madura, young second baseman, from Pittsburg on option. Madura batted .310 with Scranton in the New York-Penn League that season and walked 123 times in 129 games.

Outfield Is Good

Howley has no reason to worry about the outfield. In addition to Tom Oliver, George Blackerby and Adam Comorosky, seasoned veterans he has three rookies in Bobby Porter, May Smith and Ted Petoskey. Porter, a Toronto boy, looks good enough to start the season as a regular although Petoskey and Smith have been as impressive. Petoskey is one of the fastest base runners in baseball. Too, he fields and hits well.

Howley may have to get a first baseman, a shortstop and a third sacker but he has three recruits, only a step from International League calibre, for these positions and may decide to open the season with them.

Al Smith, a former second baseman, is the best prospect in camp. Hal Stockman and Joe Cantenbein are after the third base spot.

Clarence Straub, Heving and Tommy Heath, obtained from the Browns, will share catching duties.

Pitching Big Problem

The Toronto manager's big problem is pitching. Jimmy Pattison, Frank Nekola and John Pennoroski, left over from last year, have improved among the newcomers. There are Woodrow Wilson Davis, who won 17 and lost three with Cordele in the Georgia-Florida League last year; Joe Mulligan, who won eight and lost eight with Syracuse two seasons ago, and Paul Sullivan, a giant southpaw from Detroit.

John Berly, another right hander, owned by Baltimore but with the Leafs in the latter part of 1936, and Mike Meola, leading pitcher in the Pacific Coast League in 1936 and last year with Syracuse complete the mound staff.

Remember When—

Patriotism kept Fred Perry, then world's amateur tennis champion, off the gold standard. Embarking at New York for England two years ago today the Briton—considering professional contracts that would net him $100,000—said he would play for King and country for another season, anyway. Later he turned pro and is reaping a harvest of American dollars.

WEMBLEY LIONS TROUNCE HERSHEY IN SERIES OPENER

British Champions Win 6-3—Meet New Canadian Titlists The Monarchs Tonight

ROUND-ROBIN TILT

TORONTO, April 19 (C.P.). — Newly crowned Canadian junior hockey champions, Winnipeg Monarchs go hunting bigger game tonight, but the little fellows will be bolstered with five recruits for their clash with Wembley Lions in the second game of the round-robin international series.

The game will be a meeting of the home folks, for the Lions who defeated Hershey's Bears 6-3 in the first game on Saturday night, present many Winnipeg players on their line-up. And those expatriated Winnipeggers played on the Monarch team of 1935 that won everything in sight in its tour of Europe that winter.

The scoring lines that brought Wembley the championship of England's National League this year proved a little too good for the leaders of the Eastern United States League. While the Bears had the edge in centre-ice checking, something the Lions had not encountered since they used to star in Canadian hockey, they hadn't quite the finish around the nets of the English champions.

Murphy Scores Three.

Three goals by Edgar Murphy, who before he migrated with many other Canadian stars used to play hockey in Ottawa, and a goal apiece by Tony LeMay, Alex. Archeur, and Jo Jo Grabowski, proved too much for the Bears to overcome. They tried hard. Harry Frost scoring two and Jerry Cormier one. Every goal but Grabowski's was scored in the third period.

In other games on the international schedule, the Bears run up against Sudbury Tigers to-morrow night. The Tigers won the Allan Cup last Friday night, defeating North Battleford Beavers in the fifth and final game of that series.

The Monarchs play the Bears on Wednesday night and take on the Tigers the following night in a game expected to be the highlight of the six-game series. Next Saturday night, Sudbury play the Lions. The two teams with the greatest number of points then will meet in a best-of-three-game set-to for the series title.

Big League Ball Clubs Open Season

With the call of the umpire "play ball" and the first official pitch, the 1937 big league baseball season gets under way today. The American league opens its schedule in Washington with the Senators playing hosts to Philadelphia Athletics. President Franklin D. Roosevelt, as usual, pitches the first ball. At Boston the Bees tangle with Philadelphia Phillies, thus starting the diamond game rolling in both leagues. From now until October the players will be battling it out for the right to meet in the world series. Here is a picture of one of the many ball parks which will be packed with enthusiastic fans. Inset the typical action that opening day fans will see, with photo of a big-leaguer burning one at the plate.

'PEG MONARCHS BLANK REDMEN TO CAPTURE CUP

Copper Cliff's Squad Fade 7-0 For Third Straight Beating By Westerners

McCREEDY SCORES FOUR

By William H. Dunsday
(Canadian Press, Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, April 19 (CP)—Keenest of competition in Western playdowns, today was offered as the big reason Winnipeg Monarchs smashed aside Copper Cliff's mighty Redmen for the Dominion junior hockey crown. Coach Harry Neil said his boys didn't relish it at the time but are glad now the going was so tough out West.

Hitting the peak of their form here Saturday afternoon, the purple-shirted Manitobans skated Redmen into the ice as they piled up a 7-0 decision. It marked the end of a stiff four-game struggle, but Neil did not think his boys were pressed any more than in their series they contested previously.

"We had to battle like fiends to earn this trip east," said smiling Harry. "In three different rounds before winning the Western title things looked black for us more than once but we had just enough edge to come through. On the other hand the Copper Cliff club seemed to have it easy down here."

Three Tough Squads

Portage La Prairie, St. Boniface Seals and Saskatoon Wesleys all presented squads that pushed Monarchs to the limit before admitting defeat in series, each of which went the limit. Neil figures that if Redmen had that kind of opposition before the finals they may have been "an eye noughtier proposition."

Neil had words of praise for each of the game youngsters that won three straight from Redmen after losing the first fixture. He coached Monarchs to the Memorial Cup in 1935 and his achievement this year gave Western Canada an edge in intersectional junior competition, with 10 successes to the East's nine.

After Monarchs try their luck in the international tournament against the world's best senior teams here, they will take the Memorial Cup to Winnipeg. It was held by West Toronto Nationals who defeated Saskatoon Wesleys in the finals last year but did not ice a team this season.

Neil pointed to his club's fine balance as one reason for their victory. Out of 36 scoring points registered in four games, his first-string forward line accounted for 13 goals and 11 assists; his second line three goals and six assists and his defence three goals and three assists.

McCreedy Leads Way

Johnny McCreedy who led Monarchs with four goals in Saturday's rout, led the team in point getting. The splurge built his total to eight goals and two assists, one more point than gained by little Dick Kowcinak, with two goals and seven assists. Four Winnipeg snipers ranked above Alf Webster and Roy Hexmer, Redmen's leaders.

Copper Cliff's big chance came in the first period when they outplayed the Westerners and muffed two perfect scoring chances. Monarchs took the lead early in the second period and led 3-0 by the end of the frame, adding four more in the third period while holding Redmen scoreless.

Lucien Martel, Paul Rheault and Remi Vandaele completed Monarchs' total. Jack Shewchuck, playing with a helmet due to a head injury suffered against Copper Cliff's big gun. He was so effective Coach Maxie Silverman moved him to centre ice late in the final period.

Final Scoring Figures:

	G	A	P
McCreedy, Monarchs	4	2	10
Kowcinak, Monarchs	2	7	9
Lamselle, Monarchs	0	6	6
Fox, Monarchs	2	3	5

Rike, Redmen	1	3	4
Martel, Monarchs	2	1	3

FIRST DIVISIONS TO BE CROWDED SO PILOTS BOAST

Even Rogers Hornsby Sees His St. Louis Browns High As Fourth

CURTAIN LIFTS TODAY

By Sid Feder
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, April 19—(AP). — The first divisions on both sides of the big league baseball fence are going to be crowded when they post the final standings next September, if you take the word of most of the managers directing the show.

Making their pre-battle statement a few hours before the curtain lifted on the 1937 season today in Washington and Boston, the pilots, with few exceptions, figured their respective clubs couldn't miss one-two-three-four.

There appeared too many first division selections and too few positions to go 'round.

Even these old feudists, Burleigh Grimes and Chuck Dressen, were carrying the torch in a big way for their Brooklyn and Cincinnati outfits. Rogers Hornsby, shrugging off the hopeless outlook of the "experts," saw his St. Louis Browns even as high as fourth.

"Cincinati may surprise and crash through to the top," said Dressen. "With the breaks, the Brooklyns may be right up there—and you can tell Dressen I said so," was the "feed-box special" from Grimes.

Generally, however, the Yanks, Indians and Tigers, with either Washington, Boston or Chicago as the fourth outfit, were figures to cut the American League share of the series melon next fall, while the usual quartet of New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh and St. Louis was augmented by Dressen's decisive vote for his Reds in the National League dog-fight.

Senators Mean Business

Bucky Harris, whose Senators tangled with the Athletics in Washington on to-day's getaway program, made no bones about it—"From the time President Roosevelt throws out the first ball here, you can look for us to be a real contender."

Connie Mack, with a somewhat hapless looking collection of A's, even indicated his youngsters might conceivably pull up out of the cellar.

In Boston both Bill McKechnie of the Bees and Jimmy Wilson of the Phillies, rival managers in the morning and afternoon Patriots' Day games which comprise the curtailed opening National League card, refused to go out on the limb with any predictions. But each was certain his outfit was improved.

Frenn New York, where the curtain doesn't lift until to-morrow's seven-game program throws all but the Reds and Phils into action, the champion title—Yankee Joe McCarthy and Giant Bill Terry posed confidence.

Mickey Cochrane, with himself and Hank Greenberg back in the Tiger lineup, saw his Detroits as "the best defensive club in the American League." "I don't see how we can miss fighting the Yanks right down to the wire, and possibly beating them out."

Second Baseman

FRANK MADURA
One of the bright spots on Dan Howley's Toronto Maple Leaf ball club is Frank Madura. Howley is well pleased with his showing at second base and he seems to be a sure thing to hold down that position during the coming season. He was auctioned to Toronto by Pittsburgh. Before coming to Toronto, he played at Scranton, Pa., in 129 games and batted .310. He also got on first 123 times last year by way of the four balls route.

FORDS WILL MEET B.C. VARSITY TEAM

Latter Eliminate Raymond In Cage Semi-Finals—Windsor Downs McGill

VANCOUVER, April 19 (CP). — Windsor Fords, who wrested the Canadian men's basketball championship from Victoria Dominoes last spring, will face University of British Columbia Thunderbirds in the final of the current title chase. Thunderbirds eliminated Dominoes this year.

The Vancouver students, Canadian champions in 1932, qualified for the national final Saturday night with a 47-32 victory over Raymond Union Jacks, perennial Alberta representatives, in the second game of the best-of-three western final. Varsity won the first game 44-22 Friday.

Raymond made a gallant stand in the second game, almost tying the score midway through the second half after being behind 26-12 at the interval. They should not match Varsity's closing drive, however, and the Thunderbirds ran the margin from four points to 11.

The best-of-five series with Windsor will open here a week from to-day with the second and third games April 28 and 30 and the others May 1 and 3 if necessary.

McGill Is Ousted.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 19 (CP). —Remaining obstacle in their drive to the Dominion senior basketball championship playoff slot hurdled from the path, Windsor Ford planned to-day to leave Wednesday for Vancouver to defend the Canadian title they won last year. They intend to take but eight players to the coast city to meet the Western Canada champions, University of British Columbia Thunderbirds, in the series opening April 26.

Windsor's mighty midgets captured the Eastern Canada championship and the right to clash with the Western Canada titlists for the Dominion honors with a hard-fought 30-29 victory from Montreal McGill Grads in the second game here Saturday. The previous night, Fords paralysed the Montrealers with speed and cleverness of attack in trouncing them 47-17.

It will be the third successive year a Windsor club has played in the Dominion finals. Assumption College of Windsor lost out to Victoria Blue Ribbons in the Western city in 1935, and Fords defeated the same club but under a new name—Dominoes—here last year.

IN MEMORIAM

THOMPSON.—In loving memory of our dear father, James H. Thompson, who passed to his rest, April 19, 1936.

We often sit and think of him when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own;
Like ivy on the withered oak, when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green, and never fade away.

—Ever remembered by Clara, Teresa, Joe and Granddaughters Rhetta and Lilly.

MONTREAL STRIKE IN PARLEY STAGE

Dressmakers' Union Believed To Have Won Recognition And Wage Increases

MONTREAL, April 19 (C.P.). — Half a hundred dress manufacturers and officials of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union met together for a third time to-day with the expectation a final agreement would be reached to bring partial settlement of the near week-old dressmakers' strike.

"Substantial progress on several vital points" was reported by both sides last night after a second conference that followed announcement the 30 manufacturers, representing about half the employers involved in the walkout, had accorded the International Union recognition as the industry's collective bargaining instrument.

So sure were both sides a final pact would be reached, separate meetings of employes and union officers were called for later in the day to put individual sealing to the expected terms.

It was believed the union, besides gaining recognition, had won demands for wage increases and better working conditions, main grievances in the list of 20 submitted for 3,000 needleworkers who crippled the industry at the start of the busy summer season.

THE MOUTHPIECE

By Edgar Wallace and Robert Curtis

(Copyright—Released By Central Press Association)

READ THIS FIRST:

Charles Stuckey, of a London law firm, reluctantly has agreed to a scheme to defraud the daughter of one of his few respectable clients, Jacqueline Smith, of an inheritance of $1,500,000 from an American uncle. In keeping with the plan, Colonel Alex Lutman, who has a hold over Stuckey, and Jim Asson, an ex-convict, are stopping at the same hotel in Cobenzil with Mrs. Smith and her daughter. Jim hopes to marry the girl, having her assign her property to him, before Stuckey informs her of her inheritance. In dire financial straits, Mrs. Smith already is impressed with Jim, posing as a wealthy Englishman, as an admirable "catch" for her daughter. Lutman, in the role of Jim's trustee, subtlely threatens Jacqueline with a check he cashed for her mother returned marked "insufficient funds." Finding her mother distraught over their financial plight and Lutman's implied threat over the check, Jacqueline tells her she will marry Jim. Stuckey arrives at the hotel and Jacqueline meets him accidentally. Charles shows Jacqueline a rough draft of the marriage settlement he says her mother asked him to draw up.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 16

Charles Stuckey, somewhat uneasy, continued his chat with Jacqueline.

"Look here, Miss Jacqueline," he said. "About this young man—Jim Asson. He's—er—well, he's a nice young man, is he?"

"Oh, yes, quite nice."

"And I suppose you're dreadfully in love with him?"

"Oh, no."

"H'm!" said Charles. "That is very awkward. But of course, you never know. You will probably grow very fond of him after. I find in my practice that people very often grow very fond of each other after."

"After what?" said Jacqueline. "After the divorce? Do you know Jim Asson?"

Charles shook his head.

"Never seen him in my life," he said brazenly. "But he's the sort of man you could love, isn't he, even if you don't love him now?"

"No," said Jacqueline, "not at all the sort."

"Oh, yes, he is," said Charles. She shook her head.

"Sorry, Charles, but he isn't. And how do you know, anyway, if you've never met him?"

"I know it," said Charles, "because, with my experience as a judge of character I am firmly convinced that Miss Jacqueline Smith would never agree to marry a man for the sake of $10,000 a year if she didn't feel that she would in due course be able to love him as any man expects to be loved by the woman he marries."

Jacqueline smiled.

"Don't be pompous, Charles," she said, "because I really like you very much—as my lawyer—and when you start being pompous it makes me want to punch you."

Charles was quite obviously pleased.

"You really like me?"

"Yes, I really do like you, but don't mess about with your tie because I tell you that. It is funny, isn't it?"

Charles' hand dropped from his tie.

"What's funny?"

"Haven't you ever noticed that flattery goes to a woman's head but it never gets father than a man's necktie.

Charles sighed.

"You seem to know a lot about men, my dear."

"I do," said Jacqueline. "If you spend a few years living in third-rate Continental hotels you gather quite a lot of knowledge of men. The men you meet in Continental hotels, Charles, may be divided into two classes: those who call you 'dear little thing' and those who call you 'dear old thing.' The first have wives, and the second have mothers; I haven't yet decided which is worse. A mother, I think. I've got one."

Charles looked a little shocked.

"That is hardly the way for you to speak of your mother," he began but Jacqueline cut him short.

"I am going to tell you something," she said. "I am fond of mother, though I really don't quite know why. It isn't just because she's my mother. She can be awfully sweet, and she's pathetic sometimes. Sometimes I feel there's nothing I couldn't do for her, and at other times there's nothing I want to do so much as clear out and never see her again. I expect I'm hard, but when you've spent your mornings explaining to tradespeople in French and German and most other European languages that the bank manager only returned the check because mother hadn't crossed the 't' in Millicent, and your afternoons watching mother shaking her head and frowning and sighing and doing sums on little scraps of paper when she thinks no one is looking, and when you've gone to her room at night to say good night to her and found her sobbing on the pillow and wishing she'd never been born—well, you're either got to get hard or get soft, Charles—and if you get soft you're finished."

Charles was wondering how best to reply to that outburst of confidence when he heard the sound of footsteps and glanced round to see Mrs. Smith, with Colonel Lutman and Jim Asson in attendance, coming toward them across the terrace.

"My dear Mr. Stuckey!" exclaimed Mrs. Smith. "I didn't expect you to arrive until tomorrow, but you never know what a lawyer will do next, do you? Been making friends with Jacqueline? Jimmy, this is my family lawyer, Mr. Charles Stuckey. This, Mr. Stuckey, is my future son-in-law, Mr. James Asson—nephew of Lord Person."

"Indeed!" said Charles and shook hands with Jim.

"And this," said Mrs. Smith, "is Colonel Lutman. He's Jim's trustee, you know."

"Now, of course," said Mrs. Smith, "we have got to get to business. We'll all sit down here, shall we? I'm sure we pay enough at this hotel, and we may as well get all we can for our money."

They seated themselves round the table beneath the sun umbrella—all except Jacqueline, who strolled away and leaned on the parapet of the terrace a few feet from where they were sitting and gazed out across the river as though the proceedings were of no interest to her.

"And now, Mr. Stuckey," said Mrs. Smith, "to business. You've brought the deed, haven't you?"

"I have brought the draft, Mrs. Smith," replied Charles.

"The draft? I sent you the draft. I expected you to bring the engrossment, ready for signature."

"Yes, of course. Mr. Stuckey," said Mrs. Smith. "I thought I made that very clear in my letter. All the details were agreed upon by Jim and Colonel Lutman and myself and sent to you, and all you had to do was to write out the agreement and bring it out here to be signed."

Charles nodded.

"Yes, I gathered that that was what you wished, Mrs. Smith," he said, "but unfortunately we can't arrange these things exactly to suit ourselves. They must all be done in the proper legal way, and this deed must be signed and registered in London."

Mrs. Smith made a gesture of impatience.

"It's all very exasperating, Mr. Stuckey," she said. "I can't see what possible difference it can make whether a deed is signed in London or here or in Timbuctoo, for that matter. I can't see how anyone—even a lawyer—could possibly tell where it is signed."

Charles shrugged his shoulders.

"There it is, Mrs. Smith," he said. "A lawyer can do a great deal for his clients, but he can't alter the law."

Mrs. Smith sighed.

"Surely you could have done something, Mr. Stuckey? I have always understood that's what lawyers were for. They're not expected to carry out the law; they're expected to find some way for their clients to slip round it. This will mean putting everything off. Jacqueline will be terribly disappointed, poor darling!"

Jacqueline turned her head.

"Disappointed about what, mother?"

"My dear, it's so annoying," said Mrs. Smith. "You've got to be registered in London or something, and that means, of course, putting off the wedding."

"Is that all?" said Jacqueline. "Don't worry, mother. I'll have my quiet cry about that later on."

"And you too, Jimmy," said Mrs. Smith, "do very disappointed."

Jim frowned.

"Oh, I don't know," he said. "I'm not so sure that I'm not glad. I'm not keen on getting married, anyway, and I'm not sure that I'm not glad to have a little more time to think it over."

UNCLE WIGGILY AND JINGLE'S PRACTICE

Jingle, the little rabbit girl, was going to do something bad.

Oh, it was a very bad thing for a little rabbit girl to do, or for any other girl to do.

Jingle was going to cheat about her piano practice. She had not been taking piano lessons very long. But she wanted to learn to play lovely music for herself instead of listening to it over the radio.

"The only way to learn to play is to practice," said Uncle Wiggily when Jingle told him what she wanted.

"Oh, I'll practice," she promised. "Practice isn't much fun," said Mr. Longears. "It means playing the same piece over and over until you can play it perfectly. And it means practicing your scales—you know, do re mi, fa, so'—and like that."

Fun at First

"Yes," said Jingle. "I know and I'll practice." So the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Tree School gave Jingle piano lessons. For a time the little rabbit girl practiced every day. At first it was fun, but after a while she grew tired of it.

One morning when she was told to practice her scales before going to school, Jingle looked out of the bungalow window and saw the sun shining brightly after an April shower.

"Oh, dear! How lovely it is out of doors!" sighed Jingle. "All the other children are playing tag before they go to school. I hate this horrid old practice!"

She stopped playing the scales.

"Jingle! Jingle!" called Uncle Wiggily from the breakfast room where he was taking his second cup of carrot coffee. He was getting ready to go adventuring. "Jingle!" he called.

"Yes," daddy," answered the little rabbit girl whirling around on the piano stool.

"Keep at your practice, my dear," called Uncle Wiggily.

"Yes—all right. Oh, bother!" said Jingle. But she said the last very low so her father wouldn't hear her. Jingle was beginning to be tricky, you see.

Slowly she played the scales again —do, re, mi, fa—and those of the [illegible] Uncle Wiggily, who was listening, again sipped his carrot coffee and read the morning paper before going adventuring.

Oh, Yes

"Jingle is a good rabbit child," he said to Nurse Jane. "She is doing well at her practice and piano lessons."

"Yes, indeed," said Nurse Jane as she tied a rag on her tail and got ready to dust the furniture.

Then, all of a sudden, Jingle became more tricky. She looked out of the window again and saw how bright the sun was and how it sparkled on the rain drops clinging to the new leaves on the trees.

"Oh, bother this old practice!" she whispered. "I'm not going to do it. I'm going out and play tag instead of playing the piano."

But as soon as she took her paws off the keys Uncle Wiggily, who was still listening, called:

"Keep at your practice, Jingle!"

"Yes, I will," she answered.

Then, all of a sudden, Jingle thought of a way to fool her father—to make him think she was practicing when she wasn't. She was going to do a trick and that's where the bad part comes in.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Jingle. "I'll fool daddy and he'll think I'm doing my practice when I'm not. Ha! Ha!"

And if the bath tub doesn't try to wash the black keys of the piano thinking they have dirty hands, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily finding out.

INSTITUTE PLANS ON BIRD CAMPAIGN IN CAVAN DISTRICT

Offers Prize For Extermination Of Starlings And Collecting Eggs

AT APRIL MEETING

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAVAN, April 19—Mrs. D. J. Hunter was hostess on Thursday afternoon for the April meeting of Cavan Women's Institute. The roll call was answered by naming a benefit derived from the Institute or a suggested improvement. During the business session it was decided to offer a prize for the extermination of starlings and collecting their eggs. The competition to be open to boys and girls in Whitfield's, Cavan and Batchelor's schools. The secretary was instructed to write further information concerning the prizes offered, to the teachers of the three schools. The girls' garden club was discussed and five names sent in to

Farm and Home Week

There was discussion concerning the "farm and home week" at Guelph, and whether the Institute members could arrange to spend a couple of days of that week at the O.A.C. The matter was left for further consideration. A leader's training course was announced to be held for two days at Orono. A list of short courses, available for institutes, were read over and these two topics were left over for further consideration at the May meeting.

It was suggested that each member should celebrate the coronation by planting a tree. The treasurer was requested to give a bank book with one dollar deposit to a new baby in the Institute circle, Leona Catharine Byers.

Reports Read

As this was the annual meeting reports were given by convenors and officers. The treasurer, Mrs. Snider, in her report announced a balance in the bank of $40.24.

Mrs. J. W. Perrin reported that the flower committee had sent out 13 boxes of fruit, two plants and two bouquets of flowers, during the year. Christmas cards had also been sent. The secretary, Mrs. R. S. Staples, gave a detailed account of the year's activities, which included new books for the institute library, the use of a travelling library, five bank books each, showing a dollar deposited, were given to five babies in institute homes. Two classes held in refinishing furniture and arrangements made for another one in the near future, quilts contributed to the Red Cross for sending to the west, and local relief work; also Christmas cheer dispensed.

There were 46 members in 1937. There were eleven regular meetings held. The August meeting was withdrawn and a hostess tea held in Cavan Community hall. One meeting had been held in the evening, when the men were guests of the Institute and contributed a good program, the ladies serving lunch.

The meetings had all been interesting and educational. The nominating committee, Mesdames Matchett, Snider and Sutton, then took charge of the meeting and the following officers were elected:

President, Mrs. R. A. Staples; vice-president, Mrs. R. A. Sutton secretary, Mrs. R. S. Staples; treasurer, Mrs. H. Snider; flower committee, Mrs. D. White and Mrs. Melville Carr; pianist, Mrs. R. Matchett; convenors of standing committees: peace and Canadianization, Mrs. R. A. Sutton; education, Mrs. F. M. Staples; agriculture and Canadian industries, Mrs. Lavergne Fallis; home economics, Mrs. Lloyd Sutton; health and child welfare, Miss Josie Sutton; history and research, Mrs. R. S. Staples and Mrs. A. B. Kennedy; community activities, Mrs. Milton Carr; auditors, Mrs. D. J. Hunter and Mrs. Ray Syer.

At the close of the election of officers there was an exchange of seeds and slips. The group in charge assisted the hostess in serving delicious refreshments and a short social time enjoyed.

ARGYLE QUARTETTE WINS FIRST PRIZE IN HAVELOCK SHOW

Packed Town Hall Greets Albion Club Amateur Performance

IN TWO SECTIONS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, April 19—The Havelock Town Hall was crowded to capacity Friday night for an amateur show under the auspices of the Albion Club.

The program, 23 acts in all, including solos, duets, trios, instrumentals, and novelty numbers comprised a very interesting two and a half hour performance. Contestants were divided into two groups, junior and senior, with a special competition for rural schools. In the junior event, which was very keenly contested, Miss Jacqueline Saunders won first prize with her song, "Jack's the Boy For Me," and dancing the "Sailor's Hornpipe." Second prize was awarded to Miss Marion Forsythe, for her splendid characterization of the song, "A Farmer's Boy I'll Be." A well presented duet selection, "The Dance of the Elfs," by Miss Dora Ketchen and Miss Marion Forsythe took the third award.

In the senior competition, the judges selected as winner, the "Argyle Broadswords" group, consisting of Misses Mary Whitney, Marjorie Jamieson, Evelyn Stevenson, and Muriel Post. They were accompanied in their dance by Piper Donald Anderson, member of the Havelock Kiltie Band. A novelty dance by "Weary Willie and Tired Tim" (Marjorie Jamieson and Phyllis Parcels) captured second prize and the third went to Mr. Maurice Williams for his splendid presentation of "Nola" as a piano solo.

Rural Competition

There were three entries in the rural school competition, including representatives from Victoria, Preneveau and Rush Point. A handsome framed portrait of His Majesty King George VI, was presented to the winner, the Preneveau pupils for their exceptionally well-presented musical number.

All entrants in the junior competition not receiving one of the grand prizes were given a box of candies as a reward for their efforts.

The presentations were made by Leo Copp, Inspector of Public Schools, of Peterborough and Mrs. Copp. The judges were Mr. Copp, Mrs. John Moore, and Mrs. S. Rylott.

While the judges were reaching their decision, the audience was delighted by an amusing reading by Mrs. J. C. Young, elocutionist, and several selections on the electric guitar by her husband, Mr. Young. Both artists received encores.

Other competitors were:

Junior competition—Dorothy Ann and Shirley Holdcroft, song and dance; Betty Buchanan and Jean Peters, song, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart"; Calvin McQuigge, character and song; Colleen Nicholson, song, "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling"; Helen Reavy, tap dance; Ruth Peters, song, "When My Dream Boat Comes Home"; Marjorie Jamieson and Phyllis Parcels, duet, "Flower Maidens"; Betty Holdcroft, guitar solo; Betty Holdcroft, song and dance, "Life On the Bounding Sea"; Phyllis Ellis, song, "Throw Another Log On the Fire"; Dora Ketchen, song, "My Little Bicycle Girl."

HASTINGS Y.P.S. MEMBER HONORED

Presentation Made To Miss Pearl McMillan On Her Approaching Marriage

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 19—The Sunday School room of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church looked most attractive on Thursday evening, when a quilting and pancake supper was held under the auspices of the W.M.S. of Trinity United Church in the basement of the church. A large number of members met in the afternoon and quilted two quilts for the sale, one for the W.M.S. and the other for the Mission Circle as they enjoyed social chat and discussed various matters pertaining to church work, especially the mother and daughter banquet to be held on May 10th. Many others gathered at the supper hour and received a real treat for this season of the year when pancakes and lots of maple syrup, johnnycake and bran muffins were served under the capable direction of the president, Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe, and the efficient committee.

Many others gathered at the supper hour and received a real treat for this season of the year when pancakes and lots of maple syrup, johnnycake and bran muffins were served under the capable direction of the president, Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe, and the efficient committee.

The church was prettily decorated in a color scheme of cream and green, the colored crepe paper covering the shades and being used as dainty curtains for the windows, for the most enjoyable evening planned by the Young People's Society in honor of Miss Pearl McMillan, missionary convenor, previous to her marriage, which took place on Saturday, April 17.

As the bride and groom-elect entered the room, the wedding march was played by Mrs. Roy Johnson. The guests of honor were then seated in a central position amidst the company, the bride-elect's chair being decorated, and over it placed an open umbrella of cream and green with narrow streamers representing showers falling from above. As Mrs. Stewart Whitred, president of the Young People's Society, read an appropriate address voicing the sentiments of the members of the society, a large table, gaily decorated with a cream and green cloth, containing a complete set of cream and green enamelware, the gift of the Y.P.S., was displayed. After the happy young couple had unwrapped the gifts they responded in a few well-chosen words and everyone sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

A program added to the enjoyment of the evening. The president welcomed everyone, especially the guests of honor and on behalf of the Y.P.S. expressed her good wishes to them. After the opening hymn and prayer by the Rev. D. G. Perrie, the following took part: Philip Ford gave a humorous reading about Pearl and Mervin entitled "Parlor Lamp"; Misses Marjory and Lily Dodd sang "Wedding Bells Are Ringing Out That Old Gang of Mine"; Francis Kennedy gave a humorous number, "Afraid of a Girl"; Miss Mary Pulfer a piano instrumental; James Moore a reading entitled "Bad Mervin" and "I Love You Truly" was beautifully given as a duet by Mrs. Reta Johnston and Miss Muriel Watson.

The service of dainty refreshments and the extending of best wishes to the happy young couple brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

BALLYDUFF PARTY SUCCESSFUL EVENT

Eleven Tables Of Crokinole Played To End Successful Season

(Examiner Correspondence)

BALLYDUFF, April 19. — The Ladies' Aid, in connection with Ballyduff Presbyterian Church, held the last of a most enjoyable series of crokinole parties in the school house on Tuesday evening, April 13, with about fifty in attendance. Eleven tables were occupied for a period of eight games. At the conclusion of games scores were counted and the winners were Jean and Jimmie Mitchell, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Reggie Mitchell of Ballyduff. They were presented with appropriate prizes.

Miss S. McLennan, teacher at Ballyduff and Harvey Gray were captains to choose sides for a delightful spelling match which was keenly contested. Miss Fern Gray won the distinction of being the last speller to remain on the floor and was presented with a prize award.

A period of jolly conversation was enjoyed while the ladies connected with the church, particularly those interested in Ladies' Aid work, served a dainty lunch. A small charge per person was made and the net proceeds, after expenses of prizes, etc., were deducted amounted to exactly five dollars. During the winter months these social functions have been a pleasant diversion for those attending and have greatly assisted in augmenting the funds of the L.A. treasury.

SHE DREADED GOING UPSTAIRS

Woman's Fear of Rheumatic Pains

One of the many troubles that afflict rheumatic sufferers is the difficulty of getting up and down stairs. Such was the case with this woman, before she started taking Kruschen, but now she finds it no trouble. Read what she says:—

"I have been taking Kruschen now for over 12 months, a half-teaspoonful in hot water first thing in the morning, and I feel a new woman. I had very painful rheumatism in my knees and back and also my head was getting very bad. I used to dread walking upstairs, now I am very thankful to say it is no trouble at all and I scarcely have any pains. I feel better in health than I have done for years."—(Mrs.) G. M.

Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts are notable for their work in dissolving uric acid. Other ingredients of Kruschen assist Nature to expel the dissolved acid from the system.

Armament Budget Increases Britain's Income Tax to 25%

Chamberlain Also Slaps "Profits Levy" On Any Business Clearing Over $10,000 Yearly

$1,260,000 SURPLUS

Sees Taxpayers' Only Consolation In Satisfaction Of Contributing To His Own Safety

LONDON, April 20.—(AP)—Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, introduced Great Britain's first "rearmament budget" today with the unwelcome news of an increase in the standard income tax rate to 25 per cent, but with a prospective surplus of £235,000 ($1,200,000).

The budget which Chamberlain drew from his historic, carefully guarded red dispatch box estimated the nation's 1937-38 revenue at £863,103,000 and expenditure at £863,100,000 and expenditure at

Two New Taxes

In a 90-minute speech, the Chancellor outlined to the House of Commons two new sources of revenue by which Britain hopes to maintain her fiscal equilibrium:

1. Increase of 2.5 per cent to 25 per cent in the income tax.

2. A new profits tax on any kind of business which clears more than £2,000 a year. Income from this source was estimated at £2,000,000 the first year. Chamberlain called the profits tax a "contribution to national defence."

He predicted the financial measures, if adopted, would exert a steadying influence on the present upward trend toward improved business conditions.

Only two contingencies might disturb the budget, he warned, saying: "One would be some great world disturbance outside of our control; the other, reckless expenditures for purposes not vitally necessary."

Chamberlain said estimated total revenue on the existing basis of taxation was £947,950,000 and expenditure £862,840,000, leaving a deficit of £14,898,000.

After the Tax Dodgers.

Before launching upon the methods he had in mind for dealing with this deficit, the Chancellor referred to measures to be taken against tax dodgers. He declared no sooner was the Finance Act passed last

MINE HEADS MUST RECOGNIZE C.I.O.

So Northern Union President Says—Skeptical Of Shut-Down

TIMMINS, Ont., April 20—(CP)—Wellington R. Armstrong, president of Hollinger local, Mine Mill and Smelter Workers' Union, to-day called "premature" statements by mining heads their mines would be "shut down indefinitely" in the event of strikes.

"They are having hallucinations," said Armstrong. "They might threaten to do it now but it is the very thing they don't want to do."

He added: "They will have to recognize the Committee for Industrial Organization whether they like it or not," terming the Lewis committee "the only real Labor organization."

The Mine, Mill and Smelters' Union is a C.I.O. affiliate. He would not make public any estimate of how many local miners are union members.

(Last night in Toronto, John P. Bickell, president of McIntyre-Porcupine Mines, and J. R. Timmins, president of Hollinger Consolidated, declared their opposition to the C.I.O. and said their mines would be "indefinitely shut down" if strikes are called.)

Ring Of Ships, Men Clamped Around Spain

60 War Vessels, 549 Sea Officials And 265 Land Officers Take Charge

WATCH FRONTIERS, PORTS

LONDON, April 20 (AP) — The nations of Europe today clamped tight a ring of men and warships about Spain to cut off volunteers and munitions from both sides in the civil war, despite the heated protest of the Valencia government the non-intervention patrol violated international law.

At the stroke of midnight the unique plan formulated by 27 nations to confine forcibly a war within stated geographic limits went into effect. A few moments later, the 2,500-ton British freighter Sarastone applied to the non-intervention commissioner at Bordeaux and obtained clearance to Spain.

The Sarastone carried a cargo of food for starving Bilbao, and focused attention on the blockade of the coast of Biscay by the Insurgent fleet.

International complications were feared if she attempted to run the Insurgent blockade with an international non-intervention observer aboard.

Her shippers, however, expected the Sarastone to abandon the trip to Bilbao and attempt to land her cargo at some other Spanish port.

While the fleet of some 60 vessels of France, Britain, Germany and Italy churned the waters off Spain, 265 officers drawn from the British, Danish, Dutch, Swedish, Belgian and Turkish armies took control of the land frontiers.

All roads and railroads of the Portuguese border were patrolled by 130 British officers stationed in motor caravans at strategic points to speed to any section where arms or men were reported being run over the international line.

130 On French Border.

Another 130 army officers of varied nationalities took over control of the French border. Five observers functioned for the non-intervention committee at Gibraltar.

At various control ports, 549 seagoing officials were ready to board ships, inspect their cargoes and escort them to Spain. Already at sea, aboard the Sarastone, was the 260th.

At Bordeau, he inspected the Sar-

Three Mines Join To Face C.I.O. Threat

Will Shut Down Indefinitely If Strikes Invade North Country

FIGHT TO FINISH

Presidents Laud Premier Hepburn On Stand Against Lewis Organization

TORONTO, April 20 (CP)—Warning of an indefinite shutdown if strikes are provoked in Ontario's mining fields was posted today as the answer of three leading gold producers to organization work of the committee for industrial organization.

Presidents of Hollinger, Dome and McIntyre-Porcupine let it be known they would fight to a finish any strike invasion of the north.

In statements last night, issued shortly before striking Oshawa automobile workers rejected proposals for settlement of their dispute, J. P. Bickell, McIntyre head, and J. R. Timmins, president of Hollinger Consolidated, made clear their stand against the C.I.O.

Jules Bache of New York, president of Dome Mines, associated himself with the others' statements declaring he would trow his support to a united front against "domination" of the industry.

The stand announced by the three mine presidents followed reiteration by Premier Hepburn yesterday that he would "take every possible means" to prevent spread of C.I.O. organization in Ontario. The three praised the Premier for the position he has taken.

As further evidence of his intentions, Premier Hepburn announced that licensing of all international trade unions, as a means of controlling activities of those affiliated with the C.I.O., is under government study.

Close Till Men Will Work.

Bickell was emphatic that a shutdown would follow strikes called by the John L. Lewis organization. If the miners did not want to work, "they don't have to."

"And when I say 'shut down,' I mean 'shut down,'" declared Bickell. "We won't suspend operations merely to negotiate; we'll shut down till the men are ready to go back to their jobs."

Efforts to disturb "peaceful re-

Python Prowls Ship 16 Days But Passengers Don't Know It

Find Flying Wheel Neighbor's Bedroom

Toronto, April 20.

THREE days after the incident occurred, police were informed yesterday of the travels of a circular saw blade which, whirling from its moorings in a woodturning factory, to a destination 300 yards away in the bedroom of a Munro Avenue house. The 20-pound missile tore through the roof of No. 33, severed an 8 by 2 inch joist and emerged, through the bedroom wall to lodge in the bedroom next door. Following the trail, the police traced origin of the wheel to the wood plant on Stayner Street. No one was injured.

21-Foot Snake Is Part Of $35,000 Animal Cargo Shipped To United States

THREE BABY ELEPHANTS

NEW YORK, April 20 (A.P.). — The freighter City of Rayville with a cargo of wild animals, birds, and reptiles docked here yesterday, bringing word a 21-foot python had slithered about the ship 16 days without knowledge of the captain, crew or passengers.

S. S. Ward, in charge of the $35,000 jungle shipment, said he didn't want to cause alarm so he told only a ship's officer and the boatswain about the footloose python. They Combed the ship three times, then found the snake in the forward peak and used an electric heater to lure it back to the cage it had broken from.

Ward, who makes a trip east each year for animals for Mecms Brothers & Ward, Inc., animal dealers, said the shipment included three baby elephants, a pair of rare kangaroos, a whole passel of monkeys, 30-odd snakes, lizards, a dozen varieties of birds and other jungle folk including a couple of devils—Tasmanian devils which are very vicious and look like dogs.

165 ATTEND BANQUET

Senator Iva Campbell Fallis, guest of honor at a Citizens' dinner held at the Empress Hotel on Monday evening, was presented with the freedom of the city, being the first person, masculine or feminine, to have that honor bestowed upon them in Peterborough.

It was a triumphal affair that proceeded without a hitch. Surrounded by friends representative of almost every shade of political and religious faith and pursuit in life, from the city and surrounding points, the Senator, smiling across a beautiful bouquet of flowers and an illuminated parchment that bestowed upon her the figurative keys of the city, gave a fine speech, spiced with humor, placed with serious import, informative, interesting, closing with a courageous and patriotic message to men and women alike.

Approximately one hundred and eighty-five tickets were sold for the dinner. One hundred and sixty-five people were present, filling the large pillar dining-room and the club dining-room at the rear, seated at individual flower-decked tables.

At the head table, presided over by His Worship, Mayor G. A. Macdonald, with Senator Fallis at his right, were seated Howard T. Fallis; the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., P.C., and Mrs. Gordon; J. J. Parley Founders Upon Recognition Automobile Union

You're Being Duped, Fooled, Hoodwinked, Mayor Shouts After Decision

TEARS IN HIS EYES

Thompson, C. I. O. Organizer, Expresses Pride In Stand Strikers Taking

By Ivers Kelly
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

OSHAWA, Ont., April 20.—(CP).—Settlement of the strike of 3,700 General Motors workers seemed as far away as ever to-day after a new effort to end the dispute foundered on the issue of recognition of the United Automobile Workers of America.

Announcing the workers' decision, reached in a two-hour secret meeting, Hugh Thompson, organizer for the Committee for Industrial Organization, indicated failure of the company to recognize the U.A.W.A., an affiliate of the C.I.O., resulted in the rejection of the proposals.

The Company Proposals.

The proposals the strikers rejected were outlined as follows by Mayor Hall:

That the men return to work on a five-day, 44-hour week made up of four nine-hour days and one eight-hour day.

That time and a half be paid for overtime.

That those formerly receiving 55 cents an hour or less be paid an increase of seven cents an hour.

That those receiving 56 cents an hour or more be paid an increase of five cents an hour.

That there be no reprisals against any worker, regardless of his activities or affiliations with any union.

"You're being duped," Mayor Hall shouted to the strikers after their decision was made known. "You're being fooled. You're being hoodwinked."

He declared Homer Martin, international president of the U.A.W.A., had failed to keep a promise to call a sympathy strike in the

MONTREAL STRIKE NEARS SOLUTION

Dressmakers Swing Fifty Of 100 Employers To Demand For Higher Pay

MONTREAL, April 20.—(CP).—With employers divided down the middle, strike heads in a walkout of 5,000 dressmakers drove forward to-day in their effort to wrest higher pay, union recognition and shorter work hours from the manufacturers.

Though half the 100 employers refused to treat with them, representatives of the strikers had partly gained their objectives from the other 50. In negotiations yesterday, they reached tentative agreement with the "insurgent" manufacturers on 18 of 30 points in dispute.

One of the two points still unsettled was the question of a general wage increase, though the strikers' organization—the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union—had gone part of the way by paring its demand from 20 per cent to 15. Other item still at issue was that of wage scales for different operations in the trade.

From the negotiating employers, though, the union had won recognition as the workers' bargaining organization, agreement on a 44-hour week, extra pay for overtime and other concessions whose refusal precipitated the strike last Thursday.

Alberta Drops Horse For Power Machinery

Calgary, April 20—(CP)

ALBERTA farmers this year are turning toward power machinery, implement companies reported today.

Lateness of the season, high price offered and in some instances sub-normal conditions of farm horses are contributing to the change.

Machinery sales have improved from 15 to 20 per cent., one authority said.

GABLE, MAE WEST IN WITNESS ROLE EXTORTION TRIAL

Actor Prepared To Deny Under Oath He Is Father Of Winnipeg Woman's Child

ENGLISH ROMANCE '23

LOS ANGELES, April 20 (A.P.).—Clark Gable swapped his makeup box for a witness chair to-day, to deny under solemn oath he is a father.

The screen lover became witness No. 1 in the mail fraud trial of Mrs. Violet Wells Norton of Winnipeg, whose attempt to establish the paternity of her 13-year-old daughter resulted in her arrest last January.

Mrs. Norton, the Government charges, wrote Gable for money in recent years on the plea he had "wooed and won" her in England in 1922-23.

Witness No. 2 on the list of Assistant U.S. Attorney Jack Powell to-day was diamond-festooned Mae West, best known for her sociological screen study, "She Done Him Wrong." It was to Miss West Mrs. Norton assertedly addressed a letter a year ago asking for a motion picture opportunity for young Gwendoline, "Gable's child."

"What a shame it would put Gable to if he knew Mae West had given his child a start in life," the message read: "I've written him for the last five years and he won't answer my letters."

Four townsfolk from Portland, Ore.; Radio Commentator Jimmy Fidler and Publicity Man Terrel de Lapp were relied on by Prosecutor Powell to complete the Government's case in a day or so.

A Necktie Salesman in '23?

The Oregonians were expected to testify Gable was selling neckties and lumberjacking in the Pacific Northwest at the time Mrs. Norton claimed he was her suitor in an English country cottage. Fidler was said to have been approached by Mrs. Norton when she came to Hollywood in 1935. De Lapp has handled Miss West's press relations.

Mrs. Norton is a "mother type," in film casting parlance. At 47, she is plump, and her dark hair is graying at the temples. She has some five children.

Gable is 36, twice-married. Both unions were childless. Until today, he asserted, he never had seen the defendant.

Mrs. Norton in her statements after her arrest, told of knowing him as "Frank Billings," a tutor and her friendly neighbor at her two-acre estate in Billericay, Essex. Romance ripened, she said, but "Frank" left for the United States when they quarreled upon Gwendoline's birth.

That was in June, 1923. They never met again she said.

In 1925 she married and went to live in Winnipeg. Years later she saw Gable's face on the screen and "recognized" him.

The government indictment was based on a letter she assertedly wrote the actor a year ago last March, saluting him as "Dear Frank" and signing herself as "Violet N."

THE Royal Road TO THE CORONATION

Deep sea fishing in the Bay of Islands, 1927; the prize is a shark.

BOTH before and after the tour of Australia which was recounted in our last article, the duke showed his ability and enjoyment in the sport of deep sea fishing. Multitudinous duties at home were hardly conducive to making him an ardent disciple of Izaak Walton even had the opportunity in his native land offered, but once afloat, with some spare time on his hands between the well-planned routine that was necessary even aboard ship for this royal prince to adequately cope with the demands made upon him, he tried his hand at fishing like most other red-blooded ocean tourists.

The waters around New Zealand abound in fighting fish, and that his majesty was not entirely unsuccessful in seeking these denizens of the deep to-day's picture proves. His prize of a shark is being pulled in while deep-sea fishing in the Bay of Islands. It is not recorded in the story of the Renown's passage to and from the island dominions that the royal party or its leader had any spectacular luck in their fishing operations, but the duke enjoyed the sport to the full.

In Australia he had hunted, joining with great gusto in a kangaroo hunt staged for his benefit and he had enjoyed riding and roping with the cowboys in Queensland. But both he and the duchess were naturally anxious to get back to England where their infant daughter awaited them. Even the return journey was not without notable incident.

The Renown ran into a terrific hurrican in the Australian Bight and for hours the sturdy warship battled her way slowly through mountainous seas. Then a fire broke out in her oil bunkers with the nearest land a thousand miles behind her. Battle cruiser as she was her magazines were fully loaded and it was a trying ordeal until the fire was placed under control and the danger of a tragic explosion averted. The royal couple shared both the excitement and the relief.

HITLER SATISFIED WITH NAZI ARMY

Greatest Military Review Ever In Berlin Is Held On Fuehrer's 48th Birthday

BERLIN, April 20 (A.P.)—Chancellor Hitler, hailed on his 48th birthday by the massed might of the German army he recreated, was believed to-day to be ready to join in calling a halt to the crushing world armament race.

Foreign observers considered the German army finally had reached a strength satisfactory to Der Fuehrer, as demonstrated to-day by the greatest military review ever staged in the German capital.

They drew their conclusions from two things:

Hitler's statement yesterday that "Germany would be very willing to partake of a united effort to establish mutual understanding between the nations of the world" through a conference called by President Roosevelt or the head of some other world Power.

The declaration of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Economics Minister, in Munich, that "rearmament forced the government to withdraw certain raw products from consumption, but raw material restriction has now passed its highest peak."

Together these things were taken to mean Der Fuehrer's earlier plans for his army have now been completed and he is ready to slow down its development, restrict armament, or disarm, as he considers events outside Germany dictate.

Interesting Financial Report Read At Springville W.M.S. Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SPRINGVILLE, April 20 — The W.M.S. of Springville United church met on Wednesday afternoon, April 14, at the home of Mrs. Dave Wood and Mrs. Rae Wood for their regular monthly meeting. The attendance was good with twenty-three present. Mrs. A. Hunter who was in charge of the program for the day led in the opening prayer. Mrs. L. Whittington read the Scripture lesson found in Mark 4, which tells the parable of the sower. The prayer hymn, "Breathe on me Breath of God" was then sung, followed by prayer led by Mrs. Staples. Mrs. Seymour and Miss Schaffer.

Mrs. Hunter used "Hope" for the theme of her beautiful introductory address. She spoke of spring bringing with it new hope. To the farmer a new year appears to be ahead, holding fresh promise. Nature draws us near to God, so let us share our hope of eternal life.

The business discussions were conducted by the president.

Mrs. M. Johnston extended an invitation that was gratefully accepted that the May meeting be held at her home. Mrs. H. Clark and Mrs. J. Grandy who have birthdays during the month will be in charge of the program. The secretary was commissioned to reply to Mrs. Tucker's letter inviting her and Mrs. Stevens to the May meeting. This opportunity was also taken by the president to extend on behalf of the ladies a vote of thanks to the hostesses and Mrs. Hunter.

1937 Bale

Mrs. H. Clark read a letter from the Supply Secretary, stating the contents of the bale required for 1937. It was also decided that the collection of the day be used toward purchases for the bale.

Miss Schaffer introduced the program by a sketch of the work of the W.M.S. as written by Jean Gordon Forbes. In referring to the financial standing it was learned that Peterborough Presbyterial stood first in Bay of Quinte Conference.

Mrs. Jack Whitfield (Temperance Secretary) gave an impressive temperance reading.

In conclusion Mrs. George Whitfield spoke on the subject of "Sowing" as found in the Scripture reading.

Following the meeting lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

Woman's Association

The Woman's Association met on the same afternoon with the president, Mrs. H. Rowan, in the chair. The group system of work was organized with leaders appointed for each group. Timmins' statement declared: "Under no circumstances will we recognize the C.I.O., and should the C.I.O. interfere with our operations we have the assurance of the (Ontario) Government that ample protection will be afforded our men who are desirous of continuing work."

Bache said he believed in "loyalty and cohesion among the various mines managements in Canada."

In the event of shutdowns it was estimated 1,300 McIntyre men would be affected and 3,000 at Hollinger Consolidated.

The three executives said they did not anticipate trouble, but would be ready to repel any strike invasion.

"As yet," said Bache, "I have no evidence there is any threatening activity on the part of the C.I.O. I couldn't to-night make any authoritative statement as to what I would do, but I would certainly cooperate with all other mines."

The Dome president gave his support to Premier Hepburn's stand, and added: "I wish we had a man in the United States as reliable."

ESKIMOS BELIEVE HUNTERS' HEAVEN

Happy Outlook For Next World, Speaker Tells Rotary Club

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 20. — Major L. Burwash related a number of his experiences and observations gained in the Canadian North-West where he spent nearly 40 years of his life working among the Eskimos and traders on Northern Canada, where he made several Government surveys of this region. Born in Cobourg, a graduate of the University of Toronto, the speaker told Rotarians at their weekly luncheon held in the St. Lawrence Hotel on Monday, that many Ontarians were under the misapprehension that the part of Northern Ontario border of Hudson and James Bay was Northern Canada, whereas actually Northern Canada didn't begin until north of 60 degrees north latitude, where 500 miles north of Edmonton he had seen cucumbers growing to maturity in open gardens.

The Yukon Territory offers a potential agricultural area many times greater than that of Northern Ontario, the speaker declared. This region started and still is a fur trader's heaven although the mineral wealth of the country with the discovery of such areas as the Eldorado and the Klondike mines discovered in 1896 which is still producing from one to two millions in gold a year. There is plenty of vegetation in the North-West to support thousands of caribou as well as the reindeer which the Government has placed in the area, while farther north near Baffin Island the sea mammal such as the whale, seal, and walrus, which form a valuable asset both for the oil from all sea mammals and particularly for the ivory produced by the walrus. In this area north of 60 degrees lies one-quarter of Canada's area with a population of about 12,000—7,000 Eskimos living north of the timber line, 4,000 Indians living mainly on the fur trade, and 1,000 white people.

Strangle Old People.

The speaker related an amusing incident which occurred on King William's Island where he spent the winter in a tent accompanied by an Eskimo and his wife. In the spring the Eskimo came out of his tent one morning to explain that his wife had been ill all winter due to the evil spirits which were in the tent, and insisted that they would not return to the tent again. The speaker explained that the tent was turned inside out in order to let the spirits escape and replaced on the poles in this reverse position much to the satisfaction of the Eskimos. To the oldest son of the Eskimo family falls the questionable honor of strangling his parents when they become too old to keep up in the line of march. Babies born while the group is moving to a new location are very often killed as they offer considerable inconvenience to them while travelling.

The speaker concluded by saying that the Eskimos' outlook in the next world was much more happy than that of other Canadians, due to the fact that they believe in the existence of two heavens—one for caribou hunters and one for seal hunters—and no hell. Dr. E. A. Stuart moved the thanks of the club to the speaker for his very interesting address.

Their president was present, and the speaker was a young gentleman, Mr. Johnson, who took as his subject, "The Heavenly Vision." Another gentleman told an interesting story to the children. A male quartette favored with two much-appreciated numbers.

Quite a number of friends from Port Hope attended the service. The same gentlemen conducted the services in the Port Hope Baptist Church, both morning and evening.

The usual week-night meeting of the members of the Baptist congregation was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Halcot Benson. After an interesting meeting the hostess served lunch of pancakes and maple syrup.

The W.A. of St. Anne's Anglican Church held its April meeting at the home of Mrs. Harry Goss, Thursday afternoon.

A Garden where Nothing Grows!

Science selects and preserves even the familiar telephone pole.

In three widely separated, climatically different parts of the continent, laboratory tests are made by planting various types of telephone poles—exposing them to the weather for long periods and observing the effect.

Thus chemists and engineers have devised means of using less costly pine, treated with creosote, instead of cedar, chestnut and Douglas fir. The saving is substantial—one of the many savings that science makes possible and which keep the cost of telephone service within the reach of the humblest user.

Recent rate reductions saving telephone users $500,000 yearly mean wider use and greater value to each subscriber.

HERE ON MAY 1

Official announcement is made today that, effective May 1st, C. B. Shaver of Toronto is appointed District Manager of the Bell Telephone Company here succeeding H. H. P. Johnston who transfers to Toronto, Western Area headquarters of the Bell Company, as Sales Methods Supervisor.

C. B. SHAVER

A graduate of the University of Toronto, District Manager Shaver entered the Bell Telephone service in June 1923 at Toronto. Two years later he went to Brantford as Chief Clerk in the commercial office and, the following year, transferred to Windsor as Collections Supervisor. In September, 1927, Mr. Shaver became a member of the General Commerical department staff at Montreal. He was later stationed in Ottawa for a time and moved back to Toronto in 1929. He relinquishes the position of Supervisor of Results in the Western Area General Commercial department there to assume his new duties in Peterborough.

BOLT FIRES BARN FENELON FARMER

Implements, Grain Lost By W. Brandon But Neighbors Save The Stock

LINDSAY, April 20.— A bolt of lightning struck the barn of William Brandon, four miles north of Fenelon Falls, on Saturday night about five o'clock and the structure was soon a mass of flames. Neighbors rushed to the scene of the blaze after being notified by Miss Phyllis Brandon, and were successful in saving twenty-three head of cattle and three horses. Unfortunately, however, a considerable quantity of grain and feed, implements, scales, separator, wagon, and other property was burned. The barn was a large one, roofed in steel, and had been built last year. It is understood it was covered by insurance.

The Examiner was informed yesterday by residents of Bobcaygeon, that the ice was leaving both Sturgeon and Pigeon Lakes. Owners of cottages along the shores are apprehensive lest perhaps the ice may be shoved up on shore and inflict damage to their property.

A serious runaway accident occurred at Fowler Corner on the week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Wagar and Mrs. John Wagar were in a buggy, and when approaching Highway No. 35, the horse took fright and bolted. The two women were thrown from the buggy, which was badly wrecked before the horse was brought under control. Mrs. Wesley Wagar sustained a broken arm. She also received body bruises and facial injuries. Mrs. John Wagar was bruised and shaken up. Mrs. W. Wagar was removed to Ross Memorial Hospital.

Boyd Austin, of Kinmount had a narrow escape from serious injury in his father's mill on Saturday. He was adjusting the machine head of a planer when his hand came in contact with the fast revolving knives. He withdrew his hand in time, thus preventing the loss of a limb. Two of his fingers, however, were badly mangled.

Magistrate Gee, of Lindsay, held court at Beaverton on the week-end. R. and C. Clayton of Glenarm, Victoria county, were charged with breaking and theft and receiving stolen property of R. E. Smith, of Cannington. The case was adjourned. Marjorie McEachern, of Argyle, Victoria county, was charged with false pretenses through the issuing of cheques to Beaverton merchants, with no funds in the bank to meet them. Accused did not appear and a bench warrant was issued for her arrest.

ASSASSIN THREAT WORRIES VERIGIN

Doukhobor Leader Urges B.C. Jail Or Hang Peace-Disturbing Element

VANCOUVER, April 20—(CP).—Peter Vergin the Younger, spiritual leader of a majority of Canada's Doukhobor population, goes in constant fear of assassination by recalcitrant members of the Russian sect, he told an interviewer here.

"I constantly go in fear of my life," he told a newspaper man through an interpreter Saturday before he left for British Columbia's Kootenay district and settlements of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood.

Sons of Freedom, expelled from the Community, "openly advocate my murder," said the son of Peter Verigin the Elder, killed in 1924 when a bomb exploded in a railway coach near Farron, B.C.

Verigin came to the coast to discuss with Premier T. D. Pattullo recent incendiarism in the Doukhobor settlements.

"I implored and demanded from the government a little . . . dealing with those guilty for bombings and fires in Doukhobor districts because it disrupts the life of the entire community," he said.

"Let them find the guilty ones. Jail them, hang them, do anything with them, but let us work our land in peace. If the present unbearable condition prevails, the law-abiding Doukhobors may be forced to leave Canada in search of a country where they could be properly protected."

With the Boy Scouts

On Sunday, May 9, special services will be held at all churches in reference to the Coronation on May 12. Dominion headquarters desire all Scouts and Cubs to attend divine service on that day, and it is hoped that all Peterborough groups will co-operate.

On May 24, we are having a jamboree in Lakefield on kind invitation of Scouter McKercher. Cub and Scout programs are under way.

Notices will be sent out shortly. Each troop will be expected to put on a stunt at campfire in teams of not less than five boys. So put on your thinking caps and let us make it good.

I would advise troops thinking of camping over the week-end to get in touch with Scouter McKercher, Royal Bank, Lakefield.

A carload of trouble was dumped off at St. Mark's, Port Hope, on Saturday, when A.D.C. Lew Grant arrived with D.S.M. Gord Clegg, Rover Leader G. Groombridge, and Rovers Pete Dominie and Gerald. A splendid program was in progress. A Court of Honor consisting of Scouter Stan Leggett and the following Patrol Leaders from troops as numbered: Art Winslow, chairman, 1st; Art Northcott, secretary, 2nd; Tom Littlefair, 3rd; Joe Coss, 4th; Walter Dunford, 5th; Gerald Guerin, 6th; Bob Ferguson, 7th; Ken Moffatt, 10th; Don Douglas, 11th. The 8th, 9th, and 12th troops were not represented. A.D.C. E. Wolffe was on hand.

Field Secretary E. Jones, Toronto, was in charge of the conference and some snappy games and good talks were given.

At St. John's, John Frank and Leslie Groombridge were invested whilst Ronald Brand was accepted into the troop in a going-up ceremony. Ronald will wear the Leaping Wolf badge on his uniform.

In the Pack, two new Chums were accepted, Bill Leeh and Donald Barringer. A very fitting ceremony was held under A.D.C. Lew Grant, when Gordon Clegg gave over his post as Akela to become District Cub Master and Frank Pammett was promoted to Cub Leader. The boys showed their appreciation to the new D.S.M. by presenting him with a beautiful ring bearing the Cub Leaders' insignia, as a mark for services rendered.

Two of the Mothers' Auxiliary, Mrs. Kelsey and Mrs. Cridland, visited the pack.

All Saints are still on the march. Clarence Daymah and Henry Clapham were invested whilst Walter Dunford, Walter Boolth, and Bill Kemp received their patrol leaders' buttonhole badge. Bill also received his 2nd year service star. Charlie Dobbin was presented with A.S.M.'s hat plume.

Many attended the Cub Leaders' course at Sacred Heart and D.C. John T. Hornsby popped in and said "How d'ye." The course will continue on Tuesday this week at St. John's, 8 p.m. sharp.

It is hoped that all Scouters and Akelas will plan to carry on all through the summer. Let's make Scouting a year-round everyday activity.

Yours for better Scouting,

"THE SKIPPER."

OFFICIAL OF C. N. R. VOICES GREAT NEED OF CO-ORDINATION

W. E. Millar Stresses Necessity For Regulation Of Highway Transportation

ADDRESSES ROTARIANS

An earnest plea for the co-ordination of rail and truck transportation in Canada was voiced before the Peterborough Rotary Club at its regular weekly luncheon at the Empress Hotel Monday by W. E. Millar of Toronto, supervisor of station service of the Canadian National Railways. This development Mr. Millar characterized as one of the major problems of Canada today, particularly in regard to the railways, for the new rapid and flexible method of highway transportation had brought about the necessity of great changes in railway functions.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian D. E. Bell, local C.N.R. station agent and other C.N.R. visitors who heard the address were Rotarian Geo. Stokes of Belleville, Rotarian F. Gould of Toronto, Rotarian Edgar Burns of Lindsay and Robert Elgie of Toronto.

Another visitor to-day was William Hamilton of Toronto, whose fine tenor voice was admirably displayed in an effective rendition of "Take a Pair of Sparkling Eyes" from Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Gonodliers" and in an encore number. His accompanist, Craig Hamilton, was at the piano.

Another Period

"We are in another period of transportation readjustment which in the public interest requires a constructive, cooperative and enlightened point of view, not only on the part of those responsible for the production of transportation, as well as those who use it, but also and of equal importance, on the part of those who are empowered to control it, so that there may be determined a public policy that is best fitted to the country's transportation demands and developments," said Mr. Millar at the beginning of his address.

"The advent of the internal combustion engine as an economic factor of importance is a development of this century and of the present generation. As a matter of fact, the use of the motor truck as a freight-carrying facility was begun on a large scale during the Great War. At that time, on account of the congested condition and position of the railways, due to the enormous demand for transportation, the truck forced its way into play transporting manufactured and semi-manufactured goods, war supplies, munitions, etc., from the interior producing centres to the seaboard ports. Since then, the truck has been put to a surprisingly widespread use; in many instances, greatly exceeding its economic sphere. Aided by the constant extension in highway mileage and the improvement in roadways, the truck has not only completely revolutionized merchandising and commercialization, but in addition it has seriously impaired the transportation economic structure, built up so gradually and precisely during the past one hundred years or more.

Many Commercial Carriers.

To-day, there are approximately 25,000 commercial motor vehicles registered in the Province of Ontario alone. Not all, but a great many of these vehicles—in many cases running parallel to the railway tracks—are transporting freight, not only between larger centres of population, but also between these centres and the farming communities. These commercial vehicles, when added to our railway facilities, are creating a surplus of transportation with which its producers cannot dispose. Over-supply means idle transportation equipment, and "scramble" for traffic among competing agencies, which inevitably results in lower rates with consequent lower return on the traffic available.

No transportation agency can long exist when it charges for its service an amount less than it expends to provide that service.

"To illustrate this, I am duly informed that in the year 1936, the common carrier and contract truckers in the Province of Ontario hauled a half tons of merchandise traffic.

"This does not include traffic transported on owners' vehicles, nor does it include farm products, livestock, milk, household goods, or low grade commodities, such as: coal, brick, road materials, rough lumber, cement blocks, etc. Records do not indicate the tonnage figures for these latter classes of transport services.

"A fair approximation, however, of the gross revenue produced, or the freight charges paid by the public, on the 1½ million tons of merchandise freight which was transported by the common and contract truckers, was in the neighborhood of twelve million dollars. When we examine the matter in this manner and bear in mind the fact that the transport industry is admitted to be in an "unhealthy" financial condition, we must inevitably arrive at the conclusion that either the rates charged are less than it costs to produce the service, or the business is not being conducted in a business-like manner, or both.

"In all fairness, it must be stated that the present situation of the railways is in part due to the depressed business conditions, but due also to a much greater degree to the ruinous rate-cutting competition of the transport industry, which, I submit, is proving equally disastrous to that industry itself. I hasten to say that there are a few transport operators, some of them in Peterborough, who are earnestly striving to conduct their business in a proper way, but these operators are much in the minority, and they have the alternative of either meeting the competition of the rate chiseller or go out of business."

The Trucks Best Field

"We must not, of course, overlook the fact that for many classes of traffic the motor truck is both more convenient and essentially more economical than the railway. That is, certain services of the railway which were essential during the last century are no longer indispensable, and it would be detrimental to the public interest, and contrary to the law of economics to divert arbitrarily such traffic from the motor trucks back to the railway. But, by the same rule-of-measurement, it is not only unwise, but productive of an unjustifyable waste to foster and encourage the handling of traffic by motor trucks where it can be more cheaply and just as conveniently transported by the railway."

"The only solution of the problem which will promote public welfare will be the effect of economically sound co-ordination between these forms of transportation, whereby each form will handle that traffic which it can handle at the lowest cost, with due allowance for the quality and nature of the services."

Describing what has been accomplished in the United States and Great Britain in regard to the regulation of transportation Mr. Millar said that many of the provinces of Canada had enacted some legislation to regulate highway transportation but it was in most cases inadequate and its enforcement ineffective.

Rates Compared

The speaker gave an interesting comparison of the rates charged the public for trucking services as contrasted with the railway rates. "Take for example," he said, "merchandise or less than carload shipments transported by truck between Peterborough and Toronto a distance of ninety miles."

The trucking cost factors for the complete door-to-door service are subdivided into three classes as follows:

1. The cost of local pick-up and delivery cartage service.
2. The cost of clerical, administration, garage, overhead, etc. service.
3. The cost of trucking over-the-highway service.

It is admitted that these cost factors vary in proportion to the kind, class, and nature of the transport service rendered, and also that the matter of transport costs is a very controversial issue, but according to the most reliable figures available, these cost factors are:

1. For local pick-up and delivery cartage service at Toronto and Peterborough about 16.0c per 100 lbs.
2. For clerical, administration, garage, overhead, etc. about 6.0c per 100 lbs.
3. For over-the-highway service, about 14.0c per 100 lbs., based on a ninety-mile haul. In all, the total cost for the average merchandise shipment, which weighs about 400 lbs., is equivalent to about 36.0c per 100 lbs. These cost factors include reasonable charges for depreciation of vehicle equipment and plant, insurance, license fees, office and garage rentals, taxes, supplies and materials, maintenance, wages, etc. Compared with this estimated cost of 36.0c, the rate charged by the trucker, I am informed, is from 35.0c downward, confirming the statement that truckers' rates are below the complete cost of the service. On the contrary, the rate now charged by the railway for similar service, although based on classification of traffic, is equivalent to about 36.0c per 100 lbs."

Mr. Millar proceeded to deal with the steps that have been taken by the Canadian National Railways to adjust itself to the new conditions, explaining what had been done in the way of trucking between intercity freightsheds, the development of highway trucking service the inauguration of local cartage service, the simplification of tariffs, the revision of the rate structure and the packing requirements, the providing of door-to-door service of merchandise at 20 per cent less than the combination of the former multiple rates and the allowance of credit accounts.

The Local Result.

"It is hardly necessary for me to say" said the speaker, that this service has met with the endorsation of the public, because this fact is most conclusively proven in our Peterborough station records. These records indicate that during the first eight months this service was in operation during the months of May to December inclusive, 1936, the shorthaul merchandise tonnage originated at Peterborough and shipped over the Canadian National Railway, increased upwards of 108 per cent, as compared with the corresponding period of the previous year, when the new service was not in effect. For the eight months, May to December inclusive, 1936, as compared with 1935, there was a further substantial increase. The increase at other stations is on a parallel with the increase at Peterborough, all of which is conclusive evidence, not only of public approval, but also of the ability of the railway to readjust its services in meeting the present day demand for convenience, speed and low cost of transportation."

The thanks of Rotary were extended to Mr. Millar by Rotarian T. J. Carley.

BRITISH EDITOR LAUDS HEPBURN

Premier Is Encouraged In His Fight Against "Boss" Lewis

LONDON, April 20.—Colin Brooks, editor of the Sunday Dispatch, commenting today on the Prime Ministers of the Empire, says of Premier Hepburn:

"The British Empire has produced a remarkable galaxy of Premiers. Rhodes, Jameson, Huggins and Smuts in Africa are sure of places in history as are Reid, Hughes, Deakin and Bruce in Australia, and Seddon in New Zealand, and one man today who is applying remarkable qualities to an awkward task is Mr. Hepburn of Ontario.

"When Mr. Hepburn first came over the horizon he looked like a familiar type of radical reformer. Men called him the 'Huey Long of Canada,' but the name did him indiscreetly less than justice. He became Premier of his Province when he was 38. Now, at 40, in the very prime of life, he looks back on a career of achievement. Bank clerk, rejected recruit on the score of youth, member of the Royal Flying Corps, farmer, legislator, and now, as Prime Minister, he is facing with firmness and determination the strike situation which has been fomented in his Province by American agitators.

"Labor Boss Lewis of the United States may frighten some of his compatriots, but he cannot frighten Hepburn. Premier Hepburn came in on the cry of a square deal for the forgotten man, but the forgotten man was the Ontario citizen, not the strike agitator or his dupe."

Company Cannot Escape

This we noticed by way of comment on the strike situation in Oshawa: "The General Motors is a powerful and well-fortified concern and can stand the stoppage of work longer than the strikers."

That claim may have some element of truth in it, but there are well-defined limits to the time any industrial concern can remain idle. Our belief is that General Motors would be injured from the first day of the strike, and any industry would be effected the same way. The men are losing wages and the company is losing output, and it is output on which the company depends to make its revenue.

The strike business hits both ways. And the longer a strike lasts the more pronounced is this tendency. It makes no difference if General Motors is a large and well-fortified concern. Its financial strength depends on the extent to which it makes and sells its output. The expenses of such a concern do not terminate because it has closed its doors. There must be a formidable expense sheet in such a corporation which will have to continue regardless of its revenue having been cut off. If by reason of a protracted strike the strength of its financial position is reduced then it stands to reason its ability to pay future wages on an increased basis is being discounted.

They Should Stop It

A delivery boy of 17 years was attacked in Toronto on Saturday night, or it may have been Sunday morning. It was the old business of responding to a call for some groceries and being attacked when he got to the given address. Always it appears there is a side-entrance or a side-drive down which the delivery boy finds it necessary to go to complete his errand. On this last occasion in Toronto the boy, although struck on the head, managed to escape with his money untouched.

When a boy of 17 is called upon to leave a grocery store at 11.30 on a Saturday night it looks as though the business day were being worked for more than it is worth. It is difficult to believe that any person in an ordinary or average family would be doing much telephoning at that hour of the night. On the face of it the call would look suspicious. More so because so many similar cases have been reported.

If the people who are running the business would go and do some of those messages themselves they might see the wisdom of having nothing to do with such deliveries. They could merely state on the phone that the delivery service was through for the night. Apart from that, keeping a store open until midnight on Saturday is something which should be discontinued.

No Reason For This

Newsreel pictures have been taken in Oshawa, but Premier Hepburn objects to their release. He fears it will be used as propaganda. That is given as the reason why none of the pictures have been released.

There has been nothing unlawful taking place in Oshawa; it is reported there have been no arrests for almost two weeks, and that in itself constitutes something like a record for good behavior. That being the case there could be nothing to reflect discredit to Oshawa, the strikers, the General Motors or any other parties in showing in picture form what is going on there.

Newspapers have been publishing pictures of strike scenes in Oshawa and so far we have heard of nothing serious happening as the result. No one has laid a charge that it was propaganda.

This paper can see no reason whatever why the men who take pictures should not follow their business in Oshawa as elsewhere, and we know of no good reason why such pictures should not be allowed the fullest possible freedom of access to the screen.

They Call It a Battle

His Majesty the King must of course remain the centre of the coronation activities. After all he is greatly concerned regarding what takes place. But on the side lines the battle rages. We read in a despatch from Paris that it has settled down to a contest between the Duchess of Kent and Countess Kurt von Haugwitz-Reventlow, who was the former Barbara Hutton, American heiress of the five-and-ten store millions.

We learn that women of the set termed "international" go to Paris and pay $500 for a gown without batting an eyelash. The details of the so-called battle between the ladies in purchasing coronation robes are meagre; in fact it is admitted they may not be actually or acutely aware that there is any warfare going on. In the next paragraph comes the information that the Duchess of Kent has so far spent $15,000. Two lines below that is the announcement that the Countess recently paid $10,000 for thirty costumes, which is somewhat below the standard previously referred to of paying $500 without batting an eyelash, but there is comfort in the further remark that "the Countess is still buying."

The coronation will probably cause people to spend millions of money. We appreciate the view that such spending serves to emphasize the social inequality in the world, and it is not likely there is even a good argument to combat such assertion. Apart from that there is satisfaction in finding that those who have money to spend are doing so. If a woman buys 30 dresses and pays $10,000 for them and goes back for more it means that people are busy making such things; it means the money is going into the hands of the trades people. There is much about the fabulous accumulations of wealth which we cannot admire, but we would much prefer to see these people spending their money than keeping it under lock and key.

Sixty Prospective Wives

George Lossing is 59 and he lives near Port Rowan, and George is a farm hand, which may in dignity of expression be regarded as a couple of notches higher up than a hired man. He is also a single man is George, but he has seen the error of his way and desired to take to himself a wife.

George desired first of all to have a number from which to make a selection. He was not going to start in pursuit of the first female he saw, so he spent 50 cents and put an advertisement in the Simcoe Reformer, from which he received 60 replies—and that would be $1.80 in revenue for the postoffice department.

Some of the replies came from Quebec, a number from United States and more from Ontario. We learn the writers penned letters, employed typing machines to word them while a few wrote with crayon. But 60 was the total number and that we regard as a fairly high mark. In the process of selection George Lossing has picked on a farm girl of 26 years from near Picton, but admits he has not yet received a reply to his letter of proposal.

All of which rather puts an end to the supply of patience we try to keep in store for the young fellows who marry not neither do they court, saying there is none in the land who would seriously consider teaming up with them on a permanent basis. George Lossing of Port Rowan has blasted that claim for all time to come and George could hardly claim to be one who is filled with the ardor or youth or much cumbered with worldly possessions. And yet when George sent up his Macedonian cry to come over and help us there were sixty who responded!

The Kindly Capitalist

The Examiner has received a letter, and the writer did not sign it. He says he could not allow his name to be printed as he works in a local factory. The Examiner does not insist that names be printed, but the paper does need to know who writes the letter.

This writer seems to be certain newspapers do not stand up for the workers as they should, "as they are in a newspaper association which is controlled by the capitalistic system, so if any editor belonging to this association speaks in favor of the worker he is cracked down upon by the capital-controlled association."

If an answer to that is sincerely desired it can be furnished in few words. There is in this office a framed certificate regarding membership in the Canadian Press, and the annual meeting of that association will take place on the 28th of this month. We know in advance what will be talked about, and there will be members complaining about the increasing costs of collecting news and forwarding it to newspapers. We are certain there will be some who will shake the head seriously if between sessions they start to discuss the rising cost of newsprint and try to figure out how they are going to meet it. We are just as certain there will be no capitalist in the room who will step over and bear the information that all will be well because the capitalist system will take the form of a kindly benefactor who has a great deal of money to give away.

It may be our letter writer of today will not believe that capitalism plays no favorites with newspapers. It would be a pleasant thing to contemplate, but there have been too many interments in the newspaper cemetery to allow one to hold to such a view. Capitalists have no money to waste on newspapers; some mighty good ones have struggled for a long season and then they have found it necessary to fold up and go out of business. No capitalist rushed in at the last moment, nor did he send an envoy bearing with him a great bag of gold and bills to save the crash. We can assure our letter-writing friend whom we do not know that a newspaper has to get sufficient revenue in a legitimate business way to pay its bills or else it has to quit.

Nice Big Children

We saw something about Peterborough in the Globe and Mail, so we stopped right there and started to read about it. There had been an excursion to Toronto and "children and parents from Peterborough" had visited the parliament buildings and the Royal Ontario Museum. We learned also there were 65 in the party.

But it so happens that if these were children then they were nice big children, so big that they could never hope to ride on the Toronto street cars on the fare of a child. Of that we are quite certain. And they were also too large for well-meaning old gentlemen to stop on the streets and pat them on the head and ask if they were having a great time in the big city.

These children were large enough to travel by themselves, and their parents were not with them. Perhaps what we are driving at could be more readily grasped if it were stated at once they were students from the Peterborough Normal School. Apart from the few defects noted above the Toronto report was quite correct.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Apparently Ontario's new defence force has not been invited to send any representatives with Canada's military delegation to the Coronation.

The principality of Leichenstein in Austria has a standing army of just one soldier. That is just one more than Agnes Macphail would propose for Canada's defence force.

Mr. Roebuck has resigned from the Ontario Hydro Commission and we do not suppose the Quebec power companies will take any steps to have him reconsider his decision.

Sudbury folk were so enthusiastic over the Frood team winning the senior amateur championship of Canada that they lighted seventeen bonfires. Usually it is the losers who do the burning up.

Walter Young of Verdun, Que., has won the classic Boston Marathon race, getting over the finishing line first in that long grind is developing into a Canadian habit.

The theory that the Scotch are a close race gains some color from the report of a survey which shows that overcrowding in Scotland is six times greater than in England.

Mr. Hepburn came into office on a slogan about the forgotten man but when it is a question of locating civil servants to be fired it would seem there are very few forgotten men.

At least 500 cars are to compete in a ten-thousand mile race around Australia, and if the committee in charge want any more entries we are in a position to give the names of some local drivers we would be glad to have enter.

Doukhobor threats of violence have stopped the construction of a radio station in British Columbia. Possibly the Doukhobors are taking that way of preventing the British Columbia air from being invaded by too much swing music.

The fact that there is to be no extension of the trapping season will leave the surviving muskrats in the same position as the man who guesses wrong in the stockmarket. They will just get away with their skins.

Toronto police are trying to solve the problem of how two men were able to carry a 60-foot railway rail several blocks. Have they investigated any large-sized sales of spinach during the last few days?

Winnipeg aldermen are almost unanimously opposed to the idea of a city manager. They probably feel that given the right man for the job the plan is sound enough but it is too easy to get the wrong man.

NOTHING NEW

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I often talk with Jonas Bones, and listen to his sighs and groans, he says he's poor indeed; he tells me he had days of wealth, and owned great stacks of glowing health, but he has gone to seed.

¶ He tells me of his vast estate, of all the goodly things he ate, of butlers and of cooks; he tells me of the stables there, of grooms he had and two to spare, of rooms well lined with books.

¶ And he was welcomed in fine homes, a place there was for Jonas Bones, he held his head up high; but now that he is rather bent, and hardly ever has a cent, he says they pass him by.

¶ Yet Jonas Bones will stop and talk, about the paths he used to walk, of happy hours he had; but then comes trouble on his brow, he thinks of how he's living now, and he turns sour and sad.

¶ But Jonas has found nothing new, it's been like that since men first grew, and like as not 'twill stay; you may have had some great amount, but now the only thing to count—is what you have today.

Kawartha Lakes Led Bass Record

(By Gregory Clarke in Toronto Star)

DR. W. A. Cerswell, well-known Toronto physician, of 662 Dovercourt Rd., has the distinction of being the last and final winner of The Toronto Star black bass contest. With a splendid bass of six pounds, one ounce, length 22½ inches, girth 16 inches, taken in a Parry Sound district lake, Dr. Cerswell topped the list of 10 entries and brings to a close Canada's premier fishing contest which The Star, with regret, now terminates.

The capture of the fine bass was on August 22 last. Dr. Cerswell, in company with Dr. R. A. Thomas, Mr. A. F. Taylor and Mr. Gideon Silverthorn, was camped on an inland lake some miles north of Parry Sound. After fishing for some hours with bait casting tackle using a plug bait as a lure, Dr. Cerswell was persuaded by the Indian guide to substitute a spinner and worm and let the bait sink deep. The magnificent six-pounder was the result.

Thus closes a 36-year-old contest. It is with regret The Star completes what was the first province-wide fishing contest in Ontario. But due to the decline both in the size of bass and in the number of sizeable bass, the contest no longer served its original purpose. The catching of a record bass nowadays is more in the nature of a miracle than matter for a contest.

THE Star small mouth black bass contest originated in 1901 when a great deal of doubt and dispute existed as to the weight these greatest of freshwater game fish attained. The Star decided to solve the dispute with a contest that would attract the entry of all the big bass caught in Ontario. For 36 years, the contest has awarded each year a beautiful $35 rod, reel and line to the captor of the prize bass.

Three times in the 36 years a bass of over seven pounds has won. Thus 7¼ pounds is the largest small mouth bass recorded officially in the contest and doubtless serves as an official record for all purposes.

During the 36 years of the contest a great mass of other important information has been collected in regard to this most valuable game fish, which must be credited with having brought Ontario an incredible sum of millions of dollars in tourist traffic alone, apart from the pleasure it has given several generations of Ontario people.

In the 1900's, entries in the contest numbered scores and bass close to seven pounds were frequent, while six pounders and over were generally entered to the number of half a dozen; and five pounds and over ran well over the dozen. As late as 1920 to 1926, the decline in the size and numbers of bass was not excessively noticeable, six pounders numbering generally three or four, and five pounders a dozen. But about the middle of the 1930's, the great annual tidal wave of tourists began and from then on the contest has steadily dwindled. This noble fish may honestly be credited with bringing an incalculable number of millions of dollars into Ontario and it is a pity this contest must bear witness to its unquestioned decline.

Some of the high spots in the long story of the contest are the number of champion bass recorded. In 1922 E. B. Pepper caught a 7¼ pound bass in Stoney Lake, length 23 inches, girth 17½ inches. In 1924, C. S. Faller caught another 7¼-pounder in Cameron Lake, length 23 inches, girth 17 inches. In 1928, Morley A. Parret got a 7 pounds 1 ounce bass in Partridge Lake, Parry Sound. This fish was 23¾ inches long and a girth of 16 inches.

During the 36 years the small green frog has shared with the angle worm the leadership in winning baits. The winning date on which most of the winners have fallen for the lure has been the week containing August 28.

The Kawartha Lakes led all in the number of champions contributed, Kawarthas including, of course Belmont, Crow and Round Lakes.

WHAT IT MEANS.

(Ottawa Journal)

THE Journal is not a Red-baiter. It detests Red-baiters. Yet the truth remains that there is a revolutionary wing of John L. Lewis' forces. John Brophy, director of the C.I.O. and Lewis' chief in C.I.O. organization work, was once Communist candidate for the presidency of the United Mine Workers of America. Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, and active captain for Lewis, is a Russian-born pro-soviet leader, was once head of what was known as the Russian-American Industrial Corporation. Adolph Germer, Lee Pressman (general attorney for Lewis' organization), Homer Martin, Walter P. and Roy Reuther—these and a score of others all prominent in the Lewis campaign, are all definitely of the extreme Left. If they are not out-an-out revolutionary Communists, they are extreme Socialist.

This being true—and there is no doubt about it—what conclusion must we come to? Are we to admit that these people, without stake in Canada, without knowledge of or interest in Canada, shall be given the sole right to bargain with—and to dictate to—Canadian industry? This to advance the program and power—and the political ambitions—of John L. Lewis? To build him an International of his own?

A Bit of Nonsense

Stirring Up Rivalry

A tremendous kick sent the rugby ball high into the air and over a fence, where it landed beside a cockerel in a neighboring farm yard.

A look of amazement came over the bird's countenance as he surveyed the ball. Then he pushed it into the henhouse and called the hens round him.

"I'm not grumbling, you understand," he said, seriously, "but I just want you to see for yourselves what is being done in other poultry yards."

THE BRAVE MAN

"Yes, the lights certainly have failed. But don't be nervous, Gwenyth, I'll run and buy some candles in the village."

What About Profits?

(From the Brantford Expositor)

THE difficulties of the economic situation over the last few years have generated a lot of thinking. Much of it has been sound. A good deal, however, had been loose. Some of the least sensible of the many propositions and panaceas have made the widest appeal. As a matter of fact, the old familiar rule was faithfully followed: the advocate who ranted the loudest attracted the biggest audience.

Many of these panaceas soon appeared in their true light and promptly disappeared from the economic picture. Others stuck. Many veteran in the field of fancy theories which come as godsends to the agitators and professional "labor" leaders is the idea of sharing profits. All the profits, they say, glibly, should go to the men that made the profits possible.

This is sheer nonsense, but it is surprising how reasonable nonsense can sound if cleverly phrased for the benefit of those whose knowledge of the subject is not as complete as it might be.

The best reply to this type of propaganda — a reply in language that everyone from the financial executive to the day-laborer can clearly understand—was given the other Sunday in an address by Mr. W. J. Cameron of the Ford Motor Company.

Pointing out that if all the "profits" of the Ford business had been divided among Mr. Ford's fellow employees, there would have been no Ford business today, Mr. Cameron said:

"Anyone can see what would have happened had he called his men together every week and divided among them the week's profit. What would have been left for experiment, equipment, improvement, growth? Nothing. To little shop would have stared little. Its crude methods would have remained crude. Its primitive car would not have advanced beyond the primitive stage. Other manufacturers, investing their profits in better equipment, would have made a better product to sell at a lower cost and so sell more and, in consequence of a growing volume, employ more men at higher wages. But the little Ford shop, dispersing its profits, would have drifted further and further behind . . . until eventually it disappeared and its seventy-five men would have been out. They could not have grown to the 125,000 men we see today. For profits are what a business grows on. Profits support a business in the same way that wages support a family."

Mr. Cameron, of course, dealt specifically with the Ford Company by way of illustration. And an excellent illustration it was. But the same argument will hold true, in principle, in the case of any other business. So when some earnest "anti-Capitalist" orator is holding forth, remember this basic point—go further than that and realize that, if the said orator is employed by any properly organized unit, his own outfit must, and does, employ exactly the same principle as the one he so roundly condemns.

Training Is Necessary.

(From the Chatham News)

ONE condition that stands out in these unsettled times is the prevalence of crime in every country of the world. Human life seems to be at a decidedly low valuation when, without provocation, mere youths with perverted ideals of social requirements and the liberties of others for the sake of a few dollars, unhesitatingly take the life of a fellow being.

There has been an orgy of such crimes in all the large cities of Canada and the United States, which the authorities have only begun to properly cope with.

The study of social conditions has not revealed the cause of this disregard of laws and conventions that are supposed to safeguard society, though there have been several excuses offered, some of which may have weight. Employment is largely blamed; the desire for money, and plenty of it, to waste on prodigal living; the desire for adventure and the excitement of foiling the law and its minions. There may be a measure of truth in all these surmises, but none of them is entitled to half the blame attached thereto. The remedy for a deal of the trouble arising through the actions of wayward boys and girls is a closer supervision of home life in the cities and the institution of measures to counteract evil influences menacing child life. Service clubs, young people's societies and other organizations interested in youth welfare can play an increasingly important part in the movement to keep the young folk of the cities clear of disturbing elements and free of the troubles that eventually lead to criminal activities, if not checked in time.

There is no solid training among the youth in the school along the line of law observance. It being taken for granted that such will be learned by actual contact with the world. Home life also comes in for its share of blame, the old-fashioned training and laying of foundations of right principles seemingly being forgotten in the rush for both money and pleasure. Some blame legislation or the lack of it, but all blame something that relieves themselves of self-condemnation or responsibility for present-day conditions.

Penalties for crime have often been inadequate. Learned men of the law, as is right in the defense of their clients, search deep in the intricacies of the statutes for technical, legal and constitutional objections that will free a prisoner on trial, and such is the contrariness of the law that many a guilty person escapes scot free.

For much of the crime, the responsibility, rests with parents who permit their youngsters to roam the streets at all hours of the night. They seemingly have no control over their offspring, nor care one iota what mischief they get into, until something serious happens and their children find themselves in the hands of the police.

The Price of Empire.

(From the St. Thomas Times-Journal)

TWO incidents reported from the northwest boundary of India tell vividly what British service in that turbulent part of the world means. The Overseas Daily Mail of April 3, just arrived by post, printed a thrilling picture of Major H. H. Johnson, Assistant Resident of Waziristan, addressing a large audience of Utmanzai warriors, who were so impressed that they took an oath to end the present unrest. The extended report on another page stated that there was a battle of wits between the Major and the Fakir of Ipi, the firebrand of the frontier, who sought to rouse the tribes to a holy war against the British. It was felt that the first round had gone to Major Johnson, who satisfied his hearers that the British had no desire to interfere with the Islamic religion. These men were to send a deputation to try to win over the rest of the followers of the Ipi Fakir and so put an end to the series of ambushes that had cost the lives of four British officers, several British soldiers and scores of Indian troops during the last few months.

The incident was made much of by the English press and warrantably so, apparently, until a despatch of April 11, told of a very bloody Afridi ambush engineered by this very Fakir of Ipi, which cost the lives of seven British officers, two British non-commissioned officers and twenty Indian troops, besides forty-five officers and men wounded. Attack had been made upon a convoy of 45 trucks, escorted by several armored cars, 125 soldiers and a scout plane. The airplane had been forced down, but three trucks and an armoured car had succeeded in breaking through and reaching a British outpost, the attackers also being driven off and twenty more of the trucks being finally saved.

Thus the tranquillization of the border leading into Afghanistan, as mountainous and physically tricky as any part of the Canadian Rockies, and inhabited by the most turbulent tribes in the world, seems as far as ever from success. And yet the British task has to be maintained, lest these fellows make raids into the Indian plains and spread murder and rapine. The British Raj therefore has a work cut out for it front which it must perforce never withdraw.

It is seldom, however, that so striking a parallel turns up in the news only short weeks apart, as this exploit of an officer in shirt sleeves and wearing the protective tin hat, backed by a handful of British officers on a carpet spread over the sward of a valley in those immemorial mountains, facing hundreds of tribesmen seated and standing, for a grim conference, followed perhaps two weeks after by a ferocious ambush perpetrated by kinsmen of the tribesmen present in the picture.

Lonely Tristan da Cunha has announced that the island is free from rats.

LADY AND BUCKSAW.

(Sault Ste. Marie Star)

WHAT ho! A woman at Geraldton, up in the sticks of New Ontario, buck sawed a six-inch block of wood in 14 seconds. Thus distancing the men down around Peterboro, Woodstock, Brantford and other southern points who have been pluming themselves on doing the job in several times that record. We expect Arthur Kennedy, Peterboro; Harris Walsh, St. Catharines; Rupe Davies, Kingston; Tom Keith, St. Thomas; Lewis Milligan, Stratford, and a few others who have been speaking in prideful tones of their lads will now pull in their horns.

Yes, yes, Geraldton is in Algoma so practically so. At least the Algoma outlook is accepted there.—the determination to excel and startle or startle and excel. If you will have it so.

These softies down south should not have wandered into strenuous fields. What with the boys talking large about their muscles, the north could only look on and wonder that a man could take so long as 56 seconds or 42½, or whatever it was, to negotiate a stick of wood. But the women up here finally took the bucksaw into their own hands and took what happened.

Perhaps we had better have a little demonstration of the gulf between us and the plug hat belt. If that's what they want we rather imagine our ladies shouldn't be allowed to compete. No use irritating Old Ontario any more than is necessary. We know a man a few miles from the floo who can go through this evening recreation in——, but possibly it would be well to not be too specific just now. No use discouraging the Toronto area yet.

IGNORANCE A FACTOR.

(Belleville Ontario Intelligencer)

OVER-CONFIDENCE, developed because drivers' reactions and abilities under ordinary circumstances have proven safe and satisfactory, has carried many drivers into situations when proper allowance has not been made for unusual circumstances. This is the suggestion of the Accident Recording Division of the Highways Department of Ontario in regard to a large percentage of motor vehicle accidents.

An incident is noted of a driver whose record showed a large number of convictions for speeding. But he was involved in no major accident. He did recall that once at the speed of 55 miles an hour he nearly had an accident as a truck entered the highway suddenly from a farm driveway. He admitted another narrow escape when his car swerved to the wrong side of the road as he was putting off the shoulder at high speed. He was content to repeat the old saying: "A mile is as good as a mile."

"Why can't we—as drivers and pedestrians—in our behaviour on the streets and highways make allowance for the 'factor of ignorance'—the unpredicted emergencies which cause the so-called unavoidable accidents" is the question of the Accident Recording Division, and should be the question those who cross or use the roads and streets should ask themselves.

No Decision By Union.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(AP).—The United Automobile Workers' Executive Board resumed again to-day—apparently without reaching a decision—the question of calling a General Motors' strike in the United States in sympathy with the walkout of 3,700 workers from the General Motors' Oshawa, Ont., plant.

Homer Martin, U.A.W. president, said the board, which had discussed the situation three hours behind closed doors, had no statement to make either on the Canadian situation or plans for organization of

REV. J. M. WALKER PIONEER MINISTER PASSES IN TORONTO

Served At Hall's Bridge, Lakehurst, Rockcroft And Grafton In Peterborough Presbytery

BORN IN SCOTLAND

Friends in Peterborough and surrounding district will be grieved to hear of the death of Rev. Joseph M. Walker. He passed to his great reward at Western Hospital, Toronto, on Thursday.

The late Rev. Walker came from Banff Scotland, in 1880, and after spending a few years in and around Orillia, came to Huntsville and in 1890 married Mary Susannah Shaw, eldest daughter of the late Allan and Mary Shaw, early pioneers of the Muskoka district. He was always an active church member in Huntsville, being a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, a member of Session, and for a time Superintendent of the Sunday School. He did much local preaching and in 1905 accepted a call to serve in the Home Mission Fields of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. His first charge was in Charlton, New Ontario, and during the years 1927 to 1932, he served in the Peterborough Presbytery—at Grafton, Baltimore, Rockcroft, Halls Bridge and Lakehurst, and finished his active ministry here, being retired in 1932.

Moving to Toronto, he still worked through the channels of Dovercourt Road Presbyterian Church and Chalmers Presbyterian Church. His mission now seemed to be the visiting of the sick and shut-in, and up to the day he was admitted to Hospital for an operation, he found great joy and comfort from the Ministry.

For seven weeks he fought a good fight, but on April 15th, the end came peacefully in the presence of members of the family. Thus ended a life the motto of which ever seemed to be, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

The funeral from the Miles Funeral Home on Saturday, April 17th, was conducted by the Rev. A. C. Stewart, Chalmers Presbyterian Church, assisted by Rev. Dr. J. H. MacNamara, Secretary, Board of Administration of the Presbyterian Church, and Rev. J. B. Skene, representing Toronto Presbytery. Assisting in the service were members of Fidelity A.F. and A.M. No. 575, Masonic Lodge. Dr. MacNamara told the friends gathered, of the hardships encountered by anyone who chose to serve in the Home Mission Field, but did not fail to mount on the eternal joy and satisfaction that must come from such sacrifice in the Master's service. He bore testimony to the high calibre of the work of the deceased and of his devotion to the cause. Peace, Perfect Peace, one of his favorite hymns, was fittingly rendered by Miss Florence Darlington.

Surviving are his widow, Mary S. Walker, Mrs. Gordon K. Rennie, Hamilton, Miss Flora Walker, St. Catharines, Mrs. William MacLean, Sudbury, Mrs. Chas. G. Shaw, Toronto and Lakehurst, and Rev. Charlie J., and Allan, all of Toronto.

astone's cargo, found it legitimate and granted permission to the skipper to weigh anchor. As the vessel passes the ring of warships—British on the north, German and French on the south and Italian on the east of Spain—the official will signal to the fleet commanders to permit unmolested passage.

After the cargo has been unloaded in Spain, he will be put ashore at a convenient port.

Had the Sarastone not applied for clearance and been attempting to run a cargo of contraband for either side she would have been halted by the patrol, boarded and inspected. They she would have been allowed to proceed, taking the risk of being captured or sunk by either insurgent or government warships.

The patrol, however would have immediately reported to the British government, in this instance, the violation of the latter neutrality laws for punishment of the shippers and the captain.

ARMS BUDGET HITS INCOMES

year than some highly artificial arrangements were effected for circumventing its provisions. One method, he said, was the formation of one-man companies known as investment companies.

"I propose to take power to defeat that arrangement and in order to enforce my warning of last year I propose to make it effective for the purpose of surtax for the year 1936-37" the Chancellor declared.

Chamberlain said he would seek legislative authority on certain small points arising from the recent trade treaty with Canada. He would introduce resolutions applying the Ottawa Agreement Act to the new agreement and revising preferential duties on certain silk stockings of empire production and abolishing preferential duties on reed organs of empire origin.

A Few Suggested Sources

The Chancellor caused amusement throughout the House by quoting in alphabetical order suggestions from correspondents for fresh sources of taxation. They include cats, dogs, debutantes, loudspeakers, newspapers, speculators and wages.

Not one of them, however, was of any use to him, Chamberlain said. As if apologizing for having to make fresh calls on taxation to meet the defence program, The chancellor said:

"I cannot help thinking of the taxpayer, and although he may groan and grumble at the fresh demand being made upon him, he will find some consolation in the thought his additional contribution represents an ever quickening approach to the goal of safety."

Blood-Letting Of The Ancients Approved By Modern Medicos

Find Advantage Especially Where Drugs And X-rays Are Inadvisable

SIMPLE PROCEDURE

By Stephen J. McDonough
(Associated Press Science Writer.)

ST. LOUIS, April 20—(AP.)—Modern medical endorsement was given to-day to the ancient practice of blood-letting to cure disease as members of the American College of Physicians gathered here for their annual meeting.

Dr. D. J. Stephens and Dr. Nolan L. Kaltreider of the University of Rochester, New York, reported they had revived the practise, once used as a treatment for many diseases, and applied it successfully in treating polycythemia, or abnormal production of red blood corpuscles.

The blood of persons suffering from the disease becomes stagnant and likely to clot and obstruct the blood vessels, they declared, and may cause partial paralysis, dizziness, enlargement of the heart, and discolored skin.

To relieve and correct the condition, the Rochester physicians said, they merely opened a vein and withdrew large quantities of blood, in one case removing seven pints in two weeks.

This treatment reduced "the relative volume of the red blood cells to a normal or slightly subnormal level," they added and usually gave "marked relief of symptoms referable to the polycythemia and reduced size of the spleen."

The operation "is a relatively simple procedure, the effects of which may be accurately controlled," Dr. Stephens and Dr. Kaltreider said. "Its advantages would appear to warrant its more extensive use, particularly on those patients for whom the use of drugs or X-rays is inadvisable."

RESIDENCE RULE SET AT OCTOBER 15

Senior Hockey Clubs Will Only Be Allowed To Import Four

TORONTO, April 20 (C.P.). — Delegates to the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to-day approved a new residence rule providing all transfers to be made by October 15. The old rule in force a couple of years, set the transfer date at January 1.

The meeting decided to permit senior teams to import no more than four players while junior and intermediate teams had their figure set at two. This rule has been operating in the Ontario Hockey Association for three years and delegates decided to place it in the Canadian body's rule book.

In future all Allan and Memorial Cup finals will be on the best-of-five basis with playdowns on two-out-of-three. This system was adopted on a mail vote before the series just concluded but under way and to-day approval was extended for its continuance.

Lablanc was given one year determinate and two years less a day indeterminate, while the other two were given six months determinate, and a year indeterminate, given six months determinate and a Lablanc had a long record and refused to give his real name to the crown attorney. "The name I am charged under is good enough," said Lablanc.

2 LABOR UNIONS AT FINAL BREAK

A. F. Of L. Prepares For Final Ousting Of Lewis C.I.O. Group

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP).—Members of the American Federation of Labor Executive Council said today the group was near the point of breaking finally with unions aligned with John L. Lewis' rival committee for industrial organization.

Frank Morrison, A. F. of L. secretary, said it was conceivable the council session opening today would move for expulsion of the Lewis "rebel" unions. This would be done by fixing a time and place for a special federation convention to ratify last year's suspension of the groups.

The ostensible purpose of the council meeting, however, was to discuss a general membership campaign and the situation created by the validation of the National Labor Relations Act by the U.S. Supreme Court.

As the members went into session, Lewis met a few blocks away with leaders of the United Automobile workers to consider plans for organizing employees of the Ford Motor Company.

A possible first move was filing of charges against the Ford Company with the National Labor Relations Board. Homer Martin, Automobile Union president, indicated in Detroit recently this might be done.

Despite the threat of labor difficulties, the Ford Company announced plans for expansion of its plant. An official said Henry Ford had approved construction in Detroit of a 2,500,000 cubic foot gas holder "as high as an 18-storey building."

Combinations Of Vegetables And Meats For Spring Season

Eaters For Longevity Should Eat Plenty Of Vegetables

DRINK LOTS OF MILK

By MARY MOORE

CONTRARY to what might be popularly assumed I am not so much a good cook as a server and provider of good food.

It warmed the cockles of my heart to read this, this week, quoted from Nutritionist Henry Clapp Sherman of Columbia University: "Simple redistribution of the present expenditures for food, and this without omitting any article of food to which consumer is accustomed, but merely by easy shifting of relative proportions, can unquestionably constitute greatly to the advancement of the standard of health and vitality in coming years . . ."

"Eaters for longevity should take all the milk, green and yellow vegetables and fruits which they can stomach."

It is just last that gives one such great comfort—the simplicity of it. Why should we spend hours cooking?

I had one qualm, however!—where do our precious tomatoes fit in? Being not exactly fruit nor quite a vegetable—and positively neither green nor yellow—I still am going to eat bushels of them and wait to hear Dr. Sherman's assurance that they are still of major importance.

Now that our weekly lesson has ended with the moral to buy fruit and vegetables by color and eat lots of milk and eggs, I can get on with my suggestions for serving, especially fine cuts of meat with vegetables prepared especially nicely.

An experienced butcher with knowledge of boning, rolling and trimming fancy roasts seems to be at a premium—I think the race is rapidly becoming extinct. The supply of butchers seems to come from glorified delivery boys—who have learned to slice round steak so thin that it looks like a log but costs very little.

In face of such odds I have learned to order my meat and roasts face to face to the man in charge of the store—and watch him while he executes my wishes.

Crown Roast of Pork with Steamed Green Onions

A crown roast of pork is made from two loins of pork consisting of about 8 ribs each. These are bent backwards each to form a half circle with the rib side out, and tied to form a circle. The fat is trimmed from the meat side, the meat is trimmed from the tips of the bones to leave about 1½ inches bare bone. You need 16 one-inch cubes of salt pork too.

When ready to roast, wipe the meat with a damp cloth and dredge well with salt and paprika.

Slit the cubes of pork just enough to fit over the bone tips—this saves them from charring and bastes the roast automatically.

Place a whole peeled onion, and 1 apple peeled and quartered down in the centre of the crown to flavor it.

Bake throughout at moderate temperature of 350 deg. Fahr., for 30 minutes for every pound—pork must always be roasted well done.

During the last 30 minutes of roasting remove onion and apple.

To prepare green onions trim off the roots, and green stems above bulb and enough green stems to make them half white and half green. Steam without moving over hot water until tender. When serving roast put generous border of steamed green onions around—platter must be hot. Onions done this way leave no "breath."

Fillet of Veal a La Lilla

Without consulting my files I think this has been published on the cookery page before. For it also you must stand over the butcher and watch like a hawk while he prepares it.

Order a fillet of veal—called a cushion of veal in some communities—however it corresponds to a "round" roast of beef.

Have the butcher take out the bone and cut a piece of fat salt pork to fit the hole left, tightly. He must now take 1 lb. piece of beef suet and pound it to a sheet of fat similar to caul fat, to wrap the veal in—1 lb. is about enough if it is pounded well enough and long enough with his cleaver. He fastens this around the veal with skewers.

When you get it home salt and paprika it well. Roast in open pan—starting at 500 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes,—reducing the heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for the long cooking—for veal must not be underdone either—but being so tender requires only about 18 minutes to the pound.

Shredded Green Beans a La Emem

With this serve new green beans, shredded, with enough of their own liquor, little enough of it that the yolk of 1 egg will thicken. When the beans are done, mix 2 tablespoons soft butter with the yolk of 1 egg, mixing them thoroughly, then pour over this ¼ cup of bean liquor stirring until it thickens. Season with salt and pepper and pour back over beans.

Under the Enquiry Column you may see method for preparing and baking ham. With it serve baked sweet potatoes that have been halved lengthwise, scooped from the shell, beaten until fluffy, made light with the addition of 1 beaten egg white and flavored with butter and salt; returned to the oven, the tops scored with a fork, to brown delicately.

When you want to prepare and serve a meal that you want enjoyed and remembered for its quality, without spending your whole week's food budget on it—order fillet mignons—you younger ones may not know that these are thick slices from the tenderloin of beef, wrapped around the edges with side bacon. Do not fry them—always broil them. I have had these in hotels and homes where economy was not a factor and only 1 was served to a plate—sliced about 1½ inches before broiling this is quite a good serving. They require about 18 minutes under hot broiler—turning 4 times.

I am not alone in the idea that broccoli is one of the finest accompaniments to steak—for fillets mignon are glorified steak—but it must have genuine hollandaise. I am not going to repeat method for making hollandaise here because it has appeared so often, but for any of you that write requesting it again I shall do so.

Although this is not Spring Chicken season we used a large young chicken for Baked Chicken Supreme—the chicken recipe that enjoyed so much popularity through this page a year or so ago—and served Spinach Moulds with it to create a mild flutter last Sunday.

Emem's Baked Chicken Supreme

Dress, clean, and cut up a young chicken—place in buttered granite baking dish or glass casserole and sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge with flour and dot with ¼ cup butter. Bake 30 minutes in oven of 425 deg. Fahr., basting every 5 minutes with ¼ cup butter melted in ¼ cup boiling water. About 10 minutes before serving time add ½ cup cream, and sprinkle with paprika. When ready to serve thicken gravy left in dish, adding some water to dilute it for it is very rich—strain over chicken on hot platter. Serve with

Spinach Moulds

Wash, pick over, and wash spinach again in 6 waters (you need not freeze your hands to wash spinach—tepid water does just as well as cold). Cook in about ½ cup boiling water—what drops from the leaves will make enough more to cook it. Cook not more than 10 minutes after boiling point is reached—turning it over twice. Drain and chop finely. Season with 1-3 cup butter and ¾ teaspoon salt (to 2 lbs.) and reheat. Press into buttered custard cups or large ring mould and keep warm until serving time. When ready to serve turn out around chicken on hot platter (if ring mould is used you will need separate round plate to serve it on) and garnish top with a light sprinkling of hard cooked egg yolk forced through strainer. Sprinkle this in turn with paprika. Grand to look at as well as taste.

There I have given you a good head start on green and yellow vegetables for health—without even mentioning cabbage and peas, and carrots, and turnips, and corn and lettuce, and celery, or watercress or parsley, or asparagus, or olives, or peppers, or egg plant, or cucumbers, Brussels sprouts, squash. Aren't there lots? And we haven't even touched on the yellow and green fruits. Good days are here, Ladies.

Tested Favorite Recipes

By MARY MOORE

Expecting guests to arrive for dinner one night and be back for lunch the following day I purchased a fillet of veal (see elsewhere on page), also the remainder of the whole leg of veal and made a jellied meat loaf that I had had in my mind to try for some time. It was a success with our family and the guests too.

Jellied Veal Loaf

Four-lb. veal shank, 1 lb. lean fresh pork, 1 onion, 3 stalks celery, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 2 hard cooked eggs. Boil together everything but the parsley and eggs, in water to cover until tender — about 3 hours. Lift out the meat and strain the sediment and vegetables out of the juice. Remove bones and skin and fat from meat and put through meat chopper. Add salt and pepper and 1 teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon pepper. Rinse with cold water enamel or glass dish and on bottom arrange slices of hard cooked egg sliced in egg slicer, put wee sprigs of parsley between the overlapping slices so that the dainty ends just protrude—this decoration is to be arranged so that it will show most effectively when loaf is chilled and turned out. Put in chopped meat pour over strained liquid—just enough to submerge meat. Chill thoroughly. Turn out on bed of watercress (or lettuce) and serve with a dish of cauliflower or potatoes au gratin. Mayonnaise is also good with it. The flavor is rich.

WHY PUT UP WITH PIMPLES, WRINKLES AND A SALLOW SKIN?

So many women throw their charm and beauty away — look years older than they are—because they neglect common constipation. They forget that badly balanced meals, over a period of years, can change how they look and feel.

Often their menus lack the "bulk" needed for regular habits. Then constipation, the beauty-killer, sets in. Other effects may be headaches, listlessness, sleeplessness.

Get "bulk" back into your meals with a delicious cereal: Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It absorbs moisture within the body, forms a soft mass, gently cleanses the system.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily, either as a cereal or in cooked dishes. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Try it a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

CONTEST WINNER

Miss Irene Faulkner Wins Prize Sponsored by Omemee W.A.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, April 20.—The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Association of Trinity United church was held Thursday evening, April 15, at the home of Mrs. W. Nortney, with a fair attendance, the president, Mrs. L. Sea, in the chair. Mrs. Rev. F. O. MacTavish read the scripture.

Following several items of business Mrs. H. Lamb and Mrs. Art Stinson gave two readings. The meeting closed with a hymn, "Softly and Tenderly Jesus is Calling" and the Mizpah Benediction.

A contest was much enjoyed by all, the prize going to Miss Irene Faulkner. Dainty refreshments were then served by the hostess, Mrs. Nortney, assisted by Mrs. Bogarth. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. W. Moncrief.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by
Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I like your cookery page very much and could you oblige me by telling how to cook hams sometime? I know lots of people who would really like to know—boiled or baked. Thanking you, M. T.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter and for an opportunity to publish the following recipe for Baked Ham which I think is excellent.

Savory Baked Ham

One 10 to 12-lb. ham, 1 stick of cinnamon, 1 tablespoon whole cloves, 3 cloves garlic (not essential if you do not like garlic), 1½ cups cider vinegar, 1 small glass of apple or crabapple jelly, 1 cup brown sugar, 4 teaspoons dry mustard, ¾ cup cold water, ¼ teaspoon each powdered cloves and cinnamon, 2 tablespoons cider vinegar, 1 cup granulated sugar. Wash the ham and put in kettle of boiling water to cover. Add whole cloves, stick cinnamon, garlic, cup vinegar and granulated sugar. Simmer gently for 3½ hours. When done, turn off the heat and let the ham stand in the hot liquor for at least 4 hours—or over night until cold. Lift from water, carefully trim off top skin and pat mixture of brown sugar and 3 teaspoons of the mustard into the whole surface of the fat. Insert whole cloves in even rows all over the surface if desired. Put the ham in baking pan, add ¼ cup vinegar and the water and bake in a slow oven of 300 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour. Do not baste until hour is nearly up. Fifteen minutes before the ham is taken from the oven make a sauce as follows: In a small saucepan mix 1 teaspoon dry mustard, and the powdered cloves and cinnamon with 2 tablespoons vinegar. Then add the jelly and heat over low heat until jelly is melted. Add more vinegar if you want the sauce sharper. Put the ham on a platter and pour the hot syrup over it. Carve the ham straight to the bone and over each slice pour a spoonful of the sauce.

We hope you find this as satisfactory as we do. It is excellent both hot and sliced cold.

QUESTION: In a recent cookery page you had a recipe for a whipped cream cake. I will appreciate it if you will send me the recipe.—Millicent H.

ANSWER: Probably Ives Cream Cake is the one to which you refer:

Ives Cream Cake

One and one-quarter cups heavy cream, 2 cups sifted cake flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs well beaten, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift the flour, measure, and sift with the baking powder and salt 3 times. Beat eggs and add the sugar to them. Sift the flour into the egg mixture and beat well until very smooth. Then carefully fold in the cream which has been whipped very stiff—almost to the point where it becomes butter. Bake in buttered loaf pan in oven of 350 deg. Fahr. for about 70 minutes. Frost with Chocolate Butter Frosting or cooked Fudge Frosting. (If you have clipped the recipe for Chocolate Nut Diamonds you will have the recipe for frosting for time—it is also good on the above Cream Cake.)

We hope you like the recipe and shall be glad to help you at any time.

QUESTION: I should like very much if you would publish a recipe for Pineapple Squares in your Cookery Page. I look forward every week to your page as it has helped me so much with its splendid recipes and long may it continue.

I will be looking forward to this recipe in the first edition that you can possibly print it in. The cooking page is my first thought when I open the paper. Thanking you, M.G.S.

ANSWER: I suppose I should not need encouragement but such letters as that act as a welcome tonic. Thank you.

Pineapple Squares

One cup white flour, 2 cups rolled oats, 1 cup brown sugar, ½ lb. (½ cup) butter. Filling: One No. 2 can crushed pineapple, stewed gently with ¼ cup of the brown sugar until the liquid is reduced enough to make the pineapple somewhat thick. Chill well.

Rub the flour, rolled oats and sugar into the butter till crumbly—spread half of the mixture on a flat pan to about one-half inch depth. Spread the filling over this then cover with the remainder of the mixture—flattening it down with a fork. Bake 20 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. Cut into squares while still hot.

QUESTION: I look forward each week for your valuable page. I enjoy trying the new recipes. I noticed a request for Yum Yums, I am sending you mine:

Yum Yums

(Submitted by Mrs. H. G. A.)

One and one-quarter cups flour, ½ cup butter, 2 dessert spoons brown sugar; mix these until crumbly and pack flat in shallow pan; over this pour the following mixture: 1 cup cocoanut, ½ cup broken walnuts, 2 eggs, pinch salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat well, pour over first mixture and bake in moderate oven until golden. Hoping the recipe may be of some use, Mrs. H. G. A.

ANSWER: Thank you, Mrs. H. G. A. for your recipe for Yum Yums. I have published three different versions for these sent in by thoughtful readers I have to thank G. V. S. of Douglas, N.B. for her recipe of Yum Yums and Fruit Squares, also E. L. A. of Lennoxville, P.Q. for her entirely different version of them which is similar to one we printed last week.

E. L. A.—Do send us your recipe for Banana Whip which you say is simpler than the one we printed a week or so ago.

Thanks for coming to my rescue with the Yum Yums recipe everyone of you—I certainly seem to have been definitely behind the times not having a recipe that seems to be so popular.

CLAIM CONFESSION IN GIRL'S MURDER

Booking Agent Admits Quarrel With Club Violinist Police State

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP).—Mischa Rosenbaum, 30, who operates a theatrical booking agency under the name of Mischa Ross, was held on a charge of homicide to-day in the slaying of Julia Nussenbaum, 20, night club violinist.

He was booked at a police station last night, less than 24 hours after Miss Nussenbaum's body was found in a sound proof rehearsal studio here. Her head was bashed in with a hammer.

Police asserted Rosenbaum confessed an altercation with the dancer; his attorney said there was no such confession. Sam Leibowitz, noted criminal lawyer, was retained for the defence.

Inspector Michael McDermott quoted Rosenbaum as saying: "I had been drinking heavily. I remember going into the room and Julia was there. We had some words. We had been arguing for several days because I wanted to go back to my wife and she didn't want me to.

"She hit me first with something—I don't know what it was. I must have grabbed the object out of her hand and hit her with it, but I don't remember. I don't remember anything until I woke up in a jail in Monticello."

OVER 4,000 BOOKS SENT DRY AREAS

Three Shipments From Queen Mary Handled Through Lady Tweedsmuir's Scheme

OTTAWA, April 20 (C.P.).—More than 4,000 books have been sent from Government House to people in the drought areas of the Prairies up to date, said Lady Tweedsmuir, describing "The Lady Tweedsmuir Prairie Library Scheme" to the Local Council of Women here.

Donations of books for the Western people are sent first to Government House here and Lady Tweedsmuir directs their distribution to various afflicted areas. If the donations are in the form of money, she looks after the choosing and buying of the books to be sent.

She told of the progress of her plan which started with the personal donation of a few books to the people of the West who, she said, "have been so magnificent—being happy and hopeful," in the face of hardships.

When in England, she said, she was summoned to Marlborough House where the Dowager-Queen Mary expressed her interest in the plan, and since then has sent three large shipments of books to Government House.

Each book is inscribed with the words: "Gift from Her Majesty Queen Mary" and "The Lady Tweedsmuir Prairie Library Scheme," so that it becomes, said Her Excellency, a personal thing between Queen Mary and the Prairie people.

CUP OF TEA ENDS STRIKE

Invitation To Have Tea Ends Women's Sit-Down Strike.

LONDON, April 20 (CP).—A typical British invitation to have "a nice cup of tea" today ended the baby carriage sit-down strike of angry mothers in Brockwell Park in South London.

The mothers wheeled their baby carts into the public gardens and sat down in protest against a municipal decision to bar perambulators from the gardens. The strike collapsed abruptly, however, when someone suggested they talk it over around the tea table.

300 Teachers Hold Parley In Rompers

NEW YORK, April 20 (A.P.).—Several hundred grown-ups put on rompers and held a convention today.

People ran around in bare feet. Pianos, drums and cymbals made some rhythm and a lot of bedlam. The spectator had to look outside the hall for the tip-off.

There a sign said: "Conference of the National Association of Directors of Physical Education for College Women."

Some 300 teachers of physical education in Public Schools and colleges in 25 states attended. They said the modern dance had not only technique but a philosophy as well.

One dance exhibited was a stop-and-go traffic proposition. When the music halted, everybody put on the brakes. The trick was to stop gracefully. No credit was given for effort, just results.

STATE TO ASSIST CHILDBIRTH COST

New York Bill Would Defray $75 Of Cost—Pay Doctor, Hospital

ALBANY, N.Y. April 20 (A.P.).—A Bill by which New York would defray $75 of the cost of each childbirth in the state had passed the Assembly to-day and awaited action by the Senate and Governor Herbert H. Lehman. The payments would be made to doctors and hospitals.

The Bill survived a hot debate last night by a vote of 81 to 62. Its leading defendant was Dr. Emerson D. Fite, Professor of Political Science at Vassar College for Women and Assemblyman for Dutchess County, the home of President Roosevelt.

Criticism was aimed chiefly at the inclusion of all births—rich, poor, aliens, and unmarried mothers—under the terms of the measure.

By the terms of the Bill, the $75 would be paid only if mothers make application before the fourth month of pregnancy and receive medical care thereafter. Payments would be made by cities and towns. The state later would reimburse them for half of the expense.

For the dinner, Senator Fallis wore a graceful frock of black chiffon, the square decolletage back and front outlined by black lace d'Alencon. The sleeves were slit from the shoulder to a wide cuff which encircled the wrist and was also edged with lace. She wore a string of pearls, brilliant clip earrings and a brilliant bracelet, with a corsage bouquet of golden-pink Talisman roses, and scarf of silver fox fur.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta.

WHEN once the moment and the expression of righteous indignation was over, he had a wonderful power of putting attacks and the individual who made them out of his mind, and going on his way. Life is too hard work in itself, he would say, to let one stop to hate and suspect people.

—From life of Charles Kingsley.

Dear Friends:

When someone annoys or makes you angry, do you bare it out with them, then put the whole thing out of your mind, or do you go around carrying hate and resentment with you?

So many do that, and what a lot of harm it does them. After all you are no more immune from that sort of thing than any of the rest of us, and when you go around brooding over it, you are simply implying that you are so superior to annoyances that none should come to you.

Just realize that these things come to all, and if you were undeserving of it, show your displeasure in no uncertain terms, then put the whole thing out of your mind.

I used to be the greatest little brooder in the world. If anyone did or said anything to hurt or anger me, I used to let the thing go round and round in my brain like a squirrel in a cage. (Never saw a squirrel in a cage, did you?)

But now, I think of where it came from, and if I like the person, I have it out with him or her. If I can straighten it out, all right, and if I can't, why I simply forget all about the whole thing, person included.

If it is a friend I like, and she still persists and will not be reasoned out of her wrong idea, then I drop her entirely, and find another friend to take her place.

There is a lot of hooey said about old friends, because like relations they often impose their ideas on us due to long association. But—and this is a big but—whenever a friend thinks they have license to hurt or anger you, they are presuming on the bond between you and breaking it to pieces.

We need to keep our friendships in good repair, and as one drops off, replace them with a new one. If you are only getting one point of view all the time, you are growing one-sided, like a tree leaning west when they are in the steady wind from the East.

And if you are going around carrying hate and resentment inside you, you are only embittering your own life, for what good does it do you? It's a form of sulking, and just as if you said, "I am too good for anyone to hurt me, so why should I be hurt?"

The New Testament tells us: "Let not the sun go down upon your wrath." And Quarles says: "Anger may repast with thee for an hour, but not repose for a night; the continuance of anger is hatred, the continuance of hatred turns malice. That anger is not warrantable which hath seen two suns."

Life is really too hard for us to make it harder by adding to our burdens, so stop wondering why so-and-so said this, and why the other one did that. Have it out with them, and either be at peace by putting them out of your life altogether, or renew your friendship.

If you don't you will find yourself going around looking for slights, and believe me you will get what you are looking for. There is nothing so pitiful, nor in a way so contemptible, as those who think the whole world is against them. Believe me, none of us are as important as all that.

Someone has shown they do not like you, or what you do or say. So what? So forget it if they will not listen to reason. But I have seen people who got hurt and angered and annoyed, and still they went back for more, because they thought the other was their friend. No friend will deliberately hurt you, so show some spirit, clear it up, then forget it. Lots of friendly people in the world.

Your Friend,

ROBERTA.

Mother Of Two Wins Contest

Not until the contest was over and the Queen of Beauty was crowned "Miss Andover," in the American Legion's contest at Andover, Mass., was it revealed that Mrs. Mary Slavin, who won the coveted crown, was the mother of two children. The gallant Legionnaires ruled that the young matron may retain her title.

Fine annual reports were presented by the secretary, Mrs. H. H. Graham, and the treasurer, Mrs. S. Gillespie.

WEDDINGS

BAPTIE—McMILLAN

HASTINGS, April 20.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McMillan, Front street, Hastings, was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding on Saturday, April 17, when their only daughter, Leona Pearl, became the bride of Mervin Paul, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Baptie of Norwood.

The bride entered the living room on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. W. J. McMillan. The ceremony, which took place at noon was solemnized by the Rev. D. K. Perrie of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, under a beautiful arch of blue and white crepe streamers from which white wedding bells were suspended.

The bride looked lovely in a very smart creation of Coronation blue sheer crepe made with full sleeves, pleated front yoke and pleated collar and wore a corsage of violets. The bridesmaid was her cousin, Miss Leona Bound, of Havelock, who wore a pretty gown of St. James' rose crepe with shirred yoke, high roled collar, and trimmed with rosettes of the same material.

The best man was the groom's brother, Arnold Baptie, of Norwood.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served to the immediate relatives, the dining room being attractive in a color scheme of blue and white. The table was lovely with the same color decorations, blue tapers in silver holders and centred with a three-storey wedding cake.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Baptie left on a trip by motor to Peterborough, Lindsay and Toronto, the bride travelling in a navy dress, coat and accessories to match. Upon their return they will reside near Norwood.

KILLEN—GIFFORD
GIFFORD—HOLLAND

St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, was the scene of a very pretty and interesting double wedding, solemnized by Rev. V. J. Gillogly, on Wednesday morning at eight-thirty o'clock when Mary Eugenie Gifford was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Sam Killen and Mary Cora Holland to Tom J. Gifford.

The brides were very becomingly attired in dresses of soft crepe, blue net over taffeta, with Peter Pan collars, large puff sleeves, and long flowing skirts with godets trimmed with a pastel shade of grey, stiffly projecting. Accessories were of white, including mittens, high-heeled sandals and hats, a large picture hat of imported braid for the former, and a small turban with an invisibly banded face veil, for the latter. To complete the ensembles, white silk chiffon velvet wraps, with shirred collars, were neatly tied about the neck and hung softly over the shoulders. Each bride carried an arm bouquet of Calla lilies.

Ushers were Dave Gifford and Al Killen. Music was well rendered by Mrs. Dan E. Crough, while the junior choir sang very sweetly.

After the wedding ceremony a small reception was held in Hooper's Palm parlors where Mrs. Killen, sr., in black georgette crepe, Mrs. James Gifford, in plum colored triple sheer, and Mrs. Jos. Holland in navy blue triple sheer, each wearing a corsage bouquet of sweet peas, assisted the brides in receiving the guests.

Immediately after the reception, the two couples left by motor for a honeymoon to Detroit and points west, Mrs. Killen travelling in a tailored suit of gray with a red vestee, and red accessories, Mrs. Gifford in a gray swagger suit with navy blue accessories.

On their return both couples will reside in Ennismore, close by the waterfront at Chemong Lake.

The Peterborough Examiner

PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, CANADA, TUESDAY, APRIL 20, 1937

Frightened, Well Rather Badly

PORT ERIE, Ont.—While inspecting the remainder of the stored vegetables in his cellar, Joseph Goulding was amazed and alarmed to see a cursed "human hand" protruding from the heap. Calling to his wife he tugged on the object—and pulled forth a huge carrot bearing four "fingers" and a "thumb."

Balance Wheel Crashed Roof

TORONTO—Strange travels of a circular saw balance wheel were revealed today. Torn from its moorings in a woodturning factory, the wheel came to rest 330 yards distant in the bedroom of a house. The 20-pound missile ripped through the roof and emerged through the bedroom wall to lodge in the bedroom next door.

Tribe That Never Washes Is Located In The Sahara Desert

Timbuctoo Is Really a Group Of Mud Houses On Edge Of Sahara

MISSIONARY RETURNS

Timbuctoo, symbol of far away and almost mythical places off the beaten paths of the world is an actuality of mud houses on the edge of Sahara desert to Rev. Firm Sauve of the Christian Missionary Alliance, who is a visitor at the Bethany Tabernacle this week where he will give an illustrated lecture on desert life Wednesday night.

Rev. Mr. Sauve has been four years in French West Africa which is inhabited by 100 tribes of whom forty have been included in the field of the eighty missionaries of the Christian Alliance since 1917.

"We are the only missionaries working among the Moslems on the edge of the desert," Rev. Mr. Sauve told the Examiner today.

"Timbuctoo is built on a great sand dune, ten degrees north of the equator, twelve miles north of the Niger River and 1700 miles inland from the Atlantic coast. Two days journey by camel north of us, about fifty miles, there has been no rain for the last nine years; and at Timbuctoo there is less than ten inches of rain yearly. The town has no water supply, but at places outside the town there are water holes from which the natives bring in water in goat skin containers. They sell a skin full for one-tenth of a cent. This is one of the most ancient methods of transporting water. The goat skins are cured and dried, and are then sewed up along the edges to make a vessel that is water tight. The neck is left open, and it can be closed by tightly tieing a cord around it."

Temperature 115 Degrees

Rev. Mr. Sauve said that the temperature of Timbuctoo is frequently a mere 135 degrees above zero. The principal ethnic groups found at Timbuctoo are the Arabs, the Songhrai who are descendants of the Egyptians, and the Tauregs, the veiled nomads of the Sahara, wandering bandits whom the French military administrators fairly successfully keep in check.

"You find the Arabs mostly engaged in commerce; the Songhrai are villagers of whom it is related that they had an Empire in the seventeenth century which was destroyed by the other two.

An Unwashed Tribe

The Tauregs are a strange people whose ancestry is unknown. There are probably 300,000 of them, and they roam the desert from the Nile almost to the western coast. They despise villagers, and hate white people. On one occasion some of them threatened me that they would cut my throat if I ever ventured into the desert away from the protection of the French soldiers who live in two forts at Timbuctoo.

They live entirely on milk, the milk of goats, sheep, camels and cows, and when any of them get sick they go on a diet of donkeys' milk. The Taurees are utter strangers to water. They never wash themselves or their clothing; nor do they ever shave. They live in goat skin tents supported on light sticks. The men of this tribe wear veils, but the faces of the women are uncovered. If a Taureg becomes converted to Christianity he is ostracised by his tribe and by all his family, and is in danger of death. Some of the younger men have been enrolled by the French in patrols, acting as desert guides. They have come under the French influence, escaping the bandit customs of their people. The Taurees are a lean, sinewy people, capable of great endurance. As nomads they harassed other tribes.

An Old Slave Market

Timbuctoo was for centuries a slave market. The people of that section are not of negroid types. You find the negroes farther south. In the days before slavery was stamped out by the French, Timbuctoo was described as the mysterious city of the interior. Captives who were taken from other tribes were sold there not for America, but for Arabia. The houses of Timbuctoo are generally of two stories, all of mud that is dug from the bed of the Niger River when the water is low, and carried twelve miles up country to the town. Thorn trees afford the only foliage in Timbuctoo."

Industry In South

Rev. Mr. Sauve said in the country to the south of that section there are many native towns and villages where local industry is carried on, growing wheat, cotton, peanuts, sheep; dealing in hides, wool, blankets, timber and so on.

"We have made the most progress in sections of the Ivory coast. In the San district, for example, there are now so many Christians that the head men can't get enough people interested in their fetish to keep in repair. We have now erected a Bible school where native young men are being trained in theology."

Among the Taurees there is no education, and only scant traces of modern civilization. These nomads do not even trust one another. The French maintain schools in the towns and villages, and try to make education compulsory, but without much success. Rev. Mr. Sauve admitted that there wasn't much hope of elevating most of these Africans out of their ancient habits and customs. The missionaries keep on studying languages, and preaching the gospel with encouraging results in most places, as i nthe San district. Their headquarters are at Kankan, far to the southwest of Timbuctoo. When he returns to this missionary field this summer Rev. Mr. Sauve sails from New York to Dakar on the west coast, on a vessel of the Barbar line. From the port he travels up country by railway to the end of the line on the Niger River then continues his journey by native boat.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, April 21

A DAY of outstanding significance in the life of destiny is read from the predominant lunar transits, with a propitious outcome dependent on the wise and sagacious management of peculiar, rather baffling and intriguing circumstances, as well as the shrewd grasp of fresh opportunities. With such prospects there are also omens of difficult circumstances and fatiguing changes of travel, with secret agreements or the covert support of employers or influential persons.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of peculiar or intriguing circumstances, with much to tax the ingenuity and sagacity in manipulating unusual moves of destiny. There may be radical change, wiht travel and fresh contacts and interests, but all have a taste of the subtle, curious and baffling, with denouements dependent on shrewd management and not too hazardous adventures.

A child born on this day may be adventurous, ingenious and capable in many unusual enterprises. While bold and speculative, it may be subtle, shrewd and furtive, with leanings to the curious, subtle and possibly mystical or strangely romantic.

SERIOUSLY HURT BY HORSE KICKS

Ivan Wright, Janetville Farmer, Victim Of Painful Accident Over Weekend

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, April 20. — Ivan Wright was the victim of a serious accident on Saturday morning. He was thurriedly cleaning his horses preparatory to going on the fields and it is thought the new curry-comb bit in too deeply and as a result one of the team rebelled by way of a vicious kick, hitting Mr. Wright on the shoulder and throwing him head first against the stone wall.

He was later found by the hired boy, who immediately rushed to inform the aged mother. The doctor was summoned also neighbors, who carried the victim to the house, where he remained unconscious most of the day.

Dr. McNeil of Pontypool arrived and for a time feared a slight concussion, but on Sunday the patient was much improved and it is expected will be able to be around again in a few days.

Mr. Wright and his mother have recently moved here from Yelverton, and the former was just nicely recovered from a bad sash in the foot inflicted by an axe while working in the woods.

Successful Sale

A most successful auction sale was held at the farm of Jack Henry on Thursday afternoon. A large crowd gathered and bidding was brisk. The sale, which consisted entirely of horses and farm implements, realised $1,500. The highest priced mare was bought by Verne Lang of Omemee, at $175. Mr. Henry has rented his farm to his nephew, Councillor Nayandth Henry of Ops.

OPENS MAY 16

Some confusion may have been caused by an item in The Examiner of Monday in reference to the appearance of pickerel at the Peterborough Lock which initiated that the legal season opened on May 1. As a matter of fact the pickerel season does not get away legally until May 16 and it would be well for the anglers to get that date firmly fixed in their minds. Inspector Lyons is giving the situation at the lock his close attention at the present time.

GOOD FOR ONE BUSINESS

It is an ill wind etc. A traveller for a Toronto potato chip firm who was in town this morning told The Examiner that since the Oshawa strike resulted in the closing of the beverage rooms in the Motor City, the beer parlors in Whitby have created such a demand for potato chips that he had to make four trips to the town last week. However while the strike has increased the trade done by the Whitby beverage rooms there has been no disorder. "The places were crowded on Saturday night with many visitors from Oshawa and I did not see a single drunken man in any of them," the traveller said.

JOHN F. TERRIOR.

Reference to his long career in farming, during which he gained high regard in the Marmora district, was inadvertently omitted in a recent report of the death of John F. Terrior at the home of his son Francis of Campbellford. During his earlier years, he served as a foreman with several lumber firms, his ability to speak French aiding him in those posts. He later was himself engaged in the lumbering business. For the past twenty-five years he farmed on the farm now occupied by his son, John, near Marmora.

Both sentences are to run concurrently. The accused had nothing to say before sentence was passed. Remarking on the "serious and disgusting nature of the charges," Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. told Foster, "I am seeing fit to commit you to the reformatory instead of imposing a penitentiary sentence in view of the fact that it is your first offence."

DRIVER SUFFERS HEAD INJURIES

Two Cars Collide At Corner Of Charlotte And Reid Streets

Theodore Liscum of Owenbrooke sustained cuts about the head in a collision which wrecked his light sedan car at the corner of Reid and Charlotte streets shortly before nine o'clock this morning. Occupants of a car driven by Mrs. Charles Shaw, 500 Gilmour street, escaped injury.

Police reported Liscum failed to stop when he reached Charlotte street, proceeding south on Reid. Taking four children to school, Mrs. Shaw was driving east on Charlotte and crashed broadside into the Liscum car. The light sedan rolled over and came to stop against a hydro pole on the southeast corner.

Liscum was aided from the car and taken into the Clinic where his injuries were attended. A crowd of early pedestrians quickly gathered to view the upturned vehicle. The Shaw car was damaged about the front.

Children with Mrs. Shaw were George and Alice Shaw, Allan Patterson and Bruce Edwards.

WAR-TIME FLIERS PLAN TO RE-UNITE

Canada's Airmen Will Meet In Toronto On Coronation Day

Coronation Day, May 12th, will be the occasion of many celebrations throughout Canada and the Empire, one of which will be the re-union celebrations and dinner in Toronto of Canada's War Time Fliers, sponsored by the Comrades of the Royal Air Forces Association.

Without a national organization to look after their interests since the war, this group of veterans, widely scattered as they are across Canada and in some cases the United States will welcome the news that this association, originally founded in Great Britain, now has a Canada Branch with headquarters in Toronto with Leonard May of 44 Lesaard Avenue, Toronto, as general secretary.

Delegates have been appointed in various centres in Canada and the United States for the purpose of obtaining and forwarding the names and addresses to the Central Committee. In Eastern Ontario the delegate is Chas. E. Hill of 68 Cadillac Avenue, North, Oshawa, who will gladly furnish any information required and would appreciate the assistance of all those interested by sending in not only their own names and addresses but also those of any eligible friends, as quickly as possible, so that none will be overlooked when the final details are ready to send out.

15,000 Trout Fry Placed In Streams

Happy days should soon be here again for the trout fishers of the district with the opening of the season only a short time ahead and with the arrival in the district of thousands of healthy yearling trout from the Codrington Hatchery to replenish favorite streams in this section of Ontario.

On Monday a shipment of 7,000 trout was distributed in the waters of the Big and Little Ouse by Wallace Harvey, president of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association and this morning an additional 4,000 were placed in the same district. At the same time a supply of 1,000 trout was put into the Cavan trout stream by Herb Routley and on Wednesday this number will be increased by another 3,000, making a total of 15,000 yearling trout for nearby streams.

DOCKET IS HEAVY IN POLICE COURT

Magistrate Langley Calls In Magistrate Gee To Assist Him

So heavy was the pressure of business this (Tuesday) morning that Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., called on the services of Magistrate A. E. Gee of Lindsay to help in disposing of the court docket. Two courts were in session simultaneously, Magistrate Langley presiding in the police court chambers and Magistrate Gee sitting in the city council chamber.

The Dixon case, which came before Magistrate Langley for argument by T. J. Carley, K.C., defence counsel, and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., for the prosecution occupied a greater part of the morning, and at the close of the argument His Worship further remanded the accused for judgment until Friday morning.

Ross Dixon, the defendant, who is accused of unlawfully selling liquor, and who faces a further charge of unlawfully selling liquor to a minor, got his bail renewed in the sum of $1,500.

Over in Magistrate Gee's court, Clifford Fair, pleading not guilty to a vagrancy charge, told the Bench "I have no permanent address in Canada. My address is in care of the Royal Bank."

"We'll give you a permanent address for seven days," Inspector James Reid remarked as the defendant was remanded for one week.

Earl Lowes, 518 Wolfe Street, who appeared on remand to plead guilty to a vagrancy charge to which he originally pleaded not guilty, sported a couple of black eyes. "I hadn't had a drink," he said, "but I'm going to plead guilty to save my wife."

Lowe's wife explained that after getting a pair of shoes from the relief office she gave them to her mother to break in and her husband accused her of giving them the run-around.

The new scale of wages, said to be the highest in the company's history, goes into effect immediately throughout Ontario.

Recently the A. and P. Company announced the granting of two weeks' holidays with full pay to all its managers and fulltime clerks. Both decisions, it is understood, are part of the company's plan to improve general working conditions among its employees.

50-YEAR JEWEL GIVEN JOHN LYLE MARMORA LODGE

Splendid Attendance, With Many Visitors Turns Out For Grand Master's Visit

EXCELLENT TOAST LIST

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, April 20. — The official visit of Right Wor. Bro. Harry E. Redner, District Deputy Grand Master of Prince Edward District to Marmora A.F. and A.M., No. 222, on Monday evening, brought out a large attendance of members of the local Lodge and visiting brethren. Outside lodges represented were Stirling, Madoc, Campbellford, Belleville, and Tweed.

A feature o fthe lodge session was the presentation of a fifty-year membership jewel to Bro. John Lyle of Campbellford, who on January 4, 1887, was initiated a member of the Marmora Lodge. The interesting information was also disclosed that the late William Bonter, father of Wor. Bro. R. E. Bonter, Master of Marmora Lodge for the current term, was also given his first degree on the same evening. The year 1887 saw eleven initiations into Marmora Lodge, two of whom were the late Ralph Laycock and the late W. H. Wells, the fathers of Right Wor. Bro. T. E. Laycock and Wor. Bro. F. R. Wells, Past Masters of the local Lodge.

Besides making the presentation and congratulating Bro. Lyle, the D.D.G.M. commended the Marmora Lodge for the excellent furnishing of the Ladge and for the conducting of its work. Other brethren present also extended congratulations to Bro. Lyle, who with the retention of all his faculties has attained to the age of eighty-four years.

At the conclusion of the Lodge session the brethren adjourned to the White Hall, where excellent catering was in the hands of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild.

The Toast List.

Wor. Bro. R. E. Bonter presided as toastmaster and after the Royal toast had been duly honored, Right Wor. Bro. C. H. Bustard proposed "Grand Lodge." In a very earnest address which marked his response the D.D.G.M. touched briefly on some of the operations of Grand Lodge and also gave an interesting account of the visit of some American brethren to King Solomon's quarries at Jerusalem.

Excellent speeches were then forthcoming from Wor. Bro. E. C. Prentice in proposing and from Wor. Bro. H. W. Sabine in responding to the toast "Our King and Country."

The next toast, "Our Oldest Member, John Lyle," was capably handled by Bro. Harold Mumby and Bro. Lyle briefly replied in appreciative manner.

The toast, "The Visitors," was proposed by Wor. Bro. D. L. Curtis. Replies were forthcoming from Rt. Wor. Bro. Watson, Campbellford; Bro. A. W. McGuire, Tweed; Wor. Bro. W. H. Ketcheson, Belleville; Wor. Bro. R. Connor, Madoc; Wor. Bro. G. Bailey, Stirling; Bro. W. H. Scott, Campbellford; Wor. Bro. O. Wright, Madoc; and Wor. Bro. Canon W. O. Swayne, Bonarlaw.

The D.D.G.M. then called upon the visiting brethren to drink a toast to the Marmora Lodge, after which the Junior Warden's toast was given by Bro. S. B. Cheeseman.

The gathering dispersed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

TIGERS OBTAIN BABE HERMAN

Schoolboy Rowe's Ailment Turns Out To Be Only a Cold

BEEN OUT FOR WEEK

DETROIT, April 20.—(AP)—Detroit Tiger followers were treated to two bits of good news today, on the eve of the baseball season opener.

Hospital physicians reported Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe was suffering from nothing more serious than a head cold, and the Tiger management announced the acquisition of Floyd (Babe) Herman, hard-hitting outfielder from Cincinnati Reds.

Rowe has been out of action for a week with a pain in the back. In his last appearance during the exhibition season he left the game in the fourth inning. Manager Mickey Cochrane sent him to hospital for a physical examination when the team reached Detroit today.

He said Tommy Bridges, who suffered a torn muscle during the exhibition season, probably would be able to take his turn as a starting pitcher in "ten days or two weeks" and might be available for relief hurling sooner.

Herman will join the Tigers Wednesday.

SOCCER LEAGUE HAS FIVE TEAMS

Bowmanville Will Compete In Local Soccer Schedule

No further information was received from Bowmanville by the secretary of the Soccer Association relative to their entry but an official delegate will be in the city on Saturday to make complete arrangements for the season.

Deloro's acceptance into the league was completed Monday. The Canadian General representative stated that their team would endeavour to discure the travelling to Deloro on May 12th to play Deloro in an exhibition game on Coronation day in place of C.P.C.

The date of the opening of the season was held in abeyance.

A well-known figure in soccer, Wilfred Jones, was appointed to the board of directors and will be a great aid to the executive.

CAMPBELLFORD

BOWLERS REMAIN IN ASSOCIATION

Campbellford Club To Withdraw From Trent Valley League—Elect Officers

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 20.—The Campbellford Lawn Bowling Club elected its officers for the year 1937 at a meeting held in the Council Chambers of the Public Library on Monday night, as follows: President, T. L. Diamond; Vice-President, P. M. Locke; Secretary, J. F. R. Douglas; Treasurer, J. D. Mills; Property and Green Committee: W. S. Wiggins (chairman), E. H. Greig and Joe Poulton; Games Committee: J. P. Archer (chairman), J. F. R. Douglas, R. N. Morrison and P. M. Locke. L. V. Glover and A. G. Thompson were appointed to act along with the chairmen of the committees and other officers to form the executive.

It was decided to retain the club's identity with the Provincial Bowling Association, but to withdraw from the membership of the Trent Valley League as membership in both constituted too great a drain on the local players, leaving only three nights a week for bowling on the club's green. Representatives to attend the Provincial meeting will be Messrs. W. S. Wiggins, P. M. Locke, E. H. Greig and the president, T. L. Diamond.

In order to attract new members, the fee for those who have never belonged to the club previously was reduced from seven dollars per couple to five dollars per couple for members of the same family. Some discussion was given to the matter of the installation of a telephone at the club-house which it was thought would induce several members to join as well as being to the advantage of the club since the green is located at the lower end of the town.

FIVE TEAMS ENTER SOUTHEND LEAGUE

Will Operate As Six Teams, Beginning Play At Brinton Field May 17th

Five teams entered the Southend Softball League last night at a well-intended re-organization meeting. Seven were represented, those entering being Nationals, Maple Leafs, Orphans, Cardinals and Cogs. Representatives of DeLaval and Keene expressed interest in joining, as did a squad from Downer's Corners. Bill Prindible was named president, while J. Copping—the 1936 prexy—was elected secretary-treasurer. The executive will consist of two players from each team and the president and secretary.

It was decided to operate a six-team league, and with five in now, one more will be chosen from those interested, with DeLaval having first bid. Keene was invited back to another meeting as some arrangements to get them games may be worked. Entry fee was reduced to $2.00, owing to a balance on hand, and must be paid in by May 10th. The league to open May 10th, a grounds and equipment committee was formed to take care of diamonds, nets, bases, etc., the Brinton field again being offered for league games.

Sign 15 Players.

The league voted to give the Reach ball a trial. Several umpires will be approached by the secretary and reported later to the executive. A protest fee was set at fifty cents. Each team is permitted to sign 15 men, with the manager not being signed. Final date to sign players is June 14th, and no more than 15 may be signed at one time.

The ruling regarding City League players, after much discussion, was left unchanged, and reads: "City League players are barred from Southend League. One player from each team in Southend League is eligible to play City League and Southend League, provided his Southend League manager has his name recorded with the league secretary of the Southend Circuit. Players who were signed as City Leaguers last season are not allowed to play in the Southend League till the City League starts." This ruling is designed not to keep Southend League players from advancing to the City League but to keep Southend Loop teams from using City League players. The next executive meeting will be held at the same place next Monday night at seven. The Grounds Committee will meet at 2.00 Saturday afternoon.

NEED OF PLAYERS BOTHERS LEAGUE

Transfer Difficulties Main Snag To Forming Of International Group

TORONTO, April 20.— (CP).—Formation of an international Hockey League was a secondary affair to-day to Phil Thompson, secretary of the United States' Eastern Amateur Hockey League and occupied at present with the idea of consummating new agreements with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association concerning transfer of Canadian hockeyists to points across the border.

Thomson said yesterday rumored formation of a new group, comprised of teams from the U.S.E.A.H.L., the Montreal Senior group and possibly some Toronto clubs, meant little if players cold not be obtained for the United States' teams.

"There's no good having a league if the teams haven't got any players," he said. "That's the first thing that has to be arranged before we can go any further."

Accompanying Thompson, also manager of Atlantic City Sea Gulls in the Eastern U. S. League, were Tom Lockhart, connected with New York Rovers, and J. B. Sollenberger of Hershey Bears. Both teams are in the same league as Gulls.

Red Wings Jubilant Over Great Victory

For the second straight year the Detroit Red Wings have captured the National Hockey League championship and the coveted Stanley Cup. This year, although badly crippled with injuries, they successfully defeated the Montreal Canadiens in a five-game series and went on to meet New York Rangers. The New Yorkers had decisively defeated both Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Maroons in straight games and were considered the surprise package of the N.H.L. when they met the Red Wings. In this picture Manager Jack Adams of Detroit, is pictured as Frank Calder, president of the N.H.L., presents him with the cup. Doug. Young and Herbie Lewis are also seen in that order next to manager Jack. As can be seen from the expression on their faces the Detroit team are jubilant over their second championship.

SPORTS DAY by DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

TONIGHT AT eight in Duffus', the men's City Softball League will hold its Spring re-organization meeting. It is open to everyone of the city and district who is interested. A nominating committee will present a slate of officers for the approval of the gathering. Entries will be taken at this time and definite plans for the opening of the season made. It is an important huddle—at which the officers hope to get things rolling along—and a big turnout is necessary. While there are plenty of rumors about prospective entries, we know of no sure ones as yet. But this will all come out at tonight's meeting.

* * * * * *

THE GIRL softballers' got going last night, though not many took in the meeting. Four teams were on deck, Keene, Cobourg, C.G.E. and Westclox. A couple more—like maybe Lindsay and Omemee—would make it oke. Ev. Thomas was returned as president—and an excellent choice it was—with Miss Gladys Mortimer easily earning re-election as secretary-treasurer. The closing date for entries is April 30th when the schedule will be drawn up, etc. They'll start playing late in May. Umps and groundskeeper should apply to the secretary. The matter of an intermediate section will come up at the next meeting. Dope on last night's session is in elsewhere.

* * * * * *

AND LAST night, the lacrossers held another good meeting. They are coming right along with their group plans for Central Ontario and their new box on George St. opposite the wharf. Looks like maybe a six-team group of Oshawa, Trenton Fliers, Belleville, Peterborough, Norwood and a Port Hope-Cobourg combine. Only the latter two are doubtful. A group meeting is set for Port Hope this Friday night. Motions at the meeting are published in this sheet tonight. Some conditioning work is planned at the new field this Saturday afternoon and prospective players are requested to be on hand and begin getting in shape for a gruelling lacrosse season.

WE TRUST in future we will be treated with the dignity belonging to a manager of a team in Ontario competition. Last night, yours truly was named manager of the Petes' lacrosse team. Following our hint of the previous night, some gent suggested our name as manager at last night's meeting. We crossed 'em all up by accepting it! However, not to be out-bluffed, they put it to a motion and we were unanimously appointed to this office. We hope the scribe-coaches in Oshawa, Belleville, Lindsay and Cobourg, will please copy. As a matter of fact, we would take this task as business manager—the coach does the directing of players—for the club, since we like lacrosse, but as general sports' coverer here we haven't time. And so we are sending this open letter to the lacrossers:

* * * * * *

"CHAS. CARSON, Secretary of Peterborough Lacrosse Club: Dear Sir—This is to notify you of my resignation as manager of your club. Rush of business makes it impossible for me to accept this office, but I wish to thank the club for the honor offered me. I also wish to extend to the club my congratulations upon the sagacity expressed in this appointment. Too many Peterborough athletic organizations have carelessly overlooked the undoubted managerial ability of your humble correspondent. Yours has been the first important club here to realize that a prophet is without honor in his own country, and that sometimes a sports writer actually knows something of sports! The fact that you mentioned no salary in connection with the post, I assure you, has nothing to do with my withdrawal from it. However, I know you will have no difficulty in filling this respectable position with a capable man. Again thanking you and assuring you of my willingness to aid your club in any way possible, I trust to be excused as manager. Yours in sport, Cec. Perdue."

LEN AGNEW was elected president of the Church Softball League for the third term last eve at an executive meeting, and he has been on this executive six years. Don Charlton was returned as secretary for the fifth time, and Lloyd Parnall was re-elected treasurer. Art Mann and Byers Smith are the other two members. By the way, an executive member in this loop has considerable authority, being able to call off games, appoint or remove umps, expel players from games, etc. List of rules, et al, are in tonight. The executive meets again Monday next to arrange for opening games and take in entries. Those wanting any information may attend. The circuit may start it off at Central, if the diamond is available, May 3rd or 4th, with prominent officials helping in the opening ceremonies. More again.

VOLLEYBALL PLAYOFFS will be held Saturday afternoon in the "Y", and a couple of exhibition tilts are scheduled between Toronto and local squads may be held that evening there to wind up the season. Tentative plans are for King St. United, Toronto intermediate church champs to play our St. Paul's crew; and for the Toronto midget champs who won Ontario church honors, to tackle the local St. Andrew's outfit. They have been wanting to come here to play these two good Peterborough teams. However, word should be received on this point within a few days.

* * * * * *

A COUPLE of exhibition games are being lined up in Napanee and Belleville for about May 12th between Ogdensburg Colts and Perth Royals of the Can.-Am. pro ball loop. The latter team won out last year. These teams are preparing to start training around the end of this month and to stage a barn-storming tour for a couple of weeks through Ontario. Knotty Lee wanted to bring his Ogdensburg squad here for a game but we doubt if arrangements will be made, since British Canada may have an exhibition tilt with the Petes before May 24th here. Eddie Murphy is going down with Knotty's gang again. The Petes' prospects, by the way, continue exercises at the "Y" tonight at seven and again tomorrow eve.

NEW LACROSSE BOX PLANS GOING AHEAD

Local Club Holds Meeting And Sees Definite Progress Being Made

Plans for the new box lacrosse field on George St.—opposite the George St. wharf—moved ahead rapidly last night in Duffus' at a well-attended meeting of officers and enthusiasts. President Jim Lehane occupied the chair and considerable business was pushed through.

Following the presidential report, it was stated that letters had been received from Belleville and Trenton assuring the local club that these teams would enter a Central Ontario group. Word from Oshawa was to the same effect, and Norwood and a combined Port Hope-Cobourg team sent word they would likely be included. It was decided to hold a group meeting at eight o'clock Friday night next in the St. Lawrence Hotel in Port Hope when all these teams will be invited. Those representing Peterborough are Pete King, Doug Miller, Harry Tidhope and Charlie Carson.

To Survey Lot

The new lot on George St., south, will be surveyed this week, and work upon it will commence this Saturday. The Finance Committee was given authority to sell advertising space on the east fence. An encouraging financial statement was presented, and it was shown that the club is being given considerable support locally.

A raffle will be run off by the Peterborough Lacrosse Club in the near future for a suit—for ladies or gentlemen—to the value of $35.00, besides five season tickets to games here good for two admissions to each group contest in this city. Harold Bannon was named trainer for the club, and a managerial prospect was discussed. Other matters came up for discussion and it was decided to hold another meeting at Duffus' next Monday evening at eight o'clock to deal with further developments.

TRAPS WERE EFFECTIVE

22 Opossums Are Caught In Two Traps.

PIERCE CITY, Mo., April 20.—(CP)—Mrs. M. J. Needham, irked when varmints intruded her henhouse and gobbled some prize eggs, bought a pair of steel traps.

Next morning she found not only two, but 22 opossums, 11 in each trap.

Apparently the mother possums had carried their young to the henhouse for a feast of eggs.

NO BACK-STEPPING IN C.A.H.A. MAKEUP

President Duncan Presses For Action On Redrafted Rules

TORONTO, April 20 (C.P.). — "There will be no backward step taken by the association," President Cecil Duncan of Ottawa told delegates attending yesterday's opening session of the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association here.

Duncan pointed out the association had entered into agreements with bodies controlling amateur hockey in the United States and Great Britain and with the International Hockey Association during the past year.

"We have redrafted our constitution to include the changes made during the past year and it will be the duty of the Resolutions Committee to pass upon this and then present it to the general meeting for adoption."

During his presidential address, Duncan announced the appointment of Clarence Campbell of Edmonton, a member of the National Hockey League refereeing staff, as official interpreter of the playing rules for the C.A.H.A., during the three-day convention.

Branches were requested to take the problems concerning the playing rules to Campbell.

SARNIA GRID TEAM IS OUT FOR DRILL

Slippery Field Causes Postponement—Forty Players On Hand

SARNIA, April 20.—(CP)—Weekend rains that left the Athletic Park playing field wet and slippery today caused postponement of the opening of Art Musgrove's football training school here. The coach, dismissing more than forty candidates, instructed them to be out tomorrow. The players themselves will decide whether the school will operate daily or three days a week for the month it will run.

Included in the band that turned out today was Ted Trepanier of Windsor. The husky youngster played with Mike Hedgewick on the Windsor Vocational Junior and Senior Western Ontario Secondary School Association squads. Last year he played with Charlie O'Brien Windsor Grads in the Ontario Rugby Football Union junior series.

It is the first time in the three years of the school's operation an out-of-town player has taken advantages of training.

LEN AGNEW PREXY CHURCH SOFTBALL

Officers Elected At Executive Meeting Of Loop—Some Rules Revised

At an executive meeting of the Church Softball League last night in the "Y", Len Agnew was re-elected president for 1937. Don Charlton was returned as secretary and Lloyd Parnall goes back as treasurer. Other members are Art Mann and Byers Smith. Efforts will be made to have a member at each game this season.

The list of rules was revised somewhat and copies will be sent teams along with entry forms. Each executive member has a number at his disposal. A third clause was inserted in Rule 6 to read: "City League players of the previous season are ineligible to play in church softball until after the start of the City League 1937 schedule, and then only one to a Church League team." Rule 9 now reads: "Games will be scheduled for 6.00 o'clock and, after May 29th, at 6.30 p.m. Schedule games seven innings, and final games nine innings."

O.A.S.A. Rules

Prince of Wales' School, at the request of All Saints, was designated in Rule 10 as a suitable diamond. Rule 11 is: "With these exceptions, O.A.S.A. rules will govern all games —(a) bantam and juvenile games may start with seven players; (b) a written protest, accompanied by $1, must be in the hands of the executive within 24 hours of the protested game, the bond to be returned if the protest is upheld."

The executive will meet next Monday to receive entries and arrange for the opening game. Those desiring information may attend at seven in the "Y" that evening. If Central School grounds are available on May 3rd and 4th, the league will start there at that time with members of the Ministerial Association, Mayor Macdonald and the City League president asked to participate in opening ceremonies.

At an early date, a meeting of team managers and captains will be called for a general discussion of playing rules. President Len Agnew will conduct this group, his long experience as an officer and umpire, being invaluable in interpreting softball rules. Instructions in marking and keeping score on distributed score-cards will be given by the loop secretary.

PHILLIES SCORE DOUBLE VICTORY ON OPENING DAY

Hammer Boston Bees 2-1 In Eleven Innings And 1-0 In Nine

HOMER BY ARNOUICH

NEW YORK, April 20—(AP).—The astounding spectacle of the two Philadelphia teams almost unanimously chosen for the cellar berths leading the major baseball leagues testified to the possibility of almost anything to-day as the teams lined up for the "real" opening day after the preliminaries at Washington and Boston.

New York with all three Metropolitan teams performing within the limits of the greater city for the first opening day in 20 years looked for the biggest crowds. At least 50,000 were expected at Yankee Stadium to see the world champions open against Washington Senators, yesterday's 4-3 victims of Philadelphia Athletics. Some 30,000 more were looked for at Brooklyn's Ebbets Field to see Burleigh Grimes lead the Dodgers against their traditional rivals, the Giants, for the first time.

The triumphant Athletics returned home to face Boston Red Sox; Detroit's Tigers entertained Cleveland Indians and Chicago's White Sox hooved up with Browns at St. Louis in other American League openers, Manager Frankie Frisch of St. Louis Cardinals called upon his loquacious star, Dizzy Dean, to start the baseball gang off right at Cincinnati, where a capacity gathering of 34,000 was expected. A pair of first-division prospects, Pittsburgh and the Cubs, met in Chicago.

Boston Loses Both.

The Phillies, with Manager Jimmy Wilson posing as the most contented man in baseball after his club had beaten Boston Bees 2-1 in 11 innings and 1-0 in nine in yesterday's Patriots' Day bill at Boston, drew a day off.

Two of the game's shining stars were on the sidelines when the lineups were announced and there was a notable casualty list throughout both leagues. Jimmy Foxx, Red Sox first baseman, was recovering from sinus trouble and Joe DiMaggio, Yankee centre fielder, from an operation for the removal of his tonsils and adenoids. Der Mag, last year's rookie sensation, hoped to cure a sore arm by ridding himself of infected tonsils.

Pitchers won their first contest yesterday when Morris Arnovich, who played with Hazleton, Pa., most of last season, hit a home run in the 11th. He tried to turn the trick in the eighth, hitting one ball against the top of the left field fence. But a fan touched it and the umpire ruled it a double. Undaunted by this, he poled another out of reach of all fences or fans in the 11th.

Sylvester Johnson limited the Bees to four hits in eight innings of this contest while both his successor, Bucky Walters, and Danny MacFayden turned in four-hitters in the afternoon. Ernie Koy batted Piercello and Rabbit Warstler gave the Phils their run.

A pair of rookies, Al Williams and Earle Brucker, accounted for the Athletics victory. After President Roosevelt lobbed out the first ball, Roger Smith, another rookie flinger, kept on hurling until the Senators had collected three runs in two innings. Williams then hurled four hit ball for the remainder of the game while Brucker's double in the 10th brought in Bob Johnson with the winning run.

Ottawa Grads Beat Allison Only 13-12

SACKVILLE, N.B., April 20.—(CP)—A single point, meaning nothing more than a free throw in basketball, will be all the advantage Ottawa Commerce Grads take into the second game of their semi-final Dominion Intermediate playoff against Mount Allison University to-night.

Grads, playing as tightly as a miser clutching his money, picked up a 13-12 victory last night in the first of the two-game, total-point series to determine an opponent for Toronto Elizabeths in the Dominion finals.

The Ottawans had to come from behind in the last half, for the University students had fifteen six points behind shortly after the second period opened.

WEMBLEY BEATS 'PEG'S MONARCHS IN TOURNEY TILT

Only Small Crowd Turns Out To See Junior Champions Go Down 4-2

TIGERS VS. BEARS TONIGHT

TORONTO, April 20 (CP).—Sudbury Tigers, Canadian senior hockey champions, will test the power of the United States Utilists, Hershey Bears, tonight as Toronto's international four-team series proceeds. Tigers arrived here early to-day from Calgary, where they won the Allan Cup Friday night.

Sponsors of the series—in which Wembley Lions, English champions, and Winnipeg Monarchs, Canadian champions, are other entries—hope the Canada-United States angle will prove a better drawing card than the first two games. Wembley and Hershey drew less than 4,000 fans Saturday night when Lions won 6-3 and an even smaller crowd watched Wembley beat Winnipeg 4-2 last night.

Main features of the competition thus far have been the poor attendance and the battling ability of the Winnipeg kids, who added Lions in putting on a smart display last night.

The English team gained a commanding lead by its win and became virtually certain of entering finals in which the two leaders at the end of the round-robin series will participate.

Monarchs Take Lead.

For a while it appeared the Monarchs might stage an upset. They led 1-0 at the end of the first period and their tenacious checking had kept Lions from getting far. Then Don Bates put Wembley on even terms after a minute had passed in the second session, and two minutes later Tony LeMay shot Lions to the front on a pass from his brother Albert.

Bobby Wallon increased the Wembley lead in the third period before Frank Eastham scored for Winnipeg's second goal, but Lions were two up again when Jo Jo Orsabowski, the night's individual star, went in to score from a scramble.

Bobby Laurent, Peanuts O'Flaherty, Red Heron and Johnny Inglis, Toronto Canadiens, were added to the Winnipeg ranks for the occasion but none of the four partook in scoring.

KING AND QUEEN WILL SEE FINAL FOR ENGLISH CUP

Sunderland And Preston North End Play For Historic Cup On May 1st

AT WEMBLEY STADIUM

LONDON—April 20—(CP)—Pre-Coronation festivities will mark the English Football Cup final this year. When Sunderland and Preston North End line up at Wembley Stadium, May 1, in the concluding battle of the historic competition, the teams will be honored by the presence of the King and Queen in one of their last public appearances before the great ceremony in Westminster Abbey.

It will be a great day for north of England folk. The counties of Durham and Lancashire will send huge contingents to cheer their favorites and fans from other parts of the country will swell the throngs at the stadium to nearly 100,000.

Victory in a cup final would be a new experience for Sunderland. The Durham club, famous in English soccer for more than 40 years, has won league honors six times but has yet to be successful in the great cup competition. Only once—in 1913—has the squad reached the final but the contest at the Crystal Palace ended in a 1-0 victory for Aston Villa. On four other occasions Sunderland has appeared in semi-final play.

Back in 1889, Preston North End, one of the originals of the Football League, won cup honors with the cup and league championship. Lancastrians got home with a 3-0 verdict over Wolverhampton Wanderers at Kennington Oval but the historic trophy has eluded them since. They were defeated in two other appearances in the cup final.

While Sunderland has always played in first-league football, winning the championship last season, Preston's career during the present century has been less colorful. Twice the club has dropped into the second division. The last return to major company was made in 1924. The Lancastrians being promoted after finishing second to Grimsby Town.

Preston's powerful attack is clearly indicated in the team's steamroller advance in cup play this year. Three of the five straight victories were staged before home crowds and thus far 19 goals have been bagged compared with only six against.

On the other hand Sunderland has been compelled to fight tooth and nail to reach final status. Two games were necessary before Luton Town, plucky third division outfit, succumbed and Wolverhampton Wanderers carried the northerners to three contests in the sixth round. The Wolves were the only first division team to oppose Sunderland in its march.

Led by Harry Carter and R. Gurney, goal-scoring forwards, Sunderland has a final all-round team, consistent in a marked degree. Frank O'Donnell and his brother, Hugh, are brilliant individualists in the Preston vanguard while H. Holdcroft, goalkeeper, has played for England. The finalists are both well up in the league standing.

C.A.H.A. IS HAPPY ITS BANK BALANCE IN GOOD STANDING

International Rules Allowing Amateurs, Pros To Mingle Causes Only Ripple

CUT A.A.U. BONDS

TORONTO, April 20.—It's hard to get a man to argue on a Sunday stomach and that's why yesterday's opening session of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association was marked by an almost complete calm and unusual placidness.

The contrast, perhaps, is with the tough time the C.A.H.A. had last year when open fight with the Amateur Athletic Union was imminent and the four points program was first mooted. With that year of 1937 and the hockey season on the wane one of the four points remains unsettled, but a happy financial balance had left the delegates, hockey executives from all parts of Canada, indisposed toward argument about it.

Only Dissenting Point.

The International Ice Hockey Federation, with which the C.A.H.A. is affiliated, caused this only ripple on the sea of complete accord by passing a rule which permitted amateurs in hockey to mingle with professionals.

For the English hockey picture the idea was perhaps in proper surroundings, but it certainly doesn't fit in with the C.A.H.A. idea which, under the ruling, would, for instance, permit the Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League to duplicate entry. They could, if they desired, enter the Ontario Hockey Association and play against bona-fide amateurs.

Thus, you see, a change must be made to fit into the Canadian Association constitution.

That, at this time, with the first day's business in the backgrounds, remains the only contentious point. Affiliation with the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada was severed with finality.

63,000 See Final Games.

But all in all the one hour morning and afternoon sessions were in almost complete accordance. A. Hewitt, Registrar Treasurer of the C.A.H.A., in his report, said that approximately 63,000 had witnessed the Memorial Cup finals in Toronto and another 30,000 had paid their way to see the Allan Cup finals at Calgary, between Northern Battleford and Salsbury, Alberta. Mr. Hewitt did not say it was conservatively estimated that taking all in all, this year's $6,336.76 hand balance considered, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association would have a credit ledger of nearly $40,000.

With such a healthy number of dollars safely encased for the coming 1937-38 season the delegates were not inclined to quibble about small sums as they would when money was not so plentiful.

For instance, their generosity was most easily circumvented when the meeting proposed writing back into the constitution an increased allowance for delegates travelling to the annual meetings.

Reports Referred Back.

But the meeting passed this recommendation along to the Finance committee for final settlement. There can be little doubt of what that will be.

In going over the constitution yesterday afternoon's meeting referred motions back to both Finance and Resolutions committees. The financial report of the association will be given to-day, it is expected.

It was recommended that the position of chairman of the Finance Committee be abolished altogether, Claude Robinson, of Winnipeg, occupant of this post within the organization and a life member of the C.A.H.A., agreed that it should be done because the position was established within the ranks "when money was plentiful." He intimated that when, and if, a renewal of the office was contemplated, he might be considered.

The position will be administered by a standing committee comprising the president, vice-president, past president, vice-presidents, second vice-president, and registrar-treasurer.

New Player Record.

W. A. Hewitt, registrar-treasurer of the association, reported that all-star players were registered with the C.A.H.A. last year, setting a new all-time high.

Registration by branches was as follows: Alberta 1,116, British Columbia 413, Maritimes 1,119, Ottawa and district 1,338, Quebec 2,833, Saskatchewan 943, Thunder Bay 660. The Intercollegiate Union, although Manitoba, 1,741, Ontario, 10,976, affiliated with the C.A.H.A., did not register their players.

Bonds were sold by the association to the extent of $12,500 in order to keep the cash reserves of the association to a healthy condition, although it was pointed out that in the face of the money-making play-offs series this year there was nothing to worry about financially. Total expenses amounted to $7,870.36, which included many gifts. Dr. W. G. Hardy of Edmonton, chairman of the Resolutions Committee, asked to be relieved of his post, but was unanimously voted to the job. Others who will sit on the committee are: A. W. McDonald, Alvin Schaefer, H. S. Cruickshanks, Fred Sargent, Athole Cowan, W. R. Elliott, Stanson Dowell, D. F. McDonald, C. O. Robinson, and George Slater.

FOUR GIRLS' TEAMS IN SOFTBALL LOOP

Ev. Thomas Re-elected As President As Girls' Circuit Is Organized

Ev. Thomas was re-elected president of the Girls' Softball League at the annual re-organization meeting held last night in Duffrin. It was a poorly-attended session, with only four teams represented. They were C.G.E. and Westclox of Peterborough, Keene and Cobourg. These four applied for entry. In the case of Cobourg, the local league will have to receive permission from the P.W.S.U., since Cobourg last year belonged in the Lakeshore League.

A balance of $72.58 was shown for the year. Miss Gladys Mortimer reported as delegate to the Provincial Women's Softball Union annual meeting in Toronto last week-end. It was stated that bases on girls' softball diamond would have an increased distance of 50 feet this season. No club may play an exhibition game against an unaffiliated club without permission from the P.W.S.U., and a fee is charged for all girls' softball tournaments.

The election of officers saw Ev. Thomas returned as president, despite his announced intention of retiring from this office. Gladys Mortimer was returned as secretary-treasurer, and team managers will make up the executive again.

Final Entry Date

Since there was a possibility of two more teams—perhaps Lindsay and Omemee—entering, the closing date for entries was put at April 30th when another meeting will be held at eight p.m. in Duffrin. At this time, too, the type of schedule will be set, the opening games arranged, and appointments made of umpires and groundskeeper. These latter duties again fall to Miss Mortimer at 551 Weller St. Fees, though, Fees will be the same as in other years. The schedule will be run in two halves again with the top two teams playing off after each half, and then the winners meeting in the finals. The league is affiliated with the P.W.S.U.

An entry fee of $2.50 is required from each team as well as 50c from each player for certificates. Collections again will be made up so as to give the home team two-thirds of the gate and the league one-third, the league then assisting the Winning team in playdowns, if necessary. Dates suitable for the clubs will be discussed and it was decided to open the schedule about the last week in May. Westclox will again request time out early in July for two weeks' vacation. The matter of an intermediate section, and other business, will be brought up at the next meeting.

READ THIS FIRST:

Charles Stuckey, of a London law firm, reluctantly has agreed to a scheme to defraud the daughter of one of his few respectable clients, Jacqueline Smith, of an inheritance of $1,500,000 from an American uncle. In keeping with the plan, Colonel Alex Lutman, who has a hold over Stuckey, and Jim Aston, an ex-convict, are stopping at the same hotel in Cobenall with Mrs. Smith and her daughter. Jim hopes to marry the girl, having her assign her property to him, before Stuckey informs her of her inheritance. In dire financial straits, Mrs. Smith already is impressed with Jim, posing as a wealthy Englishman, as an admirable "catch" for her daughter. Lutman, in the role of Jim's trustee, subtlely threatens Jacqueline with a check he caused for her mother, returned marked "insufficient funds". Finding her mother distraught over their financial plight and Lutman's implied threat over the check, Jacqueline tells her she will marry Jim. Stuckey arrives at the hotel and Jacqueline meets him accidentally. Charles shows Jacqueline a rough draft of the marriage settlement he says her mother asked him to draw up. Stalling for time, Charles tells Mrs. Smith the deed must be signed in London.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 17

COLONEL LUTMAN screwed his eyeglass in a little more firmly and glared at Charles with his other eye with the realization of the delay in the wedding caused by Charles' insistence that the deed be signed in London.

"If it's the law, it's the law," he said, "but I think, Mr Stuckey, that a solicitor who really had his clients' interests at heart might have found some less dilatory method."

"And surely," said Mrs. Smith, with a touch of asperity, "if you've only brought the draft agreement there was no need for you to have come at all. All that expense, when the mail could have done it just as well. Besides, you could have wired 'Registration, or whatever it is, not legal unless so-and-so' and we'd have understood and made arrangements accordingly."

Colonel Lutman smiled.

"I fancy Mr. Stuckey must be fond of travel, Mrs. Smith. Perhaps you've never seen the Danube before, Mr. Stuckey?"

"As a matter of fact, I haven't," said Charles with a hint of a smile. "Quite amazing, isn't it? I had always understood it was blue."

"But don't worry, Mrs. Smith," said Colonel Lutman. "We'll all travel together to London. I am leaving in any case." His glance at Jim, "I have wasted too much time over this young man's love affairs already. I will get reservations on the Oriental and we can leave tomorrow. Five sleepers, cabin on the boat, and Pullmans from Dover."

Mrs. Smith smiled at him.

"That is awfully kind of you, Colonel Lutman. I always make such a muddle when I buy tickets, and I am always rather surprised when I really arrive at the place I want to go to. I will leave everything to you and we can settle up later, can't we?" She got up from her chair. "Come along, Jacqueline," she said; "we must go and pack."

Jacqueline turned, bestowed a smile on Charles, and followed her mother across the terrace.

The three men watched them until they disappeared into the hotel, and then Jim suddenly swung round in his chair and banged his fist on the table.

"What the devil do you think you're doing, Stuckey?" he demanded. "You dirty, double-crossing..."

"Shut up, Jim," interrupted Lutman, and turned to Charles. "What exactly is the idea, Charles?"

Jim got to his feet.

"If you're trying to twist me, Stuckey—all that about registration and signing in London—it's rot, and you know it's rot. There's no earthly reason why the deed should not be signed today and the marriage come off tomorrow, and if you're playing any of your lowdown tricks..."

Lutman got to his feet and laid a hand on Jim's shoulder.

"All things considered, my dear James," he said, "this is not the time or place to kick up a fuss, and it's certainly not your job to do it. What have you got to bleat about? You've had a thousand of my money to spend, haven't you? Behave like a bridegroom and leave it to me."

"But can't you see what it is, Lutman?" exclaimed Jim. "I told you Stuckey was no good, didn't I? I told you what kind of a man he was."

"My dear James," interrupted Lutman, with a significant glance at Charles, "I think friend Stuckey will agree that no one knows better than I do what kind of a man he is."

"He's gone cold on it," said Jim. "I told you he would."

Lutman turned to Charles again.

"We don't want to hurry you, Charles," he said, "but we should like to hear as soon as possible just what the great idea is."

Charles shrugged his shoulders.

"I don't see what you are making all the fuss about," he said. "What difference can a week make?"

"A day can make a difference," said Jim. "You can't keep this sort of thing dark forever. If Jacqueline or her mother got to hear of the legacy...."

"My dear James," interrupted Lutman, "if you will keep talking I shall have to beat you face off. But Jim's right, Charles: a week may make all the difference in the world; a day may make a difference; an hour may make a difference. You were as emphatic about that in London as I was. You can't kid the New York lawyers indefinitely. If you don't produce Jacqueline Smith they'll get busy on their own to find her. Why the sudden change of mind?"

Charles stared at his preposterous pipe and made no reply.

"Go on, Stuckey, what is it? Tell me."

"It's like this, Lutman," said Charles reluctantly. "Suppose you were a general in charge of troops and you ordered 'em into action and you knew that every man-jack of 'em would be killed—well, that wouldn't be so bad if you were sitting at headquarters well away from it all; but if you went and had a look at them before they went over the top it might make all the difference. It wouldn't be quite so easy to give the word for them to go."

Lutman smiled rather grimly.

"Oh, I see. Our dear, sentimental Charles! So you've come out here and seen the girl and been touched by her sweet young innocence, and now you haven't the heart to see the scheme through."

"Good Lord!" exclaimed Jim. "You might have guessed it, Lutman. Stuckey's fallen for her. Just the sentimental sort of slop you'd expect from him. I told you he wasn't to be trusted."

"Fallen for her, has he?" said Lutman. "Well, you really can't blame him, can you, James? And as regards Jacqueline, it's rather difficult, perhaps, to imagine Charles Stuckey, the 'Mouthpiece' of Rothschilds, arousing her tender emotions, but if she'd fall for a lowdown little rat like you, she'd fall for anyone." He turned to Charles. "I'm sorry, my dear Charles, but it can't be done. It's a hard world for sentimental people like you and me, but we must steel our hearts, Charles, and do our duty. Look at this." He took a newspaper clipping from his pocket and read: "Chicago Press, Paris edition. 'Alan Redfern dead. Oil millionaire leaves $1,500,000 to English niece.' Suppose Mrs. Smith or Jacqueline had seen that, eh? Suppose they do see it tomorrow? How much do you think there'd be for us three to cut up? And try to remember, Charles, that if anything unfortunate like that were to happen I should be the loser more than you or Jim. I have already spent a lot of money on this little scheme and I don't intend to lose it."

"I wish to heaven I had never told you she'd been left the money," exclaimed Charles.

"If I remember rightly, Charles," said Lutman, "you didn't tell me. I read the cable on your desk in the office."

"Yes, and I wish you'd never set foot in my office."

"Of all the rotten little skunks!" said Jim. "If Lutman hadn't backed you, you wouldn't have an office. Lutman has been mighty good to you, Stuckey."

Lutman cut him short.

"My dear James, in a moment I shall blush. And now listen, Charles. You've got to be a good boy and do as we arranged and forget all about the soft look in Miss Jacqueline's eyes and the glint of the sunlight in her hair." He dropped his eyeglass and his mouth was suddenly grim. "This thing's going through. Get that into your head. There's nothing illegal in it. Jim marries the girl; we cut in five ways and I take three."

UNCLE WIGGILY FINDS OUT

The trick Jingle played on her rabbit daddy, to make him think she was doing her piano practice when she wasn't, was this:

When Jingle made up her mind she was going to be bad and pretend to practice her scales when she wasn't, she had to think of some way to make the piano sound as if she were playing.

"If it was one of those electric pianos it would be easy," thought the little rabbit girl. "I could just put in a paper roll with the scales on and it would make the black and white keys go down and it would sound like my practice. But this isn't an electric piano.

"But I know another way almost as good," she said with a little laugh. On top of the piano Jingle saw a large bag of marbles her brother Buster had left there when he ran out to play. Buster was continually leaving his marbles all over. Once he left them in the kitchen and, before she knew it, Nurse Jane had put some of them in the rice pudding for raisins.

Hill of Books

"I'll make Buster's marbles play the piano for me," laughed Jingle.

She placed Buster's bag of marbles on a book on top of the piano. She slanted the book so it was like a little hill. One by one the marbles rolled out of the bag, ran down the little book hill and when they reached the edge of the top of the piano down they fell.

"Plink" a marble hit a key and made it play.

"Plinkity-plonk" Another marble rolled down and hit another key. Then it rolled to the floor.

"Tinkity-tunk!" Another marble

4-20

Oh! how sad he fell rolled from Buster's bag and played another key.

"Oh, the trick works fine!" laughed Jingle. "There are a lot of marbles in Buster's bag. They will slowly roll out, one by one, for a long time. The marbles will do my practice for me and fool daddy and I can hop out and play."

Waiting a little longer to make sure the slowly rolling and dropping marbles were plunking the piano keys, Jingle hopped softly from the room and went out to play with the other animal children.

"You finished you piano practice early today," said Jangle, who was Jingle's twin sister.

"Yes, I did," said Jingle sort of indifferent like and smart.

The animal children were making so much noise at their games they didn't hear the piano in the bungalow playing as Buster's marbles, one by one, rolled out on the keys.

He Didn't Know

But Uncle Wiggily, who was drinking the last of his carrot coffee and reading the last page of the paper, heard what he thought was Jingle practicing. If Uncle Wiggily had known more about music he would have known that practice isn't just hitting one, two or even three keys, which was happening in the music room. Buster's marbles didn't know any better, you see, than to plunk and plunk the same three keys over and over and over. Uncle Wiggily thought it was Jingle.

Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears were too busy at the bungalow work to notice. But pretty soon Uncle Wiggily called:

"That's enough, my dear! You may stop practicing now and run out to play a while before school, Jingle my dear."

But the dropping marbles kept on playing: "Plink! Plank! Plunk!"

"This is queer," said Mr. Longears. "Jingle is practicing so hard, like the good little rabbit girl she is, she doesn't hear me. I'll go in and tell her to stop."

Uncle Wiggily hopped into the piano room. No Jingle was there. Then he found out about the trick. Oh, how sad he felt. Something else is going to happen. I'll tell you in the next story which will be about Uncle Wiggily's prize. But please don't let the apple pie go to the movies without the cheese or it may cry.

Light Maple Syrup Harvest Reported In Ontario, Quebec

Only Moderate Run Collected In Maritimes—General Quality Excellent

PRICE FROM $2-$2.50

OTTAWA, April 20—(C.P.)—While sap is still running in the sugar bushes the harvest of maple products in Canada this year will be light. The weekly market report of the Department of Agriculture indicates the most famous districts for maple syrup have had poor returns. Eastern Ontario and Quebec sugar bushes have been far below the average.

"Run of sap has been moderate," Gloucester and Cumberland Counties, N.S., reported. "Quality of syrup and sugar has been excellent, with prices to producers $2.00 a gallon for syrup and 20 to 30 cents a pound for sugar and cream respectively."

The market in Eastern Ontario would be the smallest in years, the report said.

Burrington district also had poor runs, while Norfolk district had fairly good runs and Middlesex had sufficient good syrup for local demands at from $2.00 to $2.25 a gallon.

The late John C. O'Leary who was the descendant of Irish pioneers and the son of the late Dennis O'Leary and Catharine Cuffe, lived all his life and died on the farm that had been in the O'Leary family for years. He was a staunch supporter of the Liberal party and worked hard during the election campaigns. Surviving him are two sons, John and Dennis, of Downeyville, and four daughters, Mrs. William Herlihey, Lindsay, Mrs. Frank Brady, of South Ops, Sister Philomena, Mount St. Joseph, Peterborough, and Sister Machtilde, of St. Joseph's Academy, Lindsay, twenty-three grand-children and nine great grand-children.

The funeral was held from his late residence just west of the village Friday morning to St. Luke's church, Downeyville, where requiem High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Guiry, of Port Hope, a lifelong friend of the deceased.

Rev. Father McCarney, of Lindsay, delivered the funeral sermon, taking for his text: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." He spoke in high praise of the wonderful old man who, while his legs were able to carry him, walked down to Mass every morning of his life and served Mass any time he was needed. He will be greatly missed in the parish as he was always in his accustomed pew in the church. The church was crowded for the funeral with relatives from far and near who came to pay their respects to one who was loved by all. Had he lived until Sunday, April 18th, he would have been 97 years old. Rev. Father Guiry said the prayers at the cemetery. The pallbearers were six grandsons, John Brady, of Lindsay; William Herlihey, jr., of Erie, Penn.; Walter Herlihey, Austin, Frank and Bernard O'Leary of Downeyville.

Among those who attended the funeral of the late Mr. O'Leary were as follows: Mr. Wm. Newman, M.P.P., Norland; Mr. McLaughlin, secretary of the Liberal Association, and Mr. A. J. Campbell, Lindsay; Mr. Bruce McNevin, M.P., Reaboro; Mr. and Mrs. John O'Leary, Mr. and Mrs. James Cayley, Messrs. William Lehane, Frank Cayley and D. M. Cayley, Lindsay; Robt. Johnston, S. PARLEY FOUNDERS UPON RECOGNITION

United States of General Motors employees.

Not one promise made the strikers had been carried out, the 33-year-old chief magistrate said in pleading for reconsideration.

Still Believe In Thompson

After hearing him the workers passed a vote of confidence in Thompson, confirmed their rejection of the company's proposals and passed a resolution protesting against Premier Hepburn's plan to license international unions.

Thompson told the strikers he hoped the door had not been closed to further negotiations with the company. "I think the company will show good sense and be agreeable to negotiation," he said. "But the strike will only be settled when General Motors sits down around a table and talks to your committee.

"No matter who is involved, no matter who tries to get his finger in the pie or get publicity out of it, the strike must be settled by General Motors and its employees."

The meeting, held in the Collegiate auditorium, opened with a stormy speech by Hall in which he declared: "You're strike is over."

After taking some time to gain a hearing he said he had two statements signed by James Highfield, plant manager in Oshawa for General Motors, which he had taken up with Thompson.

No Return To Work!

"The first is a basis of negotiations and is in this sealed envelope," the mayor continued. "The second message I have is that if the men return to work—"

"No," shouted the 3,000 almost in one voice. Then an uproar broke loose and Hall could not be heard for a few minutes.

His face flushed, he cried: "For God's sake listen to me. I have a basis for negotiations here and I am going to tell them to you if I take all night."

Later Thompson quieted the crowd so the mayor could continue. There were tears in the Oshawa executive's eyes as he said hesitatingly: "I never thought I would ever be on a platform in my own home city and have to let someone from outside ask people to hear me."

Later he said: "This is a settlement of your strike on terms I think are fair, on terms Mr. Thompson has told me are fair."

Then C. H. Millard, local union president, went to the microphone and said: "We were delayed in reaching the meeting because we were in long distance telephone conversation with Homer Martin who feels that—"

Thompson walked up to Millard and whispered to him for a moment or two.

"I've got to delay that feeling for a minute until after the press have left the auditorium so we may discuss this question quite freely," said Millard.

"I am confident we should look at the question clearly," he said. "Circumstances have been complicated during the last few days and what Mayor Hall has told you is at least simplifying the whole situation."

Reporters Are Locked Up

"Having in mind it has already been endorsed," began Millard again. Then he stopped and Thompson asked the press to leave. The reporters were taken to a basement classroom and locked in while union officials made sure they stayed there by posting guards. The newsmen spent their times taking photographs of each other and drawing caricatures on a blackboard, confident they would have a strike settlement to report shortly.

American reporters planned returning to the United States tomorrow.

Then they were called to the auditorium to hear Thompson announce the unanimous vote against acceptance of the proposals.

Mayor Hall was visibly moved when he stepped on the platform to plead with the workers to reconsider their decision. He said that a week ago he asked Homer Martin whether he would call a sympathy strike in the United States and received the assurance General Motors would sign in Oshawa if it wanted to make cars across the border.

No Backing Across Border.

"I took that to mean and you took that to mean he would call a strike in the United States if necessary to back up your demands that the union be recognized," Hall declared. "But it has not been done.

"What one promise to you has been carried out? The United States say they are not going to let the tail wag the dog. There are 2,700 workers here, which is very small compared with more than 200,000 workers on the other side."

"Are you doing the right thing," he demanded later. "Take damn seriously what I'm saying. Take back into consideration these proposals. Think of what things will be next fall next September if the plants here stay closed until then.

"These things are going to be said and I'm the only one who has the guts to get up here and say them. You'll come back later and tell me I'm right and you may be sure I'll try again then to do the best I can for you."

Thompson told the workers they had demonstrated their unity and said he was proud of the way they had acted.

SENATOR FALLIS HONORED GUEST

Staples of Lindsay, widow of the late W. W. Staples, M.P.; while others in the party from Lindsay included Leslie Frost, K.C., W. H. Jordan, Jack Deyell, B. L. McLean, and Mrs. G. F. Blackwell.

Mr. Peck Speaks

After "The King" had been duly honored, the toast to "Our Guest" was proposed by E. A. Peck, K.C., in a neat little speech in which the speaker excelled himself.

Speaking of the pleasure of the citizens of Peterborough in knowing the Senator Fallis had returned to health, Mr. Peck eulogized her "deep devotion to the welfare of the country" and "her ability to go ahead with the many problems, social and otherwise, in which the solution will tend to place the Dominion on a proper footing." He said that the franchise should have been extended to women long ago.

"It was 1900 years too late. But the war opened the eyes of the world to the sacrifices women were prepared to make for their country."

Mr. Peck reviewed briefly the struggles faced by women in their pioneer efforts to obtain inclusion of their sex in the ranks of the Senate, and the manner in which the deliberations of the Supreme Court excluded them from the category of "fit and qualified persons" as laid down in the B.N.A. Act. It remained for the Privy Council to grant women the right to sit in the Senate.

"The position of Senator Fallis is unique," declared the speaker. "She is one of two women who sit in the Canadian Senate. We congratulate her on her appointment and trust that for many years she will be able to serve her country as she so well can."

Elaborating on the congratulations to the guest of honor were similar expressions from J. J. Duffus, M.P. and Mrs. W. R. Morris.

"I take great pleasure in paying this tribute to my honorable friend and colleague in service to this country," said Mr. Duffus. "This dinner is a gracious thing, long overdue, and it was a kindly thought of Mr. Gordon to suggest this gathering this evening. It is a great honor to this county and this city of Peterborough that one of our own should be appointed to the Senate."

Mr. Duffus spoke of the aggressive nature of the House of Commons in initiating legislation which then goes on to the Senate, a dignified and independent body which can give a more unbiased consideration to legislation. In the Commons, a lack of knowledge and a false enthusiasm sometimes leads to hasty action, but the Senate has a more deliberate atmosphere.

"This gathering is unique," said Mr. Duffus, in closing, "in that it is only one of two of its kind that could be held over the entire Dominion."

Just A 'Mugwump'

Mrs. Morris aroused amusement by introducing herself as a 'mugwump', the name, she asserted, being applied to the 'fence-straddlers' who 'vote as they please'.

"We should feel highly gratified that Mrs. Fallis is a woman of such a high type. However, when our representatives are sent to the Senate, they forget their politics—or do they?

"A definition of policy says that "it consists of serving God without offending the devil," so that possibly a successful Senator is one who serves the party god without offending the opposition devil."

Mrs. Morris, who is one of the honorary presidents of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs, explained that the presentation of a bouquet of flowers to Miss Trucie Pearson, because of her office as president of the club, which had been responsible for arranging a dinner last October in honor of the Senator, the arrangements falling through owing to Mrs. Fallis' subsequent illness.

The toast to the Senator was then honored, followed by the singing of "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow" and three cheers and a tiger.

Mayor Macdonald, who, as chairman, had opened the proceedings by remarking on the Senator's contribution to the "business, educational and religious life of this community, especially to this community," spoke of receiving a letter from Hon. R. B. Bennett, in which he extolled the work done by Mrs. Fallis and wished her continued good health.

"Instead of you honoring Mrs. Fallis, she is honoring you," said the former Prime Minister.

The Mayor also referred to a message received from J. H. Vernor, at present absent from the city, expressing regret at his inability to attend the dinner.

In presenting the Senator with the freedom of the city, the Mayor also presented a beautifully-illuminated parchment address, signed, on behalf of the city, by Mayor Macdonald and City Clerk Armstrong. It was wrapped in Coronation colors of red, white and blue, strapped with gold.

"You are the first lady, and also the first person, to receive the freedom of the city of Peterborough," said the Mayor, and Mrs. Fallis, accepting the honor, spoke of a similar tribute conferred upon her by the city of Niagara Falls, last year, where it was declared that she was the first woman in Canada to receive the freedom of the city.

Expresses Appreciation

"I consider it a great honor that you have met here to greet me in this way. I know that the many pleasant things said on an occasion such as this are not really deserved, but they serve as an incentive to further future endeavor. The Scotch blood in me tells me that you are flattering me, but the Irish blood bids me grasp all the kindly things you say, and I assure you they will live long in my memory."

Regretting the illness which caused the cancellation of the Business Women's Club dinner last Fall and other affairs planned for the same period, Mrs. Fallis expressed gratitude to the Mayor and aldermen and the committee; "to Mr. Gordon for his kindly thought of me"; to Mrs. Morris and all who went to such trouble in arranging the dinner, also to the musicians of the evening and "for the splendid dinner which is such a credit to the genial host of this hotel."

"Politics is taboo on such an occasion, and yet, when I look here and there in this gathering and see how many of my friends still walk in darkness (laughter) I am tempted to do my duty to my country. But it may be safer to resist that temptation."

The Senator proceeded then to base an interesting and scholarly address on the progress made by women, and their evolution politically and industrially, from the ancient days, 2000 B.C., when the Babylonian code gave them certain rights, on to the times, in 200 B.C., when they played a small part in public affairs, and to the days in England, at the time of the French Revolution, when Mary Wollstencraft took the French plea for "Liberty, Equality and Fraternity" (for men) and translated it into a demand for equal rights for men and women alike.

"Men forget when they say sometimes that women should not be competing with men in business and industrial life, that women did not choose to enter these competitive fields. They were forced to as an alternative for starvation for themselves and, often, their dependents.

Fault of Women

Outlining the manner in which women of Canada were granted the franchise, and deploring the fact that, in the twenty intervening years, women have not advanced to any powerful place in governing bodies, Senator Fallis declared with vigor that the fault lies at woman's own door.

"The chief reason lies in woman's own indifference and as long as this is true in public affairs, just so long will women of Canada be absent from its governing bodies."

Ontario, the banner province, lags far behind in this regard, she declared and yet there are so many questions — social welfare, health, education—which really enter into woman's natural sphere of activity.

The Senator quoted the verse which has to do with qualities necessary for a women who strives to combine public with private endeavor: "The skill of a tightrope walker; the endurance of a Marathon swimmer; the faith of a revolutionist; the fatalism of an explorer."

She went on to outline fully the manner in which the Senate works and said that, although the Senate proper may sit for only a short time daily, it spends long hours in studying legislation when it resolves itself into either one of the two major committees.

She declared that in Senate deliberations, the newcomer is struck by the almost complete absence of bitter partisanship, and is impressed by the judicial attitude taken by the Senate. Differences are forgotten there and there is an endeavor to strive for the good of the Dominion as a whole.

"And in Canada today there are provincial differences which at times assume the proportions of a threat to undermine Confederation. A spirit of compromise is needed and if we strive for a greater knowledge of the problems facing the provinces, we may come to a broader and more sympathetic understanding. So that, running through all the deliberations, like a silver thread, is the thought of Canada as a single unit. For this idea of national unity, two things are necessary; a deep and abiding love for, and faith in, Canada; and, a willingness to contribute of our time and talent, our strength and energy, to the achievement of that ideal, instead of trying to grasp with greedy hands all the advantages and privileges which are ours today."

The close of the Senator's speech was greeted by a prolonged outburst of enthusiastic clapping.

The entertainment of the evening was rounded out by two beautifully-rendered vocal solos, "The Answer" and "Birthday", sung by Miss Margaret Dickson, with piano accompaniments played by Mrs. G. Wilson Craw, and dinner music played by a three-piece orchestra, with Harry and Stan Northrop playing piano and violin, and Tom Smith the violoncello.

The dinner was in the Empress' best manner and was thoroughly enjoyed, with a delicious menu. The committee of arrangements, headed by Mrs. W. R. Morris and Alderman R. S. Cotton, included Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., Alderman R. M. Glover (who also marshalled the Head table entry), Alderman James Dutton, Mrs. Joseph Mills and Miss T. Pearson, assisted by Herbert Bradburn, who arranged the place cards at the head table, which was garnished with a lovely large bouquet of bright yellow daffodils and tall light yellow tapers in silver candlesticks.

100,000 Tons Rock Displaced By Blast At Belmont Quarry

Eighteen Tons Of Dynamite Are Used At Ontario Rock Quarry

846 FEET OF TUNNELS

Hundreds Of Spectators View Explosion From Distance Of Half Mile

(Staff Reporter.)

HAVELOCK, April 21. — With a deep rumbling and a spectacular tongue of flame, followed by a curtain of dense grey smoke, a long bluff of rock was blown sky high in the twinkling of a split second on the property of the Ontario Rock Quarry near here at 11.40 o'clock this (Wednesday) morning.

Witnessed by hundreds of spectators who came from far and near to occupy points of vantage at a safe distance on surrounding hillsides, the blast displaced 100,000 tons of rock, it was estimated by Superintendent Harry Scott.

18 Tons of Dynamite.

Eighteen tons of dynamite, placed beneath the hillside was fired by Clifford Scott, brother of the superintendent who controlled an electrical switch located under the concrete bins adjoining the plant office over 600 feet from the rock face.

It took workmen five days to "plant" the high explosives beneath the hill, to say nothing of the time required to excavate the 846 feet of tunnelling. The dynamite was planted in 54 separate powder pockets.

It was one of the largest blasts in the company's history, although it was exceeded in 1933 when 21 tons of explosives was used to displace 225,000 tons of rock. The last blast was in 1935.

The rock displaced goes through the company's crushing mill for conversion into road building and surfacing material.

Elaborate Precautions.

Elaborate precautions were taken by Superintendent Scott and his staff prior to the blast, so that no one remained within the danger zone at the zero hour.

In a conference at the plant office with a newsreel cameraman and press photographers, Mr. Scott directed them to a point one concession east of the actual scene of the blasting operations, and told them that exactly fifteen minutes after the final blast of the warning whistle had sounded, his brother would pull the switch that would set off the blast.

Everything worked according to schedule, and there were a tense

TEST MAY AVERT MANY DROWNINGS

Fatal Hypersensitiveness Is Revealed By Holding Hand In Ice Water Five Minutes

By Stephen J. McDonough
(Associated Press Science Writer.)

ST. LOUIS, April 21 (AP) — A medical treatment capable of preventing hundreds of deaths from drownings during the coming summer was suggested today by Dr. Bayard T. Horton of Rochester, Minn.

Addressing the American College of Physicians Dr. Horton declared that many drownings result from a hypersensitivity to cold water, similar to the allergic reaction of asthma or hay fever, which causes a total collapse of many individuals.

Recent studies have revealed 25 persons who suffered total collapse after swimming, 10 of whom had to be rescued to prevent them from drowning, Dr. Horton said. "Hypersensitiveness to cold constitutes a grave menace to the unwary swimmer who has this malady, and yet the danger can be eliminated by adequate treatment by a responsible physician."

Testing to determine whether a person has the disease is a simple matter of immersing one hand in ice water for five minutes, Dr. Horton declared, and "if the hand swells after it has been removed from the water, the indication is that the patient is hypersensitive to cold."

Most persons can be "desensitized" to cold, just as many asthma and hay fever patients can be accustomed to pollen, by having them immerse one hand in ice water for a minute or two twice a day for three or four weeks, Dr. Horton declared.

REGISTRATIONS at the Employment Services Bureau have passed the thousand mark, Superintendent Dan Douglas said today. During the past couple of weeks a large number of men have made application for work in anticipation of the highway work which is expected to open up soon. No official word on the extent of work to be done on Highway 28 north of the city this summer has yet been received from the Department of Highways but Johnson Brothers, the contractors who had charge of improvement of the Lakefield-Burleigh Falls section last summer, have been busy for several weeks putting their machinery in order. Tenders for paving of No. 7 seven miles east of Peterborough were opened yesterday but no announcement has been made.

Tax Revenue Falls Short Of U.S. Hopes

Collection Shortage Adds $309,000,000 To Net Deficit Of $2,248,128,000

SEEK CHEAPER LOANS

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(AP). —Submission of President Roosevelt's revised budget message started the United States' treasury today on a search for the cheapest terms to borrow money and for methods to tighten the tax system to bolster future income.

First however, fiscal spokesmen predicted an already launched program of borrowing $50,000,000 a week would be continued until $300,000,000 has been obtained.

They said they would have to determine by June 15 whether to continue borrowing on short-term bills, or turn to longer-time bond issues for further funds. On that date about $300,000,000 of discounted bills issued in March will come due.

Originally, it had been expected these bills would be paid out of tax receipts for the second quarter of the year but authorities said this would be prevented because revenues were not coming up to expectations.

President Roosevelt's message yesterday showed that the net deficit, estimated last January at $2,248,128,000 would be increased by $309,000,000 through failure of tax collections to match up with forecasts.

Additional borrowing before July 1 is expected to push the public debt to a new peak of $35,335,000,000—$1,557,000,000 over last July 1.

In the fiscal year beginning July 1, the treasury must prepare to pay off $2,466,000,000 of notes coming due, in addition to taking care of the projected new borrowings of $418,000,000 to make up a deficit.

Another 150 Killed In Madrid Barrage

Madrid, April 21—(AP)

THE 10th day of incessant insurgent shellfire rolled up a total of 150 dead within Madrid today and forced a grave test of the city's fatalism under nearly a half year of siege.

Thirty-two bodies were hauled to morgues this evening, the grim harvest of today's insurgent cannonade from the besiegers' gun emplacements in the city's suburbs.

At least 160 more were injured today, a third of them gravely. The fatalities made the toll approximately 150 for the 10 days of bombardment.

Surprise Package Arrives From Vienna Sport Shop Signed "Uncle David"

LESSONS CALLED OFF

WINDSOR, Berkshire, April 21.—(CP)—Princess Elizabeth, heir presumptive to the throne, celebrated her 11th birthday today with play at a make-believe "Coronation" which may some day be turned into reality for her.

There were presents from her mother and father and a surprise package from "Uncle David," whose abdication as Edward VIII last December brought her one step nearer the throne, but her abdoring interest is in a child's version of the Coronation of her parents May 12.

The Duke of Windsor's gift was to a large sealed package with the label of a Vienna sports shop and was accompanied by a big, lace-edged card signed "Uncle David."

In the game, Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret, her younger sister, play the leading roles while their patient nurse acts as the congregation in Westminster Abbey.

The Princess was excused from lessons and the day began with a nursery romp with Princess Mar-

Madrigal Singers Score Greatest Hit Of Career

New World Chamber Orchestra Delights Audience Of Over 700

CHORAL BALLET

Peterborough, regarded as a cold town to visiting musicians, rose to the occasion on Tuesday evening. The seven hundred and more people who attended the annual concert of the Madrigal Singers and the New World Chamber Orchestra from Toronto warmed their hands enthusiastically many times before the evening was over.

It was a delightful concert, artistically arranged as is the wont of Dorothy Allan Park's programs. Presented in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute, where the main floor and upper balcony were thronged with music-lovers of the city and district, it brought to the city for the first time Samuel Hersenhoren and his New World Chamber Orchestra from Toronto.

It is seldom that a visiting group of musicians has captured at once the affection of an audience from a city that is inclined to be a bit choosy about its music and somewhat chary of audible praise. These young men, dignified skilful and intent players all, rising with modest demeanor to acknowledge applause, were evident favorites right from the start. They are seven: four violin, a violoncello, a pianist and a bass viol player. And what a bass viol that is, seems like the grand daddy of them all, so tall and deep and wide are its proportions, so full and masculine its sonorous tone against the feminine notes of the silver strings.

The Madrigal Singers were at their best. There was no singing "a capella." All numbers were done in company with the visiting orchestra.

A quality of magnificent tonal volume, expressively shaded, poured itself forth in the big numbers of the choral program; "Omnipotence," by Franz Schubert, and an excerpt from the Brahms' "Requiem"—"We Love the Place Where Thine Honor Dwells."

A superb compass of full, rounded tone was manifest in the massive Schubert composition, with plenty of scope for the alto section. The Brahms' number had a notable treatment in a swelling crescendo for the reiterated phrase: "They sing Thy Praise," softening to a fine

DOCTOR IS OUSTED FOR CANCER CLAIM

Kitchener Man Charges College Action Due To His Refusal To Disclose Serum

TORONTO, April 21 (CP).—Dr. Robert Noble, registrar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, last night said Dr. John E. Hett of Kitchener has been released from the college because he claims he has a specific cure for cancer.

"Council will no anything in its power to offer him facilities to substantiate his claim," Dr. Noble said.

Dr. Hets announced he was notified his name was removed from the list of practising physicians in Ontario after he appeared before the college council last week. Dr. Hett said he denied charges he claimed to possess a specific cure for cancer and that he guaranteed certain patients with a cure.

Dr. Hets announced he would take legal steps and bring action before the courts in an attempt to have his name put back on the list of practising doctors.

Dr. Hett said there was only one reason for cancellation of his license as a practising physician after 40 years in cancer research.

Not Proper Time

"That reason is that I refused to reveal the nature of the serum because I did not consider the time opportune," he said. "I complied with all their other requests."

Dr. Hett further explained he had offered to treat cancer patients for the council before a satisfactory investigating committee. His offer, however, had been declined.

"They told me that if I would not reveal what the serum was," he added, "then they would cancel my

Names of the men were withheld by police.

The arrests brought the number held by police in connection with Junkins' death to four, two having been arrested Saturday. Junkins, believed victim of an assault, did not recover consciousness before his death.

Six Canadian Centres Feel Strike Whip

Oshawa, Montreal, Toronto, Sarnia, Hamilton And Fernie, B.C., Involved

WAGE, UNION TROUBLE

TORONTO, April 21. — (CP) — Canada's strike picture today unfolded a story of unrest that stretched from waterfront to automobile, coal mining, dress-making and the commercial artists spheres.

Main centre of dispute, Oshawa's General Motors strike, involving 3,700 workers, however, dragged along without a break in efforts to get company officials and strikers' representatives together. While union heads in Oshawa attempted to arrange such a conference, Harry J. Carmichael, company general manager, insisted in Toronto negotiations must be carried on through Premier Mitchell Hepburn's offices.

With the Oshawa tangle still unravelled the situation in other strike areas was:

Montreal—Expectations were held for final ratification today of an agreement which would send 2,000 dressmakers back to work after being off their jobs for nearly a week. Still unsolved was the position of 3,000 other striking dressmakers who have failed to reach any agreement with employers.

Toronto—Three hundred striking longshoremen of the city's waterfront still were deadlocked with employers on union recognition, wage increases and working hours, after seven days' strike activities.

Toronto—More than 200 commercial artists, demanding wage advances, union recognition and improved working conditions, continued on strike following a walkout yesterday.

Hamilton — Pickets representing 235 longshoremen kept watch on the lakefront while union leaders attempted to reach agreement with shipping heads on wages, union recognition and working hours.

Sarnia — After clashes which brought injury to seven longshoremen, quiet reigned along the Point Edward docks while 250 strikers stood firm for wage advances and union recognition.

Fernie, B.C.—Threatened strike of 1,000 Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company workers was believed averted with signing of an agreement by company and union officials. The men will vote on the agreement tomorrow.

Lone Officer Settles War In London As Fifty Boys Battle For A Bridge

London, Ont., April 21.—(CP) WAR broke out last night between the Gas House Gang of Thames street and the South London Rovers for possession of the King Street bridge.

The tide of battle turned from side to side with a hail of stones rattling through the steel of the bridge until a pedestrian called police. Police Constable John Parkey called a truce and was able to collar seven boys out of the two armies tentatively estimated from 30 to 60 strong.

That the campaign was well planned was shown when the boys were found to have every pocket bulging with an assorted collection of stones of suitable size for heaving. The leader of the Gas House gang was carrying an old boiler top as protection against flying missiles.

Names of 15 boys ranging from seven to 15 years of age were obtained. The seven who fell into the clutches of the officer remained at police headquarters for an hour and then were sent home. The boys will appear in juvenile court.

Profits Tax Is Criticized Too Drastic

British Firms Seen Paying Up To 75 P.C. When Income, Surtax, Defence Levies Figured

MAY HURT INDUSTRY

Labor Raps Arms Borrowing—Sees Danger In Rising Living Costs

LONDON, April 21 (C.P.). — Criticism of the excess profits provisions of the Budget was voiced in the House of Commons to-day by Sir Robert Horne, former Conservative Chancellor of the Exchequer.

"Taking both the income tax and the national defence contribution together," he declared, "many companies will have to pay as high as 45 per cent. In some cases there would be a surtax, and the sum might run to 75 per cent.

"I've talked with many people today and there are great perturbations. Unless these are abated in some way, I fear some check upon the enterprise of our country."

Labors Standpoint

"Reckless improvidence" was Labor's opening attack on the budget. It was Frederick Pethwick-Lawrence, financial secretary to the treasury in the Labor government, who led for the opposition. But his attack was conceived in moderate tones.

While raising a question of detail about the application of the new tax on business profits, he frankly welcomed it in principle. Profits made from rising activity in the nation, Pethwick-Lawrence argued, should not go to the private advantage of the few.

Evidently, he added, the proposals of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Neville Chamberlain, had been received with "utmost gloom" by his own followers.

Pethwick-Lawrence turned his heaviest guns on the budget's "exotic system of finance." He was referring to the fact that £80,000,000 of the present year's expenditure on armaments was to be met from borrowed money.

To the extent of that sum the budget was unbalanced, he argued, and "unbalanced budgets are a new device in this country in time of peace." Chamberlain had assumed that the peak of armament expenditure would come probably in two years time and then expenditure would decline. But that peak might well prove to be nothing but the summit of a foothill, with higher and higher peaks in the distance. That would be true even if no greater catastrophe came in the meantime.

The rising cost of living was one of the greatest dangers of the present day. Under the influence of new taxation the cost of living was likely to rise still higher, with grave consequences in the life of the nation.

Strip-Teaser Prefers Career To Marrying An English Heir

Youth Following Her Daily Since Last July Still Has Hopes Of Winning

SHE WANTS TO BE A STAR

DETROIT, April 21.—(CP)—Last summer at his home in Alcombe Manor, Wiltshire, England, 20-year-old John S. Norley saw the picture of a show girl in a magazine. Today in Detroit the youth, one of the heirs to a family fortune, is attempting to persuade Miss Marion Marian Ziegfeld Follies, strip-tease dancer, to marry him.

He's been trying since he first met the girl in New York last July. He sat for 97 consecutive nights at a restaurant where Marian was featured, before he found someone who introduced him.

He has made three trips across the Atlantic and has followed the 23-year-old "stripper" around the country, popping the question in Indianapolis, Columbus, Detroit and every other city where the Follies has played.

But Marion's answer is always the same as it was the first time in New York—she has her career to think of.

CONFERENCE WITH LEWIS

Mayor Hall Fears Delay May See Crack Workmen Move From City

OSHAWA, Ont., April 21.—(CP)—Union officials today announced acceptance of General Motors ultimatum that Premier Mitchell Hepburn must be a part to strike-settlement negotiations as long as the men refused to return to work.

The union announcement came from J. L. Cohen, legal counsel, and Hugh Thompson, organizer of the United Automobile Workers of America, with whom the Premier has steadfastly refused to confer. They agreed the Premier should sit in on conferences between employees and General Motors officials unless the strikers returned to work.

They did not indicate their attitude towards the Premier's statute in negotiations if the men went back to their jobs and negotiations were resumed with the company.

When C. H. Millard, local union head, asked for a conference with company officials today, he was told by James B. Highfield, plant manager:

"There will be no meeting between officials of General Motors of Canada, Limited, and their representatives of employees until the men first go back to work or the Prime Minister of Ontario, Mr. Hepburn, meets the Canadian executive in a joint conference with the shop committee of the workmen."

Cohen To See Premier.

Cohen also announced he had an appointment for 2.30 p.m. with Premier Hepburn to discuss arrangements for a conference between the Government head, the company officials and the union representatives.

Besides communicating today with Highfield, Millard also telephoned Harry Carmichael, company general manager, and informed him the union was prepared to confer with the Premier, Millard requested Carmichael to arrange a conference with the Premier, but was informed it was up to the men to make their own arrangements.

The union announcement also said Millard was also told the company at no time arranged for any Toronto conferences and did not want to be placed in the position of doing so now. Millard agreed and representations for an appointment will be made by Cohen.

Possibility of a change in the strikers' bargaining committee was seen here with the Premier's announcement in Toronto he would not confer with Millard unless he changed his status.

Millard, besides being president of the local union, is also organizer of the International Union, the body strongly opposed by the Premier and company officials because of its affiliation with John L. Lewis' committee for industrial organization.

Ready to Talk Business.

Union representatives yesterday asked postponement of a conference planned with the company for two o'clock, and announced at the time they would meet company officials to-day.

Dutch Angry At Execution Of Officials

Netherlands Hears Rebels Shot Captives After Sinking Gun-Running Ship

IN BAY OF BISCAY

AMSTERDAM, April 21.—(AP)—Indignation spread in the Netherlands today against the Spanish insurgents for their reported execution of Dutch officials captured aboard the steamer Andra before it was sunk in the Bay of Biscay, April 8.

The report, carried in a dispatch to the newspaper Telegraaf from its St. Jean de Luz, France, correspondent, further inflamed public opinion already irritated by the insurgent fleet's seizures of neutral shipping.

The dispatch, which had not been officially confirmed, declared the Dutch officials were shot after a court martial.

"The Andra, Dutch ship under the Panamanian flag, succeeded in breaking the Bilbao blockade," the paper's correspondent reported.

"However, on its return it was caught by an insurgent cruiser en route to San Sebastian. It appears that the whites (insurgents) found three members of a Spanish governmental commission aboard who had bought munitions abroad.

"These Spaniards and all Dutch officials of the Andra were executed. The other prisoners were taken to Salamanca instead of being shot as they had not participated in buying munitions."

The other members of the crew, all Dutch, were reported to have been imprisoned in the foreigners' camp at Salamanca, seat of the insurgent regime.

Detroiter Writes To Express Admiration Of Premier Hepburn's Stand

Admiration of Premier Hepburn's stand against the C.I.O. is voiced in a letter received by a Peterborough friend from a Detroit man who spends his summers at Stoney Lake. Writes the Detroiter:

"You certainly do not want any of that here [illegible] If I were at home in this district that the Premier is going to win. I hope so. Here in Michigan we must recognize the unpalatable fact that we have a more or less radical labor government. They temporarily have our votes and that is what counts. Just how strong they are in Detroit, we shall not find out until fall when there is a city election for mayor. The president is just about the same ilk. I like some of his policies, but he does seem pretty radical and right now less with other people's money. I wish I were living in Canada and a lot of other people feel the same way."

MINE UNIONS QUIET

Claim Strike Rumors Fomented By Certain Stock Market Manipulators

TORONTO, April 21 (C.P.I.) — Continuing his resistance to the "Fascist Dictatorship" of the Committee for Industrial Organization, Premier Hepburn planned future moves to-day in the belief consequences of the Oshawa General Motors strike have had "a quieting effect all over the province."

The Premier said last night he had been advised by some Northern Ontario mine owners that their men would not strike and were satisfied with their present wages and working conditions. "This flasco in Oshawa is having a quieting effect," he added.

Mr. Hepburn said he had reason to believe three mine owners who announced they were prepared to close their mines indefinitely in the event of a strike "weren't fooling." He added: "The gold's been in the ground millions of years. A little while longer won't hurt it."

The statements of the three mine owners—J. P. Bickell of McIntyre, J. E. Timmins of Hollinger Consolidated, and Jules S. Bache of Dome—were followed last night by a denial from mine union leaders that any strike was contemplated.

The Sudbury Mine and Smelter Workers' Union issued a statement saying it was not fomenting strikes.

Mine Unions Deny Rumors

Heads of the Hollinger and McIntyre locals of the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union declared in a statement at Timmins that strike rumors are "false and malicious." They charged the rumors were fabricated to assist in lowering prices on the stock market by persons "using strike rumors as a cover for their nefarious schemes and desires to lay the cause at the door of the union."

Premier Hepburn has said he has "definite knowledge" that C.I.O. organizers are trying to bring on strikes at the International Nickel

Miss Jessie Linn Has Charge Of St. Andrew's Y.P.S. Program

CAMPBELLFORD, April 21.—The Literary convenor, Miss Jessie Linn, was in charge of the program of St. Andrew's Young People's Society at their weekly meeting held on Monday.

During the business portion of the program the members were reminded of the joint meeting to be held in St. John's United Church on April 28 and also of the fact that the members of the English Line Society were preparing a play in the basement of St. Andrew's Church on May 7, when it was hoped that a large number would attend. Miss Linn took the chair for the program which opened with the topic, "True Tests of Courage" given by Miss Marian McArthur.

Rev. B. Simpson Black was called on to speak to the society. His remarks dealt chiefly with the difference between moral and physical courage. David Livingston and Sir Wilfrid Grenfell were cited as examples of men who exhibited the highest kind of courage by their work and sacrifice to help others.

PARISH GUILD TEA LARGELY ATTENDED

Successful Coronation Event Held At Campbellford—Pleasing Program

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 21. — Appropriately decorated with flags and bunting the Parish Hall formed the setting for a Coronation tea held under the auspices of the Parish Guild under the direction of Mrs. R. Belshaw on Tuesday afternoon. Pouring tea at the table, which was skirted with red, white and blue bunting, with large bouquets of carnations and snapdragons in pretty silver vases on either end of a beautiful lace cloth, were Mrs. W. Smith and Mrs. E. C. West. An interesting feature of the program was the singing by Miss Hilda Bonnycastle of two songs composed by her mother Mrs. Charlotte Bonnycastle, entitled "When George VI. Was Crowned" and "Greater Canada." Charles Allan played the accompaniment for Miss Bonnycastle. Others who took part in the program were Miss Vera Wood, who gave a humorous reading entitled "Some People Think I Lisp," which was encored. A vocal selection by Master Wilson Jones and a violin solo by Bruce Elmhirst were both accompanied by Angus Tood. Charles Allan played several piano selections during the tea.

Rev. T. H. Floyd expressed a welcome to all the guests, and thanked those who assisted in making the tea a success, including Mrs. Walter Sutton, Mrs. Nelson Lloyd, Miss Gertrude Maynard, Mrs. N. A. McColl, Mrs. J. A. Linton, Mrs. T. H. Floyd, and Mrs. R. A. Linton.

Father Divine Flees Heaven, Now Fugitive

Wanted For Stabbing Result Of Riot After Process—Server Invades Meeting

ONE MAN MAY DIE

NEW YORK, April 21.—Father Divine, bald little negro mystic, who made himself "God" to thousands of followers throughout the United States, today was hunted as a fugitive from justice after a man was stabbed in a riot at his red-brick Harlem "heaven." The fantastic turn in the "Emperor Jones" career of the one-time Baptist minister occurred during a midnight "peace service," when a process-server, Paul Corowa, interrupted the mumbo-jumbo to slap a legal summons against Father Divine's chest.

"God" lost his temper.

As a result, one man was in a hospital near death with a knife slash in his chest, and posses of police beat through the bushes around Black Messiah's "Promised Land" at Kingston, N.Y., where they believe the harried little negro fled.

Eight-State Alarm

An alarm was broadcast through eight States to arrest the cult leader on a charge of felonious assault. Later his attorney told police he would surrender tomorrow. Father Divine was addressing his flock in the hot, stuffy little "banquet" room of his four-story "heaven" just off Lennox Avenue, when Corowa, a contractor, who serves legal documents on the side, ducked a rope, walked over and tapped him with the summons.

Father Divine stopped talking, and stared for an instant at Corowa. Then, trembling with rage, he seized the man by the shoulders and shook him. For an instant the packed room of sweating devotees was silent. The chirping greeting: "Peace —it's a wonderful thing"—faded out. Ten seconds later "heaven" was a screaming madhouse.

Corowa scuttled under a rope and dug his way through the crowd. A friend, Henry Greene, who came along "to see the show," was trapped as he tried to follow. A burly negro knocked him down and others stamped on him. He crawled under their feet and emerged at the head of a staircase.

Reporter Bashed

A reporter, mistaken for the process server, was pinned against a wall and his face hammered by one of "God's" followers. He wriggled away and ran down the street, shouting for police. He said he saw Greene, his shirt soaked with blood, surrounded by cursing men and wo-

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 21. — Work of resurfacing Highway No 30 from Bradley's Corners to Campbellford was resumed on Monday when eleven men were hired to begin the work of filling and levelling. It is expected that the work at the gravel pit will begin by May 1 when the final four miles of road will be filled and surfaced with tar and gravel. Between twenty and thirty men will be engaged in this work, which will probably last till the beginning of August. One of the officials of the A. E. Jupp Construction Company told The Examiner that the two miles of road already completed would have to be resurfaced with an additional three inches of rock as it already showed signs of heaving and cracking. Nearly 24 thousand tons of rock will be quarried and spead over this six miles of road during the summer.

THE Royal Road TO THE CORONATION

HIS MAJESTY'S interest in boys and their welfare and particularly in the Boy Scouts with whom he is often pictured, is well known. Her Majesty the Queen shares that interest to the full, and her interest being of a decidedly active nature, she is known to thousands of Girl Guides as one of their number.

To-day we present the Queen as a Guide leader ready to review a company of the Guides at an official function. In England and in many of the dominions, the Girl Guides have become almost as well known and as popular as their brothers, the Scouts, and the fact that the Queen is an active member of the organization is a tribute to their service. It will certainly not draw from the organization's popularity.

Perhaps it was her appreciation of the value of training and service during the war years and after, when as a girl and a young woman she came often in contact with the nursing services and other women's organizations that inspired her interest in the Guides. Or perhaps the active life she led in and around Glamis castle in the girlhood months she was able to spend in the Scottish home of her family, which made her appreciate the love of the outdoors that is a feature of the Guide movement.

During the visits to outlying parts of the empire along with the King, Her Majesty has proved herself quite willing to share the rough and tumble of outdoor life along with her sturdier companions. In Kenya she hunted with the then duke, and again in Australia, when the royal party spent a day on the Queensland plains and took its meals around the open campfire, Elisabeth shared in the pleasures and the discomforts. Perhaps then her training as a Guide stood her in good stead.

Vision Italy Ending Claim Upon Austria

Diplomats Base Predictions Upon Co-operation Between Duce And Hitler

TWO TO MEET SOON

VENICE, April 21 (AP)—Diplomatic circles today considered the possibility Italy might abandon Austria to Germany on the eve of an important conference between Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Kurt Von Schuschnigg on the delicate position occupied by the little nation between two powerful neighbors.

Reports heard with increasing frequency in Rome that Mussolini planned to see Chancellor Hitler after his meeting here with the Austrian chancellor were given new impetus by a source close to the government in Berlin.

Although official confirmation was lacking in either capital, the Berlin source said Mussolini was scheduled to visit Hitler at the latter's Bavarian home May 4.

Diplomats accredited to Italy have had the impression for some time Mussolini, formerly the champion of Austria, was working so closely with Hitler he was considering the possibility of relaxing Italian vigilance against any German infiltration in Austria.

It was thought likely also, the conferences starting tomorrow might bring a clear answer to the question of a Hapsburg restoration in Austria.

Von Schuschnigg has indicated he favors a restoration in the person of young Archduke Otto but both Mussolini and Hitler are opposed to any such move.

LOSES HER SKIRT

Hula Dancer Is Badly Burned.

SAN PEDRO, Calif., April 21. — (CP).—A 22-year-old hula dancer, Mae Perdue, was burned critically today when her grass skirt caught fire as she performed among patrons of a waterfront cafe.

Converted suddenly into a flaming torch, the girl's screams drowned out the Hawaiian melody of the orchestra.

Police jailed Mathew Donahue, 57, a mechanic, on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon while they investigated whether a match was touched to the girl's tinder-dry costume.

Monte Carlo Casino Gets Out Of Red

Monte Carlo, Monaco, April 21

The casino's annual meeting today announced gross receipts of 59,000,000 francs (about $3,651,000) and a profit of 2,140,000 francs, nearly $100,000, for the year ended March 31, 1937. That compares with a deficit of 4,306,008 francs ($180,000) in 1936.

LIFFORD LINE

GUILD SPONSORS PLEASANT SOCIAL

Large Attendance At Lifford Line Gathering Despite Busy Season

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, April 20.—On Friday evening about fifty people congregated at Lifford Community Hall for a jolly social evening, sponsored by the Women's Guild of St. Mary's Church, in spite of the fact that the present season with its syrup making, wood cutting and preparation for field work is a very busy one among farm folk.

Tables were conveniently arranged about the Hall for the enjoyment of games of progressive crokinole and euchre, fifteen tables were occupied with alternate tables of each. At the conclusion of games scores were counted and it was discovered that there were several ties in both ladies' and men's scores. After draws the winners were declared to be Miss Marjorie Page and her brother, Harold Page.

Following games a liberal luncheon, supplied by the ladies, was served to all present and a happy social time was spent.

The remainder of the evening was spent in round and square dancing with music provided by a local orchestra of young people connected with the church.

As the result of a charge of 25 cents admission, the sum of fourteen dollars was raised. This sum will be used for the extension of conveniences in the church shed, where the Guild Ladies co-operate in the serving of suppers at garden parties during the summer and fowl dinners in the late fall.

MOTHER SCALDS SON

Admits Turning Hot Water On 3-Year-Old to Punish Him.

DENVER, April 21—(AP)—Three-year-old Donald Baxter was treated today for severe scald burns and Police Captain James E. Childers said his mother, when arrested, confessed she put him in a bathtub and turned on the hot water to punish him.

CAMPBELLFORD

BOYS' TEAM WINS SOCIETY CONTEST

Lead Girls By Nine Points In Final Results Of Attendance Race

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 21.—The results of the attendance contest between the boys and the girls of St. John's Young People's Union were announced at the weekly meeting held on Monday. Miss Pearl McComb gave the final results showing that the boys had gained 290 points while the girls trailed 9 points behind with only 281 points for attendance during the last six weeks. The meeting opened with Miss Velma Runnells giving the scripture reading. Ruth Palliser gave a reading entitled "There Was A Miracle."

The offering was taken and Rev. Harold B. Neale gave a further address in his series dealing with the Bible choosing as his subject the twelfth chapter of the Book of Ecclesiastes. At the conclusion of general business Jack Carr, Citizenship Convenor took charge of the program which consisted of a reading by Donald Holmes entitled "Once I Was A Sailor"; piano selections by Arnold Bates, "Music from Radio Land"; an act by Don Holmes in which he displayed skill and hypnotism, much to the surprise of the audience. Jack Carr chose "Cooperation" as his topic for the evening and delivered a scholarly address.

EXCUSE NOT ACCEPTED

Liquor Prescribed By Doctor Costs Patient $100.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., April 21.— (CP) — Harry Butcher, Port Burwell, had small doses of liquor prescribed for him by his doctor, to be taken at intervals during the day. But it was still illegal. When he offered this excuse in county court yesterday, he was given the minimum penalty of a $100 fine and costs.

MORE INSPECTION URGED FOR AUTOS

Gen. Draper Proposes Check Twice a Year To Test Mechanical Fitness

TORONTO, April 21 (CP)—Present system of inspecting defective automobiles is entirely inadequate to cope with the number of the vehicles of the road, Brig.-Gen. D. C. Draper told the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations' convention here yesterday. People operating such cars avoid police officers, he said.

"Once they know the officer is operating on a certain street, they take the other road," said Toronto's police chief. "This can be overcome by legislation which will make it compulsory for owners of motor vehicle equipment to have such equipment tested for mechanical fitness at least twice each year to safeguard the public."

General Draper predicted 15,000 persons in Ontario would be killed or injured by automobiles each year in the next 20 years at the present accident rate.

Later, from the Castle Terrace, the heiress to the throne was to watch the colorful changing of the guard and receive a special birthday salute.

The crowning event of the day was a party planned for the drawing room of Windsor Castle, where the Royal family is in residence, and Princess Elizabeth's grandmother, Queen Mary, was to be among the score of guests to watch her cut a pink, white-iced cake with 11 candles set in silver sconces.

Children's Aid Society Is Unable To Elect Officers As Directors Only Number 20

Miss Nora Lee Addresses Annual Meeting Of Peterboro' Society

REPORTS PRESENTED

"The Society is facing the future in a very sound position financially," declared President Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr at the annual meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Children's Aid Society in the city council chamber on Tuesday afternoon after the annual financial statement had shown a substantial balance on the right side of the ledger, a gratifying contrast from the situation a year ago.

A fairly well attended meeting heard reports from the superintendent, the matron of the Shelter and the sewing committee as well as the financial report and in addition listened to an informative address from the guest speaker, Miss Nora Lee of the Toronto Children's Aid Society.

It was impossible however as Rev. Dr. Barr explained for the nominating committee however as Rev. Dr. to the list of officers for the ensuing year because of the fact that the constitution called for the appointment of thirty directors and the paid-up membership had not yet reached that total. The solution would be to engage in a membership campaign to secure the required numerical strength. Rev. Dr. Barr also explained that it would be impossible at that meeting to take up the report of the committee that had been appointed to confer with Superintendent Edgar as to the duties of his position inasmuch as the committee had not yet received a report from the Department of Public Welfare as to the grading given the local society.

The chairman said in explanation of his reference at the last meeting to the lack of co-operation from social service organizations that his remarks were not critical of any particular representative but merely of the existing situation which he felt called for closer co-ordination than had hitherto been evidenced.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Morrison and adopted.

Financial Statement

Superintendent Edgar read the financial statement which showed the following receipts and disbursements for the year ending March 31, 1937:

Receipts

City of Peterborough, $2,187.18; County of Peterborough, $3,188.50; Provincial grants, $500; Tag Day receipts, $910.84; Tag Day receipts Lakefield, $25.32; Tag Day receipts Havelock, $24.15; interest investments, $325.30; bank loans, $1,500; donations and sundry receipts, $427.61; transferred from savings ac., $1,000; Total, $10,088.80.

Disbursements

Bank O-D April 1, 1936, $877.69; salaries, supervision, $3,426.13; salaries, investigation, $732.03; provisions and meteries, $1,299.04; light, heat and water, $503.46; clothing and furnishings, $513.91; board and lodging children, $468.80; drugs and medicine, $161.26; travelling, supervision, $184.89; travelling, investigation, $275.13; repairs to property, $245.86; printing and advertising, $30.89; office supplies and telephone, supervision, $158.32; office supplies and telephone, investigation, $86.27; interest, $39.05; sundry expense, $129.99; bank loans repaid, $1,500; bank balance March 31, 1937, $375.89; Total, $10,088.80.

The savings account showed a balance of $187.10.

Chief Constable Newhall moved, seconded by Mrs. Oke that the financial statement be adopted. Carried.

Superintendent's Report

Superintendent John Edgar reported as follows:

You will notice from our report that we had 41 investigation cases to handle and that the number of wards made during the year were 12. Out of the cases investigated there were 9 where the children might have been brought into the Shelter to the number of 25, but by taking the matter up as a preventative measure these 25 children were asbeen so much stress laid on preventative work.

You will notice further from the stated, more or less, in their own homes through the efforts and visits of the superintendent and friends of the superintendent, who not only supplied provisions, but in some cases clothing, as a result these 25 children were not brought into the Shelter. I mention this as there has report that the standing of the society is much better than the year previous. This no doubt has been arrived at from two sources,—first the increased amounts charged to the city and county and the method of purchasing whereby everything that could be purchased wholesale has been done.

Then I wish to thank Mrs. Oke, Mrs. Fanning and Mrs. Laurence for their co-operation in purchasing the clothing for the children at the Shelter.

The number of children in the Shelter at the present time is greater than has been for some years. We have practically no boys old enough to work on farms, and there does not appear to be any demand for them any place else. We have a number of small children whose parentage and background are such that it is impossible to recommend them for adoption, and it would appear that no one wants a boy or girl who is not able to work.

So far as health of the children is concerned the doctors have performed their duty ably and well.

The co-operation between the Shelter, the Board of Directors and the office, also the Relief Office, Police Matron, M.A., Investigator, School Attendance Officers has helped very materially in the work during the past year.

Matron's Report

Mrs. Gerald McMillan, matron, reported on the work at the Shelter during the year as follows:

Children in Shelter at April 1, 1936, 14; children cared for in Shelter during the year, 30; children gone out of Shelter, 20; children made wards, 11; police cases (children in detention room), 11; children in Shelter March 31, 1937, 19; children having tonsils and adenoids removed, 9; children examined by doctors, 30; children vaccinated for smallpox, 19; cases of infectious diseases, 6; dental cases, 13; court attendances, 16; doctor's visits, 14; children examined by Mental Health Clinic, 17; children examined by Chest Clinic, 4; children attending Gym., at Y.W.C.A., 5; boys in Boy Scouts', 2; boys in "Dube" 8.

During the year the children have attended church and Sunday School regularly Sunday morning and afternoon unless for reasons of sickness or some other good reason which was unavoidable.

The children have been entertained by two parties in the Shelter besides being entertained at the theatres six times. The boys go on hikes with Mr. McMillan, and both boys and girls were taken on several picnics last summer to nearby places, and on one occasion to Bowmanville.

We have taught the older girls to darn neatly and mend, while the boys were taught some fret saw work, and how to make their own beds.

The children are allowed to have their companions in to play with them on the grounds.

Through the co-operation of the Ladies' Sewing Committee, composed of Mrs. Lynch, Mrs. Oke, Mrs. Laurence, Mrs. Huffman, Mrs. Fanning, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Henry, Mrs. Rowan and Mrs. Curry and the Buying Committee we have been able to carry on successfully, and our children are able to compete favorably in neatness of appearance as to clothes etc., through the efforts of these committees. The Jeanette Scots Chapter I.O.D.E. has very kindly kept the children in footwear during the year amounting to $105.60.

The report was adopted on motion

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 21, 1937

In His Own Town

When Mayor Alex Hall of Oshawa addressed a meeting of strikers he had hard going. Probably he expected it. He had with him a statement which he wished to submit to the men in an effort to settle the strike. That statement told of a five-day week, 44 hours a week, time and a-half for overtime and a schedule of wage increases. We believe the people of Oshawa need to work just as much as people elsewhere, and an offer of going to work with increased wages is something which ought to be considered.

When Mayor Hall began to talk of matters with which he knew there might be disagreement in the audience he could not proceed. He was not permitted to do so. Hugh Thompson, C.I.O. organizer in Oshawa, appealed to the audience to try and secure a hearing for the Mayor, and then it was he said:

"I never thought that I would have to stand in my own home city and have a man from outside the country come and ask you to listen to me as Mayor."

It is reasonable to take it as a fact that Mayor Hall would have more interest in Oshawa and the welfare and happiness of its people than an outsider who knew nothing of the city until he arrived there a few weeks ago. And yet in the greatest crisis the city has experienced the native-son Mayor, elected to office by the votes of the people of Oshawa, could not secure a hearing.

But the thing is worth considering in a broader field and in a larger way. The men now on strike at Oshawa are just average people like the rest of us, and going on strike has not changed them much. While the mass movement in Oshawa shows decidedly the preference for the word and advice of an outsider, the truth is the rest of us often do the same thing. We saw a suit of clothes not two weeks ago which had been purchased outside the city because a man with a good tongue in his head had been around taking orders. He had caused the purchaser to believe that cut and style and quality were qualities which existed in larger measure out of town. The purchaser of the suit was not much impressed with the article after he got it but he was impressed to a great extent before he got it.

In this city and in every other city there are rather reliable people who could give sound advice on the investment of money if they were asked to do so, but how many there are who prefer to listen to a voice from distant field calling to green pastures, to deep mines and all such. When the home authority has opportunity to speak he is seldom heeded. And there are people in Peterborough as there are in other cities who have had cause to wish fervently but too late that they had dropped in at one of several places in their own bailiwick and taken the advice or warning which could have been readily secured there.

This business of listening to the untried outsider is something we have all done in a greater or lesser degree, and actually when the pieces are all put together the finished picture does not exactly make sense.

The Trailer Problem

Every new development seems to find a partner in the problem it creates. The trailor is growing. The idea of going here and there and stopping in strange places where people have not stopped before has caught the fancy of a number of folk, and the idea is spreading.

And that has caused the Health League of Canada to consider and do some pondering. Quite a bit of it. Dr. J. W. S. McCullough says there is danger in the situation, on three counts, (1) impure milk, (2) impure water, and (3) sanitary disposal.

People with trailers like to get away from the beaten path; they often prefer some quiet spot well removed from any sign of community life, and they do not stop to think that community life generally has its own safeguards as far as health is concerned. There is pure water, safe milk and sanitary conveniences.

Health authorities believe that with the increase of the number of people who live in trailers there may be danger from the three sources indicated. Pure milk can be kept in an ice box; it is possible to boil water or treat it with chemicals to make certain of its safety, but the question of sanitary disposal is not so easily solved. The trailer is creating its own problem.

He Parked His Car

A rather interesting case has been disposed of in Toronto, and the degree is that the owner of a parking lot must pay Austin Spooner of Galt $327 and costs because his car was stolen from the premises. The finding reverses the judgment of the lower court where the case was first heard.

It was stated for the defence that a sign on the premises read that cars were left at the owners' risk; also on the ticket given to the car owner was the wording that cars were left there at the risk of owners. Court considered the signs were placed where they could not easily be seen and the printing on the ticket was also not conspicuous. It was also a condition that the key of the car should be left in the ignition so that if necessary it could be moved.

The decision of the Court of Appeal in favor of the owner was based on the fact that the individual leaving a car on that parking lot had not been sufficiently warned regarding the risk involved. Signs and tickets may mean much or little, but the best security is to have the key of the car in your pocket.

The Way of Markets

Strange how a panic seizes the markets now and then. There has been a demonstration of this within recent days, and prices of stocks have been swept far below the figure at which they ought to stand. The worth-while mining properties are just as good today as they were previously, but the rumor became current that United States was going to reduce the price of gold, and that started it. That rumor has been officially denied but the uneasiness was not dissipated.

In such a situation the speculator who is holding stocks on margin is soon in a weak position. He is called by his broker to put up more margin (or security) as the market value of his holdings decrease, and if he cannot do so he is sold out, and that selling in itself places a greater volume of business on the market, and when offerings are heavy prices decline and it becomes a buyers' market. Then there are those who become fearful when a price goes below the figure at which they first secured their stock, and they move to sell out at once to avoid loss. In all there are more people wanting to sell in a hurry than there are people who want to buy, and prices then go down and down some more.

Actually on such a market the man with some money and some courage will do his buying. The spell of jitters will pass.

There Was a Reason

The following question has been submitted to the Examiner:

"There is one point on which I am not clear in connection with the strike at Oshawa, and I assure you I am asking it in good faith—What difference does it make to Premier Hepburn whether the men at Oshawa want to join the C.I.O. or any other labor organization?"

That is a fair enough question, and it deserves a fair enough reply. As we see it the Premier is not telling the men they must not join a union. It would be beyond his power to say so. His objection against the C.I.O. is its record in the land where it had its origin and where it has been operating. He could see as could any others who were in touch with the news of the day, that the C.I.O. in United States was carrying on a campaign in such a way that it would clash with the forces of law and order. Such clashes have taken place in United States and Premier Hepburn was quite justified in assuming the same tactics would be followed elsewhere. He looked upon it as an invasion of a force which was not wanted in the Dominion of Canada because it would mean the complete domination of the industrial future here by leaders from United States.

Taking Down a Rail Fence

In the London Free Press there was published a picture of a rail fence on the Clark sideroad in London township. It is of the old zig-zag type, and the reason for the picture is that the fence is coming down to make room for one of wire construction. We learn it was built by a pioneer resident many years ago, and until recently has been considered in good condition.

Times must be changing when a rail fence can get its picture put in the paper. They must be getting as scarce as log houses in that part of the country; as scarce as bootjacks, heel scrapers and racks for drying apples over the kitchen range.

Along the Tenth Concession clean up to the Broken Front no person would ever have thought of going and having a picture of a rail fence taken. Of course getting a picture taken then was quite an event. One had to send afar off to get the man to come with much equipment, and certainly no one would have made that much fuss over a rail fence.

No doubt the rail fences have to go, and we don't know what the squirrels or chipmunks will do for a place along which to run and on which to sit, nor do we know where the wild raspberry bushes will find such another place to grow. And also we don't know where the farmers will pitch all the loose stones and everything else they do not want on the field. And a rail fence wasn't a bad place to sit and try out a new jack-knife, and there were places along the rail fence where one could sit without being seen and then no one would call or holler or whistle that there was something which needed doing. Probably the rail fences will all have to go in time and so it may be useful to have a picture of one so folk will know what they looked like.

It is not exactly an encouraging sign to hear that Alberta cities are seeking larger relief grants from the provincial and Federal governments.

We Learn of Timbuctoo

At last we have found something interesting, and it has to do with Timbuctoo. There is a missionary in Peterborough at the moment and he has been there. Too often folk who refer to Timbuctoo have not the remotest idea of where it is or what it is. We were enrolled in that classification; had never been there; had never seen any person who had been there.

Timbuctoo is built on a great sand dune ten degrees north of the equator; it is on the edge of the Sahara desert and 1700 miles inland from the Atlantic coast. If one goes 50 miles north of Timbuctoo he reaches a land where there has been no rain in nine years, and in Timbuctoo they get about ten inches of rain during an entire year.

Timbuctoo has no water supply, but that precious utility is brought there in water bags. Rev. Mr. Sauve, who furnished all this information, also says the temperature gets up around 115 degrees. Whether that is in the shade we are not certain, but we suppose it must be. In the district there are people known as the Tauregs and their chief occupation and aim in life seems to be disliking all the people with whom they come in contact. We learn too that these strange folk, of whom there are 200,000, do not wash themselves or their clothes, and they also let their whiskers grow as long as the whiskers seem inclined to grow.

At various times we have heard people speak of Timbuctoo. We have done so ourselves, but having learned something of that remarkable place no desire arises to go and see what it is like. Where the heat is 115 degrees it is quite all right to accept the description furnished by another man rather than seek to invade the place for a personal impression.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Now the question seems to be whether or not they will be able to get the boys out of the Oshawa trenches before Coronation Day.

If efforts to end the strike are not speeded up it begins to look as if General Motors ball club will have lots of time in which to practice.

It is said that less than one per cent of telegrams today are bad news. We assume this statement only applies to those that are sent paid.

A picture by an old Dutch master brought $87,500 when sold by auction in London. We wonder how much the old master received for it.

Mayor Hall of Oshawa cracked many a tight defence when he used to play lacrosse but breaking through the automobile strikers has proved an even more difficult proposition.

The announcement that President Roosevelt has started an economy drive is real news. Up to the present he has been satisfied to make new records in exactly the opposite direction.

Now that the ball season is open the United States should be a happier country because most of the sitting down—except at the seventh inning—will be done by the fans.

Premier King is considering the advisability of appointing a royal commission to investigate the Doukhobor situation. No need of it for the government has or can secure all needed information.

Edmonton municipal authorities want to shoulder 80 per cent of the relief costs upon the provincial and Federal governments, and from that stage of course it would only be a short jump to having the governments carry the whole load.

Wallace Conrad Miller has been selected by the only woman member of the Manitoba Legislature as the handsomest man in the House and we have a feeling he will have quite a time living that down.

PUZZLED

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Cousin Ezra's car's no good, and it won't go like how it should, I think he's out of luck; he bought the thing way out of town, and took good cash and laid it down, I fear he has been stuck.

¶ And now and then he makes it start, it roars like how 'twould come apart, and it gets rather hot; then Ezra tries to choke it down, so it won't scare the folk in town, and then it's sure to stop.

¶ And Ezra asks most every man, just what is wrong with his old can, and most of them just grin; they turn their heads most every way, and then they all unite to say, there's nothing right within.

¶ But Ezra got new sets of tools, likewise he bought a book of rules, he knows them off by heart; he has to name them one by one, and think of all that might be done, before the thing will start.

¶ And Ezra uses wire and twine, he says it saves him work and time, he ties it here and there; and when he finds it rattles new, why Ezra adds a bolt and screw, and drives them in with care.

¶ My cousin has not gone far yet, nor is he racing for a bet, he's somewhat on the spot; for now and then the thing will go, but so far Ezra does not know—what causes it to stop.

A Farmer Views Strike Problem

(Letter in London Free Press)

EDITOR Free Press: Could I get a little space in your valuable paper to express the views of farmers in general about this strike in Oshawa. I say that Mr. Hepburn deserves credit for the stand he is taking. Let them sit down. I would say let them sit down until their trousers are worn out and their shoes need to be half-soled. Why should an organization in the United States run the country. Why should they get 60 cents an hour without one cent invested while the farmers, with anywhere from $5,000 to $10,000 tied up, are working their heads off to try and keep on the farms. Imagine eggs in London averaging about 15 cents a dozen, with feed just double what it was last year! Hay is $8 a ton, hogs $6 a hundred and milk at the factory worth 90 cents a hundred.

No wonder the boys are leaving the farms and going to town. I had as good a man working for me as any man ever had. He was with me for five years. I paid him $25 a month the year around, besides his board and washing. The women mended his clothes, just like they did our own, but he left me this spring, expecting to get on the highway or work in town. You can't expect these boys to keep on like their old dads, from daylight until dark, to just exist. I don't blame them.

If we have to compete in the labor market with the General Motors Company and pay 60 cents an hour, we might as well quit, as it would cost us a dollar a hundred to milk the cows, without the feed or overhead expense. I have had some of these city men working for me, and they wouldn't milk 50 pounds of milk in an hour. I can show you farm after farm with all the boys gone to town, and the real all going. You can't blame them. The old man is all that is left. We can't compete with the auto workers.

FARMER'S VIEW.

Lambeth, Ont., April, 1937.

LENIENT TO YOUTH.

(Toronto Telegram)

DRIVING on the Kingston road at a rate computed to be 70 miles per hour, a 21-year-old youth collided with another car. He had no driver's license, and was said by the Crown Attorney to be absolutely irresponsible. He was fined $10 and his license was suspended for three months.

In the same court an 18-year-old youth was accused of driving at 74 miles an hour on the Kingston road. He was fined $10 and his license was suspended for thirty days.

Magistrate Keith explains the barbarity of these penalties by reference to the youth of the offenders. One can only ask whether the law is so stony-hearted that it compels youths who are little more than mere children to observe the law under penalty of having their playthings taken away from them for thirty days or three months, not to mention the imposition of a fine which in each case amounted to the price of 1,000 all-day suckers.

Some sentimentalists may ask whether the public is to be exposed to the danger created by these speeding youngsters, and may inquire whether the law has exhausted its powers in taking the cars away from them for a few weeks. For such querulous persons there can be no sympathy. What if there is a little playful slaughtering of innocents? Don't they know that boys will be boys, just as police magistrates will be police magistrates?

IS HELD HERE.

(Galt Reporter)

NEW citizenship laws have recently been proposed in Czechoslovakia and one of the suggestions is that foreigners must prove a knowledge of the language if they wish to become naturalized. A similar requirement might well be emphasized when persons from other countries present themselves for citizenship papers in Canada. There have been times when those desiring to assume the status of a citizen have shown a remarkable lack of understanding of what has been said to them and have experienced considerable difficulty in making themselves understood.

An alien must reside in the Dominion for at least five years before he can seek Canadian nationality and thereby the right to vote. If these people are to take part in the political affairs of the nation, it is very desirable that they should acquire at least a fair English vocabulary and be able to understand reasonably well what is said to them in the English tongue.

THE GRAND RIVER.

(Fergus News-Record)

ONE of the questions which arises in the discussion about the sharing of the cost of the conservation work on the Grand is whether it is a navigable stream or not. In recent years, there has not been much traffic on it, and the only boats were small pleasure craft at places where the water was held back by dams, or near the mouth. Yet in the pioneer days, the Grand carried a heavy traffic. The Indians used it for their canoes at least as far as Belwood. Steamships ran from Buffalo to Brantford. Before the railways came or roads were good, crops and other commodities were carried down-stream from Elora on rafts. Even within our own memory, large numbers of logs were brought down-stream every spring-time to the sawmills at Fergus. Before that, square timber was run down from Luther Amaranth and Melancthon to the railway at Galt (between 1850 and 1870). A great many stories are told of those days.

Apparently the Grand is still navigable when the water is at the proper height, just as it was in the days of the pioneers when April usually found the Indians, who had spent the winter in the bush, returning to their reserve near Brantford. Young men from town have come down stream in a canoe from Grand Valley and from Belwood, while there was still a fair amount of water in the stream.

When Men Were Men.

(By R. E. P. in the Ottawa Journal.)

IF those honored with an invitation to the Coronation banquet next month had to face the gargantuan feasts prepared in former days at the Guildhall, London, they would be at a premium in the West End for some time thereafter.

The last Coronation banquet to be held in Westminster Hall was that of George IV and what a spread was laid out for the 334 guests! Talk about a groaning board! Those gentlemen in knee-breeches and high stocks, and lovely ladies in Empire gowns, were asked to trifle with 32 dishes of turbot, 40 of trout, 40 of salmon, 80 joints of venison, 40 of roast beef, 40 of mutton and veal. These were all served hot, but just as a sideline there were 160 cold dishes of lobster and crayfish, braised ham, beef and chickens. In all over 7,000 pounds of beef and veal, 20,000 pounds of mutton and 1,619 chickens were provided. On top of that there were 345 dishes of "pasties and sweets."

And it was far from an era of drought—the flowing bowl took on the proportions of a lusty young river. To wash the throats and bring joy to the hearts of these liege lords and ladies the Royal Cup Bearer and his assistants provided 2,480 bottles of wine, including champagne, claret, hock, sherry and port. For those with more plebian tastes there were 100 barrels of beer. That works out at over seven bottles of wine per guest and 32 bottles of beer. It makes the most hilarious cock-tail party of today sound like a Quaker picnic.

Going further back quantities by no means decrease but some of the dishes have a weird sound to modern ears. The guests of James II had to choose between "calvear," smelts, shrimps, oysters, lampreys, mullets, salmon, prawns, periwinkles, trout, sturgeon, roasted neats' udders, egg pies, cock combs, marrow pates, "Bolonia" sausages, stags' tongues, pigeons, rabbits, chickens, pheasants, quails, turkeys, beef a la royale, lamb, gammon and countless "delicacies" and sweets. It took two weeks to bring in the wines and liquors and besides all those served to the guests of George IV there were such spicey old gloom-chasers as Burgundy, Tokay, Madeira and "rare vintages from Provence."

It is recorded that that somewhat strabillious gentleman James II "left" after the second course went "into the Inner Court of Wards" (probably the ancient counterpart of an emergency dispensary) "disrobed, and returned right speedily by water to his house in Whitehall." It would be less majesty for that ancient chronicler to suggest it but if the truth were told the dour Jamie probably found the mixture of prawns, periwinkles, neats' udders, stags' tongues, Tokay and Burgundy too much for a weak digestion.

Even George IV, lusty gentleman as he was, had to retire after two hours of his banquet but going way back we find that rich condiments, mullets, mushrooms, gherkins, pigeons, pheasants, multifudinous sweets and "wine that flowed like a mighthie torrent" had a most refreshing effect upon Richard II. It is recorded that he stayed until the very end of the banquet and then retired with some of his peers and the loveliest of their ladies to a great room where they indulged in "dancing, leaping, embracing, and riotous minstrelsies for joy until he departed to his bed wearied with delightful toil." What were the odd pound or two of neats' udders and lampreys and a few gallons of wine to a chap like that!"

The President and J. L. Lewis

(From the New York Sun.)

A Republican Representative from Michigan declared in the House the other day that President Roosevelt had to face the organization of the C.I.O. with a record of pure selfishness, desire to tear up his own plans for the sake of Mr. Roosevelt?

The sit-down strikes are peculiarly difficult to deal with because of their character. They keep strikers together in an atmosphere which breeds grievance and breeds again. A distorted mentality appears, the striker actually coming to believe that he has a natural right to trespass. Hysteria comes and with it a determination not to yield to either law or reason; the evidence of that is in the fulminations of Homer Martin. Fortunately mob psychology has not reached the point where, as in Herrin after the receipt of Lewis' telegram, strikers butchered helpless fugitives.

The time to end sit-down strikes is at their beginning, before there is time for the black yeast of lawlessness to ferment. And the officials to end them are those of State and city. In this hour nothing can be expected from Mr. Roosevelt. Cadmus has sown the dragon's teeth and there is no Minerva—not even Madame Secretary—to show him how to rescue himself from the terrible crop.

Expanding Farm Products.

(From the Brantford Expositor.)

THE Hon. James G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture, has certainly shown himself to be alert to the export trade of Canadian agriculture. Ever since he assumed his important office his work has been performed with the energy which is characteristic of Western Canada from which he comes. Last year he made a trip to Britain for the purpose of exploring the potentialities of the British markets and making Canadian commodities better known to British buyers. In this he succeeded admirably. The "Canada Calling" campaign was responsible for a very large increase in Canadian exports to Britain.

This year Mr. Gardiner proposes to increase the sales of Canadian agricultural products in the markets of the world by $100,000,000. That is a very ambitious programme and it is to be hoped that the Minister will succeed in his plans. He proposes to still further explore all available markets and to provide accurate information regarding Canadian products. Strict attention will be given to marketing methods, practices and facilities, together with their improvement, extension and more efficient and economical handling. He believes that much can be done by making known the merits and qualities of Canada's agricultural products and by bringing exporters and purchasers into closer touch. The Minister is perfectly right in trying to apply to the agencies under the direction of the Federal Department of Agriculture modern methods of salesmanship such as are employed by aggressive private enterprises in marketing their goods.

As Canada's prosperity depends to a very great degree on the welfare of agriculture it is necessary to procure markets for her surplus production. The Reciprocity Pact with the United States resulted in increased exports to that country, thereby bringing better prices to Canadian farmers. Side by side with that the development of British markets to the utmost is certain to have a stimulating effect upon the business of the entire Dominion. Mr. Gardiner is to be congratulated for his initiative and enterprise. His is an important office, and he has never treated it as a sinecure. If he can succeed in his present endeavor he will merit the thanks not only of the farmers of the Dominion but of all Canadians.

KILLING THE GOOSE.

OLD Man Depression gave the building industry such a hefty hook to the chin that it remained groggy for several years. Certain stimulants, however, such as the Home Improvement Plan, the Dominion Housing Act, and the return of confidence in the future have done much to revive the construction industry.

But there may follow a setback due to a too rapid rise in the cost of building material. F. W. Nicolls, director of the Dominion Housing Act, feels that if present trends to price increases are continued further, it may be another case of "killing the goose that laid the golden egg."

Mr. Nicholls feels it his duty to sound this warning because in the last few weeks some branches of the construction industry have increased the cost of supplies by 20 to 30 per cent.

Those who expect to benefit by the revival of construction work, particularly residence building, would be well advised to heed the warning sounded by Mr. Nicolls.

It is possible to tax a thing out of existence, and we imagine in much the same way a sharp boost in the cost of building supplies might have a discouraging influence on many prospective builders.

A TORONTO IDEA.

(St. Catharines Standard)

FOR years past, This Column has refrained from applying the term Hogtown to Toronto, but was there ever a more fitting circumstance than today to apply it, with the enthusiasm in Queen City municipal circles toward the proposal to have the Dionne quintuplets moved down from Callander, and installed in Casa Loma, as the greatest tourist attraction of all time, that is, for Toronto?

Every time there is an attempt to commercially exploit the Quints, public opinion is outraged. But here there is an organized attempt by a great municipality, an attempt to convert a white elephant into a paying proposition, and to steal from Callander and all the North the beneficent flow of a marvellous tourist traffic. Is there any shame at all in Toronto?

Once again, however, Dr. Dafoe is on the job. "Never!" says he, and all Ontario except the penny pinchers in Toronto, will applaud.

LIKE A RACKET.

(Port Arthur News-Chronicle)

IT certainly is true that labor never would have got what it has today without fighting for it with organization, but it seems to us sometimes that the thing has got a little out of hand. Some labor organizations today look a great deal more like a racket. And every racket can only go so far before they have to be stopped.

GABLE IS REVEALED AS GREAT 'NO' MAN

Denies He Is Father Of Winnipeg Child, Before Court Crowded With Women

LOS ANGELES, April 21 (AP).—Clark Gable, a composed "no" man from the film colony, afforded the scores of women who couldn't get into Federal Court yesterday a break today.

The screen lover was recalled by the defence after his successful debut as a United States Government witness in a crowded courtroom yesterday where he voiced his biggest "No" when asked if he was the father of an admittedly illegitimate daughter.

Mrs. Violet Wells Norton, plump English woman; Jack L. Smith, a receiver, and Frank Keenan, of Winnipeg, have been indicted for use of the mails to defraud and for conspiracy.

The Government charged Mrs. Norton wrote letters to Gable informing him his real name was "Frank Billings" and he was the father of Gwendoline, born in 1933.

Huge crowds, composed almost entirely of women, stormed the courtroom and the corridors yesterday waiting for him to appear. They defied the efforts of a heavy cordon of marshals who were prepared for trouble—but not that much.

Details Two Years Of Life.

Gable detailed the places where he lived as a boy and a young man. He itemized his movements from 1922 to 1924, when, Mrs. Norton contends, she was having the illicit romance with "Frank Billings."

Then he quietly said "No" to some two dozen questions.

He was asked if he ever had communicated with Mrs. Norton, or her representatives; if he took her letters seriously; if he ever paid her any money; if he ever had seen Gwendoline.

"Are you the father of Gwendoline?" asked Assistant U.S. Attorney John Powell.

"No," said Gable.

James Fidler, movie commentator, identified letters Mrs. Norton wrote to him, as well as other people, telling her story.

The most significant one equalled 15 pages when copied on a typewriter. It said "Frank Billings" discovered in England that she was the mistress, not the wife, of the man supposed to be her husband.

Frank drew me into his cottage and told me, 'I've as much right to you as he.' The letter related and she learned "what love was for the first time."

Chatham Wonders at Bill For Papering and Painting Cemetery.

G.M.C. FORCES STRIKERS' HAND

night voted unanimously not to return to work until the company signed an agreement. They refused to return after Mayor Alexander Hall presented proposals for settlement, including increased pay, a five-day, 40-hour week with time-and-a-half for overtime instead of the present 45 or 50 hour week with no overtime.

Mayor Hall to-day said he feared if the strike continued numerous automobile workers would move out of the city because they could not be expected to be satisfied with any strike allowance, even if they got it."

Homer Martin, international union head, said in Washington yesterday financial support would be given the strikers.

Back To Friday Status.

The company's reply today to Millard's request for a conference sends the strike back where it was Friday night.

Harry J. Carmichael, vice-president and general manager of the company, left Oshawa today for an appointment with Mr. Hepburn in Toronto.

The International Union president was still in Washington today conferring with the union executive board. Thompson and Cohen said Marsh would arrive here later to-day.

If his business there with the executive board takes two hours, Martin will leave for Oshawa in two hours. If his business takes him five hours, he will leave for here in five hours," said Cohen, who said he telephoned Martin twice today.

Martin, cancelling earlier plans to leave for Oshawa, Ont., where 3,000 General Motors workers are on strike, attended the board meeting this morning. There was no immediate word from him as to why he changed his plans or as to the subject of the board's discussions.

Martin said later he was uncertain when he would go to Oshawa, but indicated he might fly there in time to attend a strike mass meeting tonight.

Hepburn Bars Millard

TORONTO, April 21 (CP).—Premier Hepburn said today he was willing to meet in negotiation any committee of the striking Oshawa automobile workers, including their original negotiating committee, after he had unofficially learned of General Motors ultimatum that the strikers must negotiate through the premier's office or return to work before resuming negotiations.

The premier said he would meet any of the strikers except paid agents of the Committee for Industrial Organization, to which the United Automobile Workers of America is affiliated. He reiterated he would not meet Hugh Thompson, C.I.O. organizer, nor would he meet with C. H. Millard, local president of the union and recently appointed a U.A.W. paid organizer, unless Millard changed his status. Whether he would meet with J. L. Cohen, union counsel, with whom he broke last Saturday, depended on whom Cohen was representing, he said.

The premier declined to comment further on the General Motors statement until it was officially before him, but he was hopeful that it would lead to a reopening of negotiations between the company executive and their striking employees.

He was expecting to confer again today with the independent group of strikers who visited him for an hour yesterday, claiming they represented from 1,000 to 1,500 of the strikers who wished to return to work.

Watching Strike Rebels.

Two union-supporting strikers arrived earlier to keep an eye they said, on the delegation, of 11 who had appeared here yesterday. That delegation had refused to reveal the identity of any of its members. The two union representatives said they had been appointed to identify them.

One of the two claimed he had voted himself to return to work when the men thought negotiations were going to be carried on without Mr. Hepburn. He said not more than 20 or 30 others had voted the same way at that time, so he claimed, the independent delegation would hardly be representing the numbers they claimed.

The strikers expect Homer Martin to bring a substantial amount of money with him when he arrives back in Oshawa to-night from his International executive meeting in Washington. The International may send $100,000 they said. The strike could be "carried" as far as expenses were concerned for about $35,000 per week.

POACHER ANGERED OVER LOSS OF NETS

Had To Flee To Save His Tug Says U.S. Shipper—No Fish In Own Waters

CLEVELAND, April 21.—(AP)—Seizure of his fish nets 15 miles within Lake Erie's Canadian waters and a flight to save the tug New York today aroused the ire of Capt. E. J. Tuttle, fleet superintendent for the Booth Fisheries.

The nets, which the captain valued at $500, were seized yesterday by a Canadian warden aboard a Canadian fish tug which came up on them 12 miles east of Point Pelee, he said.

"We saw a fish tug at our nets when we sailed up," Capt. Tuttle said after the New York returned here. "We thought it was just a Canadian fisher, but when we reached for them the tug came up and the warden identified himself.

"I told him we'd leave as soon as we got our nets. He replied 'I'm coming aboard you.' So we sailed away and he wasn't able to catch us. If he had, he could have seized our tug and all."

Capt. Tuttle said the nets were placed across the international boundary because pollution of American water has driven fish to the north shore. He complained heavy sales of Canadian fish halved the price here in the last month.

"The thing that makes me mad is that the warden was on a fish tug," the captain said. "When the Canadians fish on the American side—and they have many times, even near Cleveland—we never allowed wardens aboard our tugs. In fact, our wardens would never ask us to do that."

"We can't get a fish inside 25 miles," he added. "All spring we've been forced to go into Canadian waters to set nets."

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 21—(CP). — Favorable weather reports in North American wheat growing areas partially strangled the rise of wheat prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today as continental buying continued on a large scale.

Wheat futures slipped from early two-cent gains to close ¾ higher to 1¼ cents lower, with May at $1.38⅝, July $1.32⅜, and October $1.18⅝.

As European importers turned to Canada for wheat today, export purchases since yesterday's close were placed at 1,500,000 bushels.

Despite good demand prices dropped back from two cent gains, principally in October wheat, which encountered selling from all sources.
